Even a place which is not a home cannot be raided without a warrant, under the Volstead law. If a Prohibition agent goes into a saloon and buys liquor he can immediately seize all the liquor in sight, or in the room where he is. But his right is questioned by some courts to go into another room, even an adjoining room where he sees through an open door that the liquor supply is kept, and seize the same. If he seizes all the liquor in the barroom and then hurries to the United States Commissioner's office and swears out a warrant and comes back an hour later to raid the other rooms in the building, he finds that the liquor has all been removed, as a matter of course. If the U. S. Commissioner is 25 to 50 miles away, as is often the case in the rural districts, it may be several hours before the Prohibition agent can go and get a warrant and get back to raid the place. Of course, that gives the liquor manufacturer or dealer time to remove the liquor and still or home brew plant before the raid.

This is all wrong. The Volstead Law should provide that if a Prohibition agent finds the law being violated in one room of a building, he should be authorized to search at once every part of the premises and seize all liquor found. Fifteen State Prohibition laws command the officer when arresting a bartender or proprietor for violating the Prohibition law to search for and seize all evidence of law violations in the building, even without any warrant. Why should not the Volstead Law be as good as such State laws?

This is all the more important now that "rum row" is mostly stopped and the Canadian liquor flow seems likely to be largely suppressed by the Canadian Government. Manufacture of liquor in "homes" is likely to be greatly increased in this country, if this defect in the Volstead Law is not corrected.

For generations the home was in constant peril from the liquor business, operating from without. Husbands, fathers and sons were debauched from without the home and sent there to terrorize the family. "The Protection of the Home" was the battle cry of the Prohibition hosts under which they rallied their forces in the half-century-long struggle that finally outlawed the saloon. Without the "protection of the home" incentive the licensed saloons might still be here.

The liquor business, defeated in public places, has sought a haven of refuge in the American home. Now these home corruptors grab up the old battle stained banner of their enemies and are marching up and down the land with their hypocritical cry about the "sanctity of the home." The home is now being destroyed from within, by the same liquor forces, instead of from without.

Prior to the Volstead Law the most dangerous place to manufacture intoxicating liquor was in the home. The home manufacturer was branded a "moonshiner" and his rights to the protection of his "castle" were denied and the "sanctity" of his home made a joke. It was entered at any time, day or night, with or without warrant, by Federal Revenue officers, and nobody complained. That was done on the demand of the liquor interests who sought protection for their licensed business from home manufacture competition. But when their business was gone, the same powers turned to the Government in an appeal for the protection of the "sanctity of the home" that they might use it as a basis to defeat the purpose of the 18th Amendment.

The U. S. Constitution provides protection to the weak by denying any right to any person to manufacture intoxicating liquors for beverage purposes. It makes no exception of any place where such manufacture may be permitted; neither does it except the manufacture of liquor for beverage purposes for himself, or his family, or his "bona fide guests"; neither is there an exception of any kind, even if such liquors are not for sale; nor is there an exception of the family dwelling, in which such liquors may be manufactured or consumed.—The Civic Bulletin.

MURMURING

The Lord says, "Do all things without murmurings and disputings." Some of God's people seem to think it a very light thing to murmur and grumble about the tasks that come their way in the Christian life. They go ahead and perform them, but with a spirit of grudge rather than one of delight. Nothing is just quite right; some one else should be given the work to do or some one should have given more information in the matter. There is a half-heartedness about all their labors instead of a rejoicing for the privilege of being laborers together with God. He has no hands but our hands, no feet but the ones we loan Him for service. Think ye that there is much reward awaiting him who serves from duty rather love? Duty goes the first mile, but love goes the second. Love not only goes the second mile, but goes without murmuring.

Miriam was smitten with leprosy because she murmured against God's man. And she was soon glad to have the same man pray for her against whom she had murmured. If we are not careful and prayerful saintly people and sacred things become ordinary to us, and we are likely to bring down the displeasure of God upon us by unjust criticism, fault-finding and murmuring.—Herald of Light and Zion's Watchman.

OUR STORY PAGE

WHO WILL CARRY A MESSAGE?

A big battle was being fought between the English and Dutch navies. Sir John Narborough was the English admiral, and the masts of his ship had been shot away almost as soon as the fighting began. In spite of the greatest care and the most splendid bravery, Sir John saw that the English sailors must be beaten unless he could get help.

There were a few ships some distance off to the right, but they were to act as a reserve and would not enter into the battle without a message from him. Sir John stood a moment and wondered how that message could be sent. It was not possible to signal; there was only one way—the message must be carried.

Sir John wrote his order telling the captain of the reserve to come and help him at once; then he called aloud for any one who was willing to be the messenger.

Think of the scene a moment and then you will understand a little what a brave heart was needed to carry that note.

Below was the sea; above, around, in it there rained a heavy shower of bullets. The long swim would be trying enough, but to swim with the chance of being shot every second was terrible. Yet many sailors came forward at their admiral's call ready to risk their lives for their country's good.

They were all grown-up men and they must have stared in wonder as one of the cabin boys, Cloudesley Shovel by name, stood up among them.

"Why, what can you do, my fearless lad?" said the admiral kindly.

"I can swim, sir; and if I am shot I shall be missed less than any one else."

After a moment's hesitation the paper was handed to the boy, who put it between his teeth and sprang overboard. How the men cheered and watched him as long as he could be seen. He reached the reserve ships in safety and as they went into action at once a victory was gained by the English.

When the sun was setting Cloudesley Shovel stood once more on the deck of the admiral's ship and received his heartiest thanks.

"I shall live to see you have a flagship of your own," he said; and the words came true, for the brave cabin boy became Sir Cloudesley Shovel, one of the greatest British admirals.

The Captain of our salvation is engaged in a great warfare with Satan and his hosts of darkness, and He wants everybody to come to His help. He wants messengers to go to those who are fighting against Him, or who are doing nothing to help on His cause and tell them that if they will come to Him they will receive pardon of all their sins, and that God will give them victory over sin and a glorious reward in the end. What say you, young folks, will any of you be brave enough to volunteer in this noble service?—The Youth's Evangelist.

TO THE END

Jay was working like a little tiger. You see his father had asked him to split the pile of wood behind the house, and throw it in the woodshed. Starting early in the morning, Jay had kept steadily at work until most of the woodpile had vanished. Toward the end, Jay's pace had slackened, and now with but about twenty sticks remaining he seated himself on the ground beneath a tree.

"Taking it easy?" a voice inquired behind him.

Turning about, Jay saw Dick Storms, his Sunday School teacher.

"Hello," he said. "Yes, I thought I would rest. I've nearly completed my job, and I thought I would let the rest of it go until tomorrow."

"You don't mean you've got that near to the end, and are going to leave that little pile?"

"Oh, it don't matter whether those few sticks are split or not," Jay answered. "I've got the rest of it under shelter. Anyway, I can split those some other time."

"You are making quite a record in the High School as an athlete, aren't you, Jay?" Dick said, abruptly changing the subject.

"Other folks seem to think so," Jay replied.

"That was a great end run you made in the Hilton football game," Dick continued. "It won the game for us. That was a long run, and I've wondered why you didn't stop on their ten yard line."

"On the ten yard line?" Jay repeated in surprise. "Why, I wanted to score a touchdown."

"You could have let some one else carry it over."

"What was the use when I had a clear field?" Jay asked. "Besides, some one else might have failed."

"That's right," Dick said. "Do you remember that baseball game with Hildsdale when you hit the home run up against the center field fence? Why didn't you stop on third and let the next batter bring you in. That would have saved you some hard running."

"But suppose the next batter didn't get a hit? Then I wouldn't have scored."

"Well," agreed Dick. "I guess there is something to that. The last ten yards were the hardest, but you made them and scored a touchdown that won the game. The last base was the hardest, but you made it and registered a home run. You refused to be defeated. Don't you think it is too bad to have twenty sticks of wood defeat a strong husky lad and spoil a complete day's work? I'd finish that job before I quit the day. There's nothing quite like finishing a worthy piece of work. And while we're talking about that, Jesus expects or at least wants every Christian to be faithful to the task He has given them. You remember that verse that reads like this,—'Be thou faithful unto death, and I will give thee a crown of life'—It's by running the race to the end that we make our biggest gain."

Jay arose to his feet without a word, and in a few moments tossed the last stick into the woodshed.

"Thanks," he said to Dick. "I'm glad you stopped."—Selected.

WHAT DROVE THE FROWNS AWAY

Myra and Mildred were both unusually cross the day before Thanksgiving. Nothing that anybody did seemed to please them. The more mother tried to be pleasant and to help them have a good time, the crosser and more miserable they became. If people in their cross moods would only stop and think they would chase away the frowns and let the smiles shine out.

While they were in the dumps, a request came over the telephone to carry a message to the house into which the new neighbors had lately moved. They wondered who those neighbors were and whether there was any little girl who might be a playmate for them. So they were glad of an excuse to call at the door. They wanted to find out all they could about the new neighbors.

They were both surprised when a lame girl answered their knock. She walked with a crutch, but she had such a pleasant smile on her face that the callers fell in love with her at once. They felt sure that she would be nice to be with, for she looked as if she tried her best to make others happy. She thanked them so nicely for bringing them the message—which she and her grandmother were glad to hear.

Myra and Mildred went home with the clouds all chased away. It made them ashamed of themselves to see a lame girl so bright and pleasant, when they, who were strong and well, had been acting so unthankfully.—Olive Plants.

LESSONS FROM THE ANT

After reading this Scripture verse in Proverbs 6:6—"Go to the ant, thou sluggard; consider her ways, and be wise," I was reminded of a bright, sunny, summer morning when I was just outside our kitchen door under a large poplar tree, preparing the vegetables for dinner. Suddenly my attention was drawn to a little red ant about one-fourth inch long, that was hurrying along. He no doubt was looking for something for his dinner too, but he did not have long to look for there right across his path lay a green worm about one inch long,—easily four times larger than he himself; so I watched closely to see what the ant would do. He came up to the worm and ran around it a time or two, as if he was trying to decide whether or not he should try to capture the worm; then he grappled the worm by the head. Such twisting and turning and wiggling as that poor worm did. Then he shook the ant loose and tried to get away, but the ant could go faster and soon caught the worm again. But this time he made a mistake for he caught the worm by the tail instead of the head, and the worm reached back and stung the ant, then he let go and staggered as if he was dizzy. Just then another ant came to help him, and they both grabbed the worm; one caught it by the head and the other one by the tail. The worm wiggled but could not get loose so the ants carried it off.

We always find the ants busy gathering and storing away food for the winter, during the warm summer days, so I believe the Lord wants us to prepare for winter by storing away some vegetables and fruits.

This lesson, too, came to me: I am sure the Lord wants you boys and girls to store away in your hearts and minds His Word—the Bible—now, in your childhood days, which is the summer time of your lives, so that when you get older and cannot remember or learn verses of Scripture so easily you will already have a chest full of verses you can use.

You remember the story of Jesus and His temptation do you not? When the devil tempted Jesus, He always quoted Bible verses to defeat the devil. The Bible is our Sword but we cannot use it when we need a sword the most, unless we have it stored away in our hearts and minds; so let us learn a lesson from the ants, not only to store away food for our bodies, but also, to store away food for our souls, by memorizing as many Bible verses as we can, for the Bible is our spiritual food.

I am thinking again of that worm and ant. We are like the ant that tried, alone, to capture the worm and was defeated. We cannot in our own strength defeat the devil, he is stronger than we are, yes, very much stronger. If we try to battle with him alone, he will defeat us every time and we will fall back staggering, as the ant did. We must have some one who is stronger than the devil to help us. Jesus Christ is stronger, and He is the only One who can help us. If we ask Jesus to be our Leader and Captain in the conflict of life against the enemy, we can have victory over the devil. Have you accepted Jesus as your Saviour and Captain?—Selected.

TEMPTATION

We are never out of the reach of temptation. Both at home and abroad, we are liable to meet with allurements to evil; the morning opening find us still in jeopardy. They are well kept whom God keeps, but woe unto those who go forth into the world, or even dare to walk, their own house unarmed. Those who think themselves secure, are more exposed to danger than any others. The armor-bearer of Sin is Self-confidence. Be not secure. We need a watchman for the night, as well as a guardian for the day. Oh, for the constraining love of Jesus to keep us active and useful! —C. H. Spurgeon.

THREE BOOKS TO BRING

A negro preacher walked into the office of a newspaper in Rocky Mount, N. C., and said: "Misto Edito, they is forty-seven of my congregation which subscribe fo' your paper. Do that entitle me to have a chu'ch notice in yo Sadday issue?"

"Sit down and write," said the editor.

"I thank you."

And this is the notice the minister wrote:

"Mount Moriah Baptist Church, the Rev. John Obadiah, pastor. Preaching morning and evening. In the promulgation of the Gospel three books is necessary: The Bible, the hymn book, and the pocket book. Come tomorrow and bring all three."

Other pastors than Pastor Obadiah and other churches than Mount Moriah may well send out word to everybody to bring these three books to church.—The S. S. Friend.

To the Leader

No doubt the Bible is the greatest Book that has ever been written. Its worth is usually unquestioned. Perhaps Elbert Hubbard was right even though it was a rather stinging criticism of our use of it when he said that "It is the Book about which all of us talk, but which few of us read." The Bible is the best Book ever published and should be read and thought upon. It is the most popular Book in the world. It has been translated into 117 languages.

The Bible is the inspired Word of God and it will continue to live because it treats the fundamental spiritual truths of life. The Word of God is from everlasting to everlasting.

"Read to me from the Book," said the dying Sir Walter Scott to his son-in-law, Lockhart. And Lockhart, somewhat perplexed, asked: "Which book?" Whereupon the dying man said, "There is but one."

THE CALEDONIA CANAL

Where bank and brae and shadows meet,
And great green hills are mirrored
Like mountains at our feet;
Where gray sea-gulls are dying
Like messengers of light,
From soft and purpling shadows
That greet the traveler's sight;
Where pine-clad hills are ever
Like encircling arms from harm,
And my soul is steeped in beauty
By this wealth of wondrous charm;
As long as memory lingers,
And her pipes my heart enthral,
I'll hear the sweetest music
When I hear the Highland Call.

SECURITY

I built a castle in the air;

It seemed so very real to me,

Until one day a monsoon came

And blew my castle out to sea.

I built a bungalow on sand,

Of charm and beauty fair to tell;

Floods came, wild winds blew,

Beat upon it, and it fell.

I built a house upon a Rock,

Built it so to long endure;

Let rains descend and tempests smite,

I know my house will stand secure.

—Grenville Kleiser.

The acreage planted to soybeans will be materially increased this year by farmers in Mecklenburg county. The Ottofan is the most popular variety and 627 bushels of these seed have been bought for planting this year.

NOTE OF THANKS

Because of the Branch meeting, the meeting of the Tri-State Orphan association and the ten-day meetings of an Institute for Workers in institutions for children we have been obliged to let some of the office work accumulate. So I am writing this note of thanks for all the fine bunches of Octagon coupons we have been receiving during these days and asking those who have sent them to accept this in place of the individual notes we try to get to each one who sends us their coupons. We very greatly appreciate the coupons. True we cannot use them for food or clothing or feed for the stock or gasoline or any of the every day running expense and this why we still have to have money, but we can use them to such good advantage for the many, many needs we have otherwise to go without because the money will not supply all of these.

I want you all to know that whenever you send two coupons you have sent one cent toward these needs, and when you have sent 200 you have contributed $1.00 toward them.

Now just a word about the kind of coupons we can use. Every Octagon product has a coupon on it. There are six of these. Octagon soap, Octagon soap powder, Octagon scouring cleanser, Octagon floating soap, Octagon toilet soap, Octagon soap chips. There is a Colgate product sent out by Colgate called "Fab." It has no coupon that I can use. I frequently get the large word "Fab" sent in. I cannot use these and some one has said that the individual could use them. If so I do not want any one to be deprived of their use, so please just keep those. Then I get several "Kirkmans" coupons. I cannot use these either. Then, too, I cannot use "Mothers" coupons. The Octagon Co. is the only company that gives us this privilege. Where you collect the others you can use them and I am always sorry that any one is deprived of their use when I cannot use them. Again we thank you. Please keep the coupons coming.

MRS. A. G. DIXON.

—One of the surprises of the day is the retirement of Bro. J. Norman Wills from business as an officer of the Odell Hardware Co. He had been with this company all his business life of 44 years. Years ago he was promoted to the responsible position of secretary and treasurer. His burden has perhaps been made heavier by reason of the ill health of associates. We do not know the considerations that led him to retire, but would not be surprised to learn that he felt the need of a rest which he could not get with the responsibilities of office upon him. After a few months of rest he will probably be found filling some place of usefulness in the business world. He will be greatly missed in the offices of the Odell Hardware Company. May he learn how to rest as well as he has learned how to work. Mr. E. L. Brown has been chosen as his successor in office.

Away to Washington

This report is being made very hurriedly that Mother Dixon and I may get off to Washington, D. C., to attend our denominational board meeting preceding the convention. We are planning to have 16 of our children present for two appearances on the program next Friday, May 15.

With gratitude to all of you for your prayers and contributions, and praying His rich blessings upon each of you, I am,

Yours in His service,

A. G. DIXON, Supt.

—Bennett College (for colored people) in this city is offered $250,000 by the general education board on condition that an equal sum is contributed by others for buildings. Greensboro people are asked to contribute $50,000 of this amount. Greensboro's business men are trying to find a way to meet the condition. Bennett College is a missionary enterprise of the M. E. Church (North).

FROM PASTORS and PEOPLE

Winston-Salem, First.—In the absence of the pastor who was preaching the commencement sermon at Old Richmond High School last Sunday, Rev. N. M. Harrison, promotional secretary for High Point College, conducted the service here. Brother Harrison pleased the audience very much, many of the people speaking in the highest terms of his sermon. He brought with him Miss Alma Andrews and Mr. Norman Dement, of High Point College, who delighted the audience with their music. While the people here were pleased, the writer was also pleased with what he saw at Old Richmond. This school is in the vicinity of Pleasant Hill Methodist Protestant church on the West Forsyth Charge. Bro. C. B. Way had called in his appointment for the morning and was present with his people for the commencement sermon, making the prayer and introducing the writer. The graduating class consisted of 12 nice-looking young people, eight being girls and four boys.

Our Sunday school attendance here has been holding very steady for the past several weeks. During the first contest with Charlotte our folks were greatly thrilled and we won by a nice margin, but when we decided to prolong the contest two more months, then the people seemed to lose interest completely in the contest. If we had not gone so high in the first contest our attendance at the present would seem fine, but having once reached the heights the normal then seems rather tame.

We are now holding prayer meetings on Thursday evenings in the homes of the shut-ins of our church. The prayer meeting this week will be in the home of Mrs. S. A. Smothers, who is said to be the oldest member of our church.

There is a slight lull in our Herald Campaign but after a few more week several subscriptions will expire and we are hoping then to double our quota.

$157.50 of our $200.00 of the College maintenance fund has been sent in and we are hoping to get the rest before long.

Our church and two individuals have been registered for the Washington Convention this week, though in so far as I know no one will go from here. J. E. PRITCHARD.

Davidson Charge.—Rev. E. A. Bingham filled his appointment at Linberry Sunday morning, May 3. We were pleased indeed to see so many present. Mother's Day was observed on this date as our pastor couldn't be with us on the exact day. A very needed and helpful sermon was delivered. It impressed more strongly upon our minds to appreciate our mothers' love and affection for us. The point was also brought out that our father's love was almost as dear as mother's, and that they would go with their children in life as far as possible, and their prayers go farther than their bodies. Many a mother's prayer has meant the success in life of her son or daughter.

A large crowd was also present at Pleasant Grove in the afternoon. We are always glad to see new faces at our services and welcome all to come again.

At 3 o'clock in the afternoon Mr. Bingham was called to conduct the funeral service of Mr. Jesse Tysinger at Chapel Hill. Our prayers go out for the widow and daughter who are left behind. May they always trust in the Lord.

Mrs. Louie Surratt, who has been in High Point hospital, has returned home. Mrs. Walter Egbert, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Smith, who has also been in the hospital, has gone to her home in High Point. We hope both may soon be able to enjoy health again.

The hearts of the entire community were filled with sadness when on April 22, 1931, Brother Leach Lanier, of Handy, was called to his reward. His son, Jim Lanier, preceded him to the grave about five months ago. We know the home has been broken; two chairs are empty that can never be filled. But, dear companion, remember there is a place in heaven which can soon be filled by you. May the lonely daughter and son who are left strive even harder to make for themselves a record which they will not be ashamed to face.

The work on this charge is progressing nicely, and may it continue. The people have made it possible for a basement to be dug under the parsonage, of which the pastor and his family are proud.

The Linberry Sunday school and Christian Endeavor are making much progress; the old people as well as the young attend the C. E. societies and enjoy the splendid talks made by its members. All the community is proud of this worthy organization and hope some of the greatest leaders of tomorrow may come from our society. The surprise committee has given us some surprises for which we have been glad during the winter and spring.

The third Sunday in May is the Rally Day at Chapel Hill. Everybody is invited. Please be there at 10 o'clock. A special program has been arranged. Lunch will be served on the ground. We cordially invite all former pastors.

Henderson.—Thursday night, May 7th, brought to a close a ten days' revival held in our church by Dr. R. M. Andrews, of Charlotte. In a most pleasing, calm and sincere manner, Dr. Andrews brought a series of powerful and convicting sermons to a much interested and attentive congregation. His morning talks were indeed uplifting and encouraging to the Christian of today. We feel a great blessing has been afforded us by this revival and we pray the seed sown by these services will continue to grow and bring forth an abundant harvest.

A splendid attendance was had at the Sunday school hour last Sunday and the 11 o'clock services were in keeping also. A Mother's Day program was given as follows:

"Our Debt to Motherhood," Mrs. Clyde L. Finch; "Mother's Day Thought," Mrs. J. M. Baity; "Let Every Day Be Mother's Day," Miss Katharine Faulkner.

Mrs. Morton C. Miles, soloist of this city, rendered a lovely selection. A Scripture lesson and a brief discourse by the pastor concluded the impressive services.

Rev. R. A. Hunter will leave Tuesday to attend the Washington Convention and we are proud to report our quota of registrations paid in.

Although at a very late day I must mention the beautiful Easter pageant that was given at our church Easter Sunday; also on the Friday night preceding. "All Hail" was the title of the presentation and under the directorship of Mrs. H. A. Jordan, it proved to be the most effective and impressive ever given here.

We are most grateful for our new arrangements in the basement and now are enjoying the much needed class rooms it provides.

The monthly meeting of the Auxiliary was held in the church on Monday afternoon, April 27th, with Mrs. R. A. Hunter, president, in the chair. Mrs. L. R. Gooch was devotional leader for the afternoon. The program leader, Mrs. Edison T. Hicks, in her usual attractive manner reviewed the fourth chapter of the study book. During the business period plans for raising the Auxiliary budget were discussed. The delegates from the Branch Meeting at High Point gave a splendid report. Reports from Circle chairmen were given and the interest shown at this first meeting is most encouraging for a good year's work.

The meeting closed by prayer.

We regret to report that Mrs. Geo. B. Harris is confined to her bed.

Mr. W. T. Nuckles, a member of our church, was taken ill suddenly on Monday night, April 6th, and died in a few hours. He leaves a wife and one son. To them we extend our deepest sympathy. REPORTER.

Friendship, Shiloh Charge.—Our pastor, Rev. R. S. Troxler, preached an inspiring sermon about Mother Sunday morning at 11 o'clock. We were glad to have several to stand up and testify for Mother at Sunday school Sunday morning. Our Sunday school is growing; we have 187 on roll; attendance is very good.

Mrs. Harper Shoaf, a member of our Sunday school and church, who has been ill for quite a while, is improving; we hope she will soon be able to come to worship with us.

The C. E. Society of Friendship went to Cornatzer's church May 3 and organized a C. E. Society. We are always glad to hear of the society doing good.

ADELE PHILLIPS, Reporter.

West Forsyth.—Services the past Sunday on West Forsyth charge were well attended. We were at Union Hill at 3 p. m. for the first service of the day. We were delighted to have had the East Bend Male Quartet present for the service. They rendered three beautiful and impressive selections, one of them being in keeping with the day, which was entitled, "Honoring Mother."

A large congregation which almost filled the church was present at Tabernacle Sunday night at 8 o'clock, this service being changed from 11 a. m. on account of the commencement sermon at Old Richmond school. We were glad to have had people present from other churches and some from High Point.

Rev. J. E. Pritchard, pastor of the First Methodist Protestant church at Winston-Salem, delivered the baccalaureate sermon at Old Richmond consolidated school Sunday morning to a large congregation. His subject was "Making the Most of Youth," and he discussed three outstanding thoughts in the splendid sermon, namely, the privileges of youth, the perils of youth, and the obligations of youth.

The pastor and family enjoyed visits in the homes of Mr. and Mrs. Roscoe Reed, of Tabernacle church, and Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Douglass, of Union Hill church, being entertained at dinner in the former home and enjoying supper in the latter home.

Our service for next Sunday will be at Pleasant Hill church at 11 a. m. The ordinance of the Lord's Supper will be administered in connection with the sermon.

C. B. WAY, Pastor.

Bellefont Church, Mt. Hermon Circuit.—Last Sunday we had a very good Sunday school. We had about 120 present, also several visitors.

The Junior Christian Endeavor Society gave a very interesting program Sunday morning on Mother's Day.

Miss Elsie Baker was back with us again after being away for some time.

We are planning an interesting program for Memorial day which will be held the fourth Sunday in this month.

REPORTER.

Mt. Pleasant, N. Davidson Charge.—Attendance was good April 25. We were glad to have Bro. S. L. Grubb with us again. Among the visitors were Mr. Guy Bodenheimer and Mr. and Mrs. Cletus Hayworth.

Miss Delphine Welborn, one of our church and Sunday school members, graduated from the Midway High School this week.

Sunday school has been moved up to 9:30 instead of 10 o'clock.

The election for delegate will be held at our church on the fourth Sunday in May. The nominees are Colon Haynes, from Spring Hill, and L. H. Hilton, from Mt. Pleasant.

Mt. Pleasant church will be dedicated on the fourth Sunday of May. The annual memorial services will be held also. Rev. J. E. Pritchard will be with us, and the president of Annual Conference also. We are looking forward to a good day and we ask all the members to be present and all other people that can.

Rev. H. L. Powell took his text from Luke 18:1: "And he spake a parable that men ought always to pray and not to faint." The negative part of the subject is to notice what is not prayer. We are sometimes mistaken. Prayer doesn't consist of fine phrases, or sentences in which one may form his prayer. Bro. Hamner called upon a man of the congregation one time and I have never heard such language, and if it were the language of the people in congregation they would be saved. The words were broken, but he was acquainted with God. People were saved by his prayer. Prayer isn't simply fine words, but the feeling we have with God. There are some prayers that God doesn't hear. When Jesus was in the world He told the people that the heathen had their way of words, but He told them not to pray like them. Sitting when praying is a modern invention. Nowhere in the Bible does it say to sit and hump over. We are taught in God's words that they knelt and prayed. We know that the congregation is going to kneel and pray. If Jesus says anything about standing and praying we haven't seen it. The custom of the hypocrites was to stand in public and pray, but Jesus warns us against standing and being seen by the eyes of man. What is prayer? We don't need a dictionary, but we may use the definition of the poet: "Prayer is the sublimest heights the soul can reach," and so on. Recently we learned that the air was full of music, songs, and fine speeches. Men may be heard around the world by radio. We may hear music, singing, and speaking in our homes from New York by the waves of the air. When the heart is in tune with the great heart of God everything will change. When should we pray? Men ought always to pray. How can we always pray? You and I should always live in that attitude toward God. Prayer is Christians' "vital breath." There is an illustration of an old colored woman. She attended a meeting when a presiding elder was present. He gave a fine text. The people couldn't agree on the text, though. Not satisfied, the colored woman said: "I'm surprised that those intelligent white men don't understand it and I understand it so well." The elder arose and told what he heard the colored woman say, and made a move that she rise and tell everyone, and she arose and said: "I understand it to mean, when I retire I say, 'Lord, just take this old negro and keep me, and when I awake I thank Him and tell the Lord to clothe me in a garment of salvation and ask Him to wash me and when I go to bed I just say, 'Lord, feed me with the blood of the Lamb. And all day long I go on the same way, asking the Lord to preserve me.' This is the best definition I've ever heard of."

The sermon was enjoyed very much by the entire congregation.

RUTH PAYNE, Reporter.

St. Paul Charge.—We held our second quarterly conference Monday night, May 4, with most of the officials present. The business was transacted in a fine spirit. The reports of officers showed a very successful quarter's work.

Our spring revival was held in April. The reporter has already told about it; however, I wish to say a few words about it myself. Bro. Isley, of South Lexington charge, did the preaching throughout the meeting. He preached the gospel with power. There were 27 conversions. The church was greatly revived and helped by the meeting. The church and community co-operated nicely with us in the meeting.

On Wednesday evening after the service I was requested to go back into the Sunday school room class of the True Blue, and when I went in I was surprised. Why? Because there were 32 articles for the preacher's table. I do not know the names of all who took part in the pounding, but our heavenly Father does, and I pray His blessings upon each one who had part in this donation.

D. I. GARNER, Pastor.

Love's Grove S. S., Midland Circuit.—We are moving along very well. Our Sunday school is good, with good attendance and good interest. Sunday, May 10th, we had 126 present. The attention was good as the teachers explained the lesson well. Christ is our great Teacher, but there is a tendency to drift from His teaching. Mother's Day was observed Sunday with good attendance. Bro. Love, our pastor, was with us and preached a very appropriate sermon on the duty of mothers in training children for Christ in the home, for the home is the place to train the child. Too many parents do not set the right example before our children and then blame someone else for their mistake. May God help us to so live in our homes as to help in shaping our children's lives for Christ.

Our pastor and wife are doing a great work here. Sister Love has organized our ladies, which I think will do good; if Bro. Love can only organize us men.

We took our collection for the Children's Home which was $4.60. I think the Home is one of the greatest works that we have in our Conference.

One thing I wish we could get our people to see and do it, and that is to pay our pastor monthly. The pastor has to eat and have gas for his car and clothes just the same, and he has to look to us for that part of the finance; the Conference year is half gone and the pastor's salary is way behind. Brethren, we can do much better if we only will take our S. S. lesson for today and put it into practice in our lives.

With best wishes to all.

A MEMBER.

Love's Grove, Midland Charge.—Under the leadership of our good pastor and wife, Rev. and Mrs. Fred R. Love, our church is moving on in a very encouraging way. We feel that our year's work is going to be one that we will all be proud of, and one that will mean much toward the advancement of God's kingdom. Our services are all well attended. Our Sunday school is one we are proud of and is still growing.

Our Ladies' Aid Society is doing splendid work considering the short time it has been organized. He have only been organized about two and one-half months, and have raised something over $40. We wish to thank Mrs. Love for the interest she has shown in organizing the ladies of our church and the charge as a whole. Pray for us that we may continue to do His will.

REPORTER.

Kannapolis Church.—May 10 was a great day for us. We had one hundred and forty-two at Sunday school, which is the most we ever had. We have a contest on which will close in June, and to the class with most new scholars will be given a supper by our pastor and wife. The young men's class is ahead now; they had about eight in the class when the contest began and last Sunday they had 20 present. We are proud to see the class grow. The teacher, Mr. John Lisk, is a good teacher and has the interest of the boys at heart.

On Sunday morning we observed Mother's Day with a good program of recitations and songs, and a talk by our pastor which all enjoyed. The Sunday school presented a bunch of carnations to the two oldest mothers present. Grandmother Tilley was 81 and received a dozen white carnations, and Grandmother Ramseur received the pink ones.

Mr. Millaway, from Concord, exchanged pulpits with Mr. Love at the night service. He gave a splendid message to a good audience. We were so glad to have him with us.

The Ladies' Aid met the first Monday night in May with Mrs. Frank Coble with a good crowd present. It was planned to have a chicken supper, the date yet to be decided on.

Rev. and Mrs. Love and children spent the week-end in Concord.

Plans are being made for our home-coming day, which will be observed the second Sunday in June. We are hoping to have a good program and all of our former pastors with their wives present.

We are sorry to hear of the death of Mrs. Minnie Robinett, a sister of Mrs. Clyde Foggin, a loyal member of our church. All have our sympathy.

MRS. D. B. CARTNER, Reporter.

Chasetnut Ridge, Orange Charge.—Our work is moving along. Yesterday, being Mother's Day, Mr. Williams gave us a splendid sermon along that line, using Mothers as a basis for his remarks. There was a good congregation present. The program was short but each child did his part well. The credit goes to the ones who help train the children. After the service the Lord's Supper was observed.

Sunday school is gaining a number. Come on, fathers and mothers, and bring your children to preaching and Sunday school.

ANNIE SQUIRES, Reporter.

Albemarle—The Leadership Training School conducted in Albemarle church was a success in every respect. From first to last there were more than 60 persons who attended. The ages ranged from 65 down to seven. The seven-year-old was Johnnie Stowe, the youngest, from the parsonage. She, of course, did not take the work, but she had her share of the good time. Three of our oldest were Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Hatley and Mrs. Frank Harkey, (formerly Mrs. E. A. Plyler). Some of these found it necessary to take their rest in the daytime that they might be able to spend the two-hour service at the church. But they were glad to do this, so interested were they. There were 29 who received credits in the various departments of the school. At the close of the school it was voted unanimously, asking that we might have a school again when the opportunity presents itself. Everyone seems happy over results of the school and what was learned will be put into practice here in our regular work. Albemarle is a most wonderful field to put into practice that which is being brought to our people through the training school system. As pastor and people, we extend our most hearty thanks and appreciation to the dean and every one of the instructors of the school. We are anxious for you to come again.

Mother's Day was a red letter day with us. The attendance was good. The Sunday school went over the 200 mark, and the other services were well attended. It was beautiful to see the people of the audience wearing flowers. In most instances two flowers were worn, one for mother, of course, and with many one was worn for father. In some cases where there was a step-mother three flowers were worn. The house was beautifully decorated with flowers. There were some of the rarest beauties in the floral decorations. Bouquets of flowers were given to the oldest mother present and the mother having the largest number of children present. Mrs. Marshall Hatley received the first and Mrs. Robert Leonard the latter. Mrs. Leonard had nine children present. At the 11 o'clock preaching service the two oldest mothers present, Mrs.

Hatley and Mrs. Harkey, were given special seats in the front of the church while four empty chairs were placed in the front of the church representing four of our most faithful of the older mothers, three of whom in recent years have received their reward, and one, Mrs. William Sutherly, who could not be present. The pastor preached, using the subject, "The Mother in Pentecost." The music rendered by the choir as well as that sung by the congregation was very appropriate and beautiful.

At the evening service the music was good and appropriate and the pastor used the subject, "Prayer at Pentecost." We are having special prayer services for our coming revival beginning June 3 with Bro. Troxler in the pulpit. Brethren, please help us through your prayers that we may have a great revival.

GEO. L. CURRY.

Lexington. Our revival meeting came to a close last Wednesday evening after lasting ten days. We had a very good meeting, there being 16 conversions and 12 new members added to the church. Rev. Mr. Pegg did some excellent preaching. The services were attended by large crowds. Mr. Pegg is a fine young man as well as a good preacher, and he made many friends while he was here.

Our Sunday School continues to grow, there being 200 present on last Sunday. At our morning service we had a Mother's Day service and there was a large crowd present. The junior choir sang two selections and Miss Edna Cross read a poem which was appropriate for the occasion and all present enjoyed the service very much. On Sunday evening at 7:30 Bro. Isley preached a very interesting sermon, his subject being "The Call of the Cross," and there was a large crowd present.

Our second quarterly conference will be held at Mt. Carmel church Tuesday evening at 7:30 and we hope all of the officials can be present, as this second quarterly conference is an important one.

REPORTER.

Cerinth, Littleton Circuit.—Rev. P. E. Bingham brought us another good message the first Sunday at 11 o'clock. He also preached every third Sunday night.

Memorial services will be held here the fourth Sunday at 2:30 o'clock. We want to thank Mr. M. J. Morris and Mr. B. F. Morris for having already had the cemetery and church yard so nicely cleaned.

Mr. and Mrs. Bingham moved into the parsonage last week. Since they have been on this work they have been living in Mrs. Insko's bungalow.

We are glad to note Mrs. G. D. Insko is improving after an operation at Roanoke Rapids hospital.

Several of our members attended the commencement sermon at Aurelian Springs the fourth Sunday, which was delivered by Dr. Humphreys, of High Point College.

MRS. B. F. MORRIS, Reporter.

Acheboro. Sunday morning, May 3rd, our church observed Cradle Roll Day. All the babies of the church and others were invited to come and bring their parents. The music and program was arranged especially for the babies of the church and Sunday school. A solo, "Jesus Loves Me," was sung by little Anne Harrison Ridge; a song, "Jesus, Lover of My Soul," by four little girls, with Miss Jane Page Walker at the piano, and catechism, by little Clarkson Allen, directed by Miss Kate Hammer. After a very brief service the following babies were baptized: Joseph Franklin Pugh, little son of Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Pugh; William Burton Ridge, little son of Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Ridge; David Wills Auman, little son of Mr. and Mrs. Euclid Auman; Reba Anne and Maxton Lowdermilk, little daughter and son of Mr. and Mrs. Clendon Lowdermilk; and Emily Anne, the little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Stone.

The funeral services for Mr. W. R. Hamline, conducted at our church at 3 o'clock Sunday afternoon, were attended by a large number of relatives and friends. Mr. Hamline was 71 years old and a life-long resident of Randolph county. He was a member of our church and until recently served as a steward. Rev. R. C. Stubbins, pastor, was in charge of the services, assisted by Rev. Joel Trogdon and Rev. J. E. Pritchard, life-long friends and neighbors of the deceased, and by Rev. L. W. Geringer, of Winston-Salem, a former pastor. Mr. Hamlin is survived by his wife, six sons and five daughters.

On Friday evening the young ladies of Miss Esther Ross' Sunday school class entertained in the social room of the church in honor of their mothers. Each one had her mother as her guest or one to represent her mother. After the social hour, refreshments were served.

Last Sunday was a good day at both Sunday school and church services. The Philathea class had charge of the opening services of the Sunday school. A dialogue was given, with Mrs. L. F. Ross as Mary, the mother of Jesus, and Mrs. W. F. Redding, Jr., as Salome, the mother of Judas, which was very effective. The Sunday before there were 306 present, with 310 this Sunday, the largest number ever present.

A large congregation was present for the Mother's Day service. The pastor's subject was "The Modern Mother." He read Proverbs 31:10-31. The text was taken from Judges 5:7. He said Deborah was the first public-spirited woman; she arose a mother in the home, she arose a mother in Israel. She was one of the greatest women who ever lived—as fierce as the fiercest, yet as gentle as the gentlest. He said the modern mother is the one who has the old and the new spirit under the new conditions. They need the old spirit in this new day. The mothers of the past were handicapped and could not reach out far from their own homes, but the mothers of today with all their privileges could be world-wide mothers. The choir sang "My Mother's Bible."

The evening service was well-attended and we heard a good sermon on "How Much Do You Weigh?"

Rev. and Mrs. R. C. Stubbins and Rev. and Mrs. N. M. Harrison are leaving today (Monday) for the convention at Washington. Others are hoping to attend.

Mrs. H. W. Walker is very sick at her home.

Mrs. Lacy S. Lewis underwent an appendicitis operation at High Point Hospital Saturday. She is doing very well at this time.

Mrs. Clyde Wood and Mrs. C. C. Winningham are recovering satisfactorily.

REPORTER.

Lincolnton.—Am enclosing cut of our new church in Lincolnton. Just completed. It is a new brick structure, containing 12 Sunday school rooms in basement with a large hall way and all modern conveniences.

Our opening service was Sunday May 3. We had 225 in Sunday school; offering, $25.00. At 11 o'clock Bro. J. D. Morris, a former pastor, brought the message, which was very appropriate and timely at this service. There were Fairfield is coming on nicely; the folks tell us that there are more people attending the services there than in years. This, of course, is encouraging to the minister. We are not large in numbers there, but some of the finest people to be found will be found at Fairfield church.

The second quarterly conference will meet in Lincolnton Saturday night, May 24, at 8 o'clock.

LINCOLNTON METHODIST PROTESTANT CHURCH

about 500 present, with an offering of $27.00. We are the happiest people in the world, surely, as this new church replaces the old wooden structure that was burned January 11, last. On February 11 the work started, but it was not until two weeks later that it actually got going. The building of this church has been very pleasant, the people were so agreeable and showed such a fine spirit of cooperation—not a word of complaint has been offered by any, but all went about their work with somewhat of the spirit of the Master—quietly and with a determination to accomplish the desired goal.

We find a great opportunity here for the church to do some constructive work by your prayers and the help of the Good Lord. Never have I served a finer people than those on the Lincolnton charge.

Last Sunday was a great day for the Bess Chapel folks—Mother's Day and also Decoration Day. The writer spoke in the morning. The choir rendered special music; and let me say that we have some real talent in our choir at Bess Chapel which is making splendid progress this year. At noon a great feast was spread under the huge oak trees that stand in the yard of the church which was enjoyed by a large crowd of people.

In the afternoon Judge S. M. Roper of the Recorder's Court of Lincolnton, very splendidly delivered an address to one of the largest congregations ever assembled in the church. And, by the way, this is also a new brick structure just erected last year and it certainly is a credit to the community. The folks at this church are very proud of their church and they have a right to be.

First Church, High Point.—The beautiful custom of observing one day each year in honor of our mothers was fittingly celebrated last Sunday at First church. The lovely flowers in the chancel were placed there by Miss Blanche Burgess and other members of the family in grateful memory of a good mother, the late Mrs. W. D. Burgess. Mr. C. L. Gray, Jr., sang in a most effective and beautiful manner the popular solo, "Mother Ma hree," and the choir rendered the anthem, "The Lord Is King." It was found that Mrs. J. C. Welch, Sr., was the oldest mother present, and Mrs. J. H. Alfred, the mother of the youngest child, and while the congregation bowed their heads in their honor the minister led in a fitting prayer as a tribute to them. The following young ladies acted as ushers on this occasion: Mrs. W. L. Albertson, Misses Bertha Ferree, Esther Pritchard, Irene Reynolds and Selma Clapp, and at the doors Mesdames L. R. Peacock and E. L. Auman were stationed to greet the congregation upon their entrance. The minister, Rev. R. L. Farmer, delivered a very appropriate and graceful sermon on "The Child's Mother." He said in part: In days like the present that are busy and confusing, it is especially fitting that America pauses to observe Mother's Day. The setting of the story of Moses is familiar; Pharaoh had issued an edict that all male Hebrew children should be drowned, and all the girl children he saved. The baby Moses was fair to look upon, and his mother placed him in a little basket and put it on the river among the bull rushes, with his sister, Miriam, to guard him. When Pharaoh's daughter came to bathe, she found the lovely baby, told Miriam to bring a nurse for him. The maid went and fetched the child's mother. There is a Spanish proverb, "An ounce of mother is worth a pound of clergy." O, Christian women here, I want to call your attention to the need of your loyalty to the cause of Christ. Less than two decades ago in Massachusetts all citizens could vote except the insane and women. I do not want you to forget that fact in this day of our liberty and freedom. There are still some churches that do not recognize women on the same footing as men. I want you to remember that our church honored all womanhood when it laid hands on Dr. Anna Howard Shaw, and licensed her to preach the gospel. Women have innate power to rise above man's inhumanity to her. Men must recognize the fact that women can demand the same wages for the same work as they. Tennyson said: "More things are wrought by prayer than this world dreams of." Praying mothers wield a mighty influence in the world. Every child that is put into a mother's arms is a great trust and responsibility and I have strong faith in America's future as long as we have godly, consecrated mothers, who bear their children to a throne of grace every day, and teach them to pray for themselves.

"Thoughtful and willing Faithful and dear,
You're always the same
Every day in the year;
All that is tender,
Loving and true,
Is found in the heart,
Dear Mother, of you!"

The Young People's C. E. Society with the minister, Rev. Mr. Farmer, performed a humane and noteworthy service Sunday afternoon at 5:15 o'clock when they drove to the city prison farm, eight miles east of High Point, and held a service at Wimberley Chapel, the new church built there for worship by the prisoners. This act was very commendable and unusual on the part of these young people. "I was in prison, and ye came unto me."

An interesting monthly meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary was held Monday afternoon in the church parlors. The new president, Mrs. P. S. Kennett, was in the chair. The new missionary year is beginning auspiciously.

The C. E. Society met in usual weekly session Monday evening at 7:45 o'clock. The topic under discussion was "The Two Generations Needing Each Other." In the efficiency campaign, recently brought to a close, Division No. 1, Mrs. L. R. Peacock, leader, won the contest, and No. 2 will entertain these members at an early date.

Next Friday evening a Mother-Daughter banquet will be given by the C. E. Society and the A. M. Idol Philathea Class at the church, when the daughters will have their mothers as guests.

Mr. Richard H. Shaw will be the leader for the mid-week prayer service Wednesday evening in the absence of the minister at the Washington Convention.

Mrs. John C. Whitesell and little daughter spent last week with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Moffitt, at Ramsour.

Among those who left this (Tuesday) morning for Washington, D. C., were Capt. and Mrs. A. M. Rankin, Rev. Edward Suits, Misses Margaret Snipes and Erna Suits in one car.

and Mrs. S. S. Coo, Dr. P. S. Kennett, Dr. and Mrs. S. W. Taylor in another car. Rev. and Mrs. R. I. Farmer, Judge Lewis Teague, Dr. G. I. Humphreys, and Dr. P. E. Lindley will leave tomorrow; also the members of the High Point College Glee Club and Choir. Dr. Dixon with 15 children from the Home will also attend the convention.

Rev. and Mrs. C. W. Law and child of Keokuk, Iowa, and Mrs. Pearl Seurlock, of Marengo, Iowa, attended services in First Church last Sunday. We were delighted to have these guests from the West.

Mt. Pleasant, Cleveland Circuit.—Our Memorial day service was held the second Sunday in this month at the regular preaching hour, 3 p. m. A very large audience seemed to enjoy the wonderful sermon Brother Ridge delivered. We were glad to see some of the members who have moved away and not been able to be with us for some time. We hope they will come more often. We were also glad to see so many visitors from other churches. We hope they will come again.

With best wishes to the Herald and its readers.

Hawkins Chapel, Littleton Circuit.—Our pastor, Rev. P. E. Bingham, was with us again Sunday morning. Sunday night he gave a sweet little appreciation of mother. The Christian Endeavor gave a Mother's Day pageant. Miss Gaynelle Green played on the piano "Oh, Where Is My Wandering Boy Tonight?" and was accompanied by Mr. Burnett Morgan with the violin. I hope many mothers were made happy Sunday. God called my mother 13 years ago in August. I haven't forgotten mother through these many years, so I sent a bunch of flowers to be laid on her grave.

We are glad to know that Mr. and Mrs. Bingham are now living at Littleton in the parsonage.

Our Sunday school attendance is not as large as we would like. We need you. Come!

Mr. and Mrs. Bingham and Miss Vera Morris were the guests of many Sunday.

We are glad to know Miss Erma Hawkins is up after a very ill spell of measles.

Mr. Billy Hawkins fell and hurt his side and paralysis hand, but that didn't keep him from church. If we all had the spirit he has I think our church would grow stronger.

MRS. C. H. HAWKINS, Reporter.

State Street, Lexington. Sunday and its varied and deeply touching program of worship was one of the best days we have known. The minister delivered a beautiful Mother's Day address at the 11 o'clock hour, and at the evening hour another splendid address on Mothers of Tomorrow. Special music was an inspiring feature at both services.

We were pleased to have a large number of visitors with us in the morning and also some in the evening. Among those from out of town who worshipped with us were Mr. and Mrs. T. A. Blanton and Mrs. Molsinger, of Salisbury, and Mrs. Blanton's sister, Miss Douglas is spending a while in Salisbury as the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Blanton. Miss Clara Taylor, of Winston-Salem, was also a visitor, having come to Lexington to spend the week-end with her mother, Mrs. J. F. Burkhardt.

Dinner was served the Rotary Club by the ladies of the Missionary Society last Tuesday. About $30.00 was cleared, which will be used to apply where most needed, if anyone can say exactly where the most needed place is. We want and need money so much for so many things connected with the church and its activities.

We announce the latest addition to our number in the person of Master Thomas A. Neal, three weeks' old son of Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Neal. We are all very proud of our baby, who is one of the finest in every way.

REPORTER.

English Street Church.—At the Sunday evening service our pastor brought to us a sermon appropriate for Mother's Day. At this time members of the C. E. Society gave readings also appropriate for the occasion.

This week the Christian Endeavorers are taking charge of cottage prayer meetings prior to our revival meeting, which begins May 17th. Rev. J. M. Morgan, of Fallston charge, will be the pulpit help.

We are planning a Children's Day service which will be given at the 11 o'clock hour next Sunday.

The Ladies' Aid Society held its business meeting on Tuesday evening with Mrs. T. S. Goebel.

REPORTER.

Sandy Ridge, Kernersville Charge.—Our Sunday school is getting better and larger every Sunday. On May 3 there were 103 present and last Sunday there were 106. I hope it will still keep growing every Sunday. If you start a child to Sunday school when it is small, as a usual thing it will just keep going.

We had a Mother's Day program Sunday at 11 o'clock. The children did fine, even though they had but a short time to learn their parts. Our pastor, Rev. W. D. Reed, was with us. After the children got through with their program he preached a splendid sermon on mother's love. I enjoyed listening to him and I am sure everybody did.

Just here I want to say a word of praise for our Sunday school superintendent, Mrs. L. G. Wood. She is doing her part, and more, in the Sunday school and every one appreciates the good work she is doing.

The Ladies' Aid Society met at the church Saturday evening with 14 present.

—Dr. Albert Michelson, distinguished scientist, died in California May 9 from a stroke of paralysis. One of his greatest feats was measuring the velocity of light. To do this required an enormous amount of apparatus which he had to devise and much personal effort on his part. He illustrated the definition that genius is hard work. He was an instructor in Clark University, Worcester, Mass., when the editor of the Herald was a student there. We knew of his uncommon ability, but of course could not foresee his inventions and discoveries. He was a religious man, perhaps more religious because of his investigations in the physical universe.

SOVIET EXPELS AMERICAN

An American writer, Mrs. Eva Garrette Grady, arrived in Berlin from Moscow with a story to the effect that she had been expelled from Russia because of a joke which she had published in the Saturday Evening Post in an article entitled, "See Russia and Die Laughing." A Jewish boy living on the shores of the Black Sea, according to the anecdote, saved an unknown swimmer just as he was sinking for the third time. When the rescued swimmer recovered he said to the Jewish boy: "Name me your greatest desire. I am powerful and what ever you ask I can grant. I am Stalin." "You are Stalin!" said the boy in astonishment. "Yes," answered the rescued swimmer proudly, "Well, then," stammered the lad, "If it's all the same just don't tell any one it was I who saved you." The writer is wife of William H. Grady, mining engineer who was acting consultant engineer to the government coal trust at Kharkov. His wife joined him about a year ago as a private citizen. When Mrs. Grady was expelled her husband left his position and quit the country with her.—Pathfinder.

SONG OF THE OPTIMISTS

We are genial optimists,
Our hearts are light and free;
In times of storm or sunshine
We work on cheerfully.

We are Lopeful optimists,
No time for gloom or doubt;
If old depression calls on us,
We swiftly turn him out.

We are smiling optimists,
Our course is straight and clear;
We think and act constructively,
For us good times are here.
—Grenville Kleiser.

EXPLAINED

The bridegroom had disappeared. All was confusion. The bride was in tears, the preacher horrified and the wedding guests milled about whispering ominously. But the bride's father remained calm. "I just noticed," sighed the old gentleman, "that the check I wrote is missing from the gift table. He must have run over to the bank to have it cashed, but he will return in a few minutes!"

Mr. Lawrence Hutton, son of Rev. J. R. Hutton, has long been known as an inventive genius. Now he has produced an invention that promises to be of great importance. It is a scale that records the weight and cost to the purchaser of the article weighed. It will make two records, one for the buyer and one for the seller. Mr. Hutton has contracted with the Fairbanks company for the manufacture of this improved weighing apparatus on a royalty basis. He is said to have been thinking on this invention for three years. We congratulate him on his persistence and final success.

IN HONOR OF THE DEAD

White

On February 14th, 1931, death entered the home of Mr. and Mrs. B. H. White, of Siler City, and called the soul of Sister White from labor to her eternal reward.

Mrs. Jennett Turner was born in Alamance county, February 22, 1861, and departed this life February 14, 1931. The daughter of Emmanuel and Nancy Turner. She was twice married. Her first marriage was to Mr. Franklin Hinshaw and her second marriage to Mr. B. H. White, who with her two sisters survive. They are Mrs. R. H. Pegg, of Gibsonville, and Mrs. E. W. Workman of Burlington.

Sister White professed faith in Jesus Christ as her Saviour while young and united with Bethel M. P. church and later transferred to the M. P. church in Siler City where she lived an honored member till God called her home. She was a great sufferer during her last years but seemed to bear it all with Christian fortitude and while her afflictions kept her away from the church services she was interested in the church and delighted to talk with her pastor concerning the church.

We believe that she is now with Him whom she loved and that all her suffering is over and her soul is at rest.

J. D. WILLIAMS, Pastor.

Brinkley

Miss Charity Brinkley, daughter of John and Mary Brinkley, died May 6th, 1931, age 81 years, 3 months, and 2 days. At time of her departure she was with her nephew and niece, Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Brinkley, of Thomasville, N. C. She professed faith in Jesus Christ in young girlhood and joined Bethesda M. P. church. She was faithful and devoted to her church; a regular attendant when in reach of her church. Truly we can say a good woman has gone from us to wear an eternal crown in glory. She was loved by all who knew her and Aunt Charity, as she was known by friends and loved ones, loved everybody. She had no enemies. She died as she lived, ready to go home, her home is with God. Her life was lived unselfishly, she lived for others. She was never married. She is the last one of the old Brinkley family. Her earthly remains carried to Bethesda and funeral conducted by her pastor, Rev. H. L. Powell, assisted by Rev. R. S. Troxler, a former pastor, and Rev. Mr. Brown, pastor of Thomasville Wesleyan Methodist church. Her body was taken to Bula Reform church cemetery and laid to rest by the side of her father and mother. A large crowd of her friends and relatives assembled to pay the last tribute of respect to this good woman. We do not weep as those who have no hope for we expect to meet Aunt Charity again in that beautiful land of the blessed.

H. L. POWELL.

Green

George L. Green went home to rest Friday morning, April 24, 1931. He spent in this world 53 years, 6 months, and 7 days; during which time everybody who knew him learned to like him. He leaves his wife, one brother and five sisters, also three children, one boy and two girls. We extend our tenderest sympathies to his wife, family, relatives and friends.

Funeral services were conducted by the writer in Hawkins Chapel Methodist Protestant church, with a large crowd attending to pay him their respect. The remains were laid away in the family cemetery under a mound of beautiful flowers.

He was a faithful member of Hawkins Chapel church for many years, and will be greatly missed by all who assemble there from time to time for worship. However, although he is dead he lives. The spirit never dies, but just goes back to Him who gave it. His influence will live on upon earth in the hearts of men and women who knew him. If he could speak to us, I believe he would send us a message similar to this:

"Farewell, friends! Yet not farewell;

Where I am, ye too shall dwell.

I am gone before your face,

A moment's time, a little space.

When ye come where I have stepp'd

Ye will wonder why ye wept;

Ye will know, by wise love taught,

That here is all, and there is naught.

Weep awhile, if ye are fain,—

Sunshine still must follow rain;

Only not at death,—for death,

Now I know, is the first breath

Which our souls draw when we enter

Life, which is of all life center."

P. E. BINGHAM, Pastor.

Stone

A death which brought sadness to the entire community as well as to the bereaved home was that of Miss Lebus Stone, who died April 24th, 1931, at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. O. E. Stone, on Raleigh street, Siler City. She was ill only a few days previous to her death and her going came as a complete shock to her family and friends.

Lebus had been a faithful member of the Siler City M. P. church since early childhood and was one of the most energetic and active leaders of the church. She was of a quiet, retiring, modest disposition and was always happiest when doing work for her Master. She was teacher of the Junior Philathea Class at the time of her death. She went about her work with a smile and never complained, no matter what task she was asked to do. May her sweet life in faithful service to the Master be an incentive to higher and nobler living to all who knew her. While we mourn her death, we rejoice that we knew her. To know her was to love her, and knowing as we do the consecrated life she lived, we do not mourn as those without hope.

Funeral services were conducted from the Siler City M. P. church Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock by her pastor, Rev. J. D. Williams, who was assisted by Dr. A. G. Dixon, of High Point, N. C., Rev. J. C. Canipe, pastor First Baptist church, Siler City, and Rev. Talton J. Whitehead, a relative of the deceased. Interment was made in Oakwood cemetery. The many, many beautiful flowers, and the large gathering of people showed the high esteem in which she was held.

MRS. E. D. WOODY.

Harvey

George Elmer Harvey died March 10, 1931, aged 45 years, four months and two days.

He was married to Louise Elizabeth Conrad December 24, 1912.

To this union were born six children, four sons and two daughters; one little daughter, Edna, preceding him to the glory world only about 17 days.

He professed faith in Christ at an early age and joined the M. P. church at Mount Zion and later at Pinnacle and after moving to Shoals community had his name transferred there where it remained until death, all the while living a consistent member.

He leaves a wife, father, mother, five brothers, three sisters, and five children, besides a host of other relatives and friends to mourn their loss.

Elmer was always an obedient child, an affectionate companion, a loving father, and good neighbor, and will be greatly missed in his home, church and community, but we hope to meet him again in the sweet by-and-by.

Funeral services were conducted by the pastor, assisted by Bro. Frank Swanson. The remains were laid to rest in the Shoals cemetery.

The bereaved have our sympathy.

A. L. HUNTER.

Death is always sad. We never stand in the presence of the dead but that there comes to us a feeling of sorrow. The one who has passed may be old and feeble and helpless, with all the joys of life behind, but just the same it is death and death means sorrow. Dissolution has taken place, and life, immortal life, has taken its flight, and before us lies the cold, pulseless form. This is sad. But when death comes to one so young and good and promising in life, as was Lebus Stone, we stagger in our blind grief and cry out to a loving Heavenly Father, "Why, oh why, dear Master!"

On the morning of April 24th Lebus slipped away from this life and went back to God. I think if she could have had her choice as to the season of the year for her going she would have chosen the beautiful spring time, a season when all nature is rejoicing in another resurrection. A time when dogwood and red bud, when the lilac and the apple tree, when tulip and azalea are in full bloom and a fragrance fills the air, this would have been the time of her choosing. It was just such a morning as this that the sweet spirit of Lebus Stone left the tenement of clay, inhabited for 22 years, less one day, and went up to the beautiful city of God, to that mansion in the skies, where she shall be safe and happy forever. How fitting the morning for the departure of such a soul, how beautiful the setting for such a scene. Flowers everywhere. Nature was weaving a carpet of living green, dotted with tiny flowers, for field and meadow. The birds sang until their tiny throats throbbled with melodies, and all things of beauty and purity in God's new world on this spring morning seemed to vie with each other to make amends for the sadness that cruel death had brought.

In childhood's innocent day Lebus joined the Methodist Protestant church in Siler City. There was never a time in her life when she was not a true Christian. She loved her church and church work. She was a dutiful and an obedient child and loved her home and loved ones. In school here, where she completed the high school course, she was a good student and made a fine record. She entered High Point college and during the two years spent there continued the record she had made in high school. It was her life to make others happy. For years she taught a class in Sunday school and this was her opportunity for real service. She gave to this class her best and that was much. She gave to her church her talents and they multiplied. She gave to her friends her love and that satisfied. She lived the pure and noble life here and when she entered the Home Eternal I believe she simply took up the thread of life there where she had laid it down here.

The home, the church, the community are all poorer because Lebus has gone from us, but heaven is richer and dearer because she is there. She is not dead, it is only lifeless clay that sleeps on yonder hillside while Lebus, the redeemed soul that she is, lives and reigns with Christ, the Lord. Precious thought, there is no death to souls divine.

Lebus was seriously ill but a few days and her sudden going found father and mother, brothers and friends unprepared for the blow. Our heart is grieved and our sympathy goes out to the loved ones who idolized this precious daughter. But sometime, somewhere in the Home Immortal there will be a happy reunion and we pray that the family circle may be re-united to remain forever unbroken.

The Faith That Overcomes the World

This human world's a dreadful foe;
You face its guns where'er you go;
Its weapons gleam and terrify
In every field that you pass by.

Its cannon boom, its thunders roar,
Its armies dash with mad furor,
And you're in danger every hour
Of capture by this mighty power.

But woe to you if you resign
And yield yourself to its design;
Its captive slave will you be made
And its own price will you be paid.

No safety can be found in flight.
You must make up your mind to fight;
Your only chance of life and hope
Is beat this foe with which you cope.

Unequal combat, do you say,
For you to meet such dread array!
But lift your eyes and look again:
With you are hosts of super-men!

The legions of Heaven are your allies;
With such support he wins that tries:
Then arm yourself and forward go;
You'll surely beat your dreaded foe.

Through faith in God we overcome
The world, the flesh, and hell's vile scum.
Hold fast your faith, keep watch and pray,
And you may live without dismay.

—We believe in education and in the creation of public sentiment as a result of education; but we think a lot of this demand for public sentiment that already exists is a mere blind behind which unfaithful public servants hide their dereliction of duty. We need prosecutors who will keep their oaths instead of kowtowing to wealth and political influence.—Pittsburgh Christian Advocate.

—"I am going to live my own life in my own way," is a declaration of freedom made up of words that have no real meaning. None of us can be free. We are tied, one to another. Interdependence, not independence, is all we have. Wisdom, therefore, tells us to learn to co-operate. Unless we compromise, unless we surrender, we cannot know any of the joys of victorious happiness.—Selected.

The Washington Convention

The reports that have come to us indicate that our Washington convention was a meeting worth while. It helped to quicken in the hearts of our people a sense of responsibility for the continuance of the work God has given us to do. That is no small gain. Many did not fully realize why we are living as a church, did not see the uniqueness of our call and the importance of our commission. There are many churches, but there is no other church quite like the Methodist Protestant church. It was not built without an architect's plan, but was carefully thought out. Its fundamental principles are as vital today as when they were adopted a hundred years ago. This convention seems to have brought on a revival of denominational loyalty.

President Broomfield pleaded for harmonious progress. Mistakes may have been made; if so, let them be corrected as soon as possible for the sake of the church and its work. Let no warrior sulk in his tent. Let all stand together on the field of battle, for the common enemy is powerful and determined.

Facts compelled Dr. Haddaway to make a rather gloomy report as to our foreign missions work. Receipts have not been adequate for the work. This is true of other churches besides our own, especially during these times of economic depression. Now that the situation is better known, it is to be hoped that our people generally will come to the rescue of our work in China, India and Japan. If mistakes have been made, let them be acknowledged, let pardon be asked and given, and let the work go on in its fulness.

This convention gave opportunity for expression regarding a number of moral questions of the times. It left no doubt as to sentiment regarding the 18th amendment. Prohibition must be continued and must be enforced.

The attendance we understand was well up toward two thousand registered Methodist Protestants, described by an eye-witness as "fine-looking people." We congratulate those who attended on their privilege. The Protestant Recorder gives this week a fine report of the personnel and proceedings.

—For the first time in their history the Young Men's Christian Associations from all parts of the world will meet officially in the United States. The Twentieth World Conference of the World Alliance will convene at Cleveland, Ohio, August 4 to 9, 1931. Dr. John R. Mott has been president of the World Alliance since his retirement as General Secretary of the National Council of the United States in 1928. The Y. M. C. A. is established in 10,300 cities, towns, and villages in fifty-four countries. Delegates will be present from most of these lands.

THE WASHINGTON CONVENTION

By REV. LUTHER K. LONG

Dear Mr. Editor:

Doubtless you have an abundance of material concerning the great convention held in Washington, D. C., last week. But I should like your indulgence for a few lines from a somewhat different angle than that of your official participants or authorized observers.

It has been my custom for many years to attend conventions, conferences, councils, etc., of Methodist, Baptist, Congregational, and Disciples churches—though I have never before been privileged to attend a large national gathering of Methodist Protestants.

This convention in Washington brought together a large and distinctive representation from all sections of the denomination. I was greatly interested in the convention, not only as a convention, but in comparing it with similar gatherings of much larger denominations. Here are a few impressions:

1. There is a decided denominational self-consciousness among Methodist Protestants. There is evident a feeling among the folks that their denomination has a real mission, and they feel the call to loyal devotion. This is true of the other denominations.

2. The presentation of living workers and achievements was very interesting. Missionaries from Japan, China, India, and social workers in our own land, made a fine impression. The workers and children from the High Point Children's Home excited great interest—and the program given by the children was fine. Very gratifying was the impression made by the people having charge of the Pine Ridge school for mountain young people—their pupils and the program they gave are a credit to the teachers and their work. There is the same spirit manifested as in other churches.

3. College and theological seminary work were well represented. Students and choirs from Adrian, Western Maryland, and High Point colleges, and students from Westminster seminary, together with the presidents of these institutions, elicited the commendation of every attendant at the convention. These institutions compare favorably with those of the same size in the larger denominations. They do a good work on the characters and lives of the pupils, and have similar financial and administrative problems and worries.

4. The Methodist Protestants are like other denominations in that they do not speak in their conventions to any great extent of the work of the other churches. If one did not know better one might be led to think that the entire burden of evangelizing Japan, China, India, and the islands of the seas—together with all other educational and missionary work—rests on the shoulders of the folks holding the convention. Of course all the churches do this in order to develop the feeling of responsibility among their own people. There is much co-operation among the churches; and this should be recognized openly that more benefit may be received from exchange of methods than is possible at present.

5. What about living questions? Naturally, I was interested as to what stand, if any, would be taken on present day political, industrial, theological, and social problems. These were touched on only slightly by Methodist Protestants, as compared with the attention given them by most other denominations. Commendatory references to Bishop Cannon were enthusiastically received—showing that the convention stood for the Eighteenth Amendment. Enthusiasm over the talk of a brother who called for a return to the old-time preaching, prayer meeting and “getting religion,” did not signify so much—for there was almost equal cheering over the modern methods and results of religious education. The report of the Federal Council's Commission on Birth Control was vociferously condemned by two or three speakers. One of them made a wisecrack something like this: “It is far better to be interested in the new birth than in birth control.” That is true enough. It is more important to walk in the straight and narrow way than to ride in an automobile. But one may walk in the straight and narrow way, and at the same time ride in an automobile. And there is no good reason why an intelligent person should not be interested in both the new birth and birth control—they are not mutually exclusive.

6. In these days one looks for a denominational national convention to furnish the occasion of significant references to church union. In closing his address one of the speakers expressed the hope that all the various branches of Methodism might be brought together, and that all Protestant denominations might be brought into one great church. In the New York Christian Advocate last week I saw some account of the negotiations between the M. E. and the M. P. commissions on church union; and the hope was expressed by one of the bishops that the union might soon be consummated. I saw no signs in Washington pointing in that direction. Thursday afternoon, in the officials' and pastors' conference, all the papers and addresses and discussions indicated understanding of, and loyalty to, the organization and mission of their denomination.

Perhaps a few questions may help the reader to think this matter of union through to a satisfactory conclusion:

a. Is it at all likely that the Methodist Episcopal church with its millions of members, for the sake of recovering to its fold the 200,000 Methodist Protestants, will ever consent to so modify its ecclesiasticism as to attract those people back to it?

b. Will the small M. P. membership ever be willing to be absorbed back into the mother church with no adequate recognition of those principles for which they have fought and suffered during the last one hundred years?

c. Would it not be far more rational and feasible thing for the Methodist Protestants to turn toward other denominations—Baptist, Congregational, and Disciples—who have always successfully stood for democracy? These larger denominations have had longer experience and have developed much more extensive and successful educational and missionary and social enterprises.

d. Will it not be far easier, and more likely, for the Methodist Episcopal church to so modify its government as to make it possible for them to join with the denominations just mentioned—and with the Presbyterians as well—than if called upon to reshape itself for the sake of winning Methodist Protestants only? And will not these latter be better satisfied with such an arrangement?

SPRING HAS REDEEMED HER PROMISE

By MARTIN L. DAVEY

In preparation for this talk, I drove out through the country to see the signs of new life and to catch a fresh inspiration for this last message to the unseen millions of friends who may be listening. May I hope that you also have seen these same things, and that you have been moved by them to a keener appreciation of the mysteries of nature and the power and reality of the life forces that are at work.

In all directions I saw the great trees with their towering forms reaching toward the sky—trees that have been bare while they slept the long sleep of the winter season. On many of them there is already a thin and delicate covering of green, as the buds begin to open. On some this delicate covering is of various shades of red, while on others this newly forming mantle is yellow or yellowish green. It is the first flush of the new springtime, so far as the trees are concerned. It is the visible evidence of reawakening life. Steadily, as the days pass, the leaves and flowers will push outwards with eager and buoyant activity, until finally within a few weeks the whole landscape will be luxuriant with its gorgeous raiment of rich green foliage, intermingled with the flowers that are an essential element of every springtime.

Yes, I saw the velvety green of the wheat fields, and the grass that was springing out of its winter prison as if by the magic touch of some all-powerful wand that beckoned it forth. Here and there I saw some flowers, more courageous than their fellows, that pushed their little heads above the earth that has been slumbering so long and is now stirring in response to a great mysterious force. I felt the warmth and the radiance of the life-giving sunshine, and was conscious of the benign influence of the balmy air that came pouring in the open windows of the motor car.

What makes this miracle of spring so wonderful? Is it the magic of the sunshine and the warm breezes that kiss the earth, to give it the assurance that the time has come for life to bestir itself again? Is it the gentle rains that percolate down into the soil and bid the roots to become active once more and perform their essential service? Is it the bursting buds that answer the call of this new springtime and send forth the leaves and flowers to decorate the world?

No, friends, the miracle of this spring, as of every other spring since time began, is the fact that the buds are there waiting for the signal to begin a new round of life. The foundation for this miracle was laid many months ago during the growing season of the preceding year, when, according to some marvelous power in the kingdom of nature, those buds were formed in anticipation of a long winter sleep and the coming of another spring. More than that, nature caused her trees to manufacture a surplus quantity of food material and to store it away in the interior cell structure of the trees, so that it might be ready to provide the material for this sudden burst of new life that we see today.

As I looked at the trees with their delicate crown of infant leaves, these thoughts came into my mind. How did nature know another winter was coming; that the old leaves would have to die; that new buds would have to be formed; that she must have within the body of the trees a stored-up supply of surplus food material? How did nature know that there would be another springtime? How has nature known these things from one year to another, through all the countless ages that life has existed upon this earth? Every year these things happen with faithful regularity. Nature never fails to anticipate the coming of the winter, nor to prepare for the certain arrival of the springtime that follows. Nor has nature ever failed in the long span of time since these forms of life began—because if nature failed just once, there would be no living trees to respond to the sunshine and the rain of the next spring season.

Resurrection Is Inspiring

To me, this is one of the really profound things that challenge human thought—this assurance of renewed life after a long winter sleep, because nature has anticipated it all and has provided for it abundantly. All of these things happen according to very definite laws. Science has been able to penetrate the mysteries of nature far enough to find out how these things take place, and to a large extent what are the laws that govern their operations. But neither scientists nor philosophers have been able to learn why these things occur, nor to discover or understand the mysterious power that makes them possible. Is there not something inspiring about this regular and systematic preparation for temporary death, and the equally regular and systematic preparation for the resurrection that follows it with such certainty and assurance? Yes, friends, if man studies the marvelous processes of nature, and if he looks with understanding at the great drama that is being enacted before his eyes right now, he cannot fail to realize the existence of an Infinite Power, that created these complex lives and has kept them operating with regularity and precision, and without a single failure since time began.

There is another aspect of this annual resurrection among the trees that I wish to call to your attention at this time. Down in Fredericksburg, Virginia, stands a noble horse-chestnut tree that was planted by George Washington at the home of his mother. On the grounds of the National Capitol is a great elm, under which Washington rested while he supervised the construction of the new Capitol Building. Here and there about the country are other venerable trees that Washington knew. They are probably the only living things that were alive in Washington's time, and they are with us today because nature has never failed to cause the rebirth of life at the coming of each springtime during a century and a half. Out in California there are giant trees that have lived upon this earth a thousand or perhaps five thousand years. Some of these go back in their existence to the obscure centuries before Christ, and even back to the time when the pyramids were being builded in Egypt. They have looked down upon the moving forces of the centuries, because nature has guaranteed and made possible the rebirth of their lives every year through that long period of time.

All of the things that go to make up the necessities and comforts of modern life are important in their way. They are essential to the material existence and well-being of mankind, but they are temporary and are important only at the moment. Even literature and art and music are relatively modern in the broad sense, and bind only a few centuries together. It is nature alone that gives us kinship with the ages. It is only by a study of the revelations of nature that we are able to know a little of what existed upon this earth a million or ten million years ago.

Nature Binds Us to Past

And then, when we look into the heavens, we see the same stars that primitive man gazed upon in wonder and awe. All through the countless ages that have followed since human life began, and during the almost interminable period when man was struggling upward towards civilization and understanding, he looked upon the same stars that guided him in his nightly wanderings. He saw the same moon that we see today, and perhaps with the same emotions. The same sun illumined his days and gave continuity to the life forces all about him. Nature alone goes back in an unbroken line to the beginning of things and binds us to the ages.

When you go out and look with admiration into the heavens, you can have this assurance—those same stars guided the footsteps of every generation of men since human life existed. It was those very stars which looked down upon the sufferings and wanderings of the children of Israel, and which led the three Wise Men to the manger where lay the Babe of Bethlehem. Saul of Tarsus and Plato and Caesar, and all the men great and small before and after their time, looked upon the selfsame stars that you and I see today. It was our firmament that gave hope to Socrates as he pressed to his lips the fatal cup of hemlock. It was our heavens which gave inspiration to David, the Psalmist, who left us a heritage of beautiful and poetic philosophy. We know that his eyes looked upward and that his mind comprehended, because he wrote these sublime words in the Nineteenth Psalm:

"The heavens declare the glory of God; and the firmament sheweth his handywork.

"Day unto day uttereth speech, and night unto night sheweth knowledge.

"There is no speech nor language, where their voice is not heard."

Man needs to know nature and her wonders, if he would rise to the heights of intellectual power and spiritual force which his endowments justify. He cannot live by bread alone. The material requirements are necessary, but not sufficient. A knowledge of history and literature and art and music will give him culture, but will not stimulate his soul as it deserves to be stimulated. He needs to know nature and nature's God. He needs to have this kinship with the ages, in order to grow to his full intellectual stature. He must have the spiritual stimulation which nature alone can give, if he is to be what his Creator intended. Nature has placed all about us a treasure house of inexhaustible riches that adds to our lives infinitely great wealth, if we will but reach out and take it. That man's life is blest indeed who drinks the cup of understanding and happiness and contentment, that awaits him freely at nature's shrine.

—If thou wilt thyself be borne with bear also with another.—Thomas Kempis.

I AM PRAYING TO GOD FOR PARDON

"I am praying to God and trying to do my duty," said an old soldier.

"Well, friend, what are you praying to God for?" was the reply.

"Sir, I am praying to God for the pardon of my sins."

"But do you expect to get pardon of your sins by praying only?"

"True, God has told us to pray; but peace and pardon come through believing God's Word and receiving Christ as our own Saviour. You may ask for a gift and it may be offered you—but you only get it when you take it. When your wife offers you your tea, do you keep on asking for it, or take it?"

"Take it, certainly, at once, without asking."

"Well, then, just so take Christ's work of salvation, already done for you, as the pardon for your sin; that is, believe, trust in the Lord Jesus Christ, and thou shalt be saved—pardoned. It is a question of taking Christ; receiving Christ is the act of faith—that saves your soul. Don't stop outside; the door is open—go in."—Living Streams.

—We doubt whether there can be found in all history such a record of achievement in one week as that of Jesus during the last week of his life. On Sunday, accompanied by a very great multitude, he enters Jerusalem riding an ass, thus avowing his kingship and indicating the spirit of his rule. On the way he pauses to weep over Jerusalem in its blindness to the things that pertain to its peace. After entering the city he goes into the temple and surveys the scenes presented there. He goes out of the city for the night, and returns early Monday morning and cleanses the temple by driving out desecrators. Asked by the leading Jews by what authority he acts he becomes involved in a series of discussions raised by different influential factions of the Jews in Jerusalem. He confronts each group of them and denounces them severely for their hypocrisy. One morning he curses the barren fig tree. He continues Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday to teach his disciples and other hearers, preparing their minds for the events of the future. On Thursday evening he meets the twelve in an upper room to eat the pass-over. During the meal he reveals the treachery of Judas and bids him act quickly. He institutes the Lord's Supper and tries to comfort the eleven in view of his own speedy death. He predicts that they will all forsake him and leave him to the mercy of his foes who will maltreat him and crucify him. He prays the long intercessory prayer recorded by John. He continues to address his disciples and goes with them out of the city to the Garden of Gethsemane where he agonizes in prayer and where a little later he is arrested. He is taken before five courts for trial. He is scourged by Pilate. He is condemned to be crucified. He carries his own cross till his physical strength fails. On the cross he retains his clearness of mind till he cries, It is finished, and yields up his spirit. This is only a partial account of his activities and sufferings during these six days. Does history afford any parallel?

OPTIMISM

The President's Letter

EVANGELISM

"Thy Kingdom Come"

A Prominent Layman Passes

We were shocked and grieved to learn early this morning of the sudden passing of Brother H. A. Moffitt, of the First Church, High Point. For many years Brother Moffitt has been a prominent citizen of High Point, and an active and influential member of the First Church. He is recognized by our conference as one of our leading laymen. For a number of years he has been a member of our Board of Education, and a good supporter of High Point College. We are grieved because he is no more with us; but we rejoice in the hope and the confidence that his place is secure in the church triumphant. His family will have our deepest sympathy and prayers.

Church Dedication

May 10, Sunday. On this date the attractive new church at Worthville was dedicated. The church was built two or three years ago, but a small indebtedness held up the dedication until this date. The program lasted throughout the day, "Mother's Day" being observed in the afternoon. It was my privilege to preach at 11 a. m., and to conduct the dedicatory service. An encouraging attendance was present both morning and afternoon. The church is well built, and pleasingly located, and is rendering a splendid service to the community. The main auditorium provides well for the congregation, and a number of Sunday School rooms greatly facilitates this department of the church. The dedication of a building to the worship of Almighty God is a momentous occasion. It is a fit token of the glory due unto Him, and a proper expression of devotion to his cause. We were glad to be present on this occasion, and to share in consecrating this church to God. The principal speaker in the afternoon was Rev. Roy I. Farmer, pastor of First Church, High Point. He spoke pleasingly and edifyingly in a tribute to "Mother", and was heard by a congregation that filled well the church.

Pastor Williams is laboring faithfully, and his people are giving him good co-operation throughout the charge. We enjoyed the day with him and his people, and the visitors and friends who came in from other places.

The Convention

It is over. That is, the meeting in Washington is over, and we are all back home. But the Convention is not over. It is to go on, as a high tide, throughout the church, blessing and refreshing as it goes. It was a really great occasion. Judged by the number in attendance, this was so; appraised by the spirit of the Convention, this was so; measured by the high quality of the program, this was so. From the beginning of the opening service, to the last minute of the last hour, everything moved like clock work. This could not have been so except by the most careful planning, and the fullest co-operation. Only one or two speakers failed to appear as scheduled. All the material surroundings of the Convention gave dignity and emphasis to it. It was a thrill to see the lower floor of beautiful and imposing Memorial Hall filled to its capacity at every night service, with many in the galleries. The attendance during the day programs was large, also, though the splitting of the crowd for different meetings necessarily took some away from the Hall at times.

The attendance record was 1,400. From the standpoint of per centage attendance it is claimed that this is the largest gathering of its kind ever held in America. The attendance showing from North Carolina was most excellent. We have a list of 135, and most likely there are still some whose names we were not able to get. I wish to acknowledge indebtedness to Brother Joe Trollinger for getting this list. Of our ministers and their wives, 25 of the former were present, and 14 of the latter. Nearly every conference in the denomination was represented, including far-away Washington. And every phase of church activity was emphasized in the Convention program. The Convention was honored in the recognition given to it by the President of the United States. He stood with us for two group pictures—first, the officers of the general conference and the presidents of the annual conferences, and then a picture of the entire Convention. Another outstanding feature of the Convention was the banquet at the Mayflower hotel, one of the largest in the City of Washington. At least 500 must have been present at this banquet. Our honor guest on this occasion was Bishop James Cannon. He was present also in two sessions of the convention at Memorial Hall. I must switch off, lest I make this report too long. I am asking Dr. McCulloch to publish this week the recommendations of the Findings Committee. We shall do our best to get the echoes of this Convention out to our people, and the conference will want to carry out, we are sure, just as far as possible, these recommendations. We hope to publish, if Dr. McCulloch can give the space, a "Convention Number" of the HERALD.

So far as I am informed, only one untoward circumstance marred the convention trip for any of our North Carolina people. Brother Suits' car turned over, as the result of a "blow out." He was hurt some, and Capt. A. M. Rankin had two or three ribs fractured. Mrs. Rankin, Miss Erma Suits, and Miss Snipes, who were also in the car, escaped uninjured. The car was only slightly damaged. We are grateful that no more serious consequences followed. Brother Suits and Brother Rankin will have our prayers for their speedy recovery.

Please remember that this report is for March and April. This report needs to be read and studied by all the members of the church. It is illuminating. It is a significant fact that those charges having Women's Auxiliaries have more credits on their budgets than those who do not have them. This of itself is sufficient argument, it seems to me, to cause our pastors to persevere until we have an auxiliary in each church in the conference. If the pastors do not want to undertake the organization of auxiliaries themselves, if they will write to Mrs. C. W. Bates, 804 Brown Street, Greensboro, N. C., who is the Chairman of Districts, she will be glad to see that an organizer will undertake the work for them.

GEO. R. BROWN, Treasurer.

RECOMMENDATIONS OF THE WASHINGTON CONVENTION

1. That this Convention calls upon our churches to place a great and ever-increasing emphasis on evangelism, perhaps with changed method, but reiterating the necessity for and hope in the redemption offered in Jesus Christ who is the only Savior of the World.

2. That we call upon our people to enter the enlarged fields of Christian service opened up in religious education, not conflicting with but complementary to evangelism.

3. That we indulge the hope, inspired, we believe by the Great Head of the Church, that this last year of the present quadrennium shall be marked by a great in-gathering of souls resulting, wherever possible, in a doubled membership in every church in the denomination.

4. That in this last year of this quadrennium a supreme effort shall be made to raise the entire Budget of $500.00, beginning with this coming June and concluding next April.

5. That this present June be devoted to raising full budgets for annual conference assessments and New Century Service for annual conference years which mark the end of the quadrennium for all conferences.

6. That a concerted denominational effort be made through the month of June, using Children's Day as a nucleus of effort and inspiration.

7. That the last week of May be used for the holding of group or sub-district meetings in all the annual conferences as "Echo Meetings" of this Convention where the story may be told while it is fresh and where all plans may be thoroughly reviewed for the united appeal in June, with the understanding that envelopes and all necessary literature shall be provided in sufficient abundance.

8. That emphasis shall be placed upon a persistent and continued effort to organize Auxiliaries in all our churches, believing that the organization of Auxiliaries, as authorized by the General Conference, has potentialities of tremendous value to the churches.

9. That our hearty endorsement shall be given to the proposed effort to organize the man power of the denomination through the form of denominational organization proposed at the Men's Conference on Friday afternoon of this Convention Week, which will give added and important responsibilities to the lay delegates to the annual conference and which may offer a speedy solution of the financial problems of the denomination.

10. That in the interest of giving the widest possible publicity to the entire program of the denomination, our ministers are urged to put on a campaign to place the Methodist Protestant-Recorder in every Methodist Protestant home.

11. That we ask every pastor in the denomination to read this report of the Committee on Findings to his congregation at the earliest opportunity. The concerted reading of the Findings of this Convention to all our people will assist in carrying to the churches the spirit of this great Convention.

12. That above all our people everywhere shall unite in concerted prayer to Almighty God for His approval upon our plans for the awakening of the Methodist Protestant church to a new sense of its importance and obligation in the spreading of "scriptural holiness" throughout the lands, and for the great work that yet remains for our church to do in carrying forward to ultimate and complete victory the plans and purposes of the Kingdom of God as explained and interpreted and inspired by Jesus Christ, our Lord and Savior, who is the hope of the world and the Redeemer of mankind.

DON'T NEGLECT TO PRAY

Though you're busy every day,
And though dark and drear the way,
It will surely richly pay
To humbly kneel and pray.
As you busy onward go,
Don't forget in grace to grow;
God will brighten up your way,
If you don't neglect to pray.
Many trials are in this life,
Pain and woe are always rife,
It is ere a life of strife,
But do not neglect to pray.
Christ has said of cares beware,
Always take of grace your share,
For the trials come each day;
Then please don't neglect to pray.
If you're only after gold,
And you're far from Jesus' fold,
Please do go to God and pray.
Pray for gold that ne'er will rust,
Then in Jesus always trust,
God will bless you every day
If you don't neglect to pray.
If you don't take time to pray,
Blessings will not come your way;
And there'll come a judgment day,
At which 'twill be too late to pray;
Christ will have no time for you,
And neglect of prayer you'll rue,
You will never Heaven know,
Down to endless woe you'll go.

LAST REMAINING REFORMED CONGREGATION IN RUSSIA LOSES ITS PASTOR

According to a letter from the German Consul at Odessa, just received by the Geneva Office of the Central Bureau for Relief of the Evangelical churches of Europe, the last Reformed Congregation which succeeded in maintaining its parishional existence under the new anti-religious laws, has lost its minister, the Rev. David Schaible. He had been drafted for forced labor in the fields last autumn, but at that time hoped to be released when his period of service was completed. It seems that such was not the case, however, and that in order to escape from what was practically penal servitude, he tried to get out of the country, but was caught in the attempt and is now in prison, awaiting trial.

The letter from Consul Roth, of Odessa, (where Pastor Schaible's parish was) reads as follows:

April 19, 1931.

"In further reference to my letter of February 19th, I must inform you that Pastor Schaible, who tried to evade the forced labor visited upon him as a 'non-worker', and who apparently tried to escape over the border, was arrested several weeks ago and faces a long period of imprisonment, or deportation.

"As I am informed from a reliable source, some money has been put at his disposal, and a number of articles, such as underclothing, blankets, etc., have been supplied to him to alleviate his present condition.

"With kindest regard,

"Very sincerely yours,

(Signed) ROTH CONSUL."

Odessa, U. S. S. R.

This looks like a deathblow to the hope that the Odessa congregation which has won many friends in Europe and in America, might win through the troubled present to a better day in the future, and survive the "liquidation of religion" through the "Five Year Plan" with its organized church life intact.

CHURCH GAINS

The report of the membership of the Churches during 1930 is published in the May issue of the Christian Herald. The figures are presented by Dr. G. L. Kiefer, new Church statistician, who succeeded the late Dr. H. K. Carrol. According to his report, Churches in the United States made a net gain in 1930 of only 88,350. While this is not the smallest gain on record, it must stand comparison with the gain in 1929 of 242,748, and in 1928 of more than a million. Dr. Kieffer raises the question, "whether the Churches are actually losing ground and losing vigor of growth." The Methodists, who, for the first time in a hundred years, showed a decline in membership in 1929, suffered a decline of a further net loss of 43,211 in 1930. The Presbyterians and the Disciples sustained a loss. The former of 22,763, and the latter of 18,567. The whole Church should stress evangelistic work this year and regain the loss.—The Christian Sun.

WATCH ON THE RINK

The Wilson boys had decided to make a skating rink of their own—they lived so far from any lake or river where they could skate. They were lucky because near their home there was a concrete road laid on which there was no traffic, because no houses lined it as yet, only building lots which were for sale. One end of this road led to the main road, but at the other end there was a large circle of concrete for cars to turn on.

Tom and Bob Wilson got permission from the owner to flood the entire road and the circle at the end of it. But first they had to clear and sweep away the snow and then they had their first trouble.

All the children in the neighborhood—and there were plenty of them—had liked the idea of a skating rink, but when something was said about doing work, each one had an excuse.

"All right," said Tom, "if you aren't willing to help make the rink, you can't skate on it."

"You don't own the street," replied one of the other boys scornfully. "Besides I don't know as I care to skate there."

"Well, let's make it for ourselves," said Bob to his brother.

So the boys worked very hard for two days, first shoveling and sweeping the snow off and then carrying water from their home two blocks away and pouring it on the concrete. Of course the ice was not thick when it was frozen, but it was smooth and safe.

Right after school on a Monday the Wilson boys took their skates and went to their rink. Well! When they got there the place was fairly teeming with little folk, the real small ones and the children from the first few grades at school who were let out early.

"The nerve," growled Tom, but Bob said: "Well, they're only babies. Let 'em enjoy themselves."

In fact, most of them didn't even have skates, they were simply sliding. But after a while the bigger children began to arrive, those who had refused to help with the work. First they stood around and watched, and then they went off and got their skates.

Of course, Tom and Bob couldn't fight the whole bunch, but they said plenty.

"Don't be selfish," urged the girls, and some of the boys promised to help next time it snowed.

After all they had a good time, but it snowed that night and alas, for good promises! Not a boy or girl showed up except Peggy McCann. Peggy was a dark spindling girl of ten but she proved to be no shirker and with her broom made the snow fly. Meanwhile she said what she thought of the other children.

"Let's put a rope across the end of this road and not let any of them in," she suggested.

"They could easily duck under a rope," replied Tom gloomily, "besides who wants to stand guard instead of skating? I know I don't."

"Well, I'm going to fix it," muttered Peggy with grim determination.

Tom and Bob both looked at the thin little creature and began to laugh. Peggy kept out all the rabble in the neighborhood! Then Bob stopped laughing and said seriously:

"You know, Peg, Tom and I decided last year that when we had sort of misunderstandings with the other kids we weren't going to run tattling to our mommer and popper. We used to go to them about every little thing and mother was always getting very worried and upset and trying to set things right for us. Then dad said we ought to settle our own troubles and leave her out. She has enough to do without getting into kids' fights. So please don't drag in any parents. Now I'm asking you."

"I'm not going to drag in any parents," retorted Peggy. "I guess my mother has enough to do, too, without worrying about who's going to sweep the ice and who's going to skate. My mother runs a big house and has clubs and things to worry about. What do you think I am? A tattletale?"

"Then what are you going to do?" inquired Tom, smiling. "Don't get your pop-gun and try to shoot any of our friends, please."

Peggy tossed her head.

"Poor little boys," she said to the sky and air. "They are so full of curiosity. Dear, dear! It's just too bad."

The boys wisely let her have the last word and presently she left them, saying she would be back in a short time.

Already there was a crowd of children collecting around the rink, getting ready for the time of their lives on the nice clean ice. The Wilson boys eyed them angrily but said nothing.

"What's the use," muttered Bob. "What can't be helped must be endured."

But Peggy was a girl of her word. She had promised to be back in a short time and she certainly was. Before the last big girl was fairly launched on her skates, back she came trotting with a perfectly huge companion.

They ran to the rink and the big young man put his hands up to his mouth like a megaphone and yelled in a voice like a bull:

"Hey! Get off the ice, everyone of you or you'll be thrown off on your ears!"

"Why, it's Peggy's big brother, the captain of the High School football team," said Tom to his brother.

It did not take Jake McCann long to clear the ice.

"Now look here, kids," he said firmly. "I'm going to see fair play around here. I'm the strong arm of the law. If you want to skate, you've got to do your share of the work."

"We'll all help," promised a dozen voices.

"You bet you will or else stay off," replied Jack in his deepest voice.

There was a scramble for the ice, but Jake pushed them off again.

"Not today," he said firmly. "You weren't here with your brooms at the right time. No skating for any of you today, except the ones who worked."

So Peggy, Tom and Bob skated gaily around and around while their friends looked enviously on.

"As chief of police I'll make my rounds, too," grinned Jake as he put on his skates.

Needless to say, everybody appeared next day to water and sweep the ice.

"We don't need any chief of police any more," said Dave Jones to Jake. "We've learned our lesson."

"You're a big little fellow," grinned Jake. "I'll make you and a few others deputy police and you enforce the law. If there's any trouble come to me."

Tom found Peggy teaching little Sally Dunlap to skate.

"That was a grand idea you had," he told her.

"Yes," she grinned, "it sometimes pays to have a big brother."—Selected.

MIRACULOUS!

The good book says, "They have eyes that see not and ears that hear not." They have a sense of appreciation and yet do not appreciate. They have a sense of understanding and yet do not understand. Yet, miracles are performed around and about us so numerous that, having become accustomed through frequency of occurrence, we fail to observe or recognize them.

It seems that the Great Architect of the Universe is training and developing us according to our capacities or abilities to absorb and expand. Yet many of us whine or complain about the training thus given, whereas, on the other hand, we know positively well that development is a process acquired only through training and experience. The greater the training and the more tests that God has put in our way the bigger and better we become. Read the Book of Job!

Why, when we consider how infinitely everything is planned and works out—are miracles beyond comprehension? Take for instance so simple a thing as the common, ordinary watermelon, explained thus in a clipping from a current catalog:

"When a good, ripe, juicy watermelon is sliced, you no doubt have been struck with its beauty, and after feasting on the flesh took some of the seed and dried it, but we doubt if you ever made a calculation of the number of seeds required to weigh a pound, and here is where some of the mystery of the watermelon comes in.

"Required 4,000 seeds to weigh a pound, then apply mathematics to a 30-pound melon. One of these seeds put into the ground, when warmed by the sun and moistened by the rain, takes off its coat and goes to work. It gathers from somewhere more than 100,000 times its own weight and forcing this raw material through a tiny stem, constructs a watermelon. It ornaments the outside with green, inside the green it puts a layer of white, and within the white a coat of red, and all through the red it scatters seeds, each capable of continuing the work of reproduction.

"What architect drew the plan? Where does the little seed get its tremendous strength? How does it collect the flavoring extract? How does it build a watermelon? Until you can explain this do not be too sure that you can limit the ability of the Almighty. Everything that lives, in like manner impresses by its mystery, beauty and power."

Yes, there is a God and to deny Him is more stupid than to deny the existence of electricity or the results of radio. One cannot explain or see either, but they are here!—C. F. K.

ONLY A DAY AT A TIME

Only a day at a time:

There may never be a tomorrow

Only a day at a time,

And that we can live we know.

The trouble we cannot bear

Is only the trouble we borrow,

And the trials that never come

Are the ones that fret us so.

Only a step at a time.

It may be the angels bend o'er us

To bear us above the stones

That ground our feet by the way,

The step that is hardest of all

Is not the one just before us.

And the path we dread the most

May be smoothed another day.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S WORK

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR HELPS

May 31: HOW IS THE WORK OF THE MIS-SIONARY CHANGING?

Leader's Talk

The world still needs the missionary for the mass of mankind is still under the superstition of non-Christian religions. In Asia and Africa one-half of the inhabitants do not read or write. "One-half of the world's population still worships idols. One-half of the world has never heard of Jesus, and yet out of every two thousand Christians in America, only one is sent to this starving world." Religion cannot live without the missionary spirit. We need the missionary spirit in our lives.

Because the natives of other countries have learned to associate economic greed with our religion they tell us that they want the Christ, but not Western religion. May our lives be so Christ-like that they can easily see Jesus in them and that they will accept Christ as their Lord and Saviour.

There is a great power of tradition in the lives of most natives where missionaries are working. This of course is an obstacle but the Gospel of Christ is the same yesterday, today, and forever. If we live Christ before them we need have no fear. He will meet the need of every land if His Gospel is taken in the right way.

To Discuss

1. If you were a missionary, what would be your aim?
2. What are some of the changes required in missionary methods?
3. Has the need for the Gospel lessened with these changes?
4. What are some of the most effective methods of carrying the Gospel to other nations?
5. Is the task of the missionary hopeless?

—Improved Porto Rico sweet potatoes will be planted by growers of the Cherrycville community in Gaston county to fill the new storage house to be constructed this summer.

—Limberneck, a nervous disease of poultry, known scientifically as botulism, occurs more frequently in hot weather and will cause heavy losses in poultry flocks unless decayed matter is kept from the yards.

—Since Spain became a republic with separation between church and state there has been great trouble over religious matters. Roman Catholics have been fiercely persecuted in some cases. The old Spanish inquisition is called to mind.

YOUR MENTAL GARDEN

Resentment is an ugly thing,
It crowds the roses out;
Keep your mental garden fair,
Put harmful things to rout.

Seed-thoughts that you cultivate
Within your fertile mind,
Bring forth varied blossoms
According to their kind.

Anger, malice, worry, fear,
Are noxious mental seeds;
Quickly rid your mind of them
Before they choke as weeds.

Faith, gentleness, humility,
Truth, patience, unselfed love,
Are specimens of seedlings rare,
Approved of God above.

Your mental garden is a place
In which you daily dwell;
Let nothing ugly flourish there,
Safeguard and tend it well.
—Grenville Kleiser.

THE CROSS

Take up the cross,
Deny self and sin,
Christ is the way,
Enter thou in.

Take up the cross,
Follow thou on,
Dark though the night,
Soon comes the dawn.

Take up the cross,
Climb the steep height,
Cast away fear,
Christ is the light.

All will be gain,
You can't suffer loss,
Christ is the way,
Take up the cross.
—Grenville Kleiser.

BOUQUETS

If you have any gifts to make,
Let this helpful word be said:
Give your bouquets to the living,
Keep your brickbats for the dead.

What's the use of wounding others
With base brickbats sent in showers?
Why wait until a man is dead
To cover him with flowers?

Give your bouquets to the living,
Say a loving word today,
Cheer a lonely heart with kindness,
Help a pilgrim on the way.

You will have a sense of pleasure,
When a hungry soul you've fed;
Your bouquets will cheer the living,
Brickbats cannot hurt the dead.
—Grenville Kleiser.

LIKABLE PEOPLE

There are some people whom it is always a pleasure to meet in a social way. There are persons with whom it is a pleasure to have business dealings.

Frequent intercourse with such people does not wear on you; on the contrary you feel refreshed by contact with them. Why is this so? Here are some considerations that help explain your liking for them:

1. They remember your name, always pronounce it correctly, and they do it with a tone of respect—thus ministering to your own self-respect.

2. Their voices are agreeable. They avoid high, shrill tone, using mainly medium to low registers.

3. They are neat and clean in person and dress. While this is a mark of their self-respect, it also shows respect for you.

4. Their conversation is void of unkind personalities. Their interests are wide and inclusive, and they are concerned for the well-being of those about them.

5. You know they are not making an exclusive effort to be polite to you, for you see them treating others in the same considerate way.

6. They seem to appreciate your response to their kindness, but you do not feel that they demand such a response; rather, they leave that to your own good sense and cultivation.

7. They show this same fine spirit especially to the aged, the poor, and those from other lands who do not speak well our language.

8. They are intelligent. Their thoughts are clear, and they evidently seek to express them in the best English possible to them.

9. They make the impression on you, and your experience in business with them confirms the impression, that they are square in their dealings.

10. They have the happy faculty, exercised perhaps unconsciously, of casting over life a reasonably rosy glow. You are more hopeful and have greater courage after meeting them.

LUTHER K. LONG.

TOBACCO LOGIC

A prominent farm paper asked its subscribers whether, in view of the proved harmful effects of tobacco, farmers ought to stop growing the weed. Only 35 per cent of them replied that they should, while 65 per cent thought that they had a right to grow and sell it.

The subscribers were also asked whether farm magazines have a right to advertise cigarettes. Only 28 per cent said they had, while 72 condemned the practice.

The subscribers were further asked whether the farm journals should advertise cigarettes for women. Only 16 per cent said they had the right to do so, while 84 per cent declared against it.

A product which it is right for farmers to raise and sell, it is right to advertise in the farm periodicals; and if it is right to sell it to men, it is hard to see why women should be cut off from its alleged benefits.

What havoc selfishness makes with logic!—Amos R. Wells, in C. E. World.

Touzalini—So you decided to quit being an atheist?

Fozzello—Yes, there's no future to it.

FROM PASTORS and PEOPLE

Oak Grove, Forsyth.—Our Sunday school is still on the improving list as we had several new members Sunday. Our preaching service was called off because of the baccalaureate sermon at the school building.

Rev. Mr. Hahn preached the baccalaureate sermon at 2:30. Mr. Hahn is pastor of the Augsburg Lutheran church of Winston-Salem. He rendered a very inspiring message with "Mile No. 2," as his subject. His talk was mostly to the seniors of the school. The high school acted as choir and the orchestra also featured in the program.

The writer has been called to the bedside of her son, Mr. Artice Warren, of Winston-Salem. He had a blood vessel burst in his head and finally paralysis occurred.

MRS. R. M. WARREN, Reporter.

Laurel Hill.—Sunday morning, May 10, at 11 o'clock our pastor delivered us an excellent sermon.

The second quarterly conference for Falston charge was held at Laurel Hill Saturday, May 9th. A goodly number was present. Rev. C. E. Ridge, of Shelby, delivered an inspiring sermon at 11 o'clock. A delicious lunch was served after the sermon. Then the business of the conference was transacted in the afternoon. The memorial service was held at Laurel Hill Sunday also. The cemetery was covered in white sand and then a mound of flowers which were very beautiful. This occasion brought people from far and near to the church.

Our Sunday school is doing nicely under the leadership of our good superintendent, Mr. A. A. Sain.

There will not be a preaching service the third Sunday afternoon in May, but there will be the on the third Sunday in June. Our pastor has given us an extra service each month which will be at this time beginning in June.

The fifth Sunday and Saturday before the fifth Sunday in May there will be a Sunday school rally at Friendship church. This will include the twelfth and fourteenth districts. Services will begin Saturday morning and continue throughout Sunday night.

We were very glad indeed to have so many visiting friends to worship with us last Sunday.

Rev. and Mrs. Morgan and two children, Paul and Jaunita, were dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Willis Sunday.

Best wishes to the Herald and all its readers.

LOIS WILLIS, Reporter.

Mt. Pleasant Church.—The fragrant spring Sabbaths that send forth quietly reminding roads from the churches to our doors—every country roadside a revelation of God's gifts of love, of life, and of beauty to man—are affording unusually large audiences for our Sunday school and preaching services.

On May 3 at the 11 o'clock service our pastor, Rev. J. R. Hutton, chose for his subject, "Man's Need of Salvation," and based his sermon upon Mark 2:17. In words that were as convincing and sure as the master carpenter's metal hammer when it unwaveringly drives in the metal nail, Mr. Hutton drove this need of repentance and salvation into our ears and hearts.

Appealing to the young people especially, he drew the picture of a young life that is trying to beautify itself outwardly or physically, while permitting a serious spiritual neglect within. Likening such a life to a fountain whose waters are polluted with the deadly germs of typhoid, he declared:

"As it is impossible to purify such a fountain of water by painting the exterior a beautiful color, so is it impossible to beautify a life by outward or physical applications. The soul must be purified."

"Man's goodness is in striving, according to God's Holy Truth, to reach perfection," offered Reverend Hutton as a remedy for such a life. And for the cure of a sin sick and a spiritually negligent world he prescribed, "The only way to make the world fit to live in, is to make a man fit to live in the world."

The first Sunday in June will be a day of all day services at our church. In the morning the Children's Day exercises will be held and will be succeeded in the afternoon by Memorial services. You are invited to attend both of these services.

Messrs. H. Floyd Amick and S. R. Stafford were recently nominated as delegates to the annual conference.

The Young People's Christian Endeavor society of our church is meeting at 8:00 p. m. in the church auditorium every first and third Sunday evening, and after Sunday school in the auditorium every second and fourth Sunday of the month.

Last Sunday members of the society had charge of the opening services of the Sunday school, rendering a brief but interesting Mothers' Day program.

The delegation from Pleasant Hill are being highly commended for the Christian Endeavor program which they lately rendered in our church.

NILA GARNETTE AMICK, Reporter.

Pleasant Hill, West Forsyth.—Rev. C. B. Way filled his appointment May 17 at 11 a. m. We were pleased to see so many present. A very helpful and needed sermon was delivered. The service was opened by singing "Blessed Assurance," followed by a prayer by W. B. Speas. The Scripture was read from the book of St. John 9:1-25. The subject being, "Miracles of Christ." His text was found in St. John 9:4—"I must work the works of Him that sent me, while it is day, the night cometh, when no man can work." After this the Lord's Supper was administered.

The Woman's auxiliary of this church will meet Friday evening, May 22, at 8:00 o'clock, at the home of Mrs. C. G. Hunter. Miss Treva Long will conduct the devotional exercise, Miss Lena Hunter has charge of the programs, and Miss Martha Louise Speas the Question Box. All members are urged to be present.

On Sunday afternoon, May 23, at 3 o'clock, the Young People's Missionary society will meet at the home of Miss Jaunita Hunter, to hold the regular monthly meeting. It is requested that all the young people of this community, under 16 years of age, be present at this meeting.

R. LONG, Reporter.

Greer's Chapel.—We are interested in the work more than ever before. We like to hear from other churches and note the progress that they are making.

Our Sunday school is moving along nicely. Everyone seems to take active part in all that has to be done.

The Christian Endeavor is growing more in numbers and interest. We have 45 on roll; the average attendance is 35. Each meeting seems to draw larger crowds and every one seems to take active part in all. There are several older people who visit us at every meeting. We are glad to have them with us with their encouraging words.

May God shower His blessings on all these unions.

LOTTIE FITZGERALD, Reporter.

Roberta Station.—Our Sunday school dropped off some today, May 17, attendance being only 239. All are working for 300 again this summer.

Mr. Hill delivered another interesting sermon today. We were very glad to have with us in this service Bro. Hill's oldest son, his wife and little daughter, all of Asheboro; also his brother, A. L. Hill, his wife and little daughter of Denton. Come again.

On Sunday, May 10, Mother's Day was observed at our church. Also a love feast and home-coming was held. There were many visitors present, including the following singers: The Kannapolis quartet, Westford M. E. quartet, also Rev. J. T. Sisk and his quartet from Gaffney, S. C.; Misses Mattie and Margaret Fisher sang a duet entitled, "I Miss My Mother and Dad." After a short service in the church the congregation gathered in the cemetery, all going to some loved one's grave while a silent prayer was prayed. The choir then sang "If I Could Hear My Mother Pray Again." A bountiful dinner was then spread which was enjoyed by all.

About 1:30 p. m. the congregation re-assembled in the church where another service was held. All present enjoyed the day to go to the fullest extent. There were 321 in Sunday school.

Rev. Mr. Hill attended the conference meeting in Washington last week. We regret to learn of his being ill while there. He was able to preach for us Sunday.

All are welcome at our church any time.

ELMA MILLER, Reporter.

Hope, Chatham Charge.—Our pastor has been filling his appointments at Hope church with the exception of a service or two which was unavoidable. He is certainly faithful in meeting his appointments.

We were very glad to have five new members join our Sunday school last Sunday. That is encouraging but we would like to have more each Sunday.

Our Auxiliary has been re-organized and entered into another year's work. We are hoping for a good year's work. We shall miss Mrs. Howell and Miss Shaw, teachers in the Bonlee school, who have been such faithful and efficient workers in our Sunday school and auxiliary. But we are glad that they are going to be back again this fall.

We are planning to hold a memorial service at our church the second Sunday in June. This is to be a union memorial service, as the cemetery is a union cemetery. Bro. Lindley invited the Baptist church of Bonlee to join us in holding this service and they very readily accepted. A committee has been appointed to assist the pastor in making plans for this occasion.

Our revival meeting will begin the second Sunday in August with Rev. W. M. Loy as help.
KARA ANDREW, Reporter.

First Church, High Point.—Prior to the sermon Sunday morning Rev. R. I. Farmer read very effectively Col. MasRae's immortal poem, "In Flanders Field," in memory of the gold star heroes of the World War. He announced that Poppy Day will be observed in High Point on Saturday, May 23, by the American Legion. He also referred to the convention held last week at Washington as the most momentous event in the history of the denomination. Twenty-six hundred people registered and were in actual attendance, including 135 from North Carolina. According to the membership, it was the most largely attended church convention that has ever assembled in our country. He then delivered an eloquent and forceful sermon "The Immortality of Influence" from the text in Job 28:31, "Canst thou bind the sweet influences of Pleiades, or loose the bands of Orion?" No man or woman has the power to bind the influence of a good life. Our influence for good or evil is as sure as the orbit of the stars and constellations in their courses. No man can limit the power of God. A man when dying said to his son: "Father all my influence and bury it with me," but that was impossible. John Milton is more alive today in the world than when he wrote "Paradise Lost," so are John Wesley, one of the founders of Methodism, and Baxter, the author of "Saints' Everlasting Rest." There is no truly good ideal that a young man or woman can choose that does not come from Jesus Christ. If I do not use my arm, it will hang limp by my side; so we must exercise our faith by service.

The annual Florence Nightingale service in honor of the nurses of the community was held last Sunday evening, to which the doctors of High Point were invited. This unique service was held in expression of our appreciation of the great service and blessing to humanity rendered by the Christian nurses. He spoke very feelingly on the theme, "Fulfilling the Law of Christ."

The Auxiliary Circles held meetings on Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock as follows: No. 4, Mrs. W. W. Cecil, chairman, with Mrs. S. S. Coe; No. 5, Mrs. R. H. Davis, chairman, with Mrs. J. B. Spencer; No. 6, Mrs. J. A. Gray, chairman, with Mrs. C. L. Whitaker; No. 7, Mrs. L. R. Peacock, chairman, with Mrs. E. L. Auman, and No. 8, Mrs. R. H. Shaw, chairman, with Mesdames W. P. and J. S. Pickett. Plans for the fried chicken supper on Thursday evening, May 21st, at the church were made. A contest for subscriptions for the Missionary Record is being waged in the Auxiliary, and a prize of $5.00 is offered to the Circle sending in the largest number of new subscriptions and renewals and $3.00 for the next largest number. Mrs. E. L. Douglas is secretary of literature.

While returning from the Washington Convention on Saturday at 2 o'clock p. m. the car in which Rev. Edward Suits, his daughter, Miss Emma, Capt. and Mrs. A. M. Rankin, and Miss Margaret Snipes were riding, overturned near Natural Bridge, Va., and Capt. Rankin suffered three fractured ribs, Rev. Mr. Suits, a painful chest injury, and Miss Margaret Snipes, a cut on the arm. A tire on Mr. Suits' car blew out and caused the accident at the foot of the mountain. The car was mended and the party came on to High Point, arriving about 11 o'clock p. m. We are sorry to announce that Capt. Rankin and Rev. Mr. Suits are still detained in bed.

Our city was painfully shocked to learn that Mr. Hugh A. Moffitt, a prominent citizen and leading layman of our church, died quite suddenly of apoplexy Monday evening about 9:30 o'clock. While driving on South Hamilton street he was taken ill, stopped his car, and was sitting on the running-board. Miss Rosa Dowd, a young lady employee in his office, in passing discovered him. He asked her to take him home, but she drove him to a hospital, and upon arrival there it was found that he was dead. Mr. Moffitt was a native of Randolph County, moving here in 1900, when he opened a small drygoods store. In 1923 he was elected a member of the city council and in 1925 he became mayor. During his administration many of the city's most progressive enterprises were launched, notably the huge reservoir for the supply of water to the city at Municipal Lake, Jamestown, on Deep River, and the hard surfacing of many miles of streets. He was born March 7, 1869, at Moffitt's Mill, and was a son of the late Mr. Hugh T. and Martha Brooks Moffitt. His immediate survivors are his wife, who was before marriage Miss Sally Prevost, of Worthville, and five children, Mrs. Juanita Cox, James and Alfred Moffitt, and Misses Ruth and Martha Moffitt, all of High Point; two brothers, Alfred T. Moffitt, High Point, and T. J. Moffitt, of Mineral Springs, Texas, and two sisters, Mrs. E. R. Cox and Mrs. T. S. Graves, and his step-mother, Mrs. Hugh Moffitt, of Greensboro, also survive. Mr. Moffitt was of a genial and pleasing personality, a trustee of First church, and a member of the Board of Trustees of High Point College. He was a liberal supporter of the church, and one of the most faithful attendants at its services, having been absent only about a dozen times in the past 30 years, a record scarcely surpassed. Funeral services will be conducted Wednesday afternoon at 3 o'clock at First church, the minister, Rev. R. I. Farmer, officiating.

Mr. Arnold J. Koonce last week opened a funeral home in the W. D. Simmons residence on South Main street. The house has been remodeled, and is well equipped for the purpose, having among other modern equipment a chapel for services for the dead.

Mr. and Mrs. Clifton L. Whitaker, of Gastonia, spent the past week-end with his mother, Mrs. C. L. Whitaker.

Mt. Hermon, Mt. Hermon Charge.—Mt. Hermon Memorial Association held its sixth annual meeting May 17. A large crowd was present, more of the people who used to attend services here than at any time since the organization of the association. Prof. H. E. Spence, instructor in religious education, School of Religion, Duke University, delivered the address. The congregation heard him with pleasure. His comparison of the past and present was interesting and instructive. And his pleading for every one to make the best use of the wonderful opportunities of today should be an inspiration. Mothers and fathers, too, would do well to follow his advice in training the girls and knowing where they are. The dinner served did not look like hard times.

The officers for the coming year are: L. P. Holt, president; Effie Keek, secretary; E. F. Holt, treasurer.

There will be no preaching the first Sunday in June because of memorial services at Friendship.
REPORTER.

Worthville. Church dedication came Sunday, May 10th. Sunday school with C. F. Allred superintendent, met at 9:45; 11:00, Doxology, followed by invocation by the pastor; song No. 45; Scripture reading; song No. 47; morning prayer; song No. 129; announcements, pastor; offering; dedication sermon by Rev. S. W. Taylor, D. D.; song No. 85; benediction; dinner on church grounds; 2:00 p. m., special songs; prayer; special song; 2:30, "Behold Thy Mother," Rev. R. I. Farmer; 3:30, closing song; benediction, Rev. T. A. Williams, pastor.

Dr. Taylor gave a very impressive sermon. He congratulated the church upon its wonderful achievement. Every one there enjoyed his sermon.

Dr. Farmer also gave us an inspiring sermon in the evening on our departed mothers. He admonished that everyone who had living mothers should give them flowers while they lived.

Brother Lewis Hughes, of Randleman, gave a very interesting volunteer talk. He remarked how obedient the mothers were to the children of today.

The members of the church are very happy that we have paid for the church so soon. We appreciate our pastor very much for his faithful services.

On Thursday night of each week we are conducting a teacher training class.

The Sunday school is progressing nicely under the superintendency of Brother C. F. Allred.

On Saturday night the classes of Mr. Fred Allred and Mr. Arthur Ferree had a weiner roast at the home of Mr. Ferree.

Mrs. L. P. Foust is enjoying better health now; she was able to attend the dedication services Sunday.

Through donations Mrs. Foust presented Brother Williams an electric iron this week.

—"Faced with a demand of the part of rural girls for instruction in foods, canning, room improvement and other club projects, Don S. Matheson, of Orange county, has built a system of local leaders by which the girls can get the kind of information desired," says Miss Elizabeth Cornelius, specialist in girls' club work. "In all there are 161 girls enrolled in seven clubs and the leaders in charge of the instruction meet once each month in the county library at Hillsboro where they discuss their work and get such facts and publications as Mr. Matheson can give. Whenever possible a specialist is sent from the home demonstration division outlines of projects."

Clothing and Other Gifts

Mrs. W. L. Kivett, one-half bushel peas for planting, and also a lot of flower bulbs.

Mr. W. F. Grabs, a nice lot of apples which he had kept through the winter.

Several have also sent Octagon coupons and flower bulbs, but have preferred not to have names mentioned in the church paper. We thank all of you.

Back From Washington

Mother Dixon and I, together with Mr. J. A. Dixon and Miss Doris Dixon and 16 of our children, attended the Convention in Washington, D. C., last week. It was a most wonderful series of meetings, and we thoroughly enjoyed them. We are all back home safe and sound and are down at our routine work. Our children made a very favorable impression, for which we are thankful.

Our Dull Season

During last year April, May, June and July set us back rather dreadfully in the offerings for the Home. It seems that we are headed that way again this year. So many letters come these days with expressions of regret. One is before me now with this expression, "We regret that our offerings are smaller than in other years."

Another one says: "Our collections have been so small that we have not sent them in monthly. We are sorry that they are so small."

We appreciate the situation in these days, and are doing our level best to stretch your dollars to the utmost capacity. Please stand by us during the summer and we will strive to be as economical as possible.

We Are Offering a Prize

Of course, you are more interested in the children than anything else here. We have a good picture of the 105 children now in the Home. One of the best friends of the Home has just suggested that we give one of those pictures to every Sunday school in the Conference, which will send a monetary offering to the Home from now until Conference. So here goes. We will give a good picture of our children to each Sunday school in the Conference which will send as a monthly offering for the Home for June, July, August, September and October. Let pastors and Sunday school superintendents speak of this and get their Sunday schools to begin in earnest in June. If you are in a Sunday school where your superintendent forgets this offer, then you speak of it and get your people to make these fine offerings.

Many Sunday schools are already sending their regular monthly offering to the Home, but we believe some of them, at least, would like to have the picture. But we hope to enlist many schools from which no regular offering comes. May we hear from you?

Yours in His service,

A. G. DIXON, Supt.

MY FIRST LOVE

There's a song in my heart
Of my first love, today.
I'll sing it while blow
The soft breezes of May.

Her hair is fine silver
From life's golden loom;
Her brow is the petals
Of May apple bloom.

Twin pools of dark beauty,
Her eyes softly glow;
Her cheeks are two roses
Embedded in snow.

The touch of white lilies,
Her beautiful neck
That often my twining
Babe fingers did beck.

And perfect as only
A mother's can be,
The form of my mother
Appears unto me.

You may see the wrinkles
Of trouble and care—
To me she is only
The good and the fair.

The voice that's my music
You may even brand
Too low, or too blatant,
But please understand

Though you see the blemish,
The beauty I'll see,
For always my mother
Is perfect to me.

—Nila Garnette Amick.

—Tabernacle had its annual memorial service last Sunday with a large attendance. Their new Sunday school building is almost complete. They have surpassed their first expectations in the magnitude of their building. It has seven rooms, all of good size. The new building stands about 60 feet from the church, facing the church steps. This building adds greatly to their equipment and they will wonder how they got along without it and how they built it so easily.

JOINT DISTRICT RALLY AT FRIENDSHIP CHURCH FALLSTON

I would call the attention of readers in the 12th and 14th districts to the provisional program that appeared last week. We urged that all pastors in the two districts make public announcements of this rally from their pulpit and urge their people to attend. Everything possible will be done to make this one of the most inspiring and encouraging meetings of this kind that we have had in this section of the state.

In addition to the several addresses to be made, we are planning to make the song service a helpful part of our worship. All our nearby churches are asked to render special music throughout the program.

We are also asking those from nearby churches to co-operate with Friendship church in bringing out well-filled baskets on Sunday, as dinner will be served on the grounds. May I say to you people of the 14th district that we are anxious for you to come for the entire program, and we assure you that all others who come from a distance that everything necessary will be provided for free entertainment.

Watch for final program next week.

THE OPEN DOOR

(Memorial Day)

Brave men, you are not dead,
You've simply gone before,
To show to us the way of life,
Through God's great open door.

The legacy bequeathed,
We hold in sacred trust;
The work you left for us to do,
We'll carry on—we must.

Yours the nobler part,
Ours the lighter work;
Let the task be great or small,
Our duty we'll not shirk.

Brave men, you are not dead,
You've simply gone before,
To show to us the way of life,
Through God's great open door.

—Grenville Kleiser.

"THOSE WHO ARE FRESHEST FROM THE HANDS OF GOD"

The phrase quoted above is from the official Child Health Day proclamation of Governor Pollard of Virginia. The statement is so practical as well as so exquisitely beautiful that we are quoting it in full from the Community League News of Richmond, so that our readers may appreciate it along with the Editor of the Health Bulletin.

"No life can be truly happy or develop normally that is handicapped by ill health. The time for conserving and promoting positive health is in childhood, and child health problems should be the foremost concern of all thinking people.

"As Governor of Virginia I urge all educators, health officials, nurses, teachers, state and local agencies and our citizens generally to join together to make Child Health Day this year not only a fit celebration of achievement for the children, but also a day for so co-ordinating the interest in child health in every locality as to secure a sense of community responsibility towards those who are freshest from the hands of God."

Again this year the May issue of the Bulletin is devoted to the cause of the mothers and babies of the state. Our state still occupies a far from enviable position in the matter of infant deaths. Only a few states lose more babies per thousand births under one year old than we do. We are apparently doing a bit better by them now than we have in the past but we have a long way to go yet. When we come right down to straight thinking all of us are compelled to admit that much of this serious waste in baby life is utterly useless. We know that many of the deaths of helpless infants must be charged up against the neglect, indifference and carelessness of their adult guardians. A considerable proportion is due to ignorance, but that more or less worn out cloak does not account for all of the criminal waste by a long shot. No one knows how many children die each year as a result of sheer laziness on the part of their parents, but the number is evidently considerable. A stock raiser who would go to all the trouble and expense of breeding a supply of cattle and hogs, and then manifested the indifference to raising and caring for his stock, that so many parents display toward protecting the health of their infants, would starve to death on a Texas ranch. Not one of those parents who neglect their children by failing to provide protection against diphtheria, smallpox, bowel diseases, and numerous other preventable diseases which cause death, would admit to a lack of abounding love for their little ones. They simply fail to assume the direct responsibility in a practical manner which would galvanize them into the necessary action.

Let us by our efforts this year better our standing in the eyes of the outside world, by doing more for "those who are freshest from the hands of God."—Health Bulletin.

LOCATING AND DESCRIBING THE CHURCHES

A tourist, motoring through a prosperous region, came to a small city that attracted his interest. Wanting to know more about it, he questioned a man who was evidently a resident:

Tourist—How many churches are there in this town?

Resident—There are four: Methodist, Baptist, Presbyterian, and Congregational.

Tourist—How may I find them?

Resident—The Congregational is on Broad street, the Methodist is on Sunshine avenue, the Baptist is on Riverside drive, and the Presbyterian is on the street that is called Straight.

Tourist—But I don't know the streets. How are the churches situated with reference to certain well known buildings and institutions?

Resident—The Congregational church is across the street from the Academy and next to the Public Library. The Baptist church is one block east of the Swimming Pool. The Presbyterian church is just north of the Cold Storage Plant. The Methodist church, you can't miss it, is directly across the street from the Fire Department.

PATHFINDER JOKES

Reporter—Weren't you hungry during the five days you were on the raft without food?
Shipwrecked passenger—No, thank heaven, I was seasick!

Hingus—Back in the city again? I thought you were a farmer.

Hingus—You made the same mistake that I did.

TOBACCO MEN AFTER WOMEN AND CHILDREN

There is no longer any secret about it. The tobacco interests are after the women and children of the United States for patrons of their products. The Tobacco Leaf, a leading organ of the weed, praises the ingenuity manifested in a certain cigar ad, and says editorially:

"Adroitly, if not in so many words, it is addressed to the beginner, and it offers one of the products whose shape and price are most likely to appeal to the novice. If we are to have additional cigar smokers, they will have to come in large part from the ranks of young men. Cigarette advertising is beginning to realize that it must occasionally extend an invitation to women. By the same token, cigar advertising ought to pay more attention to the YOUTH of America."

In the same issue Tobacco Leaf criticizes a school board in Iowa for expelling from the school pupils found guilty of using tobacco. And yet the editor says he severely punished his own son for smoking when he was ten.

In the campaign of the tobacco men to induce women to smoke, by every device that can be conceived, one of the manufacturers is following the same practice in presenting cartons of cigarettes to girls, by mail, as has been exposed in the sending of cigarettes by mail to boys, shortly preceding their birthdays, with a cordial letter mentioning the "gift." A number of young women students in the University of Chicago have received such letters and cigarettes. The contemptible method should be exposed to the public in every way possible. It seems that no action is too low for some of the companies to embrace in their greed for gain at the expense of the health and welfare of the boyhood and girlhood of our country.—Will H. Brown.

METHUSELAH

Methuselah was a wise man,
A vegetarian he,
No meat, no fish, no poultry,
No coffee and no tea.

He lived on foods from nature,
Fruits, nuts, and vegetables;
He chewed them two and thirty times,
But eschewed indigestibles.

His happy years were fruitful,
Nine hundred and sixty-nine;
I'm working for longevity,
So I've made his habits mine!

—The North Carolina Forestry Association will meet in a joint conference with the American Forestry Association at Asheville on June 3, 4 and 5.

Superintendent—Who is that fidgety boy who can't sit still in his seat for two seconds?

Teacher—Oh, that's one of our last summer's champion tree sitters.

Landlady—What part of the chicken would you like, Mr. Newsome?

Newsome—Oh, half of it will be ample, thanks.

Bumrush—How's the furniture business, Abe?

Bouncer—Terrible! It's got so that we can't sell even to the people who never intend to pay.

IN HONOR OF THE DEAD

Resolutions of Respect

With sorrowful hearts, we the members of Bethel Missionary society, record the passing of one of our oldest, most beloved members, Mrs. Sarah C. Foust, who went home to God April 26, 1931, aged about 78 years. Cousin Sarah, as most of us called her, was a faithful, loyal member and a sincere Christian, doing whatever she undertook well. She began in the home, was a kind and loving wife and mother, a model home-maker, a strict disciplinarian and raised her children for God. All Christians, all doing well, noble examples of mother's early training. Three sons, Messrs. L. M., J. D., and W. R. and one daughter, Miss Lizabel, all trained musicians. Cousin Sarah enjoyed music and made her home beautiful with many choice flowers. She loved her church, Sunday school, and missionary society. For many years she was a teacher in the Sunday school. She was a loyal friend and neighbor, doing all she could to help others. The last time she met us at Bethel church, she said, "I don't think I'll be here much longer," and she was right, it was her last time among us. Dear Sister, no more will you join us in our meetings, but in the Sweet By and By, we will meet where no farewell tears are shed.

We have lost a true and faithful member and it is hard to give her up, but she has won a crown of life. She has finished her work God gave her to do and we all agree that she did it well. God has called her home. In His wisdom and love for us, He doeth all things for our good, if we love and trust Him. Therefore be it resolved,

That we bow in humble submission to His will and remember she has left a wonderful influence that will live on and on and that she is now happy in Father's home.

That we cherish with loving remembrance her faithful work among us and may her life be an incentive to us for a higher plane of Christian living.

That we extend to the bereaved family our sincere sympathy and prayers, for we too have loved and lost those near and dear to us.

That a copy of this tribute of love be recorded in the minutes of our Auxiliary and a copy be sent to the bereaved family and a copy to the M. P. Herald.

Stone

At the home of Mr. and Mrs. O. E. Stone in Siler City, N. C., on April 24th the sweet Christian spirit of their only daughter, Lebus Iris Stone, was gently taken to the God who gave it. The passing of this young life was a great shock to all who knew her, for she seemed to be in her usual health until a few days before her departure. She taught her Sunday school class Sunday before her death.

She was born April 25, 1909. She dedicated her life to Jesus Christ when she was ten years of age and united with the Methodist Protestant church of Siler City. Lebus was held in high esteem by her pastor, her church and by all who knew her, for her Christian character shined wherever she was known. She graduated from the Siler City high school in 1928 and completed a two-year commercial course at High Point College. She is survived by her parents and two brothers, Evans and Hubert Stone.

The funeral was conducted from the Methodist Protestant church Sunday afternoon by the pastor, assisted by Rev. J. C. Canipe, pastor of Siler City Baptist church, Dr. A. G. Dixon, of High Point Children's Home, and Rev. Talton Whitehead. There was the largest congregation present that the writer has ever seen at a funeral in Siler City. There were many out-of-town people present. A number of teachers and students were there from High Point College. A mixed quartet from the college sang "City Four Square" and Miss Minnie Cooper sang "It's Just a Dream."

The M. P. church and the town have suffered a great loss in the passing of this consecrated young life, yet we are sure that her good influence will remain with us. Her active consecrated service among the young people and among older ones as well, will not be forgotten. May the Lord comfort the family in their great loss is the prayer of the writer.

J. D. WILLIAMS, Pastor.

Presnell

M. J. Presnell of New Zion church, who had been in declining health for several months, quietly slipped away on the morn of May 5th. Brother Presnell throughout the 77 years of his life was a strong pillar in his church. He approached death fearlessly, many times expressing a desire to depart, which to him, seemed far better.

Among his immediate survivors are his faithful companion, and eleven sons and daughters.

New Zion church has sustained a great loss in the passing of this pillar of strength. Herein lies a challenge to his church to provide another that will bear a pillar's portion as gracefully as did he.

Funeral services were held from Flag Spring church, Thursday, May 7th, the writer was assisted by Rev. J. L. Trogdon, a former pastor.

Wm. H. NEESE.

Sykes

Death is always sad, whether young or old. But when death comes to one so young and good and promising in life, as was Harvey Sykes, we stagger in our blind grief and cry out to a loving Heavenly Father, "Why, dear Master?"

Harvey was 25 years of age. He joined Chestnut Ridge church early in life and remained a faithful member until death. He was a faithful member of his church, but he worshipped in the Sunday school and church at Hebron. We feel that we have lost a very devoted friend and a true worshipper. May these two churches be closer to heaven by the going of this beautiful young life.

There are weeping for him a mother, father, grandmother, brother, two sisters, a heartbroken friend, and many other friends and relatives.

Funeral services were conducted Sunday morning, May 17, at Chestnut Ridge by his pastor, Rev. B. M. Williams. Interment was made in the church cemetery. The many, many beautiful flowers, and the large gathering of people showed the high esteem in which he was held. To the bereaved ones I would say let us now a light in the window of heaven to lead you on and upward. While we weep we also rejoice that we shall see you again.

Harvey, we shall miss you as o'er life's path we tread.

Your face on earth we'll see no more, your soul to heaven has fled.

NANNIE McADAMS.

Hight

We, the members of the Henderson Woman's Missionary auxiliary, are called upon to record the death of one of our faithful honorary members, Mr. W. C. Hight.

Therefore, be it resolved that we humbly bow in submission to God's will, and thank Him for the Christian influence of our brother.

Resolved: That the members of this auxiliary extend their deepest sympathy to the members of his bereaved family, commending them to the loving care of the Heavenly Father, and be it further,

Resolved: That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the family, also recorded in the minutes, and a copy be sent to the Methodist Protestant Herald.

MISS ELIZABETH FOX,
MRS. C. M. HIGHT,
MRS. CLYDE L. FINCH,

Committee.

Sykes

Harvey L. Sykes died May 15, 1931, aged 25 years six months and 11 days. He was converted and joined Chestnut Ridge church October 1, 1920, during the pastorate of H. F. Surratt.

Those who knew him best spoke of him as a good boy.

An extra large congregation assembled for the funeral services, which were conducted by the writer May 17, at Chestnut Ridge church.

His near relatives remaining are his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Sykes, one brother, two sisters and his grandmother, Mrs. W. P. Dodson.

May God comfort all the bereaved ones.

B. M. WILLIAMS.

Eldridge

Daniel Branson Eldridge was born in Surry County, N. C., July 1, 1881, the son of Mr. and Mrs. S. S. Eldridge. He died after a short illness of pneumonia May 1 at his home, 128 South Hamilton street, High Point, aged 49 years and 10 months.

On May 26, 1904, he was married to Miss Lillian Cook, of Salisbury, N. C. To this union were born five children. Three died in infancy, one in young manhood. Surviving are his wife, one son, and three brothers, and one sister.

An extraordinary personality has gone out from our midst, and left a vacancy of immense proportions, a vacancy hardly any other man in the church can fill. He was one of the best stewards I ever saw; he knew how to open the most tightly-closed pocketbook for the cause he loved. He was loyal to his church, faithful to his pastor, whoever he might be. If a pastor was sent to his church that he thought was not the man best suited for the place he stood by him just the same, and to the limit of his ability. He would say, "He is my pastor, and I am going to stand by him as long as he stays here." No person ever saw his face light up, or his eyes at their brightest who never saw him from the pulpit while the gospel was being preached. If I were asked to give in a word our brother's dominating characteristic I would say "Optimism." He, like Isaiah, was constantly pointing the church to brighter days, and better things in the future. He seldom sounded a discouraging note. He was a patient sufferer with asthma for many years, and in his fatal sickness he said little or nothing about his suffering.

The funeral service was conducted by his pastor, assisted by Rev. T. E. Pierce and Dr. S. W. Taylor. The remains were laid to rest in the beautiful little cemetery at Mt. Vernon eight miles south of High Point.

J. R. ANDERSON.

Faucette

J. S. Faucette died May 13, 1931; aged 71 years, three months and 11 days. He was converted and joined Chestnut Ridge church about 45 years ago, remaining a faithful member of said church until death.

Brother Faucette was especially able in prayer, and was also a great personal worker in revival meetings. Many have been led to Christ by him.

The funeral was conducted by the writer at Chestnut Ridge church May 15. The remains were then placed in the church cemetery. The large congregation present for the services shows the esteem in which his memory is held.

The following near relatives survive: his companion, three sons, E. C., J. B., and S. L. and one daughter, Mrs. E. P. Caruthers.

He will be missed in the home, the community and the church. May God's blessing be upon all the bereaved ones.

—Southern Pines hotel was burned Monday night. Loss, $200,000.

—Bro. H. A. Moffitt of High Point died almost suddenly last Monday night. Apoplexy the cause. He was a prominent member of our First church, a successful business man, and a former mayor of the city. He will be sadly missed in the church and in business as well as his own home.

Grace Church, Greensboro

(Fortieth Anniversary)

No words of mine can fully tell
The story, though I know it well,—
How men and women, filled with hope,
For way of life did daily grope.

They looked by faith and saw afar
A brightly beaming beacon star!
Attracted by its luring rays,
They give pursuit through all their days:

It leads them on and up and in,
Away from all the ways of sin,
To brighter visions further on Where Heaven's glory 'gins to dawn.

They sing together as they go,
They cheer each others' spirits so:
They want all men to understand
There is ahead a blessed land.

They're drawn away from worldliness
As higher things their souls possess:
They say to every one that would,
"Come thou with us, we'll do thee good!"

—Grace church had an elaborate celebration of its fortieth anniversary. On Friday night came a savory and substantial dinner provided by the Woman's Auxiliary, Brother Coltrane presiding. There were short talks by the pastors of Calvary, West End, and St. Paul churches and by two ex-pastors of Grace church, giving an encouraging review of recent history. Three rolls were called; that of charter members, that of deceased members, and that of living members. As names of present members were called, they placed an offering of money in a receptacle provided. At this dinner a choir sang and a report of the recent Washington convention was made by Brother J. Norman Wills. The attendance of members was large and it was an enjoyable occasion to all. The celebration was continued through Sunday in Sunday School and two church services. The sermon at 11 o'clock by President Humphreys of High Point College on "I will build my church" was especially appropriate to the occasion. The evening service by Professor Stimson and musicians from High Point College was pleasing to an unusually large congregation. Grace church has had an honorable history, is one of our leading churches, and now faces the future with higher hope and new determination. May both pastor and people fully realize their best expectations.

Atheism in Russia

DEAR DR. McCULLOCH:

In the HERALD for May 14th you have an interesting and timely article on "Russian Communism." This article treats the movement largely from the standpoint of its methods and objectives. It would be helpful, I think, if you would write another article approaching the subject from another angle; namely, How more than one-hundred million people made in the image of God and given the religious instinct could arrive at, be led or forced into a conclusion which, as you well said, defines "religion as an 'opiate' deadening the sensibilities of men to evils they ought not to endure?"

It is easy to understand how any group, local or national, after having arrived at such a conclusion would become reckless and Godless. But, first, How does the major portion of a great nation, for years peopled with many churches and ministers, arrive at such a fallacious conclusion with all its attending woes?

Sincerely yours,

H. F. FOGLEMAN.

The whole truth about Russia is hard to get. Reports are somewhat contradictory. The Russians have been a notably religious people in a way. Church and State were united under the Czars and it was natural to think of the authority of one as the authority of the other. Hence when the regime of the Czars was overthrown it was easy for the deluded people to think that the authority of the church had gone with that of the state. Losing faith in the church, they would be likely to lose faith in God. Within the memory of living men many of the people of Russia were serfs, attached to the land, forbidden by the state to change their place of residence. The oppression of the czars made many enemies to the state who would look upon their new masters as saviors and would be disposed to follow them in matters of religion as well as in matters of government. This is a partial explanation of the large number of atheists in Russia today. Another partial explanation is in the fact that in the public schools of Russia atheism is taught. In early life few people know better than to accept without question what is told them by those high in authority. "Hatred of God and all forms of religion" is one of the first principles of communism. They would therefore convert their people to atheism as rapidly as possible. Posing as the friends of the people they would pretend that they are conferring a great favor by freeing from the delusive teachings of religion. Another class that would naturally turn to atheism includes all men of carnal minds who gladly accept release from the restraints of religion and conscience

ECHOES OF THE WASHINGTON CONVENTION

Doctor McCulloch has very readily consented to let us make this edition of the HERALD a Convention number. One of the very necessary things about the Convention is to get the spirit, the purpose, and the plans of it back to our people. By every token, it was a great Convention; but its spirit and its programs must get beyond Washington if its purpose is accomplished. Many of our people were there, a great host of them, and got the inspiration of the occasion at first hand. But many thousands could not be there, and the Convention must be taken to them. The whole church must be made to feel the unity, the power, and the consecration of this unique assembly. The columns of the HERALD and the Methodist Protestant-Recorder afford us one means of doing this. Many of our people who could not be in Washington will feel the strong spiritual throbs that are being heard through the press of the church. We wish to acknowledge our indebtedness to those who are helping to do this in our conference by furnishing to us a brief statement of their impressions of the Convention for this special number of the HERALD. We are confident that what follows will be read with deep interest and with quickened appreciation of the Denomination.

S. W. TAYLOR.

FROM ONE WHO CHANGED HIS MIND

Those who know me know that I was not very enthusiastic about the Washington Convention before it was held. I went only because I was asked to drive Mrs. Hammer's car with some of the delegates to the Missionary Convention. I had been to Washington a good many times, and the trip had no inducements.

That being so, you may be surprised when I tell you it was one of the greatest meetings I have ever attended. If I had not gone I would have missed a high spot. There was enough of inspiration in it to last a long time; a deepening, if that were necessary, of denominational pride and loyalty; a renewing of the fellowships of other years and other places. It was altogether worth while. I did not plan to attend. I am more than glad I went.

REV. C. W. BATES.

The convention was a great success. The speakers gave splendid addresses, instilling in us higher ideals in the advancement of God's Kingdom. We were thrilled with the words of Dr. Broomfield, and given a greater insight into the financial situation by Dr. Straughn. From all, we received a vision, and resolved that our motto would be, "Forward Together."

MRS. W. F. REDDING, JR.

The results of the Convention were disillusioning beyond the highest hopes. The tone of the Convention was of the highest order, and the fellowship blessed. Problems were faced frankly and discussed freely. Those of high estate in our ranks humbled themselves, and those of low estate felt at home. In spite of our distance from each other, as to miles and opinions, there was an unmistakable spirit of solidarity. The best thing yet in the M. P. Church. A privilege to have been there.

REV. J. CLYDE AUMAN.

I enjoyed every minute of my stay in Washington, and was greatly impressed by the spirit of consecration and unity that characterized the convention. The quality and scope of our work, as it was displayed in the Convention was thoroughly justified, and will prove a great blessing to the entire church.

MISS ILA STAFFORD.

To have been in the Washington Convention, and to have caught the spirit of such a host of Methodist Protestant men and women, could not but give to one a great uplift. The spirit of optimism charged the Convention from beginning to end. I feel that great good was accomplished for the denomination by this great gathering. All of us left Washington with renewed spirits.

T. S. COBLE.

The Washington Convention was a mountain top experience. It was good to be there. It impressed us with the fact that the Methodist Protestant Church has a real mission. It brought to our minds afresh that the work of the church is to evangelize, and it created within us a greater denominational loyalty.

REV. H. L. ISLEY.

The Washington Convention was inspirational to the Nth degree. I was proud of the church, its leaders and its aspirations. No one could attend such a meeting without receiving an abundance of renewed enthusiasm with which to go "Forward Together."

MISS EDNA NICHOLSON.

The great Convention at Washington helped me to realize more fully than ever before what a great church the Methodist Protestant Church is, and the great privilege that is ours to share in carrying on the work of the Master.

MRS. H. E. VASSER.

The Convention was magnificently conceived, and successfully carried through.

The current of our denominational life is deep and strong, but too many of us—ministers and laymen—stand aloof, in a great degree, instead of being an integral part of the denomination, sharing the vision of its leaders, and making our efforts count most for the Kingdom.

J. NORMAN WILLS.

I have attended a number of great religious gatherings—Annual Conferences, General Conferences, Conventions—but the greatest of these was the Washington Convention. Great in numbers, great in spirit, great in purpose, great in accomplishment. I believe that it marked the turning point in our denominational life, and that we will go forward to greater victories than ever before.

REV. R. A. HUNTER.

The Washington Convention thrilled me. I have a larger conception of the Methodist Protestant Church and the work it is doing.

REV. A. D. SHELTON.

Some things we want to miss; others we can afford to miss; but the inspiration of a united Methodist Protestant Convention, like that at Washington, is the chance of a life time.

REV. J. C. MADISON.

It was a great Convention. For those of us who have put time, talent, and money into trying to make our denomination a success, it was a treat to sit down and see it pass in review. And that was what we did—all departments of our work—and all looked to me like they deserved the commendation. "Well done, thou good and faithful servant." No one could have come away from that Convention with a feeling that it hadn't been worth while. I just couldn't help wishing that all of those people who keep yelping, "We can't carry on; we must merge with some other denomination," could have been there. Somebody before us has done some wonderful carrying on. Were they more able or willing than we? I am not going to admit it. Are you? We need to merge, oh yes, but with our own people. We need to become one great denomination, all working together for the good of the cause. And if every Methodist Protestant could have attended that Convention, we would have been assured that that would happen.

MISS MARY E. YOUNG.

The Convention at Washington was, we think, the greatest gathering of Methodist Protestants in the history of the denomination and perhaps in some respects, at least, the greatest gathering of Christians in all history.

The harmony that prevailed and the inspiration that was felt were some of the characteristics of the convention.

REV. T. F. McCULLOCH.

I was greatly impressed with the Washington Convention, everything about it, and especially with the laymen's meeting on Friday afternoon. Great good should come of the Convention as a whole, and of this laymen's movement in particular.

J. H. JONES.

I think the Convention at Washington, D. C., was the greatest and most helpful religious gathering, in every respect, that I ever attended.

A. L. HUNTER.

The Washington Convention was truly the high-water mark of our church life and history. My heart was thrilled and rejoiced with the information, inspiration and vision given at every meeting. Dr. Broomfield started off with a thrilling message, and almost without an exception the other speakers measured up to the high standard he set. Those who were there saw the Methodist Protestant Church as they could not have seen it otherwise. The Convention will surely mean much to the entire Denomination.

REV. A. G. DIXON.

FROM AN ADOPTED SON

"Forward Together" in one common cause for Christ seemed to me to be the great symphonic theme of the Washington Convention. The thought of organic union was as far from us as the east is from the west, if the spirit of the Convention is a key to what the church is thinking. One great idea came out of the Convention and gripped me firmly, viz., we must put more emphasis upon the evangelistic message of the church.

REV. J. L. TROLLINGER.

I was impressed that our denomination is second to none except in numbers. The speakers were as able as could be found; the representative crowds were as fine as our country affords; the sessions were devotional and inspirational. Our denomination demands our best, so let us go "forward together."

MRS. J. H. CUTCHIN.

I was wonderfully impressed with what I saw of the Convention. Soon after arriving on Wednesday, I became ill, and was not able to attend the Convention much after that.

REV. C. H. HILL.

It was a great convention! The only disappointing thing about it was that two hundred thousand Methodist Protestants could not have been present; for to us, who were privileged to be there, it was one of the mountain top experiences of our lives.

MRS. S. S. COE.

The Washington Convention was wonderful and far reaching in its efforts to fire our emotions and renew our enthusiasm to go "Forward Together." Every speaker on the program was at his best, and thrilling in the presentation of his subject. We were truly proud of our High Point Choral club, and the program given by the boys and girls from our Children's Home.

MR. AND MRS. A. M. RANKIN.

The Washington Convention was optimistic, inspiring, and challenging. It was rich in fellowship; it gave a broader vision; it intensified faith; it sounded the note of triumph; it increased love and loyalty to the King and for His Kingdom; it lifted the soul to God.

REV. FRED W. PASCHALL.

The Convention was full of information, inspiration, good will, and Christian fellowship.

MISS LILLIE MAE BRAXTON.

I was impressed by the earnestness of those who had a part on the Convention program, and by the intense interest of those who listened. A fine feeling of fellowship and good will was much in evidence. It was a season of uplift, of inspiration, of strengthening our love for and loyalty to our own church. We were encouraged to attempt more for the Kingdom of God.

MRS. GEO. R. BROWN.

The results of the Washington Convention may be grouped under three statements. First, the church achieved a new sense of her importance. Second, this led to a new, vital, living hope in our future possibilities. Third, we gained the conviction that the denominational program must be well executed.

PROF. P. E. LINDLEY.

THE WASHINGTON CONVENTION WAS A REVELATION

First—of our concern for the whole program of the church. There was evidenced on the part of both speakers and hearers a deep interest in the tasks that are ours in common.

Second—of our purpose as to the program. There was a spirit manifested that is auspicious for all of our work. One came away feeling this—"there is still life in the Methodist Protestant Church."

PRES. G. I. HUMPHREYS.

 THE SINLESSNESS OF JESUS

One of the most unique and significant factors in the consciousness of Jesus is his own sinless holiness. Not that he was constantly asserting his freedom from sin; such a self-assertion could hardly have failed to arouse suspicion regarding the clarity and candor of his moral consciousness.

He is never said to have categorically asserted his sinlessness. According to the Fourth Gospel he once uttered the challenge, "Which of you convinceth me of sin?"; but it is not quite certain that these words are meant in an absolute, universal sense. It is not on the ground of assertions made by Jesus himself that the Christian world believes in his perfection.

The more immediate reasons for that belief are these: (1) the fact that his life reveals to us, under the closest scrutiny, no moral stain; and (2) the fact that those who companied with him, friends and foes alike, received and attested the same impression.

Here was a man who seemed to those who knew him in the flesh to be holy, harmless, undefiled, and separate from sinners, and whose spirit, purpose, and deeds have ever since seemed to those who contemplated them to be free from all admixture of sin. He was tempted, without yielding. He lived in constant contact with evil, without contracting it. He was a friend of publicans and sinners, but was untainted by their sordidness and selfishness.

The sinlessness of Jesus was something more than innocence; it was fulness, positive perfection of life. Jesus was no recluse; his holiness was no cloistered virtue. His character was not of that negative, ascetic type whose ideal is to escape from the sinful world and dwell apart in holy contemplation.

Nor did his perfection consist in a repression or toning down of any of the legitimate powers of manhood. He mingled freely with his fellowmen at their work and their recreations, in their joys and in their sorrows. His life was always at its maximum of energy and strength.

He had no fear of being soiled by contact with the world. He joined his brother-men in the struggles of life and the battle with sin, proving himself to many the Captain of their salvation, leading them on to victory and strength. These are qualities and powers without which Jesus could not have been the Savior. He qualified himself to be the Redeemer by the achievement of the perfect life; he attained completeness through his experience of trial, conquest, and suffering and so became the author of life to all who will join themselves to him.

Our Lord knew what sin was. He had felt its attractive, seductive power. At the beginning of his ministry the path to an easy victory had opened before him if he would but bow to the requirements of the age and consent to be the wonder-worker whom popular messianic thought demanded; but he saw that this would be but a false and hollow success.

His soul was most sensitive to the approach and suggestions of evil; he detected it under its most winsome and deceptive disguises. In vain did Satan clothe himself as an angel of light; in vain did his suggestions take on the guise of plausibility and prudence; the answer was the same, Get thee behind me!

And with what a piercing glance did he discern the lurking selfishness in the thoughts of other men. He could detect the taint of hypocrisy in the prayers of the self-righteous, the intolerance which often underlay religious zeal, the envy and meanness that sought to cloak themselves in an ostentatious generosity. None ever saw so clearly and exposed so plainly the sinfulness of other men; yet he confessed no sin of his own; he betrayed no consciousness of an evil bias or a selfish motive.

Just here lies the supreme proof of the sinless holiness of Christ. It is impossible that one who knew and judged sin as he did could have failed to find and confess it in himself unless he had been conscious of a perfectly holy inner life. This is the moral miracle of Jesus; this is the transcendent, inexplicable wonder of his person. Men have tried to exalt him by ascribing to him all manner of metaphysical characteristics and powers; but that which the gospels place in the fore-front of their portraiture is just this moral completeness, this perfectly filial consciousness, this stainless, untainted holiness.

Without this he could not have been the Saviour; with it he could not but be. Perfect holiness fits him for perfect sympathy with sinners; perfect love enables him to bear the burdens of a sinful world. Law, righteousness, purity—does he not know what these are? They are the very breath of his own inner life. Is he not able to honor and exalt them? They are enthroned in his every thought; they preside over his every act.

If a pure spirit like his ever visits our prison-house, he will surely never condone our sin, and will open no door of escape except through purification, and will offer us no refuge and no safety save in a holiness like his own.

Here is One who knows sin as no other ever knew it, who judges it as God judges. His eye discerns its blighting, soul-destroying power; he sees it black against the white radiance of the eternal love. If he undertakes to save men, he will save them from sin to holiness. Let his method be what it will; be his specific experiences in our world what they may, there is but one conceivable way in which Holy Love can recover sinful man, and that is by destroying sin by replacing it—by winning men into sympathy, contact, likeness, to the life of holy love in God.—G. B. Stevens in the Christian Doctrine of Salvation.

THE FOUR A'S AND THE AMERICAN ANTI-BIBLE SOCIETY

By REV. JAMES L. ELDERDICE

Two associations concerning which every Christian should be fully informed and concerning which they may well say
"We view with alarm!" "The 4 A," says Homer Croy, "is the most powerful foe with which religion has to contend in the United States." Modernism in the pulpit, and Evolution in the schools, these two organizations may be regarded as powerful allies—twin voices in the wilderness crying "Prepare ye the way of Atheism." The revival of atheism, and its world encircling increase is one of the most startling facts of the present age.

The writer has before him a pile of the literature issued by the societies. It is impossible to conceive of anything more vile and blasphemous than some of their attacks upon God, Jesus Christ, the Bible, Christianity and the Church.
"Atheistic Poetry" is a collection of burlesque parodies of hymns, poems, extracts from "Lucretius Against Religion," and Omar Khayyam's Rubaiyat. "The Devil Against God" represents them both as bachelors, and God, though never married, as "Jesus' pa."

"Here God is convicted, you plainly do see,

Of adultery, which is not e'en charged against me."

anger 4,000 years to cool, after Adam's fall before

"The Belated Atonement" declares that it took God's

"A third part of Jehovah died

To stop the other two

From having men forever fried,

And roasted through and through."

"The American Association for the Advancement of Atheism," was chartered in November, 1925. Already it is said to have branches organized in 20 colleges and universities, and working in high schools. Many of the young people of today present a fertile field for this kind of propaganda.
"The lack of parental supervision; freedom to do as they please; their contempt for modesty and conventionality, and, to shock their elders, and for some new sensation, certainly make them susceptible to the teachings of this organization. They are encouraged in their Junior Atheistic Leagues in selecting such names for their societies as "God's Black Sheep," "The Damned Souls," "The Legion of the Damned," etc. These leagues are for those from 7 to 17. They have picnics, outings and entertainments.

Miss Christine Walker is represented in the Herald Tribune to have said, "We shall make a poll of the schools and institutions of the country to determine how many Atheists and Agnostics there already are, and then send literature to them, showing what religion really is. Of course we work secretly in many cases, because if we didn't we'd be stopped off short." The tragic cases reported of college and high school soul wrecks as the result of this literature, and of evolutionary biology in educational institutions are innumerable.

The object of the Anti-Bible society is, of course, "to discredit the Bible." To this end it will publish and distribute anti-Biblical literature, hold meetings and debates on the Bible, broadcast lectures, telling the truth about the book;
agitate for repeal of laws enforcing its religious teachings, translate anti-Biblical works into foreign languages, establish state and local branches, and, by propaganda, bar the Bible from the public schools; dislodge it from guest rooms in hotels and ultimately stop its unsolicited distribution among sailors, seamen, prisoners and patients. The budget for the first year calls for $83,000.

The ten demands of the 4 A's call for:

1. Taxation of church property.
2. Elimination of Chaplains and Sectarian institutions from public pay rolls.
3. Abrogation of laws enforcing Christian morals and restricting the rights of Atheists.
4. Abolition of oaths in courts, and at inaugurations.
5. Non-issuance of religious proclamations (such as Thanksgiving), by chief executives.
6. Removal of "In God We Trust" from coins, and the Cross from above the flag.
7. Exclusion of the Bible from the public schools.
8. Suppression of the bootlegging of religion through dismissing pupils for religious instruction during school hours.
9. Secularization of marriage, with divorce upon request.
10. Repeal of anti-evolution and anti-birth control laws.

The five fundamentals of Atheism are thus set forth:

1. MATERIALISM. The doctrine that matter, with its indwelling property, Force, constitutes the reality of the Universe.

2. SENSATIONALISM. (Empiricism). The idea that all ideas arrive out of sensation, or experience, and that therefore man can have no conception of God.

3. THE EXISTENCE OF EVIL. The potent fact that renders irrational the belief in a beneficent, omnipotent being who cares for man.

4. EVOLUTION. The doctrine that organisms are not designed, but have evolved mechanically through natural selection.

5. HEDONISM. The doctrine that happiness here and now should be the motive of conduct.

Much more might be said, but these sample of statements from an A. A. A. A. tract will suffice!

"Bible is full of lies. The Apostle Paul was a liar.

"Bible upholds cheating, theft and robbery.

"Bible sustains adultery and prostitution.

"Bible upholds murder.

"Bible favors injustice to women and children.

"Can it be possible that a sane person can believe that a good and wise God inspired the Bible with all its lies, filth and blasphemous stuff?"

Tons of this propaganda is being sent in the form of tracts and pamphlets.

"Awake thou that sleepest!" Your homes, your children, your country are in danger, dire peril. A bold, base, blatant, brutal enemy is in our midst. Enroll at once as a Defender of the Faith, pledging yourself to fight with all your God-given powers this Satan's propaganda. Arms and ammunition will be sent you by the Bioler Book Room, 536 South Hope Street, Los Angeles, California."

Another organization combating Atheistic efforts is the American Tract Society, 7 West 45th Street, Philadelphia, now issuing a special line of tracts on that subject. "The Key Men of America," 120 West 42nd Street, New York, will send free, on application, a pamphlet "Some Aspects of Atheism." "The 5 A's Versus the 4 A's," published by the Canadian Christian Crusaders, Room 404, 355 Bay Street, Toronto, Canada, is a pamphlet effectively exposing many of the Bible misrepresentations made by the Atheistic propaganda.

WHAT HAVE YOU DONE TODAY?

"Well, little May, what have you been doing today?" asked big sister Flora, entering the living room after a busy day at the office.

"Oh, I've had the bestest day. I played with my dolls, made such a pretty picture with my blocks, picked some flowers for mother, and I just can't think of all the happy things I did."

When we lift our hearts to the Heavenly Father at the close of day, and He asks us what we have done during the past hours which He has given us, are we as glad to tell Him all our actions as little May was to tell her sister? Is He happy to hear about them?

Oh, what peace comes to the hearts which tell Him all! To know He understands and loves and cares. To know there is forgiveness, and tomorrow will come a new chance. Then to sink into peaceful slumbers, resting so securely in those Everlasting Arms.—Lula A. Camp.

THE CAT WHO ADOPTED ME

I have always liked cats and in our home we always had one. There is one that I christened "Topsy," whom I will never forget. I met her in Germany where I was sent to school quite a long time ago.

It was in the lovely city of Bonn, on the Rhine, where I had been sent to study German and music. As I could not speak German and we were not allowed to speak English, I was terribly lonely and homesick.

I have always felt quite sure that Topsy regarded me much as she would one of her own kittens. She completely adopted me and wandered around with me all the time.

Once when I was sitting, looking out of the window, and feeling dreadfully unhappy, she climbed up in my lap, meowed very softly, and with one soft paw tapped me gently on the cheek, to let me know she had arrived.

It was just as if she had said:

"Please don't be so unhappy. I love you a lot though I can't talk to you. I know just how you feel and I am ever so sorry."

Then as I stroked her she purred and settled down in my lap. With this warm, fluffy little friend in my arms I began to feel a lot better.

So, for Topsy's sake, I love all cats.—Our Dumb Animals.

IN PRISON AND YOU VISITED ME

To the prisoner, innocent or guilty, a visit always has been, is now, and always will be as "unto Me." No one with even the slightest knowledge of the treatment of the inmates in great numbers of our prisons but must know that, with rare exceptions, the discipline enforced, the punishments inflicted, and the attitude of the officials towards them can only tend to harden and embitter them against the whole social order under whose laws they have been arrested, convicted, and sentenced. Multitudes enter these prisons the victims of sudden outbreaks of passion, sometimes unjustly charged with crime, many of them with no natural criminal tendencies. Why shall we so treat them as to rouse every feeling of resentment, rob them of self-respect, and send them out at last hopeless of a recovered and honest citizenship? Cruel treatment, brutal punishments, failure to distinguish between the determined violator of the law and the man who wants to redeem himself, have we not tried these methods long enough?

Heaven hasten the day when no prison in our land shall be a shame and reproach to it. When in each shall be shown to those within its walls the spirit of Him who would kindle the light of hope in even the darkest heart, and who held that kindness, good will, and human sympathy can reach to depths that cold-blooded heartlessness can never sound. The good bishop of Victor Hugo's story, whose treatment of Jean Valjean, almost blinded with excess of kindness the hardened heart of that escaped prisoner, still reclaimed him till his character for beauty and self-sacrifice has scarce a rival in the fiction of any land or age. Prisons are prisons, and men must be punished for crime, but why confront the offender, as he crosses the gloomy threshold, with the damning words, "Abandon hope all ye who enter here!"—Our Dumb Animals.

LOOK AND LIVE

"Look unto Me and be ye saved" (Is. 45:22).

Not long ago a gentleman was asked to visit a young girl about seventeen years of age who had injured herself and was thought to be dying. After a few inquiries about her bodily suffering, I began to speak to her about the state of her soul.

"Are you quite happy?" she was asked.

"No, sir."

"Why, are you not saved?"

"I am not sure."

"But why are you not sure? Do you believe on the Lord Jesus Christ?"

"Yes, but I do not feel saved." She was asked, "Do you feel lost?"

"Yes, I do," and she began to weep.

"How do you know you are lost?"

"Because I am a sinner, and God's Word says so."

"Then you believe His Word, do you?"

"Oh, yes, sir, indeed I do."

"Well then, His Word says, 'Look unto Me and be ye saved.' Do you believe that?"

"Yes."

"But are you looking to Jesus?"

"Yes, but I don't feel as I should like to."

"Granted, but does it say, Look unto Me and feel saved?"

"No."

"What then?"

"Be ye saved?"

"When is that. Today or tomorrow?"

She answered, "When I look."

"But are you looking?"

"Yes, I am really looking to Jesus."

"Then you are saved."

She paused a moment, and then firmly replied, "I do not feel it but God says it. I am saved. I see it now."

All our troubles and darkness come from not knowing God at His Word. Nothing pleases our God more than for us just to believe what He says, apart from our feelings.—Publisher Unknown.

WAS JOHN WESLEY A PREMILLENNIALIST?

The question as to the belief entertained by John Wesley concerning the Second Coming of our Lord would scarcely be raised by those familiar with his works. The following notes, culled largely from Mr. Wesley's, and other contemporary writings, would seem to establish the matter beyond controversy. He certainly was a premillennialist.

The Rev. John Wesley lived and died a priest of the Established English Church. This organization was premillennial in faith, having been made so through the preaching of the English reformers. Mr. Wesley's father, George Whitefield, the Oxford Methodists, who were his closest friends, and the German Pietists, where he says he found "a home," were all premillennialists. Bengal, the greatest exegete of his day, was a premillennialist and was Mr. Wesley's teacher in prophecy. Charles Wesley, the brother of John, was the bard and premillennial hymn writer for the English Methodists.

Mr. Wesley had a sharp contention with Dr. Middleton in which he defended "the Primitive Faith" of Polycarp, Irenaeus, Justin Martin and the early Church. Mr. Wesley desired and requested John Fletcher, a premillennialist, and the most saintly preacher of his times, to become his successor in the work he had established among the Methodists. He ordained Dr. Coke, a pronounced believer in the premillennial doctrine of Christ's Coming, who was called the ablest commentator of his day, and sent him to America to ordain Asbury; all of which resulted in the establishment of the Methodist Episcopal Church in America. Mr. Wesley stands on record as saying that "to believe in the Premillennial Coming of Christ is simply to believe the primitive faith of the Church, and the Bible itself."

The Moravians, who led Mr. Wesley into the deeper Christian life, and with whom he worked, were all premillennialists. In his notes on the Book of Revelation he states that "guilt is incurred by every one who hinders the Church from constantly watching for the Coming of the Lord." Mr. Wesley had strong faith in the restoration of the Jews to their own land, and in their subsequent acceptance of Christ, after the great tribulation of the last days.

In addition to these things, Mr. Wesley taught that no universal conversion of men could be anticipated before the conversion of the Jews; that Antichrist would be destroyed by the Second Coming of Christ; that the Millennium will be one of the ages in the development of God's Kingdom upon the earth; that the first resurrection is the literal bringing forth from their graves of those who have died in Christ; that the earth will become the ultimate home of the redeemed; that the Millennium cannot begin as long as the tares and wheat grow together in the world-field; that the Return of the Lord is the hope of the Church; and that it is the duty and privilege of the Church to pray most earnestly, "Lord Jesus, come quickly!"—The Central Christian Advocate.

Atheism in Russia

that they may go in their own evil ways. The communists believe that atheists are more easily managed than are people who believe in God and wish to obey Him. Hence they are trying to convert the world to atheism as fast as possible.

It must not be imagined, however, that even in Russia are the majority of people already atheists. The communist party which now controls Russia includes only one per cent. of the population. The tail is wagging the dog. "The Government of Russia is an autocratic self-constituted dictatorship by a small group of self-perpetuating revolutionists." But they are aiming to do the same thing with the world that they have already done with Russia. They try to make men atheists that they may make them more pliable tools. The movement began in 1848 when two apostate Jews, Marx and Engels, issued the "Manifesto of the Communist Party." Their motive may not have been bad, but their fellowers of today number among their leaders some unscrupulous scoundrels who need to be watched and restrained. They are bent on mischief of the most wicked and terrible kind. If they can only drive from the minds of men all thought of God, they hope to have the world at their feet.

THAD AND THE TURKEYS

It was early in the spring when Thad's father gave him the turkeys. There were four brown turkey hens and a big gobbler that strutted importantly around the yard.

"If you earn enough with these turkeys to buy your winter suit," Thad's father said, "you can spend the rest of the money they bring for whatever you want to get."

"Oh," gasped Thad, beginning to think of a catcher's mitt and all the other things he wanted to have.

"It takes so much watching to raise turkeys here," the boy's father continued, "that I think you will earn whatever you get for them. Last year, you know, half the young ones died during the big rainstorm. And some animal caught most of those that were left."

"Oh, I'll watch," promised Thad. I'll take the best care of them."

The first thing Thad did was to fix some nests in an unused shed. If the eggs were laid there, the boy thought, an animal wouldn't be so apt to find them as in the outside nests that the turkey hens were accustomed to choose for themselves.

Those hens, however, couldn't have understood the danger there was in laying their eggs in outdoor nests. Each one stole off shyly and selected a nest that even Thad with all his watching couldn't find for a long time.

One day when the boy had walked down the road to meet his father he caught a glimpse of one of the hens coming out of the bush by the roadside. He couldn't find the nest then, but later, after the hen had begun to sit on the speckled eggs, Thad discovered her one day.

Another nest was found in some coarse grass very close to the road, and another far out in the field. Where the fourth turkey nested Thad never knew. Evidently some wild animal found her nest before the boy did. For that turkey disappeared and never returned.

The first few weeks Thad kept the turkeys in a large pen to prevent their wandering into deep, wet grass. And after that he corralled them whenever a thunder storm threatened.

One warm afternoon Thad went over to John Werner's to play ball. The boy didn't think about the dark clouds that had begun to race over the sky until he heard a rumbling sound of thunder.

Although he ran as fast as he could, Thad didn't reach home until the rain was pouring down. He met his mother in the yard with an apronful of young turkeys. "The rest are in the shed," Thad's mother said. "We may be able to save these if we dry them by the kitchen stove."

Only two turkeys died that time. Another storm took three more. That happened while Thad's father was in the hospital, and the boy had gone with his mother to visit him.

When fall came there were 29 young turkeys wandering over the fields in the daytime and roosting in the shed at night. Every time Thad threw out grain for the young birds he counted them to be sure none was missing. And almost every time the turkeys were fed Thad thought how he would hate to sell them when the time came. For they followed him around at feeding time, making queer little noises that made the boy think they were talking to him.

One night late in October there was a great commotion at the barnyard. The noise woke up Thad's father, who rushed out to see what had caused the disturbance. "It may be a fox or a coyote," he called to his wife as he left the house. Thad woke up and followed his father sleepily.

No animal was found at the chickenhouse nor in the shed where the turkeys roosted, but the dog was barking behind the grove. And in the morning when they could be counted, Thad discovered that three of the turkeys were missing.

"It was probably a fox," Thad's father said. "And if it was, he is apt to return for more turkeys."

"Let's sell them," suggested Thad quickly. "I don't like to do that, either. Still, I'd rather sell them than have them caught by a fox."

Two days later Thad and his father took the turkeys to town. A new winter suit was selected for the boy and then there was twenty-seven dollars left. "Oh, I'm rich!" exclaimed Thad. "Can I do just what I want to with the money?"

"Oh course," answered his father. "That was the agreement, wasn't it?"

"I'll get a catcher's mitt," planned Thad. "Oh, and ever so many other things I've wanted."

While Thad waited to decide how to spend it, the money was kept in a small drawer in his mother's room. Several times every day it was counted. It was fun to think how much money there was.

Thad was in the kitchen one May morning, mending a kite, when the postman brought a special delivery letter for his mother. "It was from grandmother," she said after she had read a minute. "She wants—"

"Wants what?" asked Thad.

"She isn't well and—and she wanted me to know it," finished his mother soberly.

Mrs. Werner came just then to ask Thad's mother to help her with some sewing. While they talked the boy sat on the stairs to finish mending the kite. He didn't notice what his mother was saying until he heard, "Oh, I musn't think of going. With the hospital bill to pay there isn't money enough to pay the expenses of a trip. Why, the railroad fare is twenty-five dollars."

"It's too bad," sympathized Mrs. Werner. "Since your mother isn't well, it would mean a good deal to her to have you there for Mother's Day."

"That's what grandmother wrote for, and mother wouldn't tell," concluded Thad.

The kite was mended and Thad had time to try it before dinner was ready. But he came running in as fast as he could when he heard his mother call dinner. He watched closely while the food was being put onto the table, while his mother took her place, and while—

"What's this?" asked his mother in surprise as she picked up an envelope which must have been slipped onto her plate just then. "For a turkey trip," she read before she counted the five five-dollar bills that were inside the envelope and that had been counted by Thad so many times.

"Oh, I couldn't take the money you've worked so hard to earn," began the mother slowly.

"Father said I could spend it for just what I wanted," broke in Thad emphatically, "and I'd rather spend it to have you go to grandmother's than anything."

"But you want a catcher's mitt and—and so many things," objected his mother.

"There'll be enough left for the mitt and—well, I haven't really decided on anything else," grinned Thad.

Thad's mother looked very happy while she got ready for the trip. That made the boy very sure there was nothing else he wanted to spend that turkey money for so much as to have his mother go to grandmother's.—Junior World.

SAY SO!

A recent story tells how a minister, beginning his career as a preacher, saw some one in the congregation smile at a word that he used. In an agony of bewilderment, he stopped short, and found that he could not think of a syllable of his sermon. At last he said: "Friends, I have forgotten what I was going to say"; and he went down the pulpit stairs.

At the foot a voice seemed to say to him: "Haven't I done anything for you?"

"Yes, Lord," he answered, "everything."

"Then, cannot you tell them so?"

The minister turned to his congregation and said: "Friends, I love Jesus Christ. You know what my life was—wild and reckless. You know what I am trying to make it now. I can't preach, but I love Jesus, and I want to follow Him."

Then one of those who had listened went to the minister with the question: "Can't you tell me how to get what you have found?"

Perhaps there is nothing that is needed so much in the life of the Church today than just this personal witness by pulpit and pew alike of what Jesus Christ has done for them. It is not fine intellectual preaching or oratorical flights that reach the hearts of men and women, but the abounding love of the Lord Jesus Christ shed abroad in our hearts that overflows in speech and testifies with convincing power what great things the Lord has done for us.

To few is it given to sway the multitude with the silver tongue of the orator, but to none is denied the right or ability to bear humble testimony for the Saviour, in his or her own sphere, and to tell of His wondrous goodness to the children of men as we have experienced it in our own lives. It is such testimony, we are convinced, that the Holy Spirit delights to honor in bringing men to a knowledge of the Saviour. "Let the redeemed of the Lord say so, whom He hath redeemed from the hand of the enemy."—Field and Work.

—I pity no man because he has to work. If he is worth his salt, he will work. I envy the man who has a work worth doing and and does it well.—Theodore Roosevelt.

OBLIGED TO TELL OTHERS

We have nothing to boast of in ourselves, but we should make our boast in the Lord.

The meanest man in the world is the one who finds an exclusive specific for some great affliction of humanity and who uses this remedy for his own health or to enrich his own purse and fails to communicate his secret to his fellow beings.

The medical profession is to be commended for its ethics in refusing to allow membership in its associations of doctors who find remedies for human affliction and refuse to divulge them for the public good. A man who claims to have a secret cure for cancer or leprosy or some other disease which has baffled the skill of the medical world and who tries to capitalize his secrets for his own family or his little institution is not worthy of membership in a medical association.

The principle applies to those who know the secret of the Lord, whose burdens have been lifted, whose hearts have been healed by the wonderful sanctifying grace of the Gospel. A preacher who has it and will not preach it, a Christian who enjoys the blessing and will not bear a faithful and judicious testimony is not worthy of his calling.—Christian Witness.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR HELPS

By J. T. BOWMAN

JUNE 7: THE NEED OF CHRISTIAN THOUGHTFULNESS AND KINDNESS

(Consecration Meeting)

Scripture text: Acts 3:1-10.

Daily Bible Readings

Monday: Thoughtful care. Luke 10:33-35.

Tuesday: Natural kindness. Acts 28:1-6.

Wednesday: The Christian way. Eph. 4:31, 22; 5:1, 2.

Thursday: Practical Christianity. James 1:26, 27.

Friday: Age-old thoughtfulness. Lev. 25:35-38.

Saturday: Jesus' kindness. Luke 9:12-17.

Leader's Talk

Perhaps there is no finer art to be developed than that of thoughtfulness and kindness. To be thoughtful and kind is a splendid way of showing appreciation. Thoughtfulness and kindness to others are near enough alike to be called twins. Our thoughtfulness to others usually comes because of some kind deed the other person has done and because of this kind deed the other person has been thoughtful.

Jesus was kind and thoughtful and when we think of Him we always remember these things. He was far from being selfish. The welfare of others was always uppermost in His mind and life. Thoughtfulness and kindness are really the summary of the life of Christ—an expression of the Golden Rule.

"Thoughtfulness is the expression of God working through us. He has no hands but our hands to do His will; no feet but our feet to carry His messages; no words but our words to speak His thoughts. When you see a man acting kindly toward another, you may know that God is here on earth, for is that not exactly what His Son would do, and He was the best expression of the Father which has ever been given?"

For Discussion

1. Why is it easier to talk about kindness than to give it?

2. Why must thoughtfulness come before habitual kindness?

3. Selfishness is a sin which blinds us to thoughtfulness for others. How may we overcome it?

4. Name some of the kindest deeds of Jesus.

5. It has been said that the two main faults of young people are thoughtlessness and lack of dependability. Do you think this is true?

DO SOMETHING FOR SOME ONE

If ever you feel discontented and blue,

Disappointed in something you've wanted to do,

Suppose you look around you and follow this plan:

Do something for some one as quick as you can.

Perhaps you're discouraged and weary of life, And worn with its ceaseless endeavor and strife;

But lift your eyes bravely yon mountain to scan,

And do something for some one as quick as you can.

—Violet Hadley Travers.

BRING YOUR FLOWERS NOW

I'd rather have one small rose now

From the garden of my friend

Than to have the choicest flowers

When my stay on earth must end.

I'd rather have the kindest words

Which now you say of me

Than tears shed o'er my casket when

I've bidden this world adieu.

—R. D. Richards.

THE MINNIS FUND

"The soldiers are fighting our battles; shall we go into our house and eat and drink?" This is the challenge Doctor Hawley brought to us at the Missionary Convention. He also said, "You have started something; keep it up."

It seems to me that this applies very directly to us in North Carolina, as we think of Mr. Minnis in India. Shall we ask ourselves the question: "As he fights for us, have we gone into our houses to eat and drink?"

This is all the answer I have for the past month:

FROM PASTORS and PEOPLE

Greenville, Hobbs Chapel.—I wonder if our reporters are asleep or taking a vacation? Pastor Hetheox filled his appointment here yesterday at 11 o'clock. He brought us a very good and inspiring message. He showed us that the path of duty is not always smooth and pleasant, but if we follow that path, keeping the faith and remembering that Christ is praying to the Father for us, then we'll be victorious and happy.

Mr. and Mrs. A. I. Jones and Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Stotesbury, of Richmond, Va., worshipped with us Sunday. Also Mrs. I. L. Daniel, who is visiting her daughter, Mrs. W. W. Pair.

Pastor and Mrs. Hetheox and their three smallest children were dinner guests of Mrs. R. D. Pair last Sunday. Also Mrs. Tom Barnes and children. Mrs. Barnes spent the afternoon.

Our circuit held a joint Mother's Day service at Ebenezer last second Sunday. Bro. Hetheox did his best at the morning service. He paid a high tribute to Christian mothers, and also left those who were not Christians some food for thought. Four of our churches had programs in the afternoon. Our pastor seemed quite pleased with the programs and congregation, as he remarked that any pastor felt that he was making progress in Kingdom service when his people co-operated with him in whatever he suggested or undertook. A large crowd attended in spite of threatening weather.

Bro. Hetheox is doing good work here in spite of handicaps and discouragements. We trust some of the clouds will soon be lifted. One hears words of commendation as he goes from church to church, and we trust that this will be a good year for him as well as for us.

Our meeting begins the fourth Sunday in August. Rev. Mr. Stubbins will be our help. Folks, pray for us, for him, and for others.
DORA PAIR.

Concord, Saxapahaw Charge.—On the third Sunday afternoon of this month our pastor met his appointment at this church. An unusually small crowd was present. To the beautiful weather, after so many rainy Sundays was due the small attendance. But in spite of the small attendance Brother Whitehead preached a good and inspiring sermon on the book of Amos as a whole. If we would only heed his words and make a more definite study of the Bible, its characters and its prophets we would be inclined to worship God more and in a truer spirit.

Death entered our community on May 7th and saddened it by claiming one of our most faithful members, Mrs. B. S. Curl. May God comfort those who feel the pain most keenly.

We are planning on having a Children's Day program. The committees appointed to arrange the program are: Mrs. Dwight McBane, Mrs. Grey Hargrove, and Mrs. Loy Roberson.

Miss Bessie Coble has been appointed registration agent from this place for the High Point Leadership Training School which will be in session June 20-27. We are hoping for a large number to register and attend.

Our average attendance at Sunday school is 57.55. We have 104 on roll.

The Mount Hermon C. E. Society gave a splendid program for us Sunday night. It was enjoyed by all present. We assure them that we appreciate their coming and giving this program, for it will be a great inspiration in getting our newly organized society to work.

BESSIE COBLE, Reporter.

Winston, First.—Sickness in some of our families, family reunions, memorial services in the old home churches in the country and many other things too tedious to mention surely did hit us hard yester. Our Sunday school and church attendance in the morning were the lowest for a long time but the evening congregation was better.

Next Sunday morning we will have a memorial service for all the deceased members of our church in so far as the records go. The roll of the honored dead will be called and as it is called a flower will be placed in a receptacle for each deceased member. This service is to honor the memory of the deceased and at the same time make the younger generation realize how much they are indebted to those who have made possible for us the wonderful things of our day. This service will be followed by the communion. The relatives and friends of deceased members are especially invited.

J. E. PRITCHARD.

Asheboro.—Those attending the denominational convention in Washington, D. C., from our church were: Rev. and Mrs. R. C. Stubbins, Rev. and Mrs. N. M. Harrison and son, Nat Mason, Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Redding, Jr., Mrs. R. D. Lowdermilk and Miss Lollie Jones. Echoes of the convention were given to the morning congregation last Sunday as follows:

"A Few Things Emphasized by the Speakers," Mrs. R. C. Stubbins.

"The Music," Mrs. W. F. Redding, Jr.

"North Carolina," Miss Lollie Jones.

"Religious Education," Rev. N. M. Harrison.

"Odds and Ends," Rev. R. C. Stubbins.

These reports were well given to the large congregation present. The pastor thanked the church for sending him to the convention. He said this was odd in that only a few churches did this. All who attended were greatly helped and were encouraged to go forward believing the Methodist Protestant Church is able to do greater things than ever before, because of this great meeting of discussing the problems of the church together. We wish every pastor could have been there.

The music for this service was given by the Asheboro High School Glee Club, under the direction of Miss Gill. Miss Katherine Presnell sang "I Would Be True" as the offertory. He names of the Methodist Protestants who are graduating were read at this time, and these are to be entertained on Tuesday evening of this week by Miss Esther Ross' Sunday school class.

The annual sermon will be preached by Dr. O. G. Tillman, pastor of the Baptist church, Sunday evening, May 31, at 8 o'clock in the auditorium. All the churches of the town will join in this service. The Glee Club will be assisted in the music by the choirs of the various churches.

The Philathea class met Monday evening, May 18, for their monthly meeting, with Misses Iola and Nan Lowdermilk. About 25 members were present.

Mrs. Charles Smith is enjoying better health now and is able to worship with us again. Mrs. J. S. Ridge is also improved and has attended services recently. Mrs. Lacy S. Lewis is recuperating at her home after an operation in the High Point Hospital. Mrs. Harriette Hammer Walker has returned home much improved after a week's treatment in Duke Hospital, Durham. Mrs. Walker, who is director of the choir, is being missed and we are hoping for an early recovery.

REPORTER.

Burlington, First Church.—Our work is going forward in a very satisfactory manner. Attendance at Sunday school today was 259 with offering amounting to $18.96. An increase of 16 in attendance was noted over the last Sunday's record.

Our pastor, Rev. F. W. Paschal, preached a splendid sermon at the morning preaching hour. At the close of the service three young men went forward and expressed their decision to live for Jesus Christ from this time on, and upon the invitation of the pastor, a large number of the membership gathered at the chancel for special prayer for these young men. Shouting and praise to God was heard from the mother of one young man and a more touching service we have not experienced lately.

Mr. A. E. Sykes, who has been in Westbrook Sanatorium, Richmond, Virginia, for some time, has returned to his home here and is very much improved in health. We are glad to have him back with us. We have others on the sick list, who, we trust, can soon be with us.

The epidemic of measles here is subsiding some, we believe, and we hope that all our people, and the folks in general, will soon be well and happy.

L. A. BRAXTON, Reporter.

Mebane.—Our work is moving on in about the usual way. Attendance for church services is very good but not as good as it should be. Sunday school attendance for the past quarter was off some, partly due to inclement weather. The second Sunday in May the worship program for opening Sunday school was given by the Ever Ready Circle and was very appropriate for Mother's Day. At the close of Sunday school the small children gave a short exercise. The following committee will train the children for our Children's Day program: Mrs. Carl Sykes, Mrs. June Smith, Mrs. Highfill Jobe. This program will be given some time in June.

The Woman's Auxiliary and Ladies' Aid are showing the usual interest in their work. The different circles have started the year's work very enthusiastically, and each reports good attendance and offering.

Monday evening of last week the second quarterly conference was held at the church, the pastor presiding. Candidates for delegate to our Annual Conference were nominated at this time—C. C. Sykes and J. A. Payne.

We were delighted to have our church represented at the Washington convention. Miss Edna Nicholson was there for the entire convention and Miss Grace Barnette attended the latter part. Miss Nicholson gave a very interesting report on Sunday evening following her return. Miss Barnette was not present at this service, but on Monday evening gave a report of her trip to the Ever Ready Circle in her usual pleasing manner. We were sorry more of our people could not attend this gathering in our Capitol City.

Mrs. D. M. Qualls and Mrs. F. K. Smith, two of our members, underwent operation for appendicitis recently but are recovering nicely at this time. Mrs. Marvin Allen is a patient at Duke Hospital for treatment, but is improving and hopes to be home soon. Mrs. Allen is not a member of our church, but has been active in our Auxiliary. We wish for each of these ladies speedy and complete recovery.

REPORTER.

First Church, High Point.—The church school with Prof. C. R. Hinshaw, superintendent, met as usual. The Junior church assembled for worship in the Sunday school room downstairs at 11 o'clock under the leadership of Mesdames S. S. Coe and L. R. Johnston. The worship service for the adult congregation after a beautiful flute solo, "Hold Thou My Hand," by Miss Miriam Sloan with organ accompaniment by Miss Mae Kirkman in the absence of Prof. E. B. Timson. The minister read the message to the churches, the recommendations from the Washington Convention, chief points of which are: Necessity for evangelism, enlarged fields for Christian service, membership in every church doubled, concerted effort to raise $500,000 for the budget, an Auxiliary in every church, an increase in subscriptions to the Methodist Protestant Recorder, Baltimore. He called these recommendations "The Task of the Modern Church" in the words of Jesus, "Ye shall be witnesses unto me." He said that the church is the appointed agency to carry on the Christian religion in the world. Christianity must witness for Christ, and the church has the same task that she has always had. Public opinion and forces back of it must be captured. The minister shall not seek dangerous places just for the sake of adventure, but must capture public opinion for the salvation of souls. I submit to you, my friends, though it has been divided, the church is progressing in her work and increasing in numbers. We must not lie down and neglect our duty. This question of merging is uncertain; the time will be ripe when we can come with arms full of fruit. The church does not exist merely for the healing and comfort of our bodies, but to support its programs and make them useful. It is our task as a church to supply the ideals that Jesus brought. After the conclusion of this service, at a called congregation meeting, presided over by Mr. Vernon W. Idol, Mr. E. L. Douglas was elected a trustee to take the post left vacant by the death of our esteemed Mr. H. A. Moffitt.

Invitations to the seventh annual commencement exercises of High Point College have been issued. Beginning with the Music recital Thursday evening, May 28th, the oratorical and essay contest on Friday evening and class day exercises and alumni banquet on Saturday, the baccalaureate sermon will be delivered in First church by Dr. G. I.

Grace Church, Greensboro, last week celebrated the fortieth anniversary of the founding of the church, and the fifth anniversary of the opening of their new church building pictured above.

Humphreys Sunday morning at 11 o'clock. At 8:15 o'clock Sunday evening an address to religious organizations will be given by Rev. J. Leas Green, of Baltimore, Md. On Monday, June 1st, the commencement proper will be held, and the baccalaureate address will be delivered by Dr. J. Henry Highsmith. Forty-three graduates will receive their degrees. Clyde Pugh and Miss Louise Jennings of the First church are members of this class.

Miss Elizabeth Welch has kindly consented to take charge of the Sunshine Circle, a group of children, who meet every fourth Monday of each month.

The High Point College choir, directed by Prof. Ernest B. Stimson, delighted a large audience at Grace church, Greensboro, Sunday evening with a rendition of excellent sacred music. Just before their appearance at the church, members of the choir were entertained at a garden supper at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. Norman Wills, on West Gaston street. Those taking part were the following: Misses Hazel Lanier, Margaret Sloan, Mildred Luce, Margaret Opal Neese, and Truth Isley, Messrs. C. L. Gray, Jr., J. H. Mourane, and Norman Dement, and S. W. Taylor, Jr., boy soprano. Miss Mildred Luce and Mr. Dement rendered a lovely violin solo.

The members of the Woman's Auxiliary served a delicious fried chicken supper in the assembly room of the church last Thursday evening from 6 to 8 o'clock.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. T. Penny and Miss Elizabeth Welch have returned from a pleasant visit to Louisville, Ky., and to relatives in Indianapolis, Ind.

Mr. and Mrs. D. A. Dowdy and small son, Henry, have moved into their attractive new home on Woodrow avenue.

Members of the Aunt Lizzie Welch class of the church school are grieving over the loss of their handsome rug last Saturday night. "The meanest man" entered the room and carried it away without asking permission.

We are much pleased to see Capt. A. M. Rankin and Rev. Edward Suits out again after their injuries in a car accident while returning from Washington.

Mrs. D. A. Neese has been conducting cooking classes in the night school at Highland Cotton Mill for several weeks, and they held their commencement exercise last week. Several out-of-town friends attended the funeral services for the late Mr. H. A. Moffitt last Wednesday, among them being Rev. H. W. Maier, Thomasville; Dr. and Mrs. Brown, Reidsville; Rev. R. C. Stubbins, Asheboro; Mr. J. Norman Wills, Greensboro, and Mrs. W. C. Hammer, Asheboro.

Liberty Hill, Anderson Charge.—Our Sunday school is still coming on fine, but we haven't reached our goal yet, 200. Mr. Henderson preached two very helpful sermons yesterday. We are to have a singing at this church the second Sunday in June. We are expecting some good singers, the Greer singing convention. Everybody who likes singing is invited.

Mr. B. A. McClimon and Mr. Tom Nalley have been nominated for delegates to Annual Conference. This church is to vote next second Sunday after the morning service.

MRS. JEWELL HARRISON, Reporter.

Shoals, Pinnacle Charge.—Our Sunday school attendance is improving as spring is here again. We have had more on roll and more have been attending this spring than we had last spring, but we want to have a still better report to make next time. We would like to have perfect attendance and we would like to enroll more.

The Woman's Auxiliary held their first meeting last Sunday after Sunday school. They had several members present and hope to have others join them later. They have elected as president Mrs. O. F. Hauser; secretary, Miss Carrie Kiger, and as vice-president Mrs. Altha Moser. We hope that this organization will do a great work in the coming year.

Rev. A. L. Hunter started a series of singing lessons in our church last Saturday at 10 o'clock; these lessons will continue every Saturday until we have completed 20 lessons. The first lesson of the day begins at 10 o'clock and one lesson is given in the afternoon and one at night.

REPORTER.

Calvary, Greensboro.—The folks are looking forward to Sunday, May 31, with a good deal of interest. On that day we will celebrate the seventh anniversary of the church. Special exercises will mark the day. In the morning the anniversary sermon, followed by the roll call. As the members respond they are being asked to lay a birthday gift on the altars of the church. At 12:30 or thereabouts, we will have a basket dinner on the church grounds. At 2:00 we will have a fellowship service at which we are expecting the other Methodist Protestant churches in Greensboro to bring a word of greeting. The great event of the day we are expecting to be a note-burning, when we shall rejoice over the payment on the last dollar on that $2,000 note we have been talking about for the last two years and a half. Another $100 was paid on it the other day, leaving $200 to raise. Part of this is already in hand. We are expecting the balance to come in between now and Sunday afternoon. It looked for a while like it couldn't be done; but we are within striking distance now. We want you who read this to come and help us sing the Doxology over it.

Perhaps I ought not to take more space, but I do want to report some other items: First, the increasing interest and attendance at Sunday school; 240 last Sunday week; 214 last Sunday, with a number out at other affairs. The church attendance has also been unusually good.

Monday the preacher is expecting to take his family on a long-looked-forward-to trip to his old home in New York. It has been 13 years since they have seen my folks. In my absence the pulpit will be supplied by visiting brethren. June 6, Dr. S. K. Spahr will preach in the morning. Children's Day will be observed at night. June 13, Dr. Kennett will preach in the morning. There will be no evening service. The preacher will be back for the third Sunday.

C. W. BATES, Pastor.

Orange Charge Announcements.—Children's Day services are planned as follows: First Sunday in June, Union Grope. 11 a. m.; dinner on grounds; preaching in afternoon. Second Sunday in June, Chestnut Ridge; fourth Sunday in June, Hebron, same order as for Union Grove. Third Sunday in June, Efland at night.

B. M. WILLIAMS.

West Forsyth.—We had very encouraging attendance and interest at our service at Harmony Grove church last Sunday. The attendance in the Sunday school was good, there being 52 persons present. At the preaching service the young people decided to meet next Sunday evening and organize a Christian Endeavor society. We are glad of this decision on the part of the young people, and feel sure that they will be greatly benefited by the new organization. The decision to meet and organize the society was made after the pastor presented the matter and explained briefly what the Christian Endeavor Society will mean to the young people.

From Harmony Grove church Sunday we drove to the old home place of Mrs. Lina Weaver, near Stony Knoll church, where we enjoyed a sumptuous birthday dinner, which was given in honor of Mrs. Weaver's birthday anniversary. About 100 people were present for the occasion. Mr. and Mrs. Ira Douglass live at the Weaver home.

On Wednesday of last week the pastor was given a very pleasant surprise, the occasion being his birthday anniversary. Members of Pleasant Hill church and others gathered at the parsonage, bringing their dinner, and all enjoyed the occasion together. Owing to the rain many of the members of the other churches who planned to be present could not come. The pastor sincerely appreciates the kind remembrance of the members and it was the first event of its kind happening since we have been on the West Forsyth charge. The pastor appreciates the gift of a nice birthday cake sent to the parsonage by Mrs. J. F. Hunter, who could not be present for the dinner. We also thank Mrs. A. F. Long, a neighbor, for a nice cake.

Pleasant Hill Sunday school is planning for a Children's Day program and will soon begin preparation of the service, which will be held some time in June, it is understood.

The pastor and family appreciate very much the gift of a good supply of meat which was presented to Mrs. Way by Mrs. S. M. Spears, of Stony Knoll church, during a recent visit in the home. Others have been remembering us with appropriate gifts from time to time, which were highly appreciated.

Next Sunday being the fifth Sunday, the pastor has no appointment on that day, so he and his family will spend next Sunday and the following week with their relatives in Burlington.

Our next regular services will be at Baltimore and Stony Knoll churches on the first Sunday in June.

C. B. WAY, Pastor.

Winston, First Church.—Well, it's been cold weather in Winston-Salem, and perhaps that accounts for our attendance not being quite so good Sunday. We are always glad for those who attend, and sincerely hope that more will come next Sunday. Our pastor delivered a wonderful message at the morning and evening worship. The Twin City Quartet worshiped with us at the evening hour and added to the joy by giving a number of their musical selections. Those who have heard these voices over radio know how they must have been enjoyed.

Next Sunday will be Memorial Day with us. A very beautiful memorial service is to be used. Communion service will be held after the Memorial service as the regular first Sunday is being filled with something else. The Woman's Auxiliary is doing nice work and some returns are being realized already toward the budget of the year. Mrs. H. O. Sapp is the very capable president of this organization, and under her guidance the work should be a great success. A spirit of thorough co-operation seems to prevail throughout the membership; without this, however, no good could be accomplished in the way it should.

The Mission Band and the Sunshine Circle are doing splendidly. They are beginning early to be leaders and helpers in the church.

PAULINE BRANSON, Reporter.

Thomasville.—Due to the illness of the so-called reporter, our church has not had a report for a number of weeks. The attendance at our Sunday school and preaching services is very large, although it is not what we would like for it to be.

The two classes which helped largely in increasing the attendance had supper at the Masonic Hall on Thursday evening, May 7th. This supper was prepared by the Ladies' Bible class and served by the young ladies' class. Everyone who attended enjoyed it and went home with a new Sunday school spirit.

Since our last report we have had the privilege of having with us Dr. Humphreys, president of High Point College, who preached a very interesting and helpful sermon. We have also had Rev. Mr. Lyons, a member of the graduating class of High Point College, to preach for us. I think his ability to preach shows what High Point College is doing for our denomination.

Our church was represented at the Missionary Convention at Washington by our pastor, Rev. T. Glenn Madison, and Mr. L. R. Jarrett. We feel sure that they enjoyed their visit to Washington, and we are glad to have them back to continue their good work. We have not yet had a report from them, but I expect to give it in the next paper.

Last Sunday evening we were entertained by pictures of the Holy Land and of our schools. First, the pictures of our denominational schools in Texas, North Carolina, and other states were shown. Next, and more interesting, were the pictures of the Holy Land. These pictures seemed to bring the foreign country closer to our homes.

I, as the reporter, will try to make up for lost time.

ISHMAEL DORSETT.

Hollister, Halifax Charge.—Our faithful pastor, Rev. H. F. Fogleman, delivered a very interesting sermon last Sunday morning. His text was "He that have seen me hath seen the Father also." Seeing God was discussed. The Christian religion rests upon the concept that there is one God, spiritual and invisible. Many attempts at revelation; Christ, the supreme attempt. However, Christ in the flesh is not a complete revelation of God. The first advent reveals the humanity and love of God; the Cross the last words. The second advent was to reveal the glory and majesty of the God-Head; the transfiguration was a fore-shadow. At present, we stand between these two events. It takes the influence of each of these events to reveal the God-Head and produce holiness in man.

Mother's Day was observed on the second Sunday in May. The pastor preached a special sermon on the subject of "Mother." The choir sang songs for the occasion.

The second quarterly conference convened at Eden church on Friday, May 15. The nominees for delegates are Mrs. Horace Mitchell, of Bethesda church, and Mr. R. G. Willey, of Eden church.

We are planning to have Children's Day service on the fourth Sunday morning in June. Miss Velma Hardy has been appointed to train the children for the service, with others to assist her. We are hoping to have an excellent program.

KATHLEEN SHEARIN, Reporter.

Lineberry, Davidson Charge.—Just a few days ago Rev. and Mrs. C. E. Ridge and children passed through our community, stopping at various homes, shaking hands with old friends. We are always glad to have them with us. Rev. and Mrs. Ridge did a great deal of Christian work while on our charge. May the Lord bless them wherever they are.

Our pastor, Rev. E. A. Bingham, preached an excellent sermon on the third Sunday night.

On May 3 there were four new members added to our church.

Mother's Day was observed on the first Sunday at our church. After a good sermon was preached Rev. E. A. Bingham's two little girls, Annie Belle and Gertrude, sang a duet about "Mother."

The Christian Endeavor is growing more in interest; the older people attend, and there are some very interesting talks.

Our Sunday school is moving along nicely under the leadership of our superintendent, Mr. Ernest Smith.

On the fifth Sunday of this month there will be a district rally at Canaan church. Dr. S. W. Taylor will be there in the evening.

The Ladies' Aid Society met with Mrs. J. P. Elliott. The society was called to order by the president, Miss Nora Carroll. Devotional by Mrs. E. A. Bingham. Thirteen members answered to the roll call. Very interesting talks were given by Mrs. Skeen, Mrs. Frank Janier, Mrs. Lonnie Morris, Miss Kate Frank, Mrs. Claude Elliott, and Mrs. W. A. Frank. All business completed, we spent a delightful hour under our social committee, Mrs. Whit Wood.

Talk of serving—Mrs. Elliott certainly knows how. Sandwiches, cakes, pickles, and lemonade were served. It is needless for me to try to tell how much we all enjoyed the afternoon. Our next meeting will be with Mrs. M. T. Skeen. We hope to have all of our members present.

Rally Day was observed at Chapel Hill the third Sunday. There was a large crowd present; some real good singing.

Mrs. Louise Surratt, who has recently returned from the High Point Hospital, has measles, but is getting along nicely.

We are sorry that Mrs. Rufus Skeen is not able to attend church and S. S.; we miss her so much.

Mr. Jessie Taylor recently had his tonsils removed.

We are sorry to note the illness of Mr. Adam Harrison; we hope he will soon be well again. NORA CARROLL, Reporter.

English Street Church.—Our revival meeting began Sunday, May 17, with Rev. J. M. Morgan, of Fallston charge, as the pulpit help. Services have been held every afternoon at 3 o'clock and at 7:45 in the evening. Splendid crowds have been in attendance throughout these services, and much interest has been manifested. We were favored with special music each night by Misses Annie and Myrtle Chisholm. The Freeman quartet was also with us in the service Thursday night. We enjoyed having with during this meeting at various times Rev. Robert Short, of Denton; Rev. C. B. Way, of West Forsyth, and Dr. S. W. Taylor. Many people have given their hearts to God and renewed their covenant with Him. We feel that this meeting has done more good for our church than any that we have had in several years; and in conclusion we wish to express our appreciation for the many inspiring and helpful sermons that have been brought to us by Rev. J. M. Morgan.

REPORTERS.

State Street, Lexington.—The Men's Bible class is conducting a drive for new members in a unique and original way under the direction of Mr. Hendry, who is teaching the class temporarily. Two weeks ago prizes were offered to the oldest and youngest fathers in the class and last Sunday a prize was given the owner of the automobile bringing the largest load of men. The class is, growing rapidly.

The sermon Sunday morning by the pastor was one of great uplift and spiritual inspiration. At the evening hour the Thomasville male chorus came over and gave us a real treat of splendid music. Mr. R. L. Pope, of Thomasville, gave a very interesting address on home life. Some of the most timely and significant thoughts about the great importance of love and unselfish co-operation in the home were brought out by Mr. Pope in a humorous way that was both amusing and deeply impressive.

Saturday night the ladies of Circle No. 2 of the Missionary Society, under the direction of their chairman, Mrs. Hendry, gave a strawberry festival in the church dining room. This very pleasing affair was planned to be held on the church grounds, but was taken inside because of the unusually cool weather. An enjoyable feature of the evening was music by a group of our friends, Messrs. Wall, Waitman, Jolly, Waters, Brown, Trantham, and Rev. Mr. Wofford, a young Baptist minister, pastor of Sheets Memorial Baptist church here, with Mrs. Waitman at the piano. The trumpet, violin, saxophone, trombone and xylophone were all in evidence and the splendid accompanying of Mrs. Waitman at the piano made the evening one of the most enjoyable.

Since report the arrival of Master Thomas Adrian Neal as our "littlest" baby, Peggy Jean Lemmons and Robert Bruce Jenkins have been added to our number, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Jenkins and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Lemmons. All are unusually fine babies. We are glad to see our Cradle Roll growing so rapidly.

Circle No. 1 met last Friday afternoon at the church.

We have several young people away at school whom we will soon welcome back to their places in the young people's work. The C. E. Society is growing and doing good work.

The sudden death of Mr. H. A. Moffitt, of First church, High Point, has filled the denomination and his host of friends everywhere with sadness. The church will feel keenly the loss of Mr. Moffitt and the late J. D. Koonce. They were among the leading and most helpful members.

REPORTER.

Chase City, Friendship Church.—May 24th we had Sunday school at 10 o'clock; good number present. Then Brother Saunders preached at 11 o'clock.

At 3 p. m. we all enjoyed a memorial service which Bro. Saunders brought us. We had a large crowd and lots of decorations. Then at 8 o'clock he brought us another good message.

We are expecting our meeting to start the first Sunday in August. Pray for us that we may win souls to Christ.

Please give me Bro. A. D. Shelton's address through the Herald.

REPORTER.

(Rev. A. D. Shelton may be addressed at Burlington, N. C.)

Charlotte, First Church.—Since our contest started our Sunday school has grown and the interest has been fine. All departments are making splendid reports. Last Sunday we had 176 present.

Last Sunday morning Mr. J. C. Madison, of High Point College, filled the pulpit, bringing a good message in echoes of the Washington convention.

The Woman's Auxiliary met for their first meeting of the new year Tuesday, the 18th, at the church. Plans for work were made, business transacted and reports from the Branch meeting in High Point were given by Mrs. G. W. Stegall and Mrs. R. M. Andrews.

Sunday, May 17, Cradle Roll Day was observed at 11 o'clock with Mrs. A. L. Lose, Cradle Roll superintendent, in charge of the program. Greetings were given by Joseph Garmon. The Scripture was read by the pastor. The history of our Cradle Roll was given in an interesting way by Ruby Stegall, after which Mrs. A. L. Haigler sang "Just a Little Bit of Heaven." Dr. Andrews spoke briefly of presenting children for baptism and the baptismal service followed with Mr. and Mrs. Leon Blake presenting their little daughter, Miriam; Mr. and Mrs. P. E. Parrish their baby, William Edward for baptism.

There are 66 babies on roll with three new ones to receive certificates next Sunday. There were 19 babies present Cradle Roll Day.

REPORTER.

Hebron, Orange Charge.—The Sunday services on May 24 were good indeed. The attendance at both Sunday school and church was fair. Mr. Williams gave us a wonderful sermon from the book of Obadiah. Those who did not come out to hear him missed a lot.

The Woman's Auxiliary is still moving on. The May meeting will be held Thursday afternoon. Many plans are expected to be brought up concerning the year's work. Our budget has been raised and this means more earnest work.

The Sunday school is still progressing under our capable superintendent, Mr. A. K. McAdams. He seems to have his whole soul in this work. Co-operation with him will make a wide-awake school.

Children's Day service will be held the fourth Sunday in June. Plans are being made to carry out this program, also committees have been appointed to train the children. We want to make this the best day of the year.

There will be no preaching service the second Sunday in June, on account of the Children's Day at Chestnut Ridge. The pastor is to be in the services there.

IN HONOR OF THE DEAD

Blanks

On Thursday morning, April 30, 1931, death entered our community and took from it a beloved friend and father, James Howard Blanks. He was 55 years and four months of age. He leaves to mourn their loss one brother and one sister; four children, Mrs. John Parks of Henderson, Mrs. W. W. Finch of Oxford, Baxter and Page Blanks, and a host of relatives and friends.

Mr. Blanks was loved by all who knew him. He was a member of Gillburg church and attended services until his wife's health failed her; he stood by her until her death a little over two years ago. Since then his health had been failing, but he bore his suffering very patiently until the end.

Funeral services were conducted by his pastor, Rev. J. W. Braxton, at Gillburg church. His body was laid to rest in the church cemetery and covered with beautiful flowers, tokens of friendship and sympathy for the bereaved family who labored so lovingly to keep him with them here. May God help us to look forward with a hope of meeting him again in the home beyond.

"Sunset and evening star,

And one clear call for me;

May there be no moaning of the bar

When I put out to sea.

"But such a tide as moving seems asleep,

Too full for sound and foam,

When that which drew from out the boundless deep

Turns again home.

"Twilight and evening bell,

And after that the dark,

May there be no sadness of farewell

When I embark.

"For though from out the bounds of time and place

The flood may bear me far,

I hope to see my Pilot face to face

When I have crossed the bar."

CLARICE BLANKS.

Mrs. B. S. Curl

Thursday afternoon, May 8, death came and claimed one of our most beloved and useful women, Mrs. Robena Braxton Curl. She was born September 10, 1882, and was married June 25, 1913, to B. S. Curl. She is survived by her husband, seven brothers, five sisters, and a host of friends and relatives who deeply mourn her loss.

She was a member of Concord M. P. church, where on May 9, funeral services were conducted by her pastor, Rev. T. J. Whitehead, assisted by Revs. H. L. Isley, Ed Harris, Fred Paschall, and Jabus Braxton. Amid a sorrowing throng her body was laid to rest beneath a beautiful flower-covered mound.

On Saturday before her death she was taken seriously ill. All was done for her comfort that kind friends and a nurse could do, but nothing could stay the hands of death. She being a graduate nurse has spent much of her life in relieving the suffering. She would overtax her strength trying to restore health. As a neighbor she was unequalled and was always ready to help promote the activities of the community.

For years she was teacher of the Philathea class, but two years ago, on account of failing health, she gave up this work, yet remained a faithful member so far as her strength would permit. We, the members of the Philathea class, wish to express our sympathy to the husband and loved ones in this sad hour. May we each live better and be prepared to meet her when we are called beyond.

"Not now, but in the coming years,

It may be in a better land,

We'll read the meaning of our tears,

And then up there we'll understand."

MRS. J. C. GUTHRIE, LIZZIE LEWIS.

Paschall

Mrs. Josephine Paschall, widow of R. J. Paschall, who died some 15 years ago, passed away at the Maria Parham hospital Tuesday, April 28, 1931, after an illness of about three years as a result of a complication of diseases.

Mrs. Paschall was a member of New Hope Methodist Protestant church and attended the services there when health permitted. She will be greatly missed in her community and among her many friends.

Mrs. Paschall leaves to mourn her passing the following children: A. B. Paschall, Manson; J. R. Paschall, Drewery; Mrs. W. W. Grissom, Vance County; Mrs. L. M. Lambert, Roanoke, Va.; and Miss Louise Paschall, of Drewery. Two sisters, Mrs. E. W. Capps, of Manson, and Mrs. L. B. Capps, of Sanford, also survive. Besides the members of the family she leaves a host of friends.

Funeral services were held on Wednesday afternoon at 3 o'clock from the New Hope church, in charge of her pastor, Rev. J. W. Braxton, assisted by Rev. R. A. Hunter, of Henderson and Rev. J. Elwood Carroll, of Duke university.

Hamlin

William R. Hamlin, son of the late Dr. Jack Hamlin and Mrs. Hamlin, was born in Randolph County, N. C., in 1860 and departed this life April 30, 1931, being 71 years old. His early life was spent in Asheboro where his father was a practicing physician. In young manhood he was united in marriage with Miss Margaret Victoria Allred who survives him. The most of his life was spent in the vicinity of Giles' Chapel Methodist Protestant church, a few miles from Asheboro. He was converted at the age of thirteen years and later united with Giles' Chapel M. P. church where his membership remained until he moved to Asheboro in 1919 when he united with the Asheboro Methodist Protestant church where his membership remained until his death. It was my good fortune to be associated with him during all the younger part of my life. I was with him in the church at Giles' Chapel where he was a valuable member, being a steward for many years and being vitally interested in the work of the church. I was in his home often and knew him as well as almost any man I ever knew. He was a good neighbor, a good churchman and I believe a good Christian. In 1919 he moved to Asheboro and in 1925 I became his pastor and continued in that relationship for five years. The first two or three years of my pastorate there he was a steward and was faithful. He was always solicitous about our welfare and often called at the parsonage. It was my happy privilege to be at his Golden Wedding Anniversary in 1929 and to bring to him and his companion the congratulations of the church and the community. In his going away I feel that I have lost a good friend and the church and the kingdom a loyal supporter—one who led more people to the altar when personal work was done in the congregation than almost any other man I ever knew.

The funeral was held in the Asheboro Methodist Protestant church Sunday afternoon, May 3, and was conducted by the pastor, Rev. R. C. Stubbins, assisted by Rev. Joel B. Trogon, Rev. L. W. Gerringer and the writer. The audience was large and the floral offering beautiful. Brother Hamlin is survived by his wife, six sons and five daughters. They are: Dr. J. J. Hamlin, High Point; James of Detroit, Mich.; Jesse of Bristow, Okla.; R. C., C. W. and Howard of Greensboro; Mrs. Maude England of Atlanta; Mrs. J. M. Brown and Miss Lucy Hamlin of Asheboro; Mrs. J. E. Webb and Mrs. C. C. Underwood of Greensboro. One son, Dr. C. A. Hamlin, died several years ago.

Jesus Was There!

Have you come to the place where the ways divide—
To the place where you must for yourself decide—
To the point where the right and the wrong appear—
Where the need of wise choice is urgent and clear?

Jesus was there!

Have you come to the place where the tempters allure,
To the place of false colors and of songs impure,
Where the demons and the devils would make you believe
That the evil is the good,—your mind to deceive?

Jesus was there!

Have you come to the place where forces oppose,
Where the good you would do is hindered by foes,
To the test of your strength in the battle with wrong,
Both ancient and modern and wonderfully strong?

Jesus was there!

Have you come to the place of sorrow and pain,
To the place where your life is a constant strain,
Where they press to your lips a full cup of woe,
And you find there no place for you to say no?

Jesus was there!

Have you come to the place of long-dreaded death,
To the place you must breathe your expiring breath,
To the place of farewell to all things of earth,
Where the mourning of friends will banish all mirth?

Jesus was there!

An Interesting Case in Court

Last week the Supreme Court of the United States decided that Dr. Douglas Clyde MacIntosh, Canadian chaplain in the World war and now professor of theology in Yale Divinity School, is ineligible for citizenship in the United States because he would not subscribe to the oath to bear arms in defense of this country under all circumstances. He wished to make his own conscience the criterion. He was unwilling to promise in advance to take up arms in support of an unjust claim or contention.

The high court decided against Dr. MacIntosh by a vote of 5 to 4. The justices in the minority were Hughes (Chief Justice,) Holmes, Brandeis and Stone.

Justice Sutherland, supported by Justices McReynolds, Roberts, Van Devanter and Butler, stated that the case comes under the principle laid down in the Rosika Schwimmer decision which ruled that "it is the duty of citizens by force of arms to defend the government against all enemies whenever the necessity arises." In enunciating the MacIntosh decision, he said:

"It is not within the province of the courts to make bargains with those who seek naturalization. They must accept the grant and take the oath in accordance with the terms fixed by the law or forego the privilege of citizenship. There is no middle choice. If one qualification of the oath be allowed, the door is opened for others, with utter confusion as the probable final result."

And further:

"From its very nature, the war power, when necessity calls for its exercise, tolerates no qualifications or limitations, unless found in the Constitution or in applicable principles of international law. The conscientious objector is relieved from the obligation to bear arms in obedience to no constitutional provision, express or implied; but because, and only because, it has accorded with the policy of Congress thus to relieve him."

MR. CHIEF JUSTICE HUGHES, DISSENTING, ARGUES:

I am unable to agree with the judgment in this case. It is important to note the precise question to be determined. It is solely one of law, as there is no controversy as to the facts. The question is not whether naturalization is a privilege to be granted or withheld. That it is such a privilege is undisputed. Nor, whether the Congress has the power to fix the conditions upon which the privilege is granted. That power is assumed. Nor, whether the Congress may in its discretion compel service in the army in time of war or punish the refusal to serve. That power is not here in dispute. Nor is the question one of the authority of Congress to exact a promise to bear arms as a condition of its grant of naturalization. That authority, for the present purpose, may also be assumed.

The question before the Court is the narrower one whether the Congress has exacted such a promise. That the Congress has not made such an express requirement is apparent. The question is whether that exaction is to be implied from certain general words which do not, as it seems to me, either literally or historically demand the implication. I think that the requirement should not be implied, because such a construction is directly opposed to the spirit of our institutions and to the historic practice of the Congress. It must be conceded that departmental zeal may not be permitted to outrun the authority conferred by statute. If such a promise is to be demanded, contrary to principles which have been respected as fundamental, the Congress should exact it in unequivocal terms, and we should not, by judicial decision, attempt to perform what, as I see it, is a legislative function.

In examining the requirements for naturalization, we find that the Congress has expressly laid down certain rules which concern the opinions and conduct of the applicant. Thus it is provided that no person shall be naturalized "who disbelieves in or who is opposed to organized government, or who is a member of or affiliated with any organization entertaining and teaching such disbelief in or opposition to organized government, or who advocates or teaches the duty, necessity, or propriety of the unlawful assaulting or killing of any officer or officers, either of specified individuals or of officers generally, of the government of the United States, or of any other organized government, because of his or their official character, or who is a polygamist." Act of June 29, 1906, c. 3592, 7: 34 Stat. 596, 597; U. S. C. Tit. 8, 364. The respondent, Douglas Clyde MacIntosh, entertained none of these disqualifying opinions and had none of the associations or relations disapproved. Among the specific requirements as to beliefs, we find none to the effect that one shall not be naturalized if by reason of his religious convictions he is opposed to war or is unwilling to promise to bear arms. In view of the questions which have repeatedly been brought to the attention of the Congress in relation to such beliefs, and having regard to the action of the Congress when its decision was of immediate importance in the raising of armies, the omission of such an express requirement from the naturalization statute is highly significant.

Putting aside these specific requirements as fully satisfied, we come to the general conditions imposed by the statute. We find one as to good behavior during the specified period of residence preceding application. No applicant could appear to be more exemplary than MacIntosh. A Canadian by birth, he first came to the United States as a graduate student at the University of Chicago, and in 1907 he was ordained as a Baptist minister. In 1909 he began to teach in Yale university and is now a member of the faculty of the Divinity School Chaplain of the Yale Graduate School, and Dwight professor of theology. After the outbreak of the Great War, he voluntarily sought appointment as a chaplain with the Canadian army and as such saw service at the front. Returning to this country, he made public addresses in 1917 in support of the Allies. In 1918, he went again to France where he had charge of an American Y. M. C. A. hut at the front until the armistice, when he resumed his duties at Yale university. It seems to me that the applicant has shown himself in his behavior and character to be highly desirable as a citizen and, if such a man is to be excluded from naturalization, I think the disqualification should be found in unambiguous terms and not in an implication which shuts him out and gives admission to a host far less worthy.

The principal ground for exclusion appears to relate to the terms of the oath which the applicant must take. It should be observed that the respondent was willing to take the oath, and he so stated in his petition. But, in response to further inquiries, he explained that he was not willing "to promise beforehand" to take up arms, "without knowing the cause for which my country may go to war" and that "he would have to believe that the war was morally justified." He declared that "his first allegiance was to the will of God"; that he was ready to give to the United States "all the allegiance he ever had given or ever could give to any country, but that he could not put allegiance to the government of any country before allegiance to the will of God." The question then is whether the terms of the oath are to be taken as necessarily implying an assurance of willingness to bear arms, so that one whose conscientious convictions or belief of supreme allegiance to the will of God will not permit him to make such an absolute promise, cannot take the oath and hence is disqualified for admission to citizenship.

The statutory provision as to the oath which is said to require this promise is this: "that he will support and defend the Constitution and laws of the United States against all enemies, foreign and domestic, and bear true faith and allegiance to the same." Act of June 29, 1906, c. 3592, 4, 34 Stat. 596, 568 U. S. C. Tit. 8, 381. That these general words have not been regarded as implying a promise to bear arms notwithstanding religious or conscientious scruples, or as requiring one to promise to put allegiance to temporal power above what is sincerely believed to be one's duty of obedience to God, is apparent, I think, from a consideration of their history. This oath does not stand alone. It is the same oath in substance that is required by Act of Congress of civil officers generally (except the President, whose oath is prescribed by the Constitution). The Congress, in prescribing such an oath for civil officers, acts under Article VI, section 3, of the Constitution, which provides: "The Senators and Representatives before mentioned, and the members of the several State Legislatures, and all executive and judicial officers, both of the United States and of the several states, shall be bound by oath or affirmation, to support this Constitution; but no religious test shall ever be required as a qualification to any office or public trust under the United States." The general oath of office, in the form which has been prescribed by the Congress for over sixty years, contains the provision "that I will support and defend the Constitution of the United States against all enemies, foreign and domestic; that I will bear true faith and allegiance to the same; that I take this obligation freely, without any mental reservation or purpose of evasion." (R. S., 1757, U. S. C., Titl. 5, 16). It goes without saying that it was not the intention of the Congress in framing the oath to impose any religious test. When we consider the history of the struggle for religious liberty, the large number of citizens of our country from the very beginning, who have been conscientiously opposed to war and who would not yield what they sincerely believed to be their allegiance to the will of God, I find it impossible to conclude that such persons are to be deemed disqualified for public office in this country because of the requirement of the oath which must be taken before they enter upon their duties. The terms of the promise "to support and defend the Constitution of the United States against all enemies, foreign and domestic" are not, I think, to be read as demanding any such result. There are other and most important methods of defense, even in time of war, apart from the personal bearing of arms. We have but to consider the defense given to our country in the late war, both in industry and in the field, by workers of all sorts, by engineers, nurses, doctors and chaplains, to realize that there is opportunity even at such a time for essential service in the activities of defense which do not require the overriding of such religious scruples. I think that the requirement of the oath of office should be read in the light of our regard from the beginning for freedom of conscience. While it has always been recognized that the supreme power of government may be exerted and disobedience to its commands may be punished, we know that with many of our worthy citizens it would be a most heart-searching question if they were asked whether they would promise to obey a law believed to be in conflict with religious duty. Many of their most honored exemplars in the past have been willing to suffer imprisonment or even death rather than to make such a promise. And we also know, in particular, that a promise to engage in war by bearing arms, or thus to engage in war believed to be unjust, would be contrary to the tenets of religious groups among our citizens who are of patriotic purpose and exemplary conduct. To conclude that the general oath of office is to be interpreted as disregarding the religious scruples of these citizens and as disqualifying them for office because they could not take the oath with such an interpretation would, I believe, be generally regarded as contrary not only to the specific intent of the Congress but as repugnant to the fundamental principle of representative government.

But the naturalization oath is in substantially the same terms as the oath of office to which I have referred. I find no ground for saying that these words are to be interpreted differently in the two cases. On the contrary, when the Congress reproduced the historic words of the oath of office in the naturalization oath, I should suppose that, according to familiar rules of interpretation, they should be deemed to carry the same significance.

The question of the proper interpretation of the oath is, as I have said, distinct from that of legislative policy in exacting military service. The latter is not dependent upon the former. But the long-established practice of excusing from military service those whose religious convictions oppose it confirms the view that the Congress in the terms of the oath did not intend to require a promise to give such service. The policy of granting exemptions in such cases has been followed from colonial times and is abundantly shown by the provisions of colonial and state statutes, of state constitutions, and of acts of Congress. See citations in the opinion of the Circuit Court of Appeals in the present case. 42 Fed. (2d) 845, 847, 848. The first constitution of New York, adopted in 1777, in providing for the state militia, while strongly emphasizing the duty of defense, added "That all such of the inhabitants of this state (being of the people called Quakers) as, from scruples of conscience may be averse to the bearing of arms, be therefrom excused by the legislature, and do pay to the state such sums of money, in lieu of their personal service, as the same may, in the judgment of the legislature, be worth." Art. XL. A large number of similar provisions are found in other states. The importance of giving immunity to those having conscientious scruples against bearing arms has been emphasized in debates in Congress repeatedly from the very beginning of our government, and religious scruples have been recognized in draft acts. Annals of Congress (Gales), 1st Congress, vol. I, pp. 434, 436, 729, 731; vol.

II, pp. 1818-1827; Acts of February 24, 1864, 13 Stat. 6, 9; January 21, 1903, 32 Stat. 775; June 3, 1916, 39 Stat. 166, 197; May 18, 1917, 40 Stat. 76, 79. I agree with the statement in the opinion of the Circuit Court of Appeals in the present case that "This Federal legislation is indicative of the actual operation of the principles of the Constitution, that a person with conscientious or religious scruples need not bear arms, although as a member of society, he may be obliged to render services of a noncombatant nature."

Much has been said of the paramount duty to the state, a duty to be recognized, it is urged, even though it conflicts with convictions of duty to God. Undoubtedly that duty to the state exists within the domain of power, for government may enforce obedience to laws regardless of scruples. When one's belief collides with the power of the state, the latter is supreme within its sphere and submission or punishment follows. But, in the forum of conscience, duty to a moral power higher than the state has always been maintained. The reservation of that supreme obligation, as a matter of principle, would unquestionably be made by many of our conscientious and law-abiding citizens. The essence of religion is belief in a relation to God involving duties superior to those arising from any human relation. As was stated by Mr. Justice Field, in Davis v. Beason, 133 U. S. 333, 342: "The term 'religion' has reference to one's views of his relations to his Creator, and to the obligations they impose of reverence for his being and character, and of obedience to his will." One cannot speak of religious liberty, with proper appreciation of its essential and historic significance, without assuming the existence of a belief in supreme allegiance to the will of God. Professor MacIntosh, when pressed by the inquiries put to him, stated what is axiomatic in religious doctrine.

And, putting aside dogmas with their particular conceptions of deity, freedom of conscience itself implies respect for an innate conviction of paramount duty. The battle for religious liberty has been fought and won with respect to religious beliefs and practices, which are not in conflict with good order, upon the very ground of the supremacy of conscience within its proper field. What that field is, under our system of government, presents in part a question of constitutional law and also, in part, one of legislative policy in avoiding unnecessary clashes with the dictates of conscience. There is abundant room for enforcing the requisite authority of law as it is enacted and requires obedience, and for maintaining the conception of the supremacy of law as essential to orderly government, without demanding that either citizens or applicants for citizenship shall assume by oath an obligation to regard allegiance to God as subordinate to allegiance to civil power. The attempt to exact such a promise, and thus to bind one's conscience by the taking of oaths or the submission to tests, has been the cause of many deplorable conflicts. The Congress has sought to avoid such conflicts in this country by respecting our happy tradition. In no sphere of legislation has the intention to prevent such clashes been more conspicuous than in relation to the bearing of arms. It would require strong evidence that the Congress intended a reversal of its policy in prescribing the general terms of the naturalization oath. I find no such evidence.

Nor is there ground, in my opinion, for the exclusion of Professor MacIntosh because his conscientious scruples have particular reference to wars believed to be unjust. There is nothing new in such an attitude. Among the most eminent statesmen here and abroad have been those who condemned the action of their country in entering into wars they thought to be unjustified. Agreements for the renunciation of war presuppose a preponderant public sentiment against wars of aggression. If, while recognizing the power of Congress, the mere holding of religious or conscientious scruples against all wars should not disqualify a citizen from holding office in this country, or an applicant otherwise qualified from being admitted to citizenship, there would seem to be no reason why a reservation of religious or conscientious objection to participation in wars believed to be unjust should constitute such a disqualification.

Apart from the terms of the oath, it is said that the respondent has failed to meet the requirement of "attachment to the principles of the Constitution." Here, again, is a general phrase which should be construed, not in opposition to, but in accord with, the theory and practice of our Government in relation to freedom of conscience. What I have said as to the provisions of the oath I think applies equally to this phase of the case.

The judgment in United States v. Schwimmer, 279 U. S. 644, stands upon the special facts of that case, but I do not regard it as requiring a reversal of the judgment here. I think that the judgment below should be affirmed.

Mr. Justice Holmes, Mr. Justice Brandeis and Mr. Justice Stone concur in this opinion.

THE ETERNAL GOSPEL

By REV. W. A. LEDFORD

The word "gospel," is strictly speaking a New Testament term. It is not found in the Old Testament. John uses it once in the book of Revelation, but no where else in his writings. Luke uses it twice in the Acts of the Apostles, but not in the book bearing his name. It does, however, occur over one hundred times in the other Gospels and Epistles. In its technical sense, it describes a formulated message, which is both eternal and unchangeable. "Till heaven and earth pass away, one jot or one tittle shall in no wise pass away from the law, till all things be accomplished." Matt. 5:18.

Some seem to think that traditions, theories, interpretations, doctrines based on the Scriptures are synonymous with the gospel itself. Such is not the case. Most of these are colored by their environment, and take their form from the thinking of people from age to age. Many of them have become trite, worn out, discarded, repudiated both by the Scriptures themselves and by experience. They have become so obsolete till they are no longer illuminating, entertaining, or edifying. Such things deserve relegating to the trash heap. The gospel is part of an eternal and unchangeable order. All God's novelties are as old as Creation itself, and as new as the morning dew.

Recently a college professor wrote me, complaining about some of the modern preaching. In his letter occurred the following, "I find so many preachers who just believe in preaching the gospel and that is about all they preach. Quite a few are just dead heads and are not keeping up with the times." What this good, learned professor really wants is, the old, old gospel preached in its fulness: interpreted in the light of the times in which we live, and applied to the practical problems of today. The minister to be effective, must be able to point to the fulfilment of Scriptures in the scenes that are before him, as did Peter at Pentecost. There is nothing more modern, newer, living, nor pulsating than, "the living word of God, which is sharper than a two-edged sword . . . quick to discern the thoughts and intents of the heart."—Heb. 4:12. The eternal gospel is more modern than the morning newspaper, and more refreshing than the latest novel from the most popular writer.

"The gospel for this age," is a phrase that has been made much of; but does not call for a new gospel, differing from the heart of the preaching in other ages. Just the same great truths, cardinal principles, the doctrines that are as unchangeable as God Himself; preached in their fulness, with backgrounds, interpretations and language suited, fitted to modern life. The great preachers of our day are doing this very thing, as have the great preachers in all ages. No man ever failed preaching the gospel as Jesus Christ commissioned him to preach it. Men have failed preaching their worn-out theories, hobbies, prejudices; but never preaching the gospel of Christ, which was the power of God unto salvation in Paul's time, and is the same today. "And I, if I be lifted up from the earth, will draw all men unto me."—Jn. 12:32. Moses and the prophets were sufficient, in the eyes of Jesus, to warn sinners in this world. Surely with them added the teaching of the Christ, and His Apostles is sufficient for this age.

The content of the eternal gospel is plain and its purpose also, viz., the evangelization of the world. John wrote, "I saw another angel flying in mid heaven, having the everlasting gospel (marginal reading, an eternal gospel) to proclaim unto them that dwell on the earth, and unto every nation and tribe and tongue and people." John had kept the vision of his Master, given in the Great Commission; and the field was what it was to be after the Holy Spirit had come upon them (Act. 1:8). John Wesley caught the same widening vision when he exclaimed, "The world is my parish."

Paul wrote to the Galatians that if a man or an angel preached unto them other than the gospel of Christ, which is the eternal gospel, let him be anathema. There may come the temptation to please the itching ears of the worldly, and show one's learning by preaching the wisdom of men; but to all such temptations the minister should say, "Get thee behind me Satan." The course of least resistance will reveal less obstacles, and may be the more popular course; but if this course has to be taken at the sacrifice of principles, substituting something else for the gospel of Christ; then it is unworthy of any one pursuing the high calling of the ministry. Paul never substituted, nor toned down in the face of all dangers. He preached the same gospel where he was stoned, as he did where he was crowned.

It is not the purpose of this writer to lecture my brethren in the ministry, who shall read this paper. My observations have convinced me that the ministry was never more faithful in their preaching of the eternal gospel. The evangelistic fervor is present in most of the preaching it is my privilege to hear. Perhaps, the laity could co-operate better with their faithful pastors in creating an atmosphere, where the preaching of the eternal gospel would be easier and more fruitful. However, the motto of Francis Asbury adopted on the high seas before reaching America should be the motto of every preacher of the Gospel, viz., "I have determined to know nothing among you, save Jesus Christ and him crucified."—II Cor. 2:2.

I TALK WITH THREE WOMEN

By REV. LUTHER K. LONG

It has been held, generally, that women constitute the conservative sex. They have been charged with holding to ideas and customs as they are—often after such ideas and customs have become outgrown—while change and progress have been credited to the initiation of men.

However, it may have been in the past, in these times when women are less and less dependent on men for financial support—and since superior education and freedom of thought have come to be the privilege of so many women—they are casting off the shackles that have bound them. Conservatism and progressivism are not the exclusive habits of mind of either sex.

Mrs. K., a Lutheran

"I do not see why any person should be discredited for taking communion in any church where the invitation is broadly given," said Mrs. K. This good woman with whom I was talking had lived with her husband and children at army posts in several widely separated parts of the country. She had been brought up and confirmed in the Lutheran church, but had been away from her native city so long, and had seen so little of her own denomination during these years, that she felt entirely at home and comfortable with several other denominations that had furnished the instruction and fellowship needed. Some of her children had made their Christian confession and become members of other churches.

Now that her husband has retired and they are settled in their own permanent home, she usually attends a nearby Lutheran church—for she is sufficiently conservative to feel the influence of early instruction and habits.

"I wanted to take communion in that church," she told me. "So, after I had been to service several times, I asked the minister if it would be all right. But he wasn't quite sure, my name not having been enrolled. He wanted me to write to the minister of the church in which I had been confirmed and get a statement from him. I told him that the minister probably had never heard of me, and that possibly no one now in the church remembered me, and that at any rate none of them knew of my doings through all these years. He finally decided to admit me to the communion, though he said it was rather irregular."

Many Lutheran people have left their church permanently because of change of residence, on account of marriage with members of other churches, or because of changes of belief.

I think it interesting that this woman decides to renew fellowship with the old church—while continuing to consider herself as, in a sense, belonging to all the churches of Christ that will admit her to the Lord's Supper as celebrated by them. Her influence will be broadening to other Lutherans, and it will hasten the time when all the churches will be drawn closer together in a fine fellowship.

Mrs. C., a Roman Catholic

This interesting woman was brought up in Vienna, Austria. She has lived twenty-two years in this country, and has had quite a varied experience. For several years at one time she was out of reach of a Roman Catholic church. She attended a Protestant church during that time and became a member, because she felt the need of some Christian teaching, worship and fellowship.

"I liked some things in the Protestant church," she told me, "better than in the Catholic church. It seemed good to me to hear the minister pray right out of his heart, without any book. He seemed to me so sincere."

"The Lord's Supper troubled me some," she went on. "At first I used to take the bread in my hand from the minister and say to myself: 'This is the body of Christ.' Now I feel that the Protestant way is just as good as the Catholic way. It satisfies me to have the minister say: 'This bread represents the body of Christ, this cup represents the blood of Christ—we do this in remembrance of Him'."

Mrs. C. is now so situated that she attends a Catholic service; but she will never forget the good minister and the friendly people with whom she had to do in the little Protestant church. Not long ago I saw her as she and her husband returned from a long Sunday drive. "We often go out early in the morning before first mass," she told me. "When we come to a church where service is being held I go in, no matter what church it is. I find the Word of God in all the churches, I get help from all the prayers, and there is something good in every sermon. Why shouldn't we all work together more unitedly when we are all striving for the same good life here, and hope to go to the same heaven beyond?"

Mrs. H., a Methodist

Mrs. H. lives in a large city, she and her husband, and are very busy people. They have no children of their own, but they have brought up several who greatly needed their help. While not wealthy, they somehow manage to spend considerable sums for worthy religious and social causes.

"My husband and I used to teach in the Sunday school, attend two preaching services every Sunday, go to the prayer meeting each week, besides attending many of the other gatherings thought to be necessary in the life of a good-sized church. We do not go so much now," she explained. "We are getting to be somewhat older, we have many other things to do, we can't stand so much going, and we feel that, after all, some of this hustle and bustle here and there about the Lord's business doesn't amount to much."

Well, that was interesting, if not entirely new, so I encouraged her to go on.

"While our minister is a good man, a good pastor, he is a very dull preacher," she resumed. "He doesn't generally interest people in his sermon: and he often says such inane, such impossible things! For instance: the other Sunday morning he was urging folks to come to the evening service and to the prayer meeting. 'Just think of it,' he said, 'out of the whole week many of you people give only one hour—Sunday morning service—to the Lord. All the other hours of the week are for your own selfish use. Is that fair to the Lord, who has done so much for you?' "

"I didn't like that," she went on. "During all of my hours and all of my days I am endeavoring to serve the Lord. My strength becomes more and more limited. I can't do all I want to do of the many things that need to be done. Some of the old ways of service do not make much appeal to me now. I do some things that others may not be so much impressed with, but I honestly try to do the best I can."

If I felt at liberty to list the things this good woman is interested in, and to which she contributes time, money and effort, I am sure the reader would agree with me that she does well to follow her own heart and judgment rather than place herself wholly at the disposal of a minister whose judgment is not likely to be as wise as hers.

Other conversations with Mrs. H. have emphasized the fact that she, in common with many other Methodists, no longer care so much for the old-fashioned evangelistic type of preaching—the type that neglects the intellectual and moral upbuilding of the people, while stressing evanescent emotional experiences.

Lutherans, Roman Catholics, Methodists, and all other branches of the Christian church—at least considerable sections of them—are certainly coming into closer relations in matters of conviction and practice. The lessening of stress on unessential sectarian schemes and practices will surely help toward the discovery and stressing of real essentials.

THE ANNUAL LEADERSHIP TRAINING SCHOOL

The 1931 Leadership Training School for the North Carolina Conference promises to be the best since the present officers have been directing the school. We are offering twelve Young People's Courses and six Standard Courses. These courses cover a wide range and every worker in Christ's Kingdom can find valuable help in any one of these studies. Some of the outstanding workers in our church have been secured as members of the faculty.

The school will be held in High Point College, June 22-29. High Point College is centrally located. During the week of the school the dormitories and class rooms will be ours and may they be filled to overflowing.

The program for the school is well rounded. It gives an opportunity for study, meditation, inspiration, and recreation. It purposes to build character; to train for leadership; and to aid other Christian agencies in bringing into the hearts of humanity the Kingdom of God.

Register as soon as possible! Make your plans to attend the school! The registration fee is the same as in previous years, but the charge for the entire week in the school is only $8.00.

FRED W. PASCHALL.

The above is a tentative program which is subject to changes before the conference convenes. It had been thought that we would not have the picnic dinner this year but Dr. Taylor is very anxious to have a great inspirational meeting of ministers and laymen and it has been thought that this could be a great occasion. The picnic dinners on other occasions have been great successes and there is no reason why we might not meet with the same success this year. Then, too, it will be a way by which we can mingle with the children and workers of the Children's Home and give them a great day. We will not forget the date, June 23-26.

Yours for a great conference,

GEO. L. CURRY.

"DON'T JUDGE AMERICA BY HER MOVIES"

"You must not judge America by these awful films," said Rev. Clarence E. Wolsted, of Manamadura, to his Indian friends after viewing several pictures. One college student believed that all Americans were cowboys! The movies, or "cinema," are very popular in India, and the tragedy is that the type of film sent there, for the most part, leads to grave misunderstandings and misconceptions. This is one very lively reason why Christian missions should persevere—in order to offset and correct the evil of films and other commercial agencies which pour in from the West. A portable movie outfit, with films on health and agriculture, as well as five reels on the life of Christ, are doing their share in Manamadura to spread the good news.—The Christian Sun.

Sick

A recent letter from Brother Helms informs me that he has been very sick from blood poison, though he was much better at the time of his writing. We learn, also, that Brother Ferree continues to have affliction in his family. We extend sympathy to these brethren, and the assurances of our prayers.

Now Read This

On Friday, June 26, our pastors and their people will meet at the Children's Home and High Point College for a great inspirational day. This will be the closing day of the Pastor's Summer Conference, and Brother Curry, president of the Pastor's Conference, has agreed to share the day with us. We are not prepared at this writing to give details as to program, but will do that next week. However, the program is in the making, and it will be a good one. We want every pastor present, and many of our people from all parts of the conference. No Collections are to be taken. The meeting is purely for inspiration, consecration, and fellowship. The usual picnic dinner is to be served at the Children's Home, with Superintendent and Mrs. Dixon, their helpers, and the children, as our guests. EVERYBODY PLANNING NOW, for a great day, FRIDAY, JUNE 26. Watch the paper next week for further notice.

High Point College Commencement

The commencement exercises began with a student recital in music Thursday night, May 28. This was followed by the contest in essay and oratory Friday night, the alumni banquet Saturday afternoon, and the class day exercises Saturday night. On Sunday morning the baccalaureate sermon was preached by President Humphreys in First Church, High Point. Sunday night, Rev. J. Leas Green preached the sermon on behalf of the religious organizations of the college. This service was held in the college chapel. The finals followed Monday morning, with Dr. J. Henry Highsmith as the commencement speaker. The various programs, sermons and addresses were of a high order, and were enjoyed by large audiences. The graduating class was composed of twenty young women and eighteen young men—thirty-eight in all. Five others expect to receive their diplomas at the close of the summer school. They entered the class with that understanding. The college has had another happy and successful year, and we understand that the student prospect is bright for the opening next September.

Dedication

On Sunday, May 24, it was my privilege and pleasure to be with Brother Powell and the Mt. Pleasant congregation, North Davidson charge, and to conduct the dedicatory service of their new church. This service was held in the morning, and was followed in the afternoon by a Memorial Service in which Rev. J. E. Pritchard, pastor of First Church, Winston-Salem, was the speaker. The church at this place has a well-preserved and interesting history. The beginnings go back to the Civil War—to be more exact—to 1863. The first services were held under an arbor near where the present building stands. Colonel Ledford, who was the moving spirit in starting the work, died under this arbor, while kneeling in prayer. In 1865, what was known as "Ledford's Stand" was built on the site of the present church. This served as a place of worship until 1867, when a union church, owned by the Methodist Protestant and Methodist Episcopal church, South, was erected. The church operated under this arrangement for 58 years, or until 1925, when the M. E. brethren sold their interest to the M. P.'s. During this same year the old building was removed and the present building begun, the completion of which followed in 1926. The building is amply large, well constructed, well furnished, and provides several Sunday School rooms, and a gallery. The actual money cost was $4,200. Donations of labor and building material would greatly increase this amount. Pastor Powell and his people are to be greatly congratulated upon this achievement. It was a pleasure to be with them on this happy and important occasion.

At night, the service was at Canaan. Marked improvements have been made here on the building within the last year or two. The work seems to be going well at this place. We enjoyed this worship with them.

It was a pleasure to be with Pastor Powell and his family at supper, and to spend this day with him and his people on this important and growing charge.

Did You Read It?

We mean "A MESSAGE TO THE CHURCHES," recently sent to all of our pastors by the Convention Program Committee. It is important that this be read to our people, and we earnestly trust that our pastors will do it. No doubt many have done so already. This message will help to create a denominational consciousness. Let's get it out to every congregation.

That Registration Agent

Some time ago Brother J. Elwood Carroll addressed letters to all pastors, asking that a registration agent be appointed to each church to handle the registrations for the Leadership Training School to be held at High Point College, June 22-29. It is important that this agent be appointed. Please let no pastor fail in this. Send name of agent to Brother Carroll.

June Is the Month

For Children's Day. Do you have the programs? A card to Dr. G. W. Haddaway, 516 North Charles St., Baltimore, will bring you supplies. Please ask for an abundance of envelopes and pass them out to the children at least two weeks before Children's Day, and adults, too. Put much emphasis upon this program; it is educational. Put much emphasis upon the offering; it is so badly needed. Take credit on your N. C. S. budget for the amount. PLEASE PUSH CHILDREN'S DAY.

College Allotment

A prominent layman said yesterday: "I am going back home and raise the full amount at my church, and send it right in." He expects the membership to pay it. That is a good line of talk, (as they say). We would be very happy indeed to see the spirit and purpose of this layman, and his faith, too, many times duplicated in all parts of the conference. We appeal to our laymen to take hold of this matter of High Point College Maintenance, and see to it that their churches do this all important thing. If they make up their minds to do it, they will. Come on, now, laymen, and join this man, who says, "I'm going back home and raise the full amount at my church."

The Black Mark

It's gratifying to see it rise—slowly, maybe, but rising, nevertheless. Keep it moving, brethren, keep it moving. Calvary is out, and three other charges—Pleasant Grove, Thomasville, First, and Winston, First—are out with pluses. Other charges are making good progress. Let's keep that black mark rising, brethren. It's good business.

"All that other folks may do,
Only keep this rule in view—
Why, with patience, should not you?
Try, try, again."

AFTER THE CONVENTION

It was a great convention and we feel very fortunate indeed to have had the privilege of attending such a gathering. We were in company with the best people on earth. It was so inspiring, so many good things said, and had there been nothing but the getting together and the fine impression which Dr. and Mrs. Woodford and their group made it seems it would have been worth while. They are doing a great and good work. We wonder if some of us still feel we want to unite with some other church; is it the multitude we are after? We should think it over and ask ourselves why we want to unite with any denomination if the Methodist Protestants can get such a gathering of people together as we had at Washington. Why should we want to leave home? Would it not be better to let good enough alone, stay where we are? If its quantity we are after, we should study the word, see about Gideon and his band. We need more Christians that are true.

Our greatest thought would not be uniting with any denomination but to try and see what we can do to evangelize the world. We need to get out of our indifference and awake to our duty, be baptized afresh with the Holy Ghost, be fit subjects for the indwelling of the Holy Spirit. Little did we think when Dr. Straughn was here in the interest of the convention that it would be so great a convention, but it was far beyond our expectation and we that were so fortunate as to attend should come back with new zeal and determination to inspire and encourage others in this great work.

Onward, Christian Soldiers!

Like a mighty army moves the church of God,
Brothers, we are treading where the Saints have trod.
We are not divided, all one body me,
One in hope and doctrine, one in charity.
Crowns and thrones may perish, kingdoms rise and wane,
But the church of Jesus constant will remain.
Gates of hell can never, 'gainst that church prevail,
We have Christ's own promise and that can not fail.
Onward, Christian Soldiers, march as to war
With the Cross of Jesus going on before.

MARTHA PARSONS.

OUR STORY PAGE

DAISY'S DELIVERANCE

On a bright May morning, more than twenty years ago, a group of happy children went out to the woods to gather flowers. The trees were in their freshest green, the sun shone brightly, the lambs frisked in the green meadows, and all around was fair and beautiful. The children were delighted, and sang merrily as they scampered through the pretty woods, and across the grassy slopes carpeted with primroses.

Daisy, the youngest of the group, a bright child of five, was given in charge by her mother to Elsie her elder sister, with strict injunctions not to leave or lose sight of her even for a moment, for well she knew the dangers that abounded even amid so fair surroundings, and the possibilities of her darling child being lost in the woods.

All through the forenoon the children gathered flowers and played among the trees. After partaking of the simple repast which they had brought with them, one suggested a game in an adjoining field, and all being agreed they mounted the gate and commenced their play. Daisy being too young to join it, wandered along the field picking flowers and otherwise amusing herself.

Busy in their play, the girls failed to observe that at the far end of the field there was a herd of cattle feeding. A loud roar arrested their attention, and looking in the direction from which it came, they saw a young bull with his head down, making direct for them. In a moment the game stopped, and the girls making as fast as their feet would carry them to the wood. But where was Daisy? All unconscious of her danger, picking flowers at the side of the field.

When her sister reached the gate where she had left her, and found her gone, she was frantic. A glance along the wall shewed Daisy's bright pinafore, and the wild animal dashing along in that direction. What could they do to save Daisy? Simply nothing; they were helpless. Elsie, who had heard and read in God's Book of the mighty power that closed the lion's mouth to save His servant Daniel, and of the shepherd lad of Bethlehem who delivered his father's lamb from the lion and the bear cried out—"Lord, save little Daisy from that angry bull;" and He who watcheth the sparrows fall, heard that cry in His holy Heaven. The animal suddenly turned another way, and Daisy, still unaware of her danger, was lifted across the wall by a ploughboy who heard the animal's bellow, and rescued her amid many expressions of gratitude from her sister.

That story of deliverance has never been forgotten, but is often related by Daisy to her class of little girls in the Sunday School, who listen eagerly to the stirring incident which she never fails to "follow up" by saying, "And I knew a greater deliverance than that; when as a sinner, lost and helpless, exposed to Satan's power and in danger of perishing in sin, Jesus lifted me up and set me by His Side in safety on the Rock, to which no power of the adversary can reach. I could do nothing to save myself, but 'Jesus did it, did it all long, long ago.' And now the word to us is:

"Only trust Him, only trust Him,
Only trust Him now;
He will save you. He will save
He will save you now."

Yes, there is danger to the youngest while they remain out of Christ, in the world and exposed to sin and Satan's power. But coming to the Saviour, believing in Him, saved by Him there is safety, peace and joy.—Gladstone Hours.

"ABIDE TILL THE MORROW"

The beautiful valley of Wyoming on the banks of the Susquehanna river in Luzerne Co., Pa., has long been known alike to the student of history and lovers of poetry and song.

It was in the beginning of July, 1778, that an aged saint who, with his four sons, lived on a mountain overlooking the valley, found that his barrel of meal was nearly exhausted, and bade his sons fill their sacks with grain, and early in the morning descend the long road to the mill in the valley. As requested, before daylight, each of the boys had fed his horse, and they were all prepared by sunrise for their journey. And as the day would be too far spent to have their grain ground, they were accustomed at such times to spend the night near the mill in Wyoming.

As the Patriarch came forth in the morning from the closet of prayer and said to his waiting sons, "Not today!" the young men were greatly surprised.

"But father our supply is used up, and why should we delay?" they said as they turned and gazed over the valley, which lay in calm and quiet peacefulness before them.

"Not today, my sons," repeated with emphasis by this man of prayer, satisfied the youths that the father meant what he said. He added: "I know not what it means, but in my prayer my mind was deeply impressed with these words 'Let them abide till the morrow'."

Without charging their venerated parent with superstition or ignorance, the obedient sons yielded to his word, unladed their beasts, placed them in their stalls, and waited for another morning to come. That memorable night a horde of savages, with torch and tomahawk, entered Wyoming Valley and commenced their work of destruction; and it is said that before the bloody drama ended, not a house, barn, church, school or mill escaped the flames; and few of the inhabitants escaped the sudden and deadly blows of the savages. From one end of the valley to the other the settlers were butchered or burned with remorseless fury.

In the morning at sunrise, the father and sons were standing on the highest point, and lo! the valley was filled with volumes of ascending smoke and flames. The awful truth flashed on their minds.

The aged saint kneeled down with his sons on the mountain-top and in humble, adoring prayer, thanked God for the promise: "The angel of the Lord encampeth round about them that fear him."—The Evangelist.

Tuesday: A Test of Friendship. Prov. 17:17.
Wednesday: Our Best Friend. John 15:13, 14.

Friday: Frail Friends. Job 16:11-22.

Suggestion for the Meeting

This meeting would be a splendid time to have each member to bring a friend to the meeting and some time have a time when all may get acquainted with each other's friend. Or you might invite some other society to visit your society this evening.

Leader's Talk

We all think we have friends and we do all have some friends, but many times we are fooled as to just who is our real friend. We often think that this one or that one is our friend until the real test comes when we are made sad to find that they had no intention of even being considered as our friend. On the other hand we are often made glad to find that some one who had never attempted to be friendly to us was just waiting for an opportunity to show us a great favor that would prove to us that he is a real friend for life. "There is a friend that sticketh closer than a brother."

Questions

1. Who is my friend?
2. How may we judge others' friendship for us?
3. How may I best show true friendship?
4. What are the dangers of friendship?

Poetry

THE OBLIGATION OF FRIENDSHIP

You ought to be fine for the sake of the folks
Who think you are fine.

If others have faith in you, doubly you're bound
To stick to the line.

It's not only on you that dishonor descends:
You can't hurt yourself without hurting your friends.

You ought to be true for the sake of the folks
Who believe you are true.

You never should stoop to a deed that your friends
Think you wouldn't do.

If you're false to yourself, be the blemish but small,

You have injured your friends; you've been false to them all.

For friendship, my boy, is a bond between men

That is founded on truth:
It believes in the best of the ones that it loves.

Whether old man or youth;
And the stern rule it lays down for me and for you

Is to be what our friends think we are,
Through and through.

—Edgar Guest.

I CAN'T STAY AWAY

The Lord says rooms enough up in heaven for the soldiers,
I can't stay away, Lord, I can't stay away.

They are passing on one by one
We will all soon be gone to that bright world above,
I can't stay away, Lord, I can't stay away.

Jesus says come up higher
Where there is no sickness or sorrows,
Where they will be happy all the time.
I can't stay away, Lord, I can't stay away.
I have parents and friends brothers and sisters gone on before,
They are looking for me.
I can't stay away, Lord, I can't stay away.

There is a beautiful world above,
Where I want to be prepared to go when God calls me home.
I can't stay away, Lord, I can't stay away.
—Susie Jarrell.

A TRUE TO LIFE PICTURE

"A man who is clean both inside, and outside; who neither looks up to the rich, nor down upon the poor; who can lose without squealing and win without bragging; who is considerate of women, children and old people; who is too brave to lie, too generous to cheat, and who takes his share of the world and lets other people have theirs."

—Mrs. Susie Jarrell, formerly of Asheboro, now of Sanford, N. C., while visiting in Asheboro last week attended our church Sunday morning and enjoyed hearing a very interesting report of the Washington conference, also had the privilege of going to High Point and seeing our College and Orphans' home for the first time.

A PRAYER FOR INVALIDS

For those on beds of sickness,
Or fettered by dread fear,
We ask Thee, loving God,
Our meek petition hear.

We pray that Thou wilt help
All those bowed down by grief,
That Thou in tender love
Wilt send them swift relief.

Give courage to the frail,
And strength unto the weak;
Hear those afflicted ones
Who peace and respite seek.

Dear God, we humbly pray
That Thou good health wilt give,
To all Thy children dear,
And show them how to live.
—GRENVILLE KLEISER.

WOMAN'S MISSIONARY DEPARTMENT

NOTICE TO AUXILIARIES

Mrs. Marie Thompson, assistant secretary of missions, must have the names of all perpetual members, and the auxiliaries to which they belong now or formerly belonged, for filing in her office.

This is necessary in order that auxiliaries get credit for the $1.20 interest due them, per member, each year.

The annual reports give names of perpetual members of home and foreign societies up to May, 1928, but do not give the auxiliaries to which they belonged. This information will have to come from the auxiliaries, also, names of all perpetual members made since 1928. I am giving list prior to that year, and urging auxiliaries to write me at once, signifying the ones that belong to them, also any others:

Mrs. Geo. R. Brown, Mrs. Robert Greenwood, Mrs. Charles F. Finch, Mrs. Minnie P. Harrell, Mrs. T. M. Johnson, Mrs. S. M. Hornaday, Mrs. J. F. McCulloch, Mrs. T. F. McCulloch, Miss Ila Stafford, Miss Jewel Stafford, Mrs. R. R. Ross, Mrs. Maude Thompson, Mrs. J. C. Welch, Sr., Mrs. J. J. Welch, Mrs. C. L. Whitaker, Mrs. Charles M. Yokley, Mrs. W. P. Pickett, Mrs. W. J. Teague, Rev. C. A. Pickens, Mr. R. N. Hauser, and Mrs. India Satterwhite.

It is important that this be attended to at once and it will add to your budget the interest on these perpetual memberships each year. Please let me hear from you immediately, as I am assisting Mrs. Harris in this matter.

MRS. GEO. R. BROWN, Cor. Sec.
Reidsville, N. C.

TO THE SPIRITUAL LIFE SECRETARIES

At our recent branch meeting your former secretary was re-elected so we again come to you asking for your co-operation as we launch out into the new year's work. The reports of the N. C. Branch showed progress along all lines, for our women had been working and praying—this proves there is power through prayer. We all will admit that, and as we are firm believers in prayer, may we be constant in prayer since it is the vital force in a Christian's life.

Will you, the secretary of the Spiritual Life department of your local auxiliary put forth renewed energy to make your department felt by each individual? There is much you can accomplish and your influence be for lasting good.

We would that every member of each auxiliary would catch the vision of the great need in India. Judging by Mrs. C. W. Bates' report on the funds for Mr. Minnis, are we in sincere sympathy and keeping our missionaries on our daily prayer list?

Not only in April and May by the prayer calendar do we need to have our prayers follow Mr. and Mrs. Minnis, Miss Miskimen, Miss Hodges, Dr. and Mrs. Woodford and their co-workers, but every day there is needed this great agency of power.

For the month of June we are to ask united prayer for our own Dr. and Mrs. Dixon of the Children's Home, and also for the kindergarten teachers in Japan. When we pray for our own children may we also include these other children. Our prayers, love, and also financial aid are needed.

In closing may I ask you to write me at least a card, giving me your name and address and auxiliary of which you are the secretary of the Spiritual Life work. I am very anxious to make a complete roll early.

Wishing to be of service to you,
MRS. J. M. STONE.
514 Fifth Ave., Greensboro, N. C.

THE PESSIMISTIC PEST.

Oh, the times are out of joint,
And they never will be right
Till the pessimistic growler
Evaporates from sight.
For of all depression mongers
And vile idiots we detest,
There is none that breeds trouble
Like the pessimistic pest.

Oh, the pessimist is busy

With his tale of want and woe,
He waits for you in ambush
And pursues where'er you go.
But he always proves a coward
When you put him to the test,
He is just a common scolder,
Is the pessimistic pest.

Oh, the times will be much better
When you fill your rightful part,
And you do the work before you
With a brave and cheerful heart.
So through days of storm or sunshine
Strive to do your level best,
And ignore the blatant bleatings
Of the pessimistic pest.

—GRENVILLE KLEISER.

—The Presbyterians (southern) in their recent meeting at Montreat voted to withdraw from the Federal Council of Churches.

—Dr. R. M. Andrews preached the high school commencement sermon in Pageland, South Carolina.

—We are pained to learn of the serious illness of Brother John Moore of Moriah church.

PATHFINDER SELECTIONS

TWENTY TONS OF TURKS.

The Fat Men's Club of Constantinople, consisting of 150 men weighing no less than 200 pounds apiece, set out upon a tour of Europe where they will visit the various fat men's clubs at the national capitals. Turkish newspapers opposed the excursion on the ground that so many fat men from Turkey would injure the country's reputation for "modern reform." After the tour of Europe the fat men plan to visit the United States.

BUG AGAINST BUG.

Agents of the Empire Marketing Board collected 90,000 sawflies from the wheat fields of England, infected the grubs with small parasites and sent them to Canada to fight certain insects which are menacing the wheat crop of the Dominion.

CRUELTY TO CHICKENS.

Three men were arrested in Belfast on charges of cruelty to fowls when they carried a number of chickens by the feet with the heads down. Although one of the men arrested was a member of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, he did not know that Northern Ireland had made it a punishable offense to carry fowls in that manner.

International confidence cannot be builded upon fear—it must be builded upon good will.—President Hoover.

The king of Siam does not consider himself as having any divine right.—King Prajadhipok.

Greater than war and the noble spirit it produces, greater than the valor and devotion of war's deeds is the spirit that can overcome war.—Dr. O. C. Kiep, German Consul in New York.

MOTHERS OF MEN.

Do fathers know that the number of deaths of mothers in childbirth in the United States is the highest in the civilized world? Do they know that for every 1,000 babies born more than six mothers lose their lives, and that each year 16,000 mothers are not here to wear white carnations on Mother's Day? Do they think it is right that with our equipment and wealth the rate per 1,000 in the United States should be 6.5, while in Canada it is 5.6, in England and Wales 4.1, in Denmark 3.1, in The Netherlands 2.9, and that 20 other countries have a lower rate than our country? The Maternity Center Association of New York City tells us that this is all wrong, all unnecessary. Among 4,726 mothers cared for by their association during the past year, the mortality rate was reduced to 2.2 for each 1,000, while the rate for mothers in the same district (but without special care) was 6. The medical statistician of the world's largest insurance company who examined the records of these cases, says: "This result is indicative of the saving of lives that might be accomplished were every mother to have the benefit of adequate maternity care."

FROM PASTORS and PEOPLE

West Forsyth Charge.—Those "Echoes" in the "Herald" last week were very interesting to those of us who did not attend the Washington Convention, and reveal to some extent the spirit of enthusiasm and denominational loyalty which was received by those who attended the convention. The inspiration gained by those who attended and they in turn conveyed to the rest of us who did not attend, should prove an impetus to truly "Go Forward" in all lines of denominational endeavor, especially in our evangelistic efforts.

The pastor and family, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. C. G. Hunter, of Pleasant Hill church, enjoyed a very pleasant visit in the home of Brother T. L. Long and family, of Baltimore church, Thursday of last week. A good dinner was enjoyed, and the fellowship of these splendid people was truly delightful. Brother Long is a relative of Mrs. Hunter. Miss Opal Long, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Long, graduated from East Bend high school last month. She plans to enter a hospital for training as a nurse.

The following young people, members of Baltimore church, graduated from the East Bend high school last month: Miss Inez Doub, Miss Rachel Smitherman, Miss Jessie North, Miss Opal Long and Joseph Nicholson.

The pastor and family were delighted with a very pleasant visit made at the parsonage Friday afternoon of last week by Rev. C. G. Isley and mother, of Lexington. The fellowship of these good people was thoroughly enjoyed.

Brother C. G. Hunter and Mrs. Hunter accompanied the pastor and family on a visit to the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Kearney, members of the Moravian denomination, Thursday evening of last week. We were entertained at a most enjoyable supper. Mrs. Kearney is a sister of Brother J. A. Whitman and Brother Julius Whitman, of Pleasant Hill church, and formerly was a member of Pleasant Hill church.

C. B. WAY, Pastor.

Roberta Station.—Our Sunday school attendance was only 169 last Sunday. There wasn't any preaching at our church Sunday as it was the fifth Sunday. Rev. and Mrs. Hill visited relatives and friends in Denton.

John Howard, small son of Mr. and Mrs. L. J. Foster, is able to be out again, after being very sick with pneumonia.

We are also very sorry to say that Vera Sutton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Sutton, had the misfortune of getting a leader cut in her foot last week. We hope that she will soon be able to be up again. She was resting as well as could be expected yesterday, May 31.

J. C. P. Cochran is very sick. He is one of the oldest members of our church. We hope he will be up again soon.

We are sorry to report that Mrs. Charlie Verble had an automobile accident Saturday, May 23, while returning home from Monroe. Her little daughter, Pauline, suffered a broken leg; her small son, Owen, had an ear almost cut off. Mrs. Verble was not seriously injured, just shaken up some. They are all getting along fine. Mrs. Verble is Sunday school teacher of the intermediate girls, Mr. Sutton is teacher of the young men, while Mr. Foster is teacher of the old men's Bible class.

We were glad to have Rev. and Mrs. Robert Short and family visiting in our community Friday of last week. Come again, Mr. Short, you are welcome any time. All visitors and strangers are invited to come and visit in our little village or worship with us in service any time.

There was a contest on in our Sunday school during the month of May. The one bringing the most new members in Sunday school during that time was to receive a $5.00 gold piece. Miss Nellie Motley was announced the winner.

Mr. Bob Lisk was laid to rest in Roberta church cemetery May 9. He was 57 years old, leaves a wife and several children. Funeral services were conducted by Rev. Mr. Hill and Rev. Mr. Brown, pastor of Harmony M. E. church, South, Concord.

MISS ELMA MILLER, Reporter.

South Lexington Charge.—We began our revival meeting at South Lexington the fourth Sunday in April and continued for ten days. Rev. J. P. Pegg, of Stokesdale, came on Sunday night and did all the preaching during the meeting. The services were held at night only, and were well attended, there being much interest shown in the meetings. The preaching of Brother Pegg was the simple gospel and was well received by the people. It can be truly said that the preaching of Brother Pegg was very instructive and forceful. There were sixteen conversions and twelve additions to the church. We were glad to have had with us in the services at different times during the meeting Rev. G. H. Hendry, of State Street church, and Rev. C. B. Way, of West Forsyth charge. We were also glad to have had a number of the members of St. Paul church at Greensboro, and a group of their singers on Sunday night.

Our services and Sunday school attendance at South Lexington church are holding up well, and the people are co-operating in the work in a splendid manner.

The work at Mount Carmel is going very well, with a large attendance at Sunday school. There was a good attendance at the last service the first Sunday in May. At this service we received Mrs. Vada Fritts into the church, coming from Shiloh Methodist Protestant church. The new church at Mount Carmel is almost completed, only the plastering to be done. When completed, the church will have a seating capacity of 400, with seven Sunday school rooms. We are planning for a homecoming day the first Sunday in August. We are expecting all former pastors present at that time. The revival meeting will begin at Mount Carmel the first Sunday night in August. Rev. D. I. Garner, of St. Paul church, Greensboro, will be the pulpit help.

We have been remembered for the past three months with many gifts from the members of both churches on the charge. Brother Robert Fritts has our thanks for the gift of a hen and twenty young chickens and several other useful articles. Brother R. M. Rowe gave us a hen and twelve young chickens, and other needful things, for which we are thankful. We thank Mrs. Ida Finch for a hen, canned fruit, jelly, preserves and pickles.

Brother John Swiegood gave us cherries, which were appreciated. Miss Zula Fritts was the giver of several useful things. Brother B. F. Everidge made a nice donation of ham meat and vegetables. Brother C. L. Hedrick for strawberries and other articles; Mrs. Jasper Koonts also gave us vegetables; Mrs. David Brooks, a supply of eggs; Mrs. Phorse Bean, for several gifts; Mrs. Obie Waitman, many useful gifts. For all of these things we are very thankful.

Our Second Quarterly conference was held on Tuesday night, May 19, at Mount Carmel church, with a good attendance of the official members. Business was transacted in a harmonious atmosphere. Nominees for delegate were elected. J. H. Yates, of South Lexington church, and R. M. Rowe, of Mount Carmel church, are the nominees. Very encouraging reports were made to the conference.

We are glad to report that Miss Robina Waitman and Miss Zula Fritts, who were patients in a hospital at Charlotte for a week each, have returned to their homes and have been back in the services at Mount Carmel church.

We are looking forward to a successful year's work on South Lexington charge.

C. G. ISLEY, Pastor.

Fairview, Anderson Charge.—On May 31 there were 102 present for Sunday school, this being a little larger number than the one on the previous Sunday. Baccalaureate services of the Easley high school and the majority of the Sunday school members wished to attend.

Five of our boys and girls were in the graduating class. They are Helen Connelly, Lola Freeman, Agnes Henderson, Bieman Henderson and Claude White. We are proud of them and hope that this is only a beginning of the attainments of the better things of life.

The Christian Endeavor had a good meeting last Sunday evening. These young people are doing a good work.

Next Sunday will be our regular preaching day and we are looking forward to it because it has been two Sundays since Rev. M. C. Henderson, the pastor, has been with us. Every one is urged to be present for Sunday school and church services.

The Ladies' Aid will meet at the home of Mrs. H. A. Foster for its regular meeting Friday afternoon after the second Sunday. Mrs. J. W. Smith is to be joint hostess with Mrs. Foster. It was decided at the last meeting to study a portion of the Bible at each regular time. The first five chapters of Genesis are to be studied this month. Each one is to be ready to take part in the round-table discussion.

REPORTER.

West Forsyth.—Just want to visit a little; will not stay long. Just want to say that our parsonage is closed, yes, locked, looks mighty lonesome around there now. Our faithful pastor, Rev. C. B. Way and his beloved family, are gone; having been lost, stolen, strayed, or just gone away. His flock, however, are perfectly calm, no anxiety, or excitement shown over the situation. Looks mighty bad for West Forsyth charge membership. Really, people may think we should be all a-tremble, and bowed down with grief and—oh, but listen, we all know where they are, know they are safe, and happy visiting home-folks and friends in Burlington, and other points. They are enjoying a much needed rest, a vacation in fact. We are all so proud they can enjoy this opportunity.

It was planned that on May 20, Pastor Way be given a surprise birthday. All members, and friends from each church on this charge were invited to come and bring a basket, or, any useful articles of remembrance. But a very bad, rainy day, and short notice prevented many from coming, but, those who were fortunate to get there received a royal welcome, and enjoyed a good dinner. We are still hoping that later a great "get together" day may be had at the parsonage yet. And now good bye, I must be going. Oh! pardon my awkward blunder, I nearly forgot to tell you that pastor and family will be home, rested, and ready to fill his regular appointments on next Sunday. And now good-bye again, from Great Grandmother. (Those who remember my last letter last November will know who I am. Others may inquire.)

Mitchell's Grove, Guilford Charge.—We had a Mother's Day service the second Sunday in May, which was very impressive. Brother Peeler's sermon was enjoyed by all. There were several visitors present, among them was Prof. Everett Cashatt, on of our S. S. boys. We are always glad to have him with us. Mr. Graydon Ring who has been away teaching at Pamlico Sound, is back at his post of duty. We welcome him, he never fails us, but does his best.

Last Sunday we had Rev. Chas. Grant to fill the pulpit in the absence of Brother Peeler. We feel that all were benefitted by his encouraging words on prayer, apparently the most needed thing in the Christian life. All things whatsoever ye ask in prayer believing ye shall receive.

MARTHA PARSONS.

Winston, First.—In the second part of the S. S. contest between Winston and Charlotte Winston concedes defeat by Charlotte by two million points more or less. Really we have not added up the points, so guess it is fair as Winston won the first part of the contest. We extend our congratulations to Charlotte for giving us a good drubbing.

Yesterday we had a beautiful memorial service. The choir sang Crossing the Bar, the roll of the deceased members was called and a flower for each was placed in a receptacle and while the audience was still standing the choir sang, It is not death to die.

We had 174 in S. S. 126 in morning church service. A rain just before the evening service started cut the attendance considerably.

Next Sunday will be Recognition Day for all our graduates from high school and college and for all our medal and prize winners.

And now for the Piedmont League Sunday school contest. Some weeks ago the Winston, First church, invited a number of our Sunday schools which under extraordinary circumstances can have an attendance of 200 to join us in an attendance contest to run through the month of June. The actual number present in Sunday school is the only think that will count. Each school is to report its attendance to the Herald on Monday of each week and our good editor is asked to print each school's record in block form, putting the school that had the highest number present the previous Sunday at the top of the list and on down in their order. The school making the highest average for the month shall be declared the winner. The schools having accepted are Calvary and West End, Greensboro; English Street, High Point; State Street and South Lexington in Lexington; Charlotte, Lincolnton and Albemarle—the last accepting conditionally. So here we go. Watch the Herald next week.

J. E. PRITCHARD.

Calvary, Greensboro.—I had not intended breaking into print so soon again, but I have an idea the friends of Calvary church will want to know something about the services yesterday. It was one of the great days in the history of the church. At the morning service, after the sermon, the membership roll was called, and practically every member present responded to his name by bringing a birthday offering amounted to $81.50. The Sunday school made a special offering of $20.11.

Following the membership roll call came the calling of the roll of the deceased members, twelve of them. As these names were called a young lady came forward and placed a white rose in a vase.

Then came the dinner on the grounds. A goodly company enjoyed the meal, and the fellowship of the hour. It was such a success gastronomically and socially that the folks voted to make it an annual affair.

And then the crowning service of the day. A fellowship service at 2 o'clock, with short addresses by Brother Willis of Grace church, Brother Garner from St. Pauls, and Brother Stafford from West End. And then, ah, then: the note burning. We had dreamed about it, talked about it, worried about it, prayed about it. And then it happened. Mrs. Bates held the tray on which the note was burned, Bro. J. F. McCulloch held the note, Brother Willis Booth applied the match. And how good the smoke did smell! And how lustily folks sang the Doxology!

We needed $200 to take care of the balance due on the note, and make it possible to burn it. With other amounts added to what was received in the offerings of the day, we had $211.89. So we are a bit to the good. Yes, it was a good day.

C. W. BATES.

First Church, Concord.—Sunday was a fine day for us. We tried to have a missionary program in the different departments, so the people would know more about the missionary work.

It is important for every member of our church to realize that much good can be done with our pennies our nickels and dimes and any amount that we can give. Because this money can be used in a wonderful way and God loves a cheerful giver and the more we give to God's cause the more blessings He gives us, and I'm so glad that just one penny will prove a blessing if we give it in the right spirit. But let's not hunt around in our pockets for the pennies but give God some bills all along and it will help very much. And I'm hoping that each Sunday school pupil will remember the programs we tried to bring before them today and that they will be more interested in the mission work than ever before.

At the 11 o'clock service our pastor brought a helpful missionary sermon to us. Mrs. B. F. Waddell also made a wonderful talk on missionary work and told us many helpful things.

We had 539 in Sunday school and we had 17 present in our cradle roll department. We are so proud of the ladies who take charge of cradle roll department, and we feel that God is blessing their work in a wonderful way.

We are sorry to report that Leon Eudy, the son of Mr. and Mrs. James Eudy, is ill at the hospital and we hope he will be able to come to church soon and have good health.

We would be grateful for the prayer of each one for our church.

REPORTER.

Pine Ridge Letter.—It is a matter of gratification to the workers at Pine Ridge that notwithstanding the drought and depression, we were able to show gains in almost all details of our annual report.

As is generally known, we make a very low charge for board and room—only three dollars a week, which figures out about ten cents per meal. Then, too, we furnish board to all members of our staff, and yet when we deduct all we paid for groceries and every expense that goes into providing the food for our tables, we find that there is a credit balance of nearly $3,000 from the amount received for board and room for the year. There are two facts that explain how we furnish meals at ten cents to about 120 students and also feed our teachers and workers without charge, and yet show this profit.

First, this. Some of our kind friends send us barrels of canned fruit and staple groceries. Last year we received about a dozen such shipments. The other fact is that we operate as economically as possible, our farm of 125 acres and we are glad our report thus justifies the plan of agricultural demonstration that we have been following through the years. The farm at Pine Ridge is saving the Board of Missions nearly $3,000 a year in carrying on the work at this place. Since the board is now so limited in funds, and at the most can barely appropriate a sufficient amount to pay the salaries of the members of our staff, we are especially thankful that we have co-operative friends, not only of the Methodist Protestant church but also outside of the same.

Another part of our work about which little is generally known is that which is carried on at outlying points. Rev. E. M. Babcock, who co-operates with his wife in the work at our store, gives attention on Sundays to Slade Sunday school and preaching services. Rev. R. H. Kettell is taking our high school course and acting as monitor in directing the activities of our boys in the grades, while his wife is mother to the same boys in O'Rean Hall, and teaches half time. Two Sundays each month Brother Kettell has been going to Leeco, about eight miles from Pine Ridge, where the Petroleum Exploration Co. has built a $10,000 community house quite useable for church and Sunday school purposes. Brother Kettell's work as pastor to that community has been very satisfactory and the people and the company are urging that he continue with them next year. At Rogers, two miles from our school, Miss Baird, our nurse, has been very regular and faithful in co-operating in the conduct of Sunday school every Sunday afternoon the past year. I am quite sure that without help from Alvan Drew school, this work would not be done. Occasionally Miss Baird goes on four miles farther to Caleybate Spring where she has started another Sunday school. Rev. J. F. Goree, a probationary member of our Georgia conference, another student in our high school, is looking after the work at Meadow Branch. Sunday school every Sunday afternoon preaching twice a month. Dr. Biggs and I divide our Sunday work between Pine Ridge, where services are held regularly every Sunday; Bethel, twelve miles away; Campton Men's Bible class and various other points where special calls are made for preachers more or less frequently. In addition to the above we are sure that a good proportion of our students, boys and girls, are making their lives count for Christ and the salvation of souls in their home communities.

We have entered the work of another year with a more definite prayer than ever before that God will use our efforts to His glory especially in leading souls into His salvation and service. That, after all, is the supreme reason for the existence of our work at Pine Ridge and we earnestly ask all our people to join us in prayer that we may realize the fulfillment of this great objective.

Our summer school is now in session. We picked a bad year for such a beginning. Money is scarce and consequently our enrollment is small, but it's the beginning of a mighty important work and we feel sure it will grow.

Our farmers are so much more hopeful than they were a year ago. Crops are growing nicely and we believe there are better days ahead for our people.

If you don't receive a copy of our June Booster, let us know. Our stock of second-hand clothing is very low. Our special needs are clothing for children of all ages and both sexes; men's suits, women's dresses, and shoes for everybody.

THOS. R. WOODFORD, Supt.

Kannapolis Church. — Our Sunday school just keeps growing. We have on roll, 162. We need Sunday school rooms; have one class in the parsonage. We are very proud to see so many in Sunday school. Our church membership is growing. We have added 29 members since conference on our church roll. We are planning for a great day for our home-coming the third Sunday in June instead of the second Sunday as was previously announced. We are very anxious for all our former pastors and their wives to be present, also every one is invited to come and bring dinner, which will be spread on tables on the church yard. We will have good singing by several quartets, also good speakers will be here to give us some good talks. On last Saturday Mrs. C. B. Price entertained her class of about thirty juniors with a picnic which was very much enjoyed by all the children.

It is pretty to see the young men march in every Sunday to their class. They had twenty present yesterday with several absent. Mr. John Sisk is their teacher, all the boys like him; they are working to build up their class — they get out on Sunday morning and bring in boys who are not in Sunday school. The young ladies' class is growing fast. We have sixteen on roll, thirteen were present Sunday.

Dear people, we are not asleep. If you don't believe us come and visit us. We are planning for a fine Children's Day program to be given the fourth Sunday in June. We hope to have a large crowd that night.

There was no service at our church last night. The pastor was on the program at the Y. M. C. A. for the memorial service which was held for our dead of the World War; most all churches here called off their service for it.

The Ladies' Aid will meet tonight with Mrs. C. B. McCammons. They made $45 clear at the chicken supper two weeks ago, which will be used on our church debt. We have more than twenty members on roll in our Ladies' Aid and are expecting new ones tonight.

Wishing God's blessings may rest on every one.

REPORTER.

First Church, Charlotte.—Sunday school attendance for last Sunday 168—60; church, morning 58, evening 38. For the period as follows: Points made by Sunday school, 1,160; average attendance at church for morning, 93 persons; evening, 60. The average per cent for morning, 47 per cent; for evening, 30 per cent. The average attendance for Sunday school was 188 for the period. The average 174, being a gain of 14 persons in latter attendance for the first contest period was 174, being a gain of 14 persons in latter period.

The contest has really proved to be quite an advantage to us in increased attendance at both Sunday school and at church, likewise at prayer meeting. Our people entered heartily into it and have loyally stayed with it to the end.

R. M. ANDREWS.

Moriah.—Attendance is very good in Sunday school and in the church services also. Our pastor brought us a very impressive sermon this morning. Text, "Ye are the Salt of the Earth."

The Ladies' Auxiliary will meet with Mrs. Cecil Moser Thursday afternoon, 3 o'clock, all ladies of the church are invited.

Thursday night, 7:30, the ladies give the men a supper.

The C. E. has created much interest in the last six weeks. Rev. H. C. Carmichael, our former pastor, visited the community last week. Every one was very glad to have Mr. Carmichael back with us.

We had several visitors Sunday.

There are several of our members who are kept away from the services on account of sickness. May we all look to God in prayer for their recovery.

REPORTER.

Oak Grove, Forsyth.—Our Sunday school is very good, we are hoping to see many more join.

We have started up our prayer meeting again on Sunday night at 7:30 o'clock. We ask the prayers of all the Christian people for the progress of our prayer meetings throughout the year.

Our regular monthly preaching service was called off as our pastor, Rev. L. W. Gerringer, assisted Rev. Mr. Moser in conducting the funeral service of Mr. Artie J. Warren of Winston-Salem, N. C. Mr. Warren was born July 23, 1902, and died May 23, 1931. Survivors are: a good wife who rendered her best service to him during his illness. A son seven years old and a sweet little daughter, of 21 months, very ill at the present. His mother, Mrs. R. M. Warren, and four brothers, E. A., R. C., O. B. and R. M. Warren, Jr., all of Rural Hall. Two sisters, Magellan Warren of Rural Hall, and Mrs. Nola Bodenhamer, of Danville, Va. He also leaves a host of friends and relatives to mourn their loss. A short service was held at the home Sunday at 1:30 o'clock, afterwards his body was brought to his childhood town, Rural Hall, where his funeral service was held at the Lutheran church, where he attended Sunday school and preaching for many years in his childhood days that he enjoyed very much. His remains were laid to rest in Lutheran cemetery to await the resurrection.

A precious one from us is gone.

A voice we all loved is stilled

A place is vacant in our family,
That never can be filled.

No one knows how I'll miss you.

No one knows the tears I have shed

But in heaven I hope I'll meet you;

When no farewell tears are shed.

A sad and broken-hearted mother,

MRS. R. M. WARREN.

Bellmont Church, Mt. Hermon Circuit.—Our annual memorial service was held the fourth Sunday in May. A great many were with us. Rev. N. G. Bethea spoke in the morning. He brought us a great message. Rev. O. C. Loy spoke in the afternoon. His message also was great. Special music in the morning was furnished by Misses Margaret and Louise Moore, of Graham. Special music in the afternoon was given by Messrs. W. A. J. Sharpe, Elwood Carroll, Giles Nicholson, and Wayne Curtis. Our next annual memorial service will be held the fourth Sunday in next May.

Mrs. C. A. Rich, who for several months has been in Rainy hospital, Burlington, N. C., has come home.

News has come to us that Mrs. Mabel Thompson has been taken to the hospital.

Funeral service for the infant child of Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Bivens was conducted at the home Monday afternoon, May 25th, and burial was at Haw River, Rev. Wayne Curtis was in charge of the service.

We are happy to know that those who have been away at school will soon be with us again.

Our Sunday school is still increasing.

REPORTER.

English Street Church. — We were well pleased with the splendid attendance at Sunday school, as our numbers are increasing and our church is small, we are over-crowded; but the Philathea and Baraca classes are planning to go into the hut by the second Sunday in June, as it is now well on way to completion.

Tuesday night, May 26, our revival meeting was brought to a close, and 12 new members were added to the church. Those received were: Mr. and Mrs. R. T. Holcomb, Gary and Mary Ruth Holcomb, Colan Loflin, Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Hunnicutt, Mr. and Mrs. M. I. Griffith, Misses Ruth, Annie and Jewel Bonkemeyer, and George Bean.

On Tuesday evening Miss Inez Reynolds, daughter of Rev. and Mrs. G. L. Reynolds, became the bride of Ralph Vance. As Mrs. Vance was the church pianist and as she plans to attend another church, to which her husband belongs, Miss Annie Bonkemeyer was elected to take her place.

The Christian Endeavor society plans to go to Lovejoy church on the first Sunday in June for the purpose of organizing a society. Picnic dinner will be spread on the grounds at the church. A good program has been planned, and it is hoped a large crowd will be in attendance.

REPORTER.

Dulin's, Mocksville Charge.—The spring days have brought to our Sunday school more members and they are more interested in the building up of the kingdom.

We have done some work on the church since our last report: removed the two old doors and put two others in the place.

Several of the young people still hold to their resolutions to give the world some service and then seek pleasure for themselves.

The members of this church are planning home coming next Sunday, June 7, beginning at 11 o'clock. They extend a cordial invitation to our president, Mr. S. W. Taylor, since this is his home church, and to all our former pastors and other ministers that maybe interested in this church. You all are always welcome.

Best wishes to Herald and its readers.

REPORTER.

P. S.—Brother Editor: We also give you a special invitation, also Mr. T. F. McCulloch, who was once our pastor whom we all like.

(The editor regrets his inability to accept this kind invitation.)

Shilch, Connelly Springs Charge.—The C. E. society gave a pic supper last Saturday night. We made $12.08 with which we will buy some song books; what we don't use now will be kept in the treasury.

The family graveyard of Mr. L. E. Setser's was cleaned off this morning, and we will clean off the one at the church Friday.

Sunday morning there will be services at the church; after service we will decorate the graveyard. Sunday afternoon there will be a service held at the Setser graveyard and the graves decorated.

Our revival meeting will begin in August as usual. Everybody is invited to worship with us any time.

We are getting along fine in our C. E. society and have good attendance in Sunday school and all our services.

Our pastor, Rev. L. S. Helms, couldn't be with us the second Sunday on account of blood poison on his foot. He is better now and we were glad he could be with us Sunday.

ROXIE FAW, Reporter.

Spring Hill, North Davidson Charge.—Today, there were 129 present for Sunday school, an increase over the previous Sundays. Instead of the Sunday school meeting at 10 o'clock, it will hereafter begin at 9:45 o'clock.

Next Sunday, the first Sunday, the services will be in the afternoon, Sunday school at 1:45 and preaching at 3 o'clock.

Last Sunday evening the C. E. met with Miss Ruth Haynes as leader. Many of the older people took part in the program and gave the C. E. members much encouragement. Next Saturday evening the society will give a social at the home of Miss Jessie Garner.

The Ladies' Aid will hold its regular monthly meeting next Saturday afternoon at the home of Mrs. R. G. Craven.

One of our oldest members, Mrs. Julia York, has been confined to her home, due to illness, for some time. We hope she will soon be restored to health and with us again.

Plans for a Children's Day are being made, but it is not known just when the program will be given.

IN HONOR OF THE DEAD

Blanks

James Howard Blanks, 55, died at his home in the Bearpond community April 30, 1931, after an illness of about a year, due to a complication of diseases. He was confined to his bed for eight days.

Mr. Blanks resided on Henderson, rural route four, and had farmed most of his life. He was born in Granville county, December 30, 1875. He was a member of the Gillburg Methodist Protestant church, where he had held his membership for the past 25 years.

Mr. Blanks leaves, besides a host of friends to mourn his death, the following children: Mrs. J. L. Parks, J. B. Blanks and Page Blanks, all of the Bearpond community, and Mrs. W. W. Finch, of Oxford; W. P. Blanks, of Bearpond, and one sister, Mrs. Joseph Comor, of Rosemary.

The funeral services were held from the Gillburg church on Friday afternoon, May 1, in charge of the pastor, Rev. J. W. Braxton.

Nuckles

The obituary of Mr. W. T. Nuckles has already appeared in these columns, but as his pastor, I wish to pay my tribute to him.

Brother Nuckles was a man who did not in any way seek publicity. On the other hand he was very reserved, preferring that others would take places of leadership in church and elsewhere. Nevertheless he was a loyal church member, faithful in attending the services and doing his part financially.

No doubt he shone brightest in his home. He loved his home and family and always appeared to be happiest when he was at home surrounded by his family and friends.

I considered him one of my best friends and I shall miss him more than I can say. Many, many other friends will miss him also, but we are sure that our loss is his gain and that some day we shall meet him and greet him again.

The relatives and friends of this good man have our sympathy and prayers in this hour of bereavement.

R. A. HUNTER.

Cross

Charles Cross was born in Silver Hill township, Davidson County, May 10, 1859, his age being 72 years, ten months and 21 days. He was ill two weeks with pneumonia. Brother Cross became a member of the Methodist Protestant church when a young boy, and was loyal and faithful until his death. In his passing, South Lexington Methodist Protestant church has lost a faithful member.

He was married to Miss Mary Pierce, of Rowan County, May 7, 1882, and to this union were born nine children, five of whom survive. They are as follows: Mrs. J. W. Robbins and Mrs. D. E. Tesh, both of Lexington; G. B. Cross, of Statesville; W. F. Cross, of Ashboro, and J. L. Cross, of Randleman; twenty-three grandchildren, three great grandchildren, and one brother, Jess Cross, of Badin. Mr. Cross' wife preceded him to the spirit world in August, 1925.

Funeral services were held at South Lexington Methodist Protestant church by the writer, assisted by C. L. Hedrick, men's Bible class teacher. After the funeral service his body was carried to Worthville, in Randolph County, for interment.

He was always faithful to the preaching services and prayer meetings, and often gave wonderful testimony of his Christian experience. His grave was covered with many beautiful flowers, showing the love and esteem of those who knew him. It may be said of Brother Cross, in the language of the Apostle Paul, "I have fought a good fight, I have finished my course, I have kept the faith," and a crown of eternal life was awaiting him.

C. G. ISLEY.

Allen

Elisha Eugene Allen, baby son of Mr. and Mrs. Elisha Allen, aged nine months and twenty-two days, passed away Easter Sunday morning. Surviving besides the parents are three brothers, J. D., Cleo and Douglas, and two sisters, Pauline and Almetta. Funeral services were conducted Easter Monday afternoon by the writer and interment was in the Lexington cemetery. And Jesus said: "Suffer the little children to come unto me, and forbid them not, for of such is the Kingdom of God."

C. G. ISLEY.

Mrs. J. H. Coble

It is not necessary here to give the facts concerning the life of this good woman. It is enough to say that she lived a few days more than 82 years, years full of kindly deeds and kindly thoughts, and departed to be with the Lord when she loved so well and served so long.

Her mother died when Mrs. Coble was not more than twelve years old. Who preached the funeral no one knows, and what the preacher said no one remembers, but through all the years the text he used lingered in the memory of the child and the woman. She expressed a wish that this same text might be used at her funeral, whoever the preacher might be. It fell to my lot to be permitted to use it. "I am in a strait betwixt two, having a desire to depart, and to be with Christ, which is far better; Nevertheless to abide in the flesh is more needful for you." (Phil. 1:23, 24). I tried to say that it was a real conflict in her life—to remain or to depart—because she loved life, and lived it to the full; and on the other hand, loved her Lord, and desired to be with him.

And she did just that. No one of my acquaintances was more alert and alive than she. To call her old was to do her an injustice. She was not even old in body at 82, much less old in spirit and in outlook. She was intensely interested in folks, in places, in things. Flowers—how wonderfully they responded to her tender touch. Her friends, numbered by scores, were always on her heart, and the church and her home, the centers of an abiding affection.

This preacher has lost one of his dearest friends. And the children, how greatly they must miss her cheery presence and helpful ministry. May the Lord, with his infinite compassion, bless and comfort, and sustain them.

HER PASTOR.

Jesus' Choice

Our Savior came indeed to die,
And then go home beyond the sky;
But not until He'd lived His days
And shown to us of Heaven's ways.

The infant King was ordered killed
Because the tyrant Herod willed;
The infant King was far away
When came the cruel, fatal day.

When maddened mob of his own town
From mountain height would cast him down,
He chose to wait for better time—
He left their midst for other clime.

Some furious Jews in hand took stones
To bruise his flesh and break his bones;
He saved himself from their design;
Their plan with his did not align.

But when he saw the rugged cross,
All else appeared to him but loss!
Most fitting place for him to die
Was there betwixt the earth and sky!

There breathing out His mortal breath,
Resigning all His powers in death,
A sacrifice so well worth while Offended men may reconcile.

The Son of God was justified,
His hope fulfilled when there He died:
From Calvary's cross did He broadcast—
Man's day has come, his night is past.

The Pageant of the Out-of-Doors

What a majestic and glorious procession is passing before our eyes in these days of June! It is a parade of matchless and unfailing interest. The hosts of God are passing by. We are impressed with the wonderful beauty and variety, grace and grandeur. The exhibit extends for miles and miles. Earth and sky are joined hand in hand. Light and shade are fused together. It is a great gala day. All things are clad in their most beautiful garments. What a feast our souls may enjoy! It is our supreme opportunity. How feeble and futile are men's attempts at decoration in comparison with the displays of nature. When we behold the beauty of the world we are having a faint glimpse of the glory of God. Yes, God is passing by in these resplendent summer days. Let us not be too preoccupied or too blind to see.

The World's Major Troubles

This morning's paper reports the killing of ten thousand people in China by Chinese bandits. That great country is in a state of chronic warfare. It has some external foes, but its greatest foes are of its own household. Warring factions fill the land with strife. Unhappy land!

Germany, too, is in deep trouble. It cannot meet the demands of the nations for war indemnities. It feels that its punishment is greater than it can bear, and it sees no way of relief. If it had only stayed out of the World war!

Italy is having serious trouble. The Catholics are troubling the government and the government is troubling the Catholics. Settlement will probably be reached soon, but their trouble is one that is not likely to stay settled. "No man can serve two masters."

Russia's troubles continue. Plans do not work out according to expectation. Men working under coercion will not do as good work as men working in freedom. Their five-year plan seems disappointing. The government will lose prestige if its plans do not work.

Other nations of less prominence are also passing through times of tribulation. But it may be seen that nearly all of these troubles are of man's own making. If only the nations would honor and fear God!

A Greater Than Judas Is Here

Judas is commonly regarded as the arch traitor, but he is beaten by a man of our own time. This man is trying to covenant for thirty-five pieces of silver ($3.50) to give you a book that will prove to your satisfaction that Jesus never lived, that he was only a myth. This reminds us of Lincoln's reply to the general who charged Grant with drinking: "I would like to know the brand of liquor he takes, that I might get some of it for some of my other generals." If Jesus was just a myth, he has certainly done wonders for a being of that character.

—The Liberal Arts College Bulletin for June is an attractive number. It is filled with interesting historical matter pertaining to a number of American colleges. The reader will be impressed with the value of colleges conceived and carried on in the true spirit.

—Evangelization needs education as its handmaid. The two go together in exerting the influences that awaken and shape life.

—We trust the meeting called by President Taylor for June 26 will be largely attended and full of inspiration.

FROM BROTHER MINNIS IN INDIA

My Dear Dr. McCulloch:

More than six months have gone by since we took over the work of the Mission. Time surely has passed rapidly. Now we are in the hills for the hot season vacation. Things are almost at a stand-still at the Mission as the school is closed. The teachers have gone to their former homes for a visit. All the boys who have relatives who can support them for the hot season, have gone for a two months visit. There are at the Boys' School only about 25 boys remaining. These are orphans or they cannot return to their relatives for some reason. All the preachers have May as a vacation. All the Missionaries spend from six weeks to two months in some hill station during the vacation season. We have come to the nearest hill station in this state. We drove the 300 miles in the car. We are so glad that we brought out our car, for it being a closed car, provides greater protection from the dust and sun. You, at home, have forgotten that roads get dusty as all the main roads are paved. Our hard-surfaced roads are repaired with dirt from the roadside. The dirt soon dries and becomes dust which is soon carried away by passing motors.

Our work has started off very well indeed. We have baptized three Hindu converts and more than a dozen from the schools have united with the church. Our Dhulia church is in a most healthy condition financially, with all obligations met and a balance sufficiently large to pay every obligation for the coming year. Please don't confuse the church with the Mission. The Mission is in financial difficulties; my department was more than $300 in debt when I came. I am happy to say that I have been able to pay off the debt and have a very small balance now. However, as the members of the Dhulia church are raising money to help build a new church building, all the present balance will soon be transferred to the building fund. Possibly you are wondering how the church can have a balance larger than the annual budget. The answer is simple; first the budget is small; second the membership is almost 200, and nearly all the people who receive salary contribute one-sixteenth of their entire income.

While we are not able to report a big pounding like many of you, yet we are delighted to receive the screen wire and awnings for our new home. We hope to keep out some of the mosquitoes and crickets. Our house is alive with chirping crickets. They are under every box, behind every table, and in every trunk on the first floor. It is not uncommon to find two or three in my topee in the morning. It is a most uncomfortable feeling to have a cricket hopping about and scratching to get out from the top of one's hat.

When we first came to this land every sight which we saw was so strange that we felt like writing it to the folks back home. Now only the extra-ordinary interests us. However, I did see something new some weeks ago. It might interest you.

For a moment recall the last funeral you have attended. The polished motor-hearse, the expensive casket, the hushed atmosphere, and the clock-like movements of the expert undertaker. Come with us: There is a procession all on foot. A man or boy carrying fire in an earthen pot is leading the whole procession. Next are four men carrying the body which is lying on a litter made of two long bamboos with small pieces of bamboo tied crosswise the two long ones. Those who carry the body have a cry that sends a chill to the strongest heart. They yell loudly, "O Brother, Say Ram." (The doctrine is that those who die repeating the name of Ram go to heaven). Following the body is a group of men. Women seldom go to a funeral.

After the procession had passed on to the river bank we turned and followed them. Mrs. Minnis and the children did not care to go near the place so they remained in the car near the river. (The river bed is more than a hundred yards wide, but at the time of which we write it was almost dry). I had never witnessed the burning of a body, so I went up near the men and bowed very humbly. Then I asked if I might stand near and look on. They gladly gave me permission. I went near and watched very closely their every movement. On the gravel they placed dry wood just enough for the body to be laid upon. After the body was placed on the wood and his great toes untied someone gave him a drink of water and a chew of a favorite leaf which the people chew here. Then they laid the wood all around him and over him. It was trying to see them lay a large chunk on his face and press it down hard to keep it from falling off. Wood is expensive in India so it was carefully placed around him. Only about 560 pounds of large stove wood were used in this fire so the body was not entirely covered. Some cotton stalks were laid near the wood and with the fire brought from the home the wood was lighted. Then some kerosene oil was poured on the wood and soon it was burning well. As the wood was burning well there was nothing more to do but wait, so many of the men sat around me talking about the man, his family, Hindu customs, and the Christian beliefs. They asked me questions and I asked them many. They were low caste, leather workers, or shoe-makers. So they knew very little why such and such were done. When the fire had become very hot some one went to the stream and brought an earthen vessel of water. With this on his shoulder some one took a stone with a sharp point and knocked a hole in the pot. Then with water running from the hole the man walked around the fire three times then dropped the pot which broke into bits.

The men explained that they would wait until the skull cracked which it does after the fire heats the head sufficiently to form a gas which must explode. It was the most nauseating experience I have ever witnessed, yet the men talked to me of the burning body as if it had been that of a dog or horse. After a short time his flesh had burned from the bones, and the flesh on his head was burning so the men saw that it would soon be time to go. After a few moments more there was a distinct report from the head, and another and then all was over. The men left for their bath. Three days later his relatives came and threw the ashes in the water.

Imagine if you can, his poor wife at home a dozen miles away. Yesterday her husband left home to visit friends in Dhulia. That night after eating a good dinner and apparently in good health, he retired to awake about midnight feeling ill. At two he died. His wife was not informed. Some one suggested that possibly someone might send her a card after it was all over. The men said that she would return to her father's house and after three or four months he would get another husband for her. How cheap life seems to be among these people. I was glad that I could tell of a better way. Yet, Mr. Ghandi, the great national leader in India says, that the religions of India are good enough for her people.

Possibly some of you continue to read of the unrest in this land. Yes, it continues. Just what will be the outcome no one can say. However, so far we have no fear at all. You need not have any fears about our safety. This movement is not directed against white people, nor Christianity. It, so far, is purely a political matter.

We are reading with much pleasure and satisfaction the reports in the paper. At times it is hard for us not to wish that we were back among you. The reports are so interesting and some show great progress in various departments. This work is very, very trying in that it is hard to see any results from our labors. Yet we are happy in the work and are anxious to get back to the Mission.

Hoping that the summer months will bring great revivals in many of our country churches, we remain,

THE MINNIS FAMILY.

P. S.—May I add this personal note: I am surely enjoying every copy of the paper. It is like a personal letter from many friends. When a copy goes astray we feel like we have missed something worth while. Our little boy has come to look for the paper too, for he likes to have us read to him the stories. Soon you may look for my renewal. I am keeping my eye on the paper list and I hope that it will be possible to go over the top.

I know that you are interested in the happenings of the whole world so I am sending you a clipping from The Times of India. The papers are full of Missionary activities. It is much against our work but because we are being noticed by the press is a good sign that something must be impressing those who are in a position to see the work being done by Christian forces.

We shall go back to Dhulia after it rains here and then we shall expect it to rain in Dhulia after a week. It ought to rain within three weeks and then we shall get our gardens started. Our finances are sufficient to continue but if we need anything extra then we have to make it up. So we are starting a garden and hope to sell many vegetables in the market.

I hope that you are keeping well and enjoying the work and weather.

Assuring you that we are enjoying your paper, and are with you in spirit, I am,

Sincerely,

J. F. MINNIS.

—Are we to have some vacation Bible schools this summer?

THE ANNUAL LEADERSHIP TRAINING SCHOOL

Lest you forget, here is another article reminding you that the annual Leadership Training School will be held in High Point College June 22-29. The school will open on Monday, June 22nd and close on Monday, June 29th. The school will be held simultaneously with the Pastors' Summer Conference.

The usual young people's training courses will be offered and the following standard courses:

Principles of Teaching.

New Testament.

The Message and Program of the Christian Religion.

The Teaching Work of the Church.

Primary Materials and Methods.

Training in Worship and the Devotional Life.

Have you forgotten to register for this school? Rev. J. Elwood Carroll, Duke University, Durham, N. C., is directing the registration campaign. See the local agent in your church, or send your registration fee direct to Mr. Carroll. Please do this NOW. Remember that the cost for room, board, etc., is only $8.00 for the entire week.

These days of confusion and bewilderment present a real challenge. Our beloved church will play well her part. She will bear aloft the standard of God and the banner of righteousness. To this end our annual Leadership Training School is dynamic. The days at High Point will be days of training and inspiration. Don't miss the school!

FRED W. PASCHALL.

FRAUDULENT MEEKNESS

A certain pastor came to a sick bed, and the sick person would not cease to denounce himself in the strongest terms as the greatest of all sinners. "Is it really true then what I have heard of you?" said the pastor. At these words the sick person raised in his bed and said: "What have you heard concerning me? No one can tell anything bad of me that they can prove." Now this person who a moment ago was a contrite sinner, poured forth many songs of praise on his past life and many maledictions over his enemies and slanderers, who insulted him by such bad reports. "Not from enemies and scandalmongers," answered the minister, "but from your own lips I became aware what a bad person you are, but I see you do not believe it yourself."—Publisher Unknown.

WHEN TO REJOICE

Many are ready to rejoice when their desires are fulfilled, when they are favored by fortune and friends. Peter had other cause for rejoicing:—"Rejoice, inasmuch as ye are partakers of Christ's sufferings" (1 Peter 4:13). S. M. Zweimer commenting on this text, says: "The scars of Jesus Christ, the print of the nails, the mark of the spear, are they on our aims, our decisions, our ambitions, our daily habits? Is the shadow of the Cross on your bank account? Who is there that can write in the diary of his daily life, as Paul wrote: 'Henceforth let no man trouble me: for I bear branded on my body the marks of the Lord Jesus Christ'? The man who can do that, and wield the powers of sacrifice, is the man who has boldness to appeal to others."—Good Tidings.

Pastors' Reports

The reports for the second quarter, ending May 4, are now in hand from 75 pastors representing 84 charges. There are 87 charges in the conference. They are served by 77 pastors. One charge—Asheville—is still unsupplied.

The following facts are taken from these reports:

1. Accessions—The total accessions for the first six months of the year are 318. These additions have been received by 41 charges. No accessions are reported by 43 charges. One charge has received 38 members, one 28, one 25, two 17 each, one 15, one 14, two 13 each, one 12, and one 11. The others range from 1 to 9 each.

2. Spiritual Condition—This is reported "good" on 28 charges; "fair" on 35 charges; "not good" on 9 charges. No answer was given on this in 12 reports.

3. Easter Services and Offerings—The reports show that 79 churches held an Easter program and took the Easter offering for the New Century Service. An offering was taken by two churches that did not give the program. The total offering reported is $478.47.

4. Children's Day—The reports from 68 pastors indicate that 129 churches will observe Children's Day.

5. Finances—The average salaries paid pastors for the first six months of the conference year is $438.19. A few charges, six to be exact—that have only the financial strength of mission fields, are not included in this average. In the questionnaire for this quarter was the following question: Can "SOMETHING ON BUDGETS EVERY MONTH" be made effective on your charge? Here are some of the answers: "Yes," "No," "I think so," "Hardly think so," "Not now," "Working at it, looks hopeful," "We are trying to do it," "Trying it, but not having much success," "Doing it now," "Possibly," "I doubt it," "Two of my five churches will do this," "In some of the churches it can," "Perhaps. It will be difficult," "If the people had money," "Trying to pay every month," "The goal adopted by the quarterly conference," "I don't know," "This is possible."

Note this: salary receipts for this year, as compared to a like period of last year, show that 31 pastors have received as much this year as they did last year; 11 have received more; and 22 have received less. On 18 charges the economic conditions are reported the same as last year; 46 charges report economic conditions worse than last year.

Building Projects—Mebane church is talking "Hut." Friendship church, Mt. Hermon charge, is erecting a Sunday School building. The Davidson parsonage has been improved by the addition of a basement. Tabernacle church, on Tabernacle charge has added a Sunday School building, which is now complete with the exception of paint and pews. Lincolnton has just built a new church, cost $5,500. Some improvements have been made on Spring church parsonage. Community church has additional building in contemplation. Some work has been done on Sunday School room at Fairfield, Guilford charge, and a hut is being talked for Vickery on the same charge. English street is building a hut. Plans are on at Asheboro for a parsonage. Bethel church, Mocksville charge, is adding Sunday School rooms. So is Bethany, on Randolph charge. Alamance charge expects to build a parsonage. Bethesda, North Davidson charge, has just completed two more Sunday School rooms. Mt. Carmel, South Lexington charge, is constructing a new church. A new church at Hickory Grove has just been completed, and a hut at St. Paul.

6. Auxiliaries—On 25 charges there are no Auxiliaries.

7. Herald, plans for securing allotment—On 43 charges, the pastor is the agent. Each church has an agent on five charges. The pastor and special committees handles this on 20 charges. The class leaders handle it on one charge. Auxiliaries are assisting the pastor on seven charges. It is being worked through special campaign on one charge. A few charges have no plan. It is gratifying to see that BLACK MARK rise. It is now well up toward the 800 point.

Pastors will please accept our grateful thanks for their response in sending in this report. We are only two short of 100 per cent.

Treasurer's Report

This is published by Dr. Brown in the HERALD of May 21. This report covers receipts for March and April, as Dr. Brown points out. The report for the four months previous to that time was published in the March 19th issue of the HERALD. These two reports cover the first six months of the conference year, and reveal the following facts:

Total receipts on A. C. B., $892.90; New Century Service, $3,434.11; College, $1,537.31; Superannuates, $19.26; Gratitude Gift Deficit, $5.05; Golden Rule Sunday, $7.27.

The grand total receipts for the first six months of the conference year amount to $5,895.90. This is a per capita membership payment of nineteen cents, plus. Deducting the credits from the Women's Auxiliary, the per capita membership payment is slightly less than nine cents. The Auxiliary credits for this period go to forty-seven charges, and total $3,247.02.

Charges That Have Credits on A. C. B.

Alamance, Burlington, Cleveland, Concord, Davidson, Fallston, Flat Rock, Friendship, Forsyth, Graham, St. Paul, Calvary, Greensville, Guilford, Haw River, Henderson, High Point First, Lebanon, Lincolnton, Mebane, Mecklenburg, Midland, Mocksville, Moriah, North Davidson, Pinnacle and Mt. Zion, Pleasant Grove, Porter, Randleman, Randolph, Roberta, Saxapahaw, Tabernacle, Spring Church, Thomasville First, Vance, Whitakers, Why Not, Winston First, Yarbrough. Total 40. This leaves 47 charges with no credits on this budget.

Charges That Have Credits on N. C. S.

Alamance, Albemarle, Anderson, Asheboro, Asheville, Burlington, Fountain Place, Charlotte, Chatham, Cleveland, Concord, Creswell, Davidson, Denton, Draper, Effand, Fallston, Friendship, Forsyth, Gibsonville, Graham, Granville, Zion, Pleasant Grove, Randleman, Reidsville, Roberta, Rockingham, Saxapahaw, Tabernacle, Spring Church, Community Church, Thomasville First, Vance, Weaverville, West Forsyth, Whitakers, Why Not, Winston First, Winston South, Yarrowborough. Total 67. The remaining twenty charges have no credits on this budget.

Charges That Have Credits on College Allotment

Alamance, Anderson, Asheboro, Burlington, Fountain Place, Cleveland, Concord, Davidson, Draper, Fallston, Flat Rock, Forsyth, Gibsonville, Graham, Calvary, Guilford, Henderson, High Point First, Lebanon, Liberty-Siler, Mocksville, Mt. Hermon, Mt. Pleasant, Orange, Pinnacle and Mt. Zion, Pleasant Grove, Randleman, Randolph, Tabernacle, Why Not, Winston First. Total 32. Out of the total of 87 charges, 55 have no credits on this budget.

When the first report for the year was published there were 24 charges that had no credits on any budget. This last report shows that that number has been reduced by nine, thus leaving only 15 charges with no credits.

Pastors and people have our full appreciation for all efforts to raise the finances necessary to carry on our work. It is not so easy to get money now, as we all know. But we are not to be "down cast" on that account. We belong to God; the church belongs to God; the world is His, and the fullness thereof. He will not let His people suffer nor the purpose of His church be defeated because of a money panic. Let us have faith in God, practice the best economy that we know, and keep busy with our work. And "the God of heaven, he will prosper us."

Now the 26th of June

On that date we are to have a great inspirational day at High Point College and the Children's Home. Brother Curry has been very gracious in sharing this day. We are to meet in the college chapel at 10:30 A. M. for the program. Then we go to the Children's Home for the picnic dinner. This word again about the purpose of this day: It is for INFORMATION, INSPIRATION, and CONSECRATION. This is not a money raising occasion, and not one penny will be asked for. We just want to get together to feel the thrill of a great occasion, such as we are hoping to make out of this. EVERY PASTOR IS URGED TO BE THERE, AND JUST AS MANY OF OUR PEOPLE AS CAN POSSIBLY ATTEND. And please do not forget the basket. Bring it full. Think about it; talk about it; pray for it—this occasion—AND THEN BE THERE. Dr. Straughn is to be with us, and other interesting speakers will make up the program.

SUNNY DAYS FOR EVER

A few more joys
Without alloys
While telling here His story.
A few more tears
Down through the years,
Then Christ will come in glory.

A few more tests
Our God requests
To aid in our conforming.
A few more songs
To soothe the wrongs
And promise of the morning.

A few more sighs
Within arise,
As daily we endeavor,
A few more clouds,
Night that enshrouds,
Then sunny days for ever.

—Frances Ure.

A RELIGION NOT WORTH EXPORTING

There are still some strange Christians who think that foreign missions are a wasteful and misguided enterprise. One of these was once expatiating at length on the desirability of leaving the heathen to their ancient faiths on the ground that they suited them and contained much that was noble and beautiful, with a good deal to the same effect, when a minister in the company interrupted by asking: "Then do you really believe that we ought not to try to convert them to our religion?"

"That is my belief," said the man; to which the minister replied: "You will perhaps be surprised to hear that I agree with you. But not for your reasons. I agree with you that Christianity is not worth exporting—if Christianity means what you evidently understand by it. If we empty it, as you apparently do, of loyalty to our Master's commands, and of the obligation to share with all men the blessings that have come to us through Him, and if our discipleship doesn't carry with it the acknowledgement of Him as the Saviour of the world, then I agree with you that it is better to leave the heathen alone than to spend money and effort trying to give them such a poor substitute for the religion they already possess."—G. MacBean in the P. C. Advocate.

MY PREFERENCE

I'd rather see a sermon
 Than hear one any day;
 I'd rather one would walk with me
 Than merely tell the way.
 The eye's a better pupil and
 More willing than the ear;
 Fine counsel is confusing,
 But example's always clear.
 The best of all the preachers are
 The men who live their creeds.
 I soon can learn to do it if You'll let me see it done;
 I can watch your hands in action, but
 Your tongue too fast may run.
 The lectures you deliver, may
 Be very wise and true;
 But I'd rather get my lesson by Observing what you do.
 I may not understand
 The high advice you give,
 But there's no misunderstanding how
 You act and how you live.
 When I see a deed of kindness,
 I'm eager to be kind;
 When a weaker brother stumbles, and
 A strong man stays behind
 Just to see if he can help him; then
 The wish grows strong with me
 To become as big and thoughtful as I know that friend to be.
 All travellers can witness that
 The best of guides today
 Is not the one who tells them, but
 The one who shews the way.
 Though an able speaker charms me with
 His eloquence, I say
 I'd rather see a sermon than
 To hear one any day.

BEWARE OF THE CROWD

"Don't trouble yourself about me, sir: I'll slip into Heaven with the crowd some day," said a poor careless sinner, while urging upon him the necessity of being converted ere it was too late.

I replied, "Friend, you have mistaken the place, the crowd is on the way to hell; therefore if you slip in with the crowd you will slip into hell. Scripture says, 'For wide is the gate, and broad is the way, that leadeth to destruction, and many there be which go in thereat: because strait is the gate, and narrow is the way, which leadeth unto life, and few there be that find it' (Matt. 7:13, 14). He had not thought of that. Have you?"

Salvation is an individual thing. Each person must receive it for himself alone. Reader, ere your soul enters the portals of yon glory-land, you must pass through the straight gate of conversion on that narrow way which leads to it. Yes, it must be conversion—not mere reformation—a real turning to God. Mere profession will not do. The more religious you are without Christ, the more awful will be your fall when it comes. Instead of climbing the ladder of self-righteousness, far better come down to the bottom and take the place of a helpless and lost sinner. When the convicted publican confessed to God, he did not say, "God, we are all sinners!"—no, but he did say, "God be merciful to me a sinner!" (Luke 18:13). The confession, too, of the prodigal in Luke 15 was intensely individual. "Father, I have sinned." And so must it be with each one coming to God for salvation. Well may we say, "Beware of the crowd." Each one will have to do with God for himself. They may glide along with the crowd just now, forgetting the awful realities of eternity, but soon their time-history will close, and at the Great White Throne each will be singled out then and judged according to their works (Rev. 20:13). Jesus came to save the lost only; therefore, if you refuse to take that place you miss the Saviour.

"Not the righteous—Sinners Jesus came to call."

—The Life Line.

AN IMPOSSIBLE THING

II CORINTHIANS 6:14-18

Communion with God without separation from an evil world is here declared to us to be an impossible thing; and how clearly is manifested here the drift of things, even among Christians, in a day like this when large liberality is supposed to be what is pre-eminently Christian, and the love that thinketh no evil is confounded with the blindness which sees none where it manifestly exists. God's Word abides for us today, and the world abides also still in its essential character the same, the busy self-seeking world that knows not the Cross, save, perhaps, as an ornament on the outside.

If we are to know the blessedness of having the Almighty God as our Father and of being enlarged in His things, separation from the world is essential.—Anon.

A SAVIOUR NEEDED

At the close of a service in Germantown, Pa., some years ago, a stranger accosted the late Dr. D. M. Stearns as follows:

"I don't like your preaching. I do not care for the Cross. I think that instead of preaching the death of Christ on the Cross, it would be far better to preach Jesus, the Teacher and Example."

"Would you then be willing to follow Him if I preach Christ, the Example?" replied Dr. Stearns.

"I would," said the stranger, "I will follow in His steps."

"Then," said Dr. Stearns, "let us take the first step. 'Who did no sin.' Can you take this step?"

The stranger looked confused. "No," he said, "I do sin, and acknowledge it."

"Well, then," said Dr. Stearns, "your first need of Christ is not as an example, but as a Saviour." And this is every man's need (Rom. 3:23-26).—Publisher Unknown.

Leader's Suggestions

The subject of right and wrong is not a new one but one that has been discussed for ages by our fathers and their fathers. They have struggled with the same problem and we need not become discouraged even though we do sometimes feel that there is no longer anything that is right—everything seems to be wrong. We can go back as far into history as we have knowledge and find such things as education, the printing press, moving pictures, and many other things which have been considered wrong. If we should make a list of these and check those which have come to be recognized as contributing to the values of mankind could we then determine between right and wrong?

Conflict has held an important place in every life that has amounted to anything. Choices have to be made. One of the first things an individual ought to ask himself when making a choice is: "Will this thing harm me? Will it harm others? Will it harm God?" To choose less than the best is to sin. God has given each of us a temple which we ought to keep clean, else our stewardship is faulty.

For Discussion

1. Is conscience a sufficient guide in the choice of right? What if it fails? (John 16:2).
2. Is anything wrong in itself? What makes it wrong?
3. Where did wrong come from—from God or man?
4. Is wrong part of the plan of God's universe?
5. How can we apply the test, "What would Jesus do?"

GOOD DEEDS

How far that little candle throws its beam!
So shines a good deed in a naughty world.
Heaven doth with us as we with torches do;
Not light them for themselves; for if our virtues

Did not go forth of us, 'twere all alike
As if we had them not."

William Shakespeare.

"Good name in man and woman, dear my Lord,

Is the immediate jewel of their souls:

Who steals my purse steals trash; 'tis something, nothing;

'Twas mine, 'tis his, and has been slave to thousands;

But he that filches from me my good name
Robs me of that which not enriches him,
And makes me poor indeed."

—William Shakespeare.

DIXON-SMOTHERS-WILLIAMS FAMILY REUNION

This family reunion is to meet at Flat Rock church this year, and July 4th is the regular date for the meeting.

This year, however, marks the one hundredth anniversary of the organization of Flat Rock church, and the suggestion has come to me from several sources that we postpone our reunion for a few weeks and join in a reunion with the other sons and daughters of Flat Rock in celebrating this historical event in the life of the dear old church home of our fathers and mothers. And, though I have no authority in the matter whatever, I am assuming the responsibility of saying: We will defer our family reunion for this year until Sunday, August 23rd. A local committee will arrange an appropriate and deeply spiritual program for the occasion.

We trust that our families will be largely represented in that notable gathering. Bring dinner baskets well filled for the noon-day meal.

Some of us are not at all favorable to a family reunion on Sunday, but this is to be a day of great spiritual uplift for all the children and grand children of Flat Rock church.

All who read this will please pass along the word to other members of the family. Thank you and God bless you.

Yours in His service,

A. G. DIXON, Pres. of the Clan.

GOOD RULES FOR BAD TIMES.

1. Begin the day with high expectation.
2. Work with a definite purpose.
3. Do everything promptly and thoroughly.
4. Avoid haste and waste.
5. Depend upon your own efforts.
6. Think only constructive thoughts.
7. Avoid false economy.
8. Shun pessimistic talk.
9. Be patient and persevering.
10. Dare to initiate big ideas.

WOMAN'S MISSIONARY DEPARTMENT

ATTENTION BRANCH AND AUXILIARY SECRETARIES

Dear Departmental Secretaries:

At a recent meeting of the officers of the Executive Committee, it was thought that in order to get the most out of the year's work, each departmental secretary should devote one month to special emphasis of her work, not only through the "Herald," but in direct contact with the secretaries of the local auxiliaries.

The assignment of special months was left to me, so I am suggesting that the following schedule be observed:

June, Mrs. H. G. Paschal, 1910 Buena Vista Road, Winston-Salem, Secretary Scholarships and Workers.

July, Mrs. J. M. Stone, 514 Fifth Ave., Greensboro, Secretary Spiritual Life.

August, Mrs. C. L. Whitaker, Circle Drive, High Point, Secretary Student Loan Fund, High Point College.

September, Miss Esther Ross, Asheville, Secretary Missionary Education; Mrs. J. W. Boyles, Thomasville, Secretary Thank Offering.

October, Mrs. H. W. Maier, Thomasville, Secretary Christian Education; Mrs. George T. Penny, Greensboro Road, High Point, Secretary Children's Home.

November, Mrs. D. S. Coltrane, 902 W. Market St., Greensboro, Secretary Literature; Mrs. J. S. Williams, Asheville, Secretary Bethel Home.

December, Mrs. F. W. Paschal, E. Davis St., Burlington, Secretary Young People's Work.

January, Mrs. J. E. Pritchard, 906 Carolina Ave., Winston-Salem, Secretary Temperance.

February, Dr. Harris Glascock, Greensboro, secretary Benevolences.

March, Mrs. F. R. Harris, Henderson, Secretary Life, Memorial and Perpetual Members.

This will take us up to the 1932 Branch meeting. If for any reason any one would like to shift her date and will make arrangements with the secretary who has the desired date, no objections will be made by me. I am merely making the best schedule I can without being in consulting distance of any one.

May I be allowed one more suggestion? If each auxiliary secretary will send her name and address to the Branch Secretary of her department it will be a considerable aid in making the direct contact desired.

Some time ago I heard of a woman who was elected to a very responsible office. She declined to serve, saying there was too much responsibility connected with the office. She was urged to continue in office, and as I heard it, she was told she had "such a good reputation the society just wanted her for a figure-head. So and so would do the actual work."

I am sure no officer in our woman's work either executive or local wants to be a "figure-head," each wishes to shoulder her own task, so now "to the work—and labor 'til the Master comes," and He'll give the praise.

MRS. R. M. ANDREWS.

FROM PASTORS and PEOPLE

Littleton Charge.—We were pleasantly surprised by our church at Vaughn last Friday night, when we arrived at what we were told to be a social, but turned out to be a shower.

It was a social indeed—
The main feature was a shower,
It rose up like a storm and Came down with mighty power.

Now listen to my secret;
We are proud of each little gift,
But the thing that makes us happy
Is the giver of the gift.

We have always loved you,
We love you now more still;
May we all work together
To do our Master's will.

P. E. BINGHAM, Pastor.

Rockingham Circuit.—Wednesday evening of last week the second quarterly conference was held at the church. The officials of the church gave some interesting reports concerning business affairs of the church.

The members of the Christian Endeavor are entering the work enthusiastically. They hope to gain new members and to do great work in the future.

A society social was held at the pastor's home Thursday evening, May 14. Each member invited some other prospective member. Each one reported a nice time.

June the first a memorial service was held at our church, the Christian Endeavor furnishing special singing.

The second Sunday in June we will have an all-day service. Mr. R. F. Gardner of Kannapolis, will be with us.

We are planning to have Children's Day service the third Sunday of this month. Special efforts are being made to carry out the program.

RUBY MARTIN, Reporter.

West Forsyth.—Last Sunday was a good day on West Forsyth charge. We had good attendance at Baltimore church for the morning service, the church being almost entirely filled. A male quartette, composed of four young men of Baltimore church, rendered a special selection of music at the preaching service. The vote for delegate to the next Annual Conference was taken.

After the service at Baltimore we went to the splendid home of Mr. and Mrs. George Nicholson, having had a previous invitation to visit the home. A most pleasing dinner was enjoyed, and a brief time spent in delightful conversation with these good people. Besides the pastor and family, Misses Millie and Nancy Smitherman and brother, John Smitherman, of East Bend, sisters and brother of Mrs. Nicholson, were guests in the home.

The service at Stony Knoll church at three o'clock was fairly well attended, there being a number of visitors present. We also took the vote for delegate at this service. The vote for delegate is being taken at each church on the charge this month. The revival meeting at Stony Knoll church will begin the first Sunday in July, and we have secured Rev. Robert Short, of Denton, to assist us in the meeting. We are expecting him to arrive in time for the evening service on the first day of the meeting.

Other revival meetings to be held and arrangements for which have been made are as follows: At Tabernacle beginning the second Sunday in July with Rev. J. P. Pegg, of Flat Rock charge, as helper; at Baltimore the fourth Sunday in July, with Rev. C. G. Isley, of South Lexington charge, as assistant, and at Union Hill the second Sunday in August, with Rev. J. O. Fry, of the M. E. church, the helper.

We desire to thank the following people on West Forsyth charge for gifts mentioned, these things being presented to the pastor and family since our last report: Mr. and Mrs. T. L. Long, of Baltimore church, a nice supply of honey; Mr. and Mrs. Ellis Long, of Pleasant Hill church, also a nice supply of honey, (They want the pastor to keep sweet); Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Long, of Pleasant Hill church, good supply of tomato plants; Mrs. Spencer Long, of Pleasant Hill church, sweet milk; Mr. and Mrs. Henry Doub, of Stony Knoll church, cabbage and cherries; Mr. and Mrs. John Kearney, of the Moravian denomination, strawberries; Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Sprinkle, of the Baptist church, cherries.

C. M. Horner, of the Pearson Remedy Company, Burlington, who is a life-long friend of the writer, has our thanks for the gift of about $5.00 worth of medicine, which was presented on a recent visit to the medicine plant in Burlington.

Sunday, May 31, was spent in Burlington by the writer and family, and it was my privilege to attend Sunday school and preaching at the First church. We heard Rev. C. C. Lindley, brother of Dean Lindley, of High Point College, in the men's class, and he presented the lesson in a most interesting and helpful manner. At the preaching service we heard Dr. E. W. Paschall, the pastor, for the first time. He discussed the text, "Upon this rock I will build my church, and the gates of hell shall not prevail against it." It was a very helpful sermon, having it in thoughts of the coming of the Kingdom of God on earth.

Our appointments for next Sunday will be at Tabernacle church at 11 a. m., and at Union Hill church at 7:30 p. m. The appointment at the latter place has been changed from 3 p. m. to 7:30 p. m. for the remainder of the summer months.

C. B. WAY, Pastor.

Fountain Place.—Brother Bethea had asked the writer to fill his appointment at Fountain Place on the evening of June 7, 1931. The whole of our family decided to go and take a little survey of what Brother Bethea is doing for his people at Fountain Place. We took Dr. Alfred W. Hurst, the pastor of the Elon College church, along to preach and to carry the message to the people.

At Fountain Place we found a nice, convenient, well-lighted, and well-seated auditorium, a nice piano and a fair sized congregation of good people. The threatening weather kept some away and the congregation was not so large as we might otherwise have expected. Mrs. Bethea was there to welcome the preacher and to render every assistance possible in the service.

Dr. Hurst preached a strong sermon in which he showed how we are dependent one upon the other and that, in a society such as ours, each person must make his contribution to the uplift and welfare of the whole. "No man liveth unto himself" rang clearly through the discourse.

It would seem to us that Brother Bethea has at Fountain Place a great field for service and usefulness and that he has a people who will do their best to help their pastor so that they all, working together may establish the Kingdom of God in the hearts and lives of the people of West Burlington. We had a pleasant visit with these good people and trust we may have the opportunity of meeting with them oftener.

THOMAS C. AMICK.

Elon College, N. C., June 7, 1931.

Flat Rock Circuit.—The Memorial Association of Flat Rock church gave its program on the fourth Sunday morning in May. The cemetery and church grounds had been nicely prepared for the occasion. A congregation that filled the church auditorium attended the service. The church choir, and a local quartet, furnished the music. The pastor delivered the address. The graves of departed loved ones were decorated with many beautiful flowers. We were glad to have with us Brother Pegram and his wife of First church, Winston, formerly members of this circuit, and still graciously loyal to its memories and interested in the work here.

The Gideon Grove church kindly presented the pastor the beautiful and useful quilt that the Auxiliary had made, securing funds for the payment on the new pews which were recently placed in the church. The wife of the pastor was as glad as he to receive the gift from the Auxiliary. The revival services will begin at this church on the first Sunday in July. Rev. C. G. Isley, of the South Lexington circuit, will be with us for the meeting.

The third Quarterly Conference will convene at Bethany on Saturday, 2 p. m., before the first Sunday in July.

J. P. PEGG, Pastor.

Thomasville, West End Church.—Our revival meeting began the second Sunday night in May, with Rev. Robert Short, of the Denton charge, as the pulpit help. Brother Short was at his best. His messages were greatly enjoyed by all who heard him.

As results of the meeting there were 39 converts and 28 have united with the church. Among the preachers that attended the meeting was Rev. R. A. Swearingen of the M. E. church, Rev. Mr. Brown of the Wesleyan Methodist, Rev. Genn T. Madison, of the first M. P. church, Rev. H. W. Maier, of the Community M. P. church.

I feel much indebted to the brethren and the people for their splendid co-operation, and prayers. Some of the young men have been elected to offices in the church. Both the young men and ladies are leading the mid-week prayer meeting. We are proud of them because they seem to be so interested and willing to do anything they can.

We bow in humble submission to Him who is over all for the converts and co-operation of the people who help to bring results.

In conclusion I wish to express our appreciation for the many inspiring and helpful sermons that have been brought to us by Rev. Robert Short.

H. W. BELL.

Winston, First.—Last week I told our reporter that from that time on I was going to turn the reporting over to her, however, I do want to give our honor roll that was read in our recognition service yesterday morning. As the names of these young people were called they stood and remained standing until the pastor had extended the congratulations of the church to them. The roll is:

Miss Helen Voss, graduate of the Richard J. Reynolds high school, efficiency medal in typing, highest grade in district typing contest, highest grade in group B typing contest at Chapel Hill.

Miss Ruth Braswell, graduate Richard J. Reynolds high school.

Miss Jacques Gwynn, graduate Richard J. Reynolds high school, winner in senior high school voice contest at High Point College.

Miss Sibyl Davis, winner of Kiwanis contest in speech, Richard J. Reynolds high school.

Miss Eloise White, graduate Richard J. Reynolds high school.

Dallas Hauser, graduate Pilot Mountain high school.

Miss Mary Virginia Hauser, highest grade on State test for seventh grade pupils, White Plains graded school.

Bettie Joe Hauser, promoted from higher first to higher second with greatest honor at North Patterson Avenue graded school.

Howe Whitlow, awarded $10 in gold in oratorical contest, High Point College.

J. E. PRITCHARD.

Elbaville, Mocksville Circuit.—There will be a "Home-Coming" here the first Sunday in July. Revival meeting will continue throughout the week with Rev. Glenn I. Madison, of Thomasville, as pulpit help.

Our Sunday school is gradually growing and more interest is being taken. Some of our folks have left for summer school and we had to elect and install some new officers.

The C. E. is still progressing and desire the prayers of all readers.

Rev. Mr. Ferree filled his appointment yesterday morning. His daughter who had a broken arm sometime ago, is improving after much suffering and an operation to remove a part of the bone.

Best regards to the "Herald."

STELLA BAILEY, Reporter.

Draper.—It has been a good while since we were last heard of, but we are still praying. We have had a two week's revival and five confessions. We were glad to have Brother George Brown of Reidsville, N. C., in charge. We were also glad to have the Billy Sunday team of Winston-Salem with us on Sunday, May 31, for both morning and evening services.

We had another union service May 31 with a large crowd and the services were enjoyed by all who came.

Sunday, June 7, we were also glad to have Rev. W. A. Morgan, of Greensboro, N. C., in charge of service. It was thoroughly enjoyed by the congregation. Mr. Morgan was the founder of the church at Draper and we were glad to have him come back. We ask you all to pray for the growth of the church and the advancement of God's Kingdom.

REPORTER.

Darlington, S. C.—It may be interesting to some of the readers of the "Herald" to know we have a little Methodist Protestant conference down here in South Carolina composed of about 16 churches I believe. I have lived down here about 13 years and did not find this conference until for the last two years, and since that time I have had the pleasure of serving two of those churches as superintendent of Sunday school. This little conference has no big fine churches but has a lot of great big hearted Christian workers.

It is a pleasure for me to drive 39 miles each Sunday to serve one church in the morning and the other in the afternoon. We have an average attendance of 60 at each place which, we think, is very good for a country church. We invited the Rev. J. W. Hulin to come and hold a revival to which he quickly responded and we had a great time. Many who read this article know Brother Hulin and know he preaches with great power in the old-time way. The Holy Spirit worked mightily, bringing souls to Christ and also the church being greatly revived. He is coming back again in the near future to serve us at the other church. His services cannot be valued in price. Brother Hulin is 72 years old, but is still active in the pulpit and also between the plow handles in the field. The people love him at almost first sight.

I still hold my membership at Macedonia, Why Not circuit, as it seems like home to me, and I read in this paper that Brother Neece with his workers is doing a great work.

Bidding him and the editor and all the readers of the "Herald" God-Speed.

Yours in His name,

W. D. MOORE.

First Church, High Point.—At the Sunday evening service the minister delivered a timely and forceful discourse on a practical subject, "Some Things Which Money Cannot Buy," from the text in Isaiah 55:1; "Ho, every one that thirsteth, come ye to the waters, and he that hath no money; come ye, buy and eat; yea, come buy wine and milk without money, and without price." Among worthwhile goals that we may work for and set ourselves he enumerated first, a good name, second, a happy home, then a contented spirit, and lastly, a hope of Heaven. These highly desirable objectives cannot be bought, but yet may be ours "without money and without price." He said that the Bible nowhere condemns the power of money or its lawful possession and rightful use, but states that "the love of money is the root of all evil."

Children's Day will be observed on Sunday, June 21st, when the group of sixteen children from the Home will present the same program that they gave in Washington at the recent convention.

The Woman's Auxiliary is holding its monthly general meeting this Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock in the church parlor.

The Christian Endeavor society will meet Monday evening at 7:45 o'clock in regular weekly session. The executive committee will hold a short meeting before the devotional period, when the topic, "The Need for Christian Thoughtfulness and Kindness" will be discussed. The leader will be Miss Mabel Davis.

In the mid-week prayer service Wednesday evening the minister will speak on "Beginning An Endless Friendship." These intimate, heart-to-heart talks of Rev. Mr. Farmer are very helpful and encouraging in the strife and battle of everyday life.

The Leadership Training school will be held at High Point college June 22-29, and the rate for the week has been reduced to $8.00. Miss Margaret Snipes has been appointed registration agent for First church, and it is hoped that a large number of our young people will attend and gain the benefit of these worthwhile classes.

Among the 160 graduates from High Point high school who received diplomas last Friday evening were the following boys and girls of First church membership: Misses Dorothy Bowen, Sarah Everhart, and Ruth Poole; Messrs. James Hinkle, William Bodenheimer, and James G. Snipes, Jr. We extend congratulations to these worthy and plucky young folks.

Through the summer choir rehearsals will be held on Thursday evenings. During the absence of Prof. Ernest B. Stimson, who left last week for Cincinnati, Ohio, to take a course in music at the Conservatory Summer School, Miss Mae Kirkman will play the organ, and Mr. Arthur Fidler will direct the choir. Mr. Stimson was accompanied by his sister, Miss Kathleen.

We are much pleased to note that Mr. Earl Teague, who underwent an operation for appendicitis last week at Guilford General hospital, is recovering satisfactorily.

Mrs. J. G. Snipes left last week for Norfolk, Va., on a visit to her niece.

Miss Dorothy Lee Rankin, who has been a student at Western Maryland college for the past year, returned here last Wednesday to spend the summer with her parents, Capt. and Mrs. A. M. Rankin.

We are much gratified to announce that Mrs. R. I. Farmer, who has been ill, is much improved and able to attend church services.

Mr. Lewis E. Teague was again commissioned Judge of the Municipal court last week by Governor Max Gardner. This will be Judge Teague's fifth year in office, and he has made an enviable record is the disposal of cases in the local court.

Little Egbert Fogleman, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Fogleman, had the misfortune to fall from a porch swing and break his arm, but we are glad to know that the fracture is mending nicely.

Mr. E. L. Douglas, chairman of the committee, is boosting the "Herald" in an intensive campaign in the Baraca class, and has secured a large number of new subscribers and renewals.

Registration of students for summer school at High Point college began Monday morning, and reached a satisfactory figure by noon with more to follow. The instructors will be as follows: Dr. Lindley, religious education; Miss Vera Idol, English; Prof. C. R. Hinshaw, education; Prof. Ben Hill, biology and geography; Prof. J. H. Mourane, chemistry; Dr. P. S. Kennett, history; Miss Claire Douglas, modern languages; Miss Margaret Sloan, music; and Miss Elizabeth Crowell, art.

Albemarle Tidings.—For a number of years there has been no Christian Endeavor society in our church. Those of the ages of Juniors and Intermediate Christian Endeavorers have been working in an organization known as the Golden Links. Mrs. A. A. Wagner has been superintendent of the Juniors while Mrs. C. S. Moton has been superintendent of the Intermediates. These two ladies deserve much credit for the faithful work they have done with our children and young people. Recently Mrs. Moton and her young people have decided to convert their organization into an Intermediate Christian Endeavor. The following officers have been elected: President, Doris Hatley; vice-president, Charles Taylor, Jr.; recording secretary, Virginia Curry; treasurer, Irene Hatley; pianist, Mabel Lipe. The corresponding secretary will be elected at another date. Much is to be expected from Mrs. Moton and her fine group of young people.

We regret very much that because of business conditions Brother Robert L. Leonard and his family have moved from Albemarle to Lexington. Brother Leonard is a former superintendent of our Sunday school and a fine worker in the various lines of church activity. Our loss is Lexington's gain. We wish them well in their new home and field of activities.

We have often heard of the exchange of pulpits by pastors of two different churches. But on Sunday, May 31, some of the members of Albemarle church and the Welch Memorial church of High Point were parties of the exchange of pews. On this day Mr. C. W. Hatley and family, and Mr. D. L. Hatley and family visited Welch and at the same time Mr. W. W. Fry and family and Mr. D. G. Hiatt and family visited Albemarle. This was quite an interesting coincidence and one that no doubt was appreciated by all concerned. The Hatleys are among our best at Albemarle and the Frys and the Hiatts are of the best at Welch. They are the kind that are loyal to their church and they stand by their pastor. They have never been known to fail to stand by their pastor under any circumstances. This pastor appreciated his visitors from a former pastorate and is quite certain that Brother Anderson appreciated his. A pastor has reasons to always appreciate the member who loves his former pastor for he that loves not his former pastor or speaks discouragingly of him is very apt to pay the same compliment to his present pastor, sooner or later.

Our revival at Albemarle is still in progress and is growing in interest at every service. Brother Troxler is bringing sermons of power and they are being gladly received. It is too soon to determine the outcome, but it is very evident that we are to have a good meeting. The people are highly pleased with Brother Troxler and we are all happy to have him in our midst.

GEO. L. CURRY.

Gibsonville Church.—A number of our folk including Rev. and Mrs. Bethea attended the community singing at North Carolina College for Women at Greensboro, May 22. They reported a splendid song service.

Our revival meeting began the fourth Sunday in May. Rev. D. D. Holt, pastor of the M. E. church, came with his congregation and worshipped with us on Sunday night. He preached an interesting and inspiring sermon.

We were glad to have Rev. Rupert P. Coleman, pastor of the Baptist church, with his congregation, also members of the Lutheran church, present to worship with us in this service.

On Monday Rev. L. W. Gerringer came to us and did the preaching throughout the remainder of the meeting. He preached some splendid and helpful sermons; we trust they will not soon be forgotten. There were a number of conversions and others reclaimed during the meeting. The following have taken a step further and united with the church on last Sunday morning: Ransom Cecil, Mary McCollum, Harvey Lee McCollum, and Mabel McCollum. We are glad to have them come into the church. May they remain faithful and true to the cause which they have professed.

We did not have one, but a number of special singers who came for the services and rendered music which was very much appreciated. Among those were Miss Mildred Sexton, of Enfield, a guest of Rev. and Mrs. Bethea, who came in time to attend the community singing in Greensboro and remained throughout the meeting, rendering vocal selections from time to time.

For the young people's service on Thursday night Miss Lula Riddle of First M. P. church, Burlington, came with the Junior quartette and gave three selections.

On Friday night Mr. Easley, the blind pianist of Burlington, came with his quartette and rendered several selections. We are pleased to report that Mr. Easley is planning to be present for the service on the fourth Sunday in the month and will again furnish some musical selections.

We were glad to have a number of other folks from Burlington, also Rev. A. D. Shelton, to worship with us in the meeting. We welcome you all. Come again.

Miss Mary Ruth Huffman of Greensboro college, was visiting her parents on last weekend and was present for both Sunday school and preaching services last Sunday. Miss Huffman is a splendid girl and we always enjoy having her with us.

Miss Ella Mae Sears is at home for the vacation after spending the winter in South Carolina where she has been attending high school. Miss Sears is a splendid Sunday school and Christian Endeavor worker. We are very glad to have her spend the vacation with us.

We regret to report that the condition of Mrs. I. U. Woodard doesn't seem to be much improved. We hope she will soon be well again.

Mrs. M. L. Randolph, who has been on the sick list for some time, is able to attend church again.

The members of the Young Men's Bible class were hosts to the members of the Young Ladies' Bible class at a "fish fry," given at Patton's Spring on last Friday evening. About fifty attended and reported an enjoyable time.

A special program is being prepared for Children's Day next Sunday, which will be given at 11 o'clock. Everybody is invited to attend this program.

The Young Ladies' Bible class will hold their June meeting on Friday of this week with Mrs. Lucy Rice; all members are requested to be present.

Mr. J. L. Roundtree and Mr. A. B. Owen are nominated candidates for delegates to Annual Conference.

REPORTER.

First Church, Thomasville.—The work is moving along very well. Last Sunday we had a small increase in attendance.

Last Sunday evening our church met with the other churches in a tent to hear the first sermon of a series of services held by Rev. MacKendree Long. Although he was brought here by the Presbyterian church, the other churches were invited to take part. We are looking forward to success in the meetings and believe that the community will be benefited.

The report of the Washington Convention was given to us by Mr. L. R. Jarrett. The important programs are as follows:

Monday: address by Dr. Broomfield.

Tuesday: talks by missionaries.

Wednesday: program by Pine Ridge school in Kentucky.

Thursday: program by High Point Children's Home.

Friday: talks by Taylor, Little and other noted speakers.

Saturday: music by different colleges.

We are glad to hear that Dr. D. R. Connell, our Sunday school superintendent, is recovering from illness.

ISHMAEL DORSETT, Reporter.

Lebanon Church, Spring Church Charge.—Pastor Lowdermilk gave us a very splendid sermon last preaching Sunday. He chose his text from the second chapter of Hebrews. A very interesting fact about the sermon was that Rev. Mr. Lowdermilk used this same text on the same Sunday, May 17, 35 years ago, when he preached his first sermon. Before beginning his sermon he told us of the joy and satisfaction he had gained from these 35 years he has been serving his Master. He said that after preaching his first sermon he felt like a bird just being turned out of a cage. I only hope that we may all be as contented and faithful in doing our Master's will as he is.

We are very sorry that Brother Lowdermilk is now sick and will not be able to fill his appointment next Sunday. We all hope that he will soon recover.

We all enjoyed very much joining with the Spring church people last Sunday in helping to celebrate the hundredth anniversary of their church.

VIRGINIA GRANT.

State Street, Lexington.—An unusually large attendance at the services, the return of our young people from college: Miss Helen Harkey and Miss Lila Aron and Mr. Homer Evans. The coming back to Lexington and of course back to the church and all its activities of Mr. F. J. Cox and his family, all were causes of gladness and enthusiasm, but the most delightful feature of the day was having Dr. and Mrs. Dixon and a group of young people from the Children's Home with us. The girls and boys from the Home who gave the pleasing program at the convention at Washington brought us the same fine program Sunday morning. Dr. Dixon gave us a brief but most helpful address at the 11 o'clock hour. In the afternoon the children gave their program at a large tabernacle which has been built here for the Home revival campaign which is now in progress. A large audience heard the children and much favorable comment and many expressions of appreciation were heard on every hand. Fortunate, indeed, is any child who is under the guidance and care of Dr. and Mrs. Dixon. Seldom does any character possess so much of love and sympathy and good judgment and common sense all combined as Dr. and Mrs. Dixon both have. Let every church and every individual do more for the Home and as far as possible relieve the burdens of these good people.

Mr. and Mrs. Blanton and Master Francis were with us Sunday.

Pleasant Grove.—The attendance is very good in Sunday school and the church services. There were 163 in Sunday school Sunday morning. Our pastor brought us two very impressive and helpful sermons.

Plans are being made for the annual memorial service. Mr. I. W. Burton, the faithful president of the Memorial association, has been in bad health for several months. Mr. I. B. Morris was elected to help Mr. Burton make a program for this service.

The Children's Day program has been held back by the epidemic of measles. Most of the children are back in Sunday school and we hope to hold this service right soon.

The Ladies' Aid will meet Wednesday afternoon with Mrs. W. H. Newby. The last meeting was held jointly with the brotherhood at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Homer Veach. The brotherhood met at the parsonage Saturday evening. All the members were present but those kept away on account of sickness.

Glad to note Mr. J. Maynard Kennedy is improving; he is able to leave the hospital and is now at home.

Clothing and Other Gifts

Miss Annie L. Forrest, Littlestown, Pa., 13 hats for girls.

The Moffitt Underwear Company, High Point, by James Moffitt, 81 suits of underwear for our boys. James thus continues the annual gift to the Home which has been made by his father, the late H. A. Moffitt, for several years. We appreciate this very much.

Mrs. Geo. T. Stephens, High Point, one large doll house and several toys for our children.

May the dear Lord bless and keep all these contributors.

Please Remember

We are offering a good picture of our present group of children to every Sunday school in the Conference which will make a regular monthly offering to the Home for June, July, August, September and October. To get in on this each school must start in June. Please let us hear from each school in the Conference for these five months. You can thus help us to take care of the children committed to our care. We thank you for your co-operation.

Fruits and Vegetables

Word comes from the fields that a number of the good friends of the Home are already preparing to can fruit and vegetables for us, to be brought to the Home in late summer and the fall. We are glad for this, and may the Lord give you an abundance to can and preserve for yourselves, and some for us.

When you put food products of any kind in tin cans for us please label it because we have to open from eight to ten cans at once and we need to open all of one kind.

We have more glass cans here than we can fill, so will be glad to furnish some cans to those who will fill them for us. We appreciate your thoughtfulness and your help so much.

Yours in His service,

A. G. DIXON, Supt.

THE TRUSTEES OF OUR METHODIST PROTESTANT CHILDREN'S HOME

My attention has recently been called to the incorrectness of the list of trustees for the Home as published in the last "Conference Journal." I should have corrected this for the good secretary of our Annual Conference, but for some unaccountable reason did not get it done. I am therefore asking for space in the "Herald" in which to publish the correct list:

J. M. Millikan, chairman, Greensboro, N. C.
A. M. Rankin, treasurer, High Point, N. C.
R. M. Andrews, D. D., Charlotte, N. C.
Mrs. A. G. Dixon, High Point, N. C.
Geo. T. Penny, High Point, N. C.
Dr. S. S. Coe, High Point, N. C.
V. W. Idol, High Point, N. C.
R. R. Ross, Asheboro, N. C.
Mrs. W. C. Hammer, Asheboro, N. C.
C. F. Finch, Thomasville, N. C.
Dr. F. R. Harris, Henderson, N. C.
J. C. Penny, Charlotte, N. C.
G. J. Cherry, Charleston, S. C.
H. A. Garrett, Burlington, N. C.
S. W. Taylor, D. D., ex-Officio.
Rev. R. I. Farmer, Honorary.
Rev. J. C. Broomfield, D. D., Pittsburgh, Pa.
We make our apologies to Messrs. J. C. Penny, G. J. Cherry and H. A. Garrett for the omission of their names in the "Journal."

And we regret that the names of W. H. Ragan and George R. Marshall have not been properly left out of the list. Mr. Ragan is deceased and Mr. Marshall has notified us that he never accepted the position and asked that his name be not used.

We are so glad even at this late date to be able to make this proper correction.

Yours in His blessed service,

A. G. DIXON, Supt.

MARRIED

Vance-Reynolds

A wedding of great interest to many friends was solemnized last Tuesday evening, May 26, at the home of the bride's parents on Fourth street, when Miss Inez Reynolds became the bride of Mr. Ralph H. Vance in a beautiful ceremony at which Rev. R. I. Farmer, pastor First church, officiated. Only relatives and close friends were in attendance. Prior to the solemnization of the sacred vows, which were spoken before an improvised altar of ferns and roses, Miss Vera Smith sang "O Promise Me" and "Because," with piano accompaniment by a sister of the bride, Mrs. L. F. Honeycutt. The entire lower floor of the home was prettily decorated with many lovely summer flowers. The bride was charming and winsome in an ensemble of pink and blue silk crepe with a pink picture hat and matching accessories.

The groom, who is the eldest son of the late Mr. C. W. Vance and Mrs. Vance, was graduated from High Point college with the A. B. degree in the class of 1928, while his bride is also an alumna of the same institution, having been a member of the class of 1929. For the past three years Mr. Vance has been instructor of science in Bartlett Yancey high school at Yanceyville, N. C.

Mrs. Vance is the pretty and attractive daughter of Rev. and Mrs. Geo. L. Reynolds, who have made their permanent home in High Point for several years. Rev. Mr. Reynolds being a popular and honored member of the N. C. conference. Mrs. Vance has been a successful teacher in the Guilford County school system since her graduation from college.

This marriage is the culmination of a happy romance which began in high school days. Following the ceremony the newly wedded pair left for a honeymoon journey by motor through the Shenandoah Valley of Virginia to Washington City. They are now at home with the groom's mother, Mrs. C. W. Vance at 505 Montlieu Ave., High Point. Heartly congratulations and good wishes of love and hope are being showered upon this worthy and highly esteemed young couple, who in the heyday of radiant youth and beauty have begun this great adventure of life together with high hopes and promise of usefulness, happiness, and Christian service. That their fondest dreams and ambitions may be fully realized is the earnest wish and prayer of a legion of fond relatives and admiring friends.

"I saw two clouds at morning,

Tinged by the rising sun,
And in the dawn they floated on
And mingled into one;
I thought that morning cloud was bless'd,
It moved so swiftly to the west.

"Such be your gentle motion,
Till life's last pulse shall beat;
Like summer's beam, and summer's stream,
Float on, in joy, to meet
A calmer sea, where storms shall cease—
A purer sky, where all is peace."

IN HONOR OF THE DEAD

Delk

Death has again invaded our ranks and taken from our midst one of our faithful members, Mr. J. B. Delk. His parting came May 28, after being ill about one hour. Bro. Delk was 68 years and 16 days old. Just 15 years ago to the day, he followed his loving and devoted companion to her last resting place on the fifth Sunday in May as we followed him.

Brother Delk professed religion in early life and joined Piney Grove church and lived a devoted and faithful member till death claimed him. He was a liberal supporter of his church in every way and a very substantial friend to his pastors and had a way of making us feel at home in our visits with him.

His body was laid to rest in Piney Grove cemetery in the presence of a large concourse of friends and relatives. For almost an hour a constant stream of people marched by his casket to take a last view.

He leaves to mourn their loss one son, Mr. J. C. Delk; two daughters, Mrs. Van Wood, of Handy, and Mrs. S. D. Lowe, of Farmer. There is also one surviving brother, Mr. A. L. Delk, of High Point, and thirteen grandchildren. With them we can but bow our heads in humble grief and submission, for we too feel very keenly our loss, with the church, the home, the community.

The funeral was conducted by the writer, assisted by Rev. J. B. Trogon, Rev. E. A. Bingham, former pastors. The grave was banked in a very beautiful floral display, which bespoke in a measure the love and high esteem in which he was held.

"Here our hearts are broken, brother,
And the twilight lingers near;
But a glorious day is coming,
Where we'll never say farewell."

ROBERT SHORT, Denton Charge.

Moffitt

"Howe'er it be, it seems to me
'Tis only noble to be good;
Kind hearts are more than coronets,
And simple faith than Norman blood."

Once more the membership of the First Methodist Protestant church, High Point, has been sadly bereaved by the loss of a greatly beloved friend and faithful co-worker, Mr. Hugh Alfred Moffitt, whose sudden passing on last Monday evening, May 18, was a severe and painful shock to the community. Born March 7, 1869, at Moffitt's Mill, Randolph county, he was the son of Hugh T. and Martha Brooks Moffitt. Both his father and grandfather having been ministers of the Christian denomination, it was small wonder that he gave his heart to Christ in youth, and determined to follow His precepts through life.

The world evaluates men and women by the goals which they set for themselves, and the objectives to which they devote their time, talents and energy. First of all Mr. Moffitt loved his family, and to his wife and children gave his heart's deepest affection and best efforts. In October, 1897, he was happily married to Miss Sallie Provost, of Worthville, N. C., who has been a congenial and devoted companion and true helpmeet in every sense of the word, walking by his side in shadow and sunlight, aiding him and rejoicing in his every success. Into their home were born six children, one son dying in infancy, the surviving sons and daughters being the following: Mrs. Clyde Cox, James and Alfred Moffitt and Misses Ruth and Martha Moffitt, all of High Point. There are also two grandchildren, Sarah and Clyde Cox, Jr., to whom he was a second father after their own father's death. He and family lived near the old First church many years, but on account of the expansion of the business district he sold the old home about seven years ago and built a handsome, modern one on North Main street near the entrance to Emerywood.

Then he devoted himself assiduously to his business; upon moving to High Point in 1898 he opened a dry goods store on Main street which soon expanded into a lucrative establishment, but after a disastrous fire he closed it and engaged in manufacturing, being owner and manager of the Moffitt Underwear Mills in Mechanicsville. He was also interested in banks and other enterprises, and owned valuable real estate here and in Greensboro.

Then Mr. Moffitt loved his church. Soon after moving here with his bride they united with the First church. For 33 years he has been one of its most liberal supporters, and an unusually faithful and interested attendant upon all services, very seldom being absent. Wednesday evenings always found him in the midweek prayer meeting; he was a steward for many years and a trustee at the time of his death. He was always a loyal friend to his pastor, whoever he might be, and co-operated with him in every project and enterprise. He went several times as delegate to the annual conference and for many years, with the late Mr. W. P. Pickett, Dr. and Mrs. J. R. Reitzel, Mrs. J. J. Welch, Mr. A. M. Idol and others, was one of the pioneers in our denomination who bore the burden and responsibility of the First church in its early days, thus laying the foundation of the heritage which we enjoy today. When the new church was erected he was one of the largest contributors to the building fund, and on the day when it was opened in April, 1925, he made a speech from the floor, reminding the congregation that it had been erected to the glory of God and not for selfish pride and worldly display. He was also a member of board of trustees of High Point College.

Then he loved his city and community, having been interested in all civic improvements. In 1923 he was elected to sit on the board of aldermen, and in 1925 was the people's choice for mayor. During his administration our city made many strides of progress, one of the most outstanding being the erection of the mammoth dam at Municipal Lake, Jamestown, for the city reservoir, and another, the structure of a network of asphalt streets over the city. He paid much attention to the improvement and expansion of our city schools.

Mr. Moffitt also loved his neighbors and friends; of a pleasant, jovial personality, he was always cheerful and genial. Though of a modest, unassuming nature, he was unselfish and easily approachable by all classes of people. He delighted in deeds of kindness and helpful service to his fellows and especially to his employees.

Our friend's death was untimely; while yet in the noonday of vigorous manhood, ere the evening shadows began to lengthen, the close of his life was sudden, unexpected, but peaceful—no painful suffering or weary suspense for the loved ones, and we can but think the end came just as he would have wished. He will be sadly missed in the home, in the church where for a long time there will be an aching void, and in the city where he was a potential force for good. Truly he brightened his corner and filled acceptably the niche where circumstances placed him, and made the world better and happier for having passed this way. The influence of his upright life is immortal and will live on in ever widening circles through untold ages. Many men and women, boys and girls, whose lives he has touched, "rise up and call him blessed." To his grief-stricken wife and children, brothers and sisters we extend heartfelt and deepest sympathy.

Impressive funeral services, which were largely attended, were conducted in First church on Wednesday afternoon at 3 o'clock by the present pastor, Rev. R. I. Farmer, with the assistance of two former pastors, Dr. A. G. Dixon, of the Children's Home, and Dr. George R. Brown, of Reidsville, and President S. W. Taylor. The unusually lavish offering of flowers was a silent token of esteem and sympathy.

"I like the man who faces what he must,
With step triumphant and a heart of cheer,
Fights the daily battle without fear,
Sees his hopes fail, yet keeps unflinching trust
That God is God, that somehow true and just His plans work out for mortals; nor loses faith in man,
But with a smile and words of cheer gives zest

To every toiler; he alone is great
Who by a life heroic conquers fate."

Moffitt

Hugh Alfred Moffitt was born March 7, 1869, at Moffitt's Mill, Randolph County, North Carolina. He departed this life suddenly May 18, 1931, after suffering an apoplectic stroke while on a political mission for friends. He was aged 62 years, 2 months and 11 days.

A merchant, manufacturer, business man and mayor of High Point from 1925 to 1927. Brother Moffitt was also a religious leader in the community and a staunch member of the First Methodist Protestant church. It is estimated that during the thirty years of his membership here that he did not miss attending at least one worship service more than a dozen Sundays. He was the nineteenth member of the church in its organization and held several official positions. His presence will be missed.

Surviving to mourn their loss are his widow, the former Miss Fannie Prevost, and five children, Mrs. Clyde C. Cox, Miss Ruth, James S. and Alfred, and Miss Martha Moffitt, all of High Point; two brothers, A. T. Moffitt, of High Point, and T. J. Moffitt, of Mineral Springs, Texas; and two sisters, Mrs. E. R. Cox and Mrs. T. S. Graves, of Greensboro; and his step-mother, Mrs. Hugh Moffitt, of Greensboro.

Neville.

The going out suddenly on a calm Sunday morning of the quiet, beautiful life of Miss Nina Wilmer Neville, of Whitakers, was a shock to the community. The funeral was in the home on the following afternoon and the interment was in the Enfield cemetery.

The tints and fragrance of flowers, the soft light and softer music without song through the entire service contributed to make one of the most impressive funerals it was ever my privilege to participate in or witness. This plan, soft music without song through the entire service, was the one followed in her baptismal service at the church some years ago, hence thought by the family fitting to be used in this last rite. The same pianist, Mrs. J. H. Cutchin, rendered the soft music in both the baptismal and the funeral services. "Heavenly Voices," one of the pieces played in both services, added to the impressiveness.

I, personally, was more profoundly impressed in the memory of the fact that a few years ago, as a visiting minister here in the absence of the pastor taking a course in the seminary, I had the privilege of receiving Miss Neville into the church.

Her life was one of beauty loving, as indicated by her flower garden, attended with care and devotion; also one of thoughtful service to those in the home and to others.

Surviving her in the immediate family are her parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. K. Neville, and one brother, Ben Holland Neville, student in the University of North Carolina.

What Is Man?

Canst thou by searching find out man?
Canst thou trace out the Artist's plan?
Canst thou describe the perfect whole
And state how body joins to soul?

Canst thou tell how man moves and goes,
Reveal the way he thinks and knows,
Or tell just how he hopes and fears,
Or why he laughs and sometimes sneers?

Canst thou explain his living here
And going hence to other sphere?
Is whole of man derived from clod,
Or did he come from Living God?

Substitutes for God

Through one of the Old Testament prophets God complained that His people had forsaken Him, the fountain of living waters, and had hewn out to themselves cisterns, broken cisterns that could hold no water. Choosing broken and empty reservoirs instead of the living fountain—what amazing folly! Such conduct reveals the blindness and stupidity of men. Yet in all generations there have been those who have forsaken God for substitutes. This is astonishing when we consider the infinite inferiority of all possible substitutes. Such a course is not only highly insulting to God, but it is deeply disappointing to those that pursue it. God is perfect as an object of trust and affection. His name is faithfulness. His nature is love. He is more than the heart of man can desire. All possible substitutes are failures. They do not and cannot satisfy. They cannot quench the thirst of the soul. Wealth has been tried and found wanting. So has the honor that comes of men. All idolatries are but husks. The soul of man cannot feed upon them. Yet most men—perhaps all men—are prone to some form of idolatry, disposed to put their supreme trust in some form of earthly good. This may be inevitable in the stage of ignorance, stupidity and folly, but all should make haste to emerge from that stage into a knowledge of God. No soul that truly knows God can seek or accept any substitute.

—Next week will be rendered additionally important by the Pastors' Summer Conference and by the Young People's Training school.

—The report we published last week regarding the annihilation of matter was rather self-contradictory. It was probably written by some one who did not get the precise meaning of what the lecturer said.

When Tempted to End Your Life

Most of us find this life so interesting and pleasant that we desire to continue it indefinitely. No matter how attractive Heaven has been made to appear to us and no matter how strong may be our assurance that we are prepared for Heaven, we still cling to the earth. Yet sometimes the cup of life becomes so bitter that men feel like casting it away. Especially is this true if they are unable to see any prospect of amelioration of their lot. But God is the giver of life and He alone has the absolute right to end life. No man is free to take his own life. No man liveth to himself. Our fellow-man have an interest in our lives and for their sakes we should not take our own lives. But God has the supreme claim upon us and for His sake we should await His summons. Through the sufferings which seem to make life intolerable to us God may be trying to do an exquisite service for our souls. When we thwart the purpose of God concerning us we are doubtless robbing ourselves of great spiritual benefits. When we find ourselves under great tribulation we should remember that we have not passed the bounds of God's love and care. Our troubles are tools in the hands of the Divine Sculptor with which He is trying to bring out in us beauty of character. Let us persevere in the way of God's choosing for us, however rough the way, and He will lead us out into the most pleasant paths.

—It appears this week from reports that vacation Bible schools have not been lost sight of.

—The Salvation Army is in process of change from an autocracy to a democracy.

—Rev. H. F. Surratt is engaged to preach in First Congregational Church, Stratford, Conn., until August 1, when he expects to return to North Carolina.

—Rev. Lawrence Little addressed the opening session of the Christian Endeavor meeting in Charlotte this week. There were about 300 in attendance.

—The philosophers have to explain (if they can) not only the origin of man but also the origin of myriads of other creatures on the earth wonderfully and diversely made. One accident will not explain ten million designs. The atheists have a hard problem at their doors.

—The Presbyterian Standard of Charlotte suspends publication on account of financial difficulties brought on by inadequate subscription and advertising receipts. The synod meeting in September will determine whether the suspension shall be permanent. The paper has been published for 73 years.

SOME DEFINITIONS AND DISTINCTIONS

Faith is aspiration, the forward look, the inner vision of the invisible. Faith in Christ is an eager desire to be like him: it is the choice of his ideals, a conviction of the truth and value of his type of life. It is the will to do God's will, as Jesus reveals and interprets it.

Justification by faith is God's acceptance of the will for the deed.

Salvation is by aspiration, that is, by the choice and preference of the good. God accepts and treats us, not according to what we are, but according to what we would like to be. The measure of the man in the eyes of God is not his performance, but his desire.

The attainment of righteousness in conduct and character is a never ending process. Justification means that God accepts us as righteous when we have entered on the way of righteousness. Nor is this verdict of acceptance a mere fiction; it is the solidest moral reality. Heights of moral achievement do, indeed, lie far beyond us and rise high above us, but if ours is a genuine faith in Christ, we are on the way to their attainment. The goal of Christian growth and effort may be yet far away from the Christian man; but if he has set it distinctly before himself, if he has deliberately chosen it and set his heart upon it, it is by anticipation his; he has "seized it with his eye"; he has grasped it in his purpose, and no matter how far he may be from it today, he shall reach it if he presses steadily on.

Faith is the clear sight of Christ in His true meaning for our human life; it is to see life and destiny as He saw them, to measure values as He measured them. To see Christ is to see the world and life with something of His clear discernment and just judgment. In such a vision of Christ all possibilities of growth in His likeness are hidden. We can become like Him if we can thus see Him as He is; never otherwise. Faith is no arbitrary condition of salvation: it is the only conceivable condition of a real attainment of God-likeness. It is a choice, an aspiration, a yearning for the good and the true, which opens the kingdom of heaven to men. No spiritual good can be ours until we desire it; nor will any be withheld from us which through appreciation and preference we are capable of receiving.

When faith is viewed as mere belief, an acceptance of propositions, a holding of things for true, justification does, indeed, have in it a note of unreality. Morally minded men can hardly be made to believe that the issues of eternity are staked on an opinion. It is quite likely that any of our theories concerning the mysteries of the spiritual world are correct enough to serve as an adequate warrant of our moral safety and perfection here and hereafter.

Or, if faith be viewed as a passive acquiescence in the merit of another, which we hope to have reckoned over to our account, it is not strange that a putative righteousness of this kind should seem arbitrary and unreal. But I do not think that these objections can be justly brought against Paul's doctrine of the imputation of the believer's faith to him for righteousness. It is the conception of the nature of faith which determines the idea of justification. The latter, considered separately, does easily lend itself to the formal, fiat interpretations. It is this figure of a verdict or pronouncement underlying the word "justify" which has often lead theology into a superficial formalism. It remained but to conceive of "faith" as many had already conceived it in New Testament times, in order to arrive at the conceptions against which the Epistle of James inveighs—a mere theoretic assent and a consequent unethical "righteousness."

It is Paul's conception of faith which, if understood, effectually saves his doctrine of justification from all such unreality. It is, indeed, contrasted with "works" in the legal sense attached to that term by Pharisaism, but so far it is from being opposed to works in the sense of good deeds and services flowing from Christian charity, that it gives evidence of its vital power by love (Gal. 5:6). Everywhere faith is inseparably associated with hope and love. It is an active, energizing principle. Dissevered from love, it would seem as inoperative and valueless to Paul as to James. Were it but a belief, however heroic, it would be morally profitless, unless undergirded and inspired by love. "Though I have all faith, so as to remove mountains, but have not love, I am nothing."

For Paul faith is union with Christ—entrance into fellowship of life with Him. Between the believer and Christ there is a mutual indwelling. The man of faith is said to be in Christ, and Christ in him. Again, salvation is described as a dying with Christ on the cross and a rising with Him in newness of life. These are simply Paul's favorite forms of describing the experience which in his polemic with the Judaizers he calls justification. They are all terms expressing the inception and nature of the Christian life. Faith in Christ, union with Christ, dying and rising with Christ—all these are synonymous phrases.—G. B. Stevens in the Christian Doctrine of Salvation.

THE LAST CALL TO THE SUMMER CONFERENCE

The Summer Conference will begin on Tuesday morning, June 23, and will close with the big picnic dinner Friday, June 26. The program will be rendered at the Children's Home while we will sleep as usual at the college. We will also take our meals at the college this year. It is not thought well to ask the Home to furnish meals when the college dining hall will be open. On Friday as usual there will be the big picnic dinner at the Home. These events in the past have been great successes and we want this one to be the best. It is certainly fitting that once a year we have such a gathering among the Methodist Protestants of our conference and it is indeed fitting that we gather at the Home and give the children and workers there benefit of such an occasion. Come prepared to contribute largely to the dinner and remember that it will mean a good time to the children of the home as well as to the people who gather there. President Taylor has thought wise to make a call to our people to gather on this occasion for a day of great inspiration and it is hoped that his call will be heard and that our people will govern themselves accordingly.

The program this year will be a good one and our pastors are urged to be present from start to finish. Just a little help on the part of the laymen would help and encourage pastors to attend. Laymen, urge your pastors to attend. Get together and contribute enough to pay $1.00 registration fee and $1.00 per day for board while he is there. This will help and encourage pastors to attend and get the benefit of this conference and be better prepared to do the work at home when he returns. Then, too, we would be glad to have laymen in attendance. Laymen would be greatly benefited by this conference and they would better appreciate the position of the pastor if they get in with him on such an occasion. Come on, preacher, come on, laymen, let us have a good time together.

It is understood that the Pastor's Summer Conference will meet at the Children's Home while the Leadership Training school will meet at the College. At the same time but not in joint sessions except as one would care to visit from one to the other. This plan has been planned to accommodate pastors who want to attend the Pastor's Conference and at the same time want to bring their young people to the Training school. Many pastors want to attend both gatherings but felt they could not if they were at different times. It is hoped this plan will work well.

GEO. L. CURRY, President.

THE MINISTRY

Some essential factors enter into a successful ministry. A divine call, not chosen by man, is first in this list. Full surrender to this call and to the will of God is a second step. Then adequate preparation in education follows; and that means education that qualifies for continuous study through life. A seminary course that outlines the work is not sufficient; capacity for initial study is very important. During this period of preparations, economy in personal expenses should be studied and practiced. The financial history of a minister usually determines his standing among men. "Owe no man any thing, but to love one another" (Rom. 13:8). Nothing that is innocent in itself injures the reputation of a minister more than being in debt. As a rule, his earning capacity is small, compared with other men of the same class, and compared with what he is expected to do; and he needs this schooling as a part of his education in preparation for the ministry. His life should be an example in business as well as in social life.

A call to serve a Church is closely related to the divine call to the ministry. He is not only called to the work, but to the place for work; and if he makes full surrender to the divine call, the Lord will see that he gets to the right place for work. It is unfortunate for a young minister to get to a place of great reputation when he has not had experience, unless he has rare gifts. It is better to begin in a small way and develop the work, for that will develop him. The best farmer is the one who develops poor land so as to produce fine crops.

The spirit of satisfaction is essential to a successful ministry. Dissatisfaction with a place, and looking out for a better place and larger pay usually works defeat to a ministerial career. It may be necessary for a pastor to change, but that should come as a result of his success and the need of his service in a larger field, and not his desire for larger salary and larger reputation. When humanity dies and ambition takes its place, the spirit of Jesus leaves the man and usefulness wanes. Honest poverty is no disgrace, and good service in a small field is more honorable than poor service in a large field. A good crop on poor land shows a better farmer than a poor crop on good land.—W. W. S. in Christian Sun.

WESTERN NORTH CAROLINA SCENERY

It was my privilege to spend several days romping over those majestic mountains, monuments of God's handiwork recently and I wish it were possible for me to express in words the wonderful consolation, or renewed interest in life and inspiration one may receive by a few days stay in the "Little Switzerland of North Carolina."

Where can one find God so manifest in nature as in these wonderful mountains! The inexpressible joy one finds to breathe the pure, fresh air; untainted by any impurities; the clouds as they nestle down to beckon one upward.

Where, O where can one find the refreshing waters, as it is found at the foot of a mountain stream!

I can think of no place where one may go to get a firmer grip on God: His wonderful nature than here. Here the flowers even beckon us to come on and enjoy them; the trees even whisper comforting melodies into our ears—and one feels with the poet, "God's in His Heaven; All's well with the world."

I think if people who get discouraged with life, its surroundings, its trials, would pack up their bags for a few days rest on our Western Carolina mountains, that a number of our would-be suicides would be averted.

We remember the words of the Master who said: "Seek and ye shall find; knock and it shall be opened unto you." Why seek happiness far away when it is at our very door? If we would only open our eyes to the beauty around us. "What we yearn for is really here; God long since provided it. But he chose to conceal much of it—partly for our own entertainment by discovery, partly for our development through seeking."

So if you feel yourself slipping, discouraged, disheartened and sad, my advice would be to "Go to Western Carolina, young man, go West." and rest.

So may we acclaim with the poet:

Oh! "the Carolina hills!"
How majestic and how grand,
With their summits bath'd in glory,
Like our Prince Emmanuel's land!
Is it any wonder then, that my heart in rapture thrills,
As I stand once more with lov'd ones,
On those Carolina hills?
Oh! the hills, beautiful hills,
How I love those Carolina hills;
If o'er sea or land I roam;
Still I think of happy home
And the friends among the Carolina hills.

WELL WORTH SEEING

Yes, I have seen the picture, "Ten Nights in a Bar Room." In fact, I saw it twice—once in Washington, and again in Baltimore.

William Farnham ably acts the part of Joe Morgan, the miller who becomes a drunkard, distresses his family, loses his mill, and who is finally rescued and brought back to sobriety by his little daughter, Mary, after she has repeatedly gone to the saloon for him and led him home.

Thomas Santschi, as Simon Slade, makes a typical saloon and hotel proprietor. Dr. Romaine is the good physician who does not drink but helps those who are the victims, innocent or otherwise, of the terrible curse.

The whole thing is well staged, all the players are excellent, the photography is adequate, and the presentation is dignified. It grips the audience most powerfully.

I confess to having had a little fear lest some of the pre-vailing wet propaganda might have gotten into the picture and made it ridiculous. But there was nothing of the sort.

I also had some misgiving lest present-day picture audiences—accustomed as they are to find amusement in any pictured reference to strong drink and temperance—might find occasion to sneer over this presentation. But I was gratified to note that the large audience received it in a most appreciative spirit and went out deeply impressed. One lady expressed the wish that she could afford to aid largely in financing its repeated showing all over the country.

This picture is not to be taken as "dry propaganda," though it does create a strong dry sentiment. It is simply a vivid setting forth of the saloon as it used to be. The saloon was a place of meeting, it appealed to a certain type of social good-fellowship, it satisfied the appetite for drink and contrived to create or renew the appetite, it had its skillful gamblers who worked in connection with the proprietor to relieve the drinker of his money, it harbored "bar flies" who had no money and drank only from the leavings in the bottoms of the glasses or when some one treated the house, women of the street patronized it for themselves and found it a suitable place in which to ply their degrading occupation.

This old drama is being revived in a number of places by college students and others. That is a sign of promise. Wet propagandists are fooling many people into thinking that the days of the saloon were good days when no laws were broken and everybody was happy. It is so easy to forget. Lest you forget, be sure to see the picture, "Ten Nights in a Bar Room"; and encourage exhibitors to bring it to your town.

LUTHER K. LONG.

A NEW OLD PICTURE

I never grow weary of reading in the New Testament the many and varied invitations to come to Jesus.

Artists have used much canvas and color in depicting for the eye these gracious invitations.

It is pictured how the hearers so thronged Jesus that he went into a boat and talked to the multitudes as they stood, or sat, on the shore.

How lovely is the picture of the mothers bringing their little children to Jesus. And He took them in His arms, put

His hands in blessing upon them, and said "Suffer the children to come unto me, and forbid them not, for to such belongs the kingdom of heaven."

The old picture, "Come unto me," has done much good through many years. But I saw recently a new picture with the same title in the Seventh Baptist church of Baltimore. It hung just behind the pulpit, and greatly impressed me.

In this picture Jesus stands with out-stretched arms and hands, while about, and close to Him, are gathered a number of individuals representing many classes. Here are some of them:

Sitting on the ground with head leaning against the knee of Jesus is an old man. His hair and beard are white, his garments are coarse and cheap, his arms and hands are weak, his exposed foot is thin and without sandals—he is just evidently old, and poor, and dejected, and weary. He comes because he is needy; and he represents a lot of people. He finds welcome and comfort in the presence of Jesus.

On this same side of Jesus is a woman, with all a woman's heart and possibilities. She needs sympathy, inspiration, and guidance to enable her to do with her womanhood all that humanity at its best is calling for.

Between the woman and Jesus, and very close to Him, is a wide-eyed boy. He doesn't know much of life, he doesn't understand much about God, but he is attracted to Jesus—just why he may not know. How fine it is that the Sunday School teacher is so often the means of introducing the children to Jesus. How much this acquaintance will mean to them in the coming years!

At the left is a man with a strong face. But it is marked with lines of evil and degradation. On his wrists are handcuffs. He is the slave of appetites and passions. In Jesus' presence help may be found—moral shackles may be broken.

Kneeling at the side of Jesus is a man whose dress and appearance indicate wealth. He possesses all the material things usually thought of as necessary to earthly happiness and good. But, evidently, he feels himself to be poor, and miserable, and naked, and blind. He has come to Jesus as the only source of help. He looks to Him for the mercy and guidance he needs.

Are we doing all we can to bring these, and all other sorts of people, to Jesus? Are we doing all we can to understand Jesus, and to interpret Him adequately to those who need Him most?

District Rally

This was in the tenth district, composed of Denton and Davidson charges. Canaan church, on Denton charge, was the place of meeting. The date was May 31. The program began Saturday night and was to have continued through Sunday, morning and afternoon, but the Sunday morning program was not given, owing to the funeral of a prominent citizen of the community, Brother Belk (I regret not to be able to give his initials). The afternoon program was well attended, and was in charge of the district chairman, Rev. E. A. Bingham. Brother Robert Short conducted the opening worship. Other ministers present were Brothers C. H. Hill and H. W. Maier. It was my privilege to present the conference programs and to "echo" the Washington Convention. Brother Maier spoke also of the convention. Sister Maier followed in a discussion of the place of women in the church, and closed with a story for the children. We were glad of this opportunity to fellowship with the people, and these brethren of the ministry, and to share with others in this program in giving encouragement to the work. We are sure that good will come of this rally.

Mt. Pleasant

We were here on June 7th, Memorial Day for this church. The purpose of our visit was to speak of the Washington Convention. This we did in the afternoon, the only part of the day's program that we were privileged to attend. Brother H. L. Isley and Brother A. D. Shelton spoke also of the convention. A part of the afternoon program was a sermon by Brother Shelton. Pastor Hutton was in charge. Other ministers present were Brothers Ashburn and Lowdermilk. We were glad to have Brother Ashburn as a traveling companion going and coming. Children's Day was observed in the morning. We were glad to be at this church again and to have this brief fellowship with Pastor Hutton and his people. I always feel a sense of denominational pride when I visit this church. The building is one of the best of our rural churches, and it is "beautiful for situation," with building and grounds always well kept. We hope and pray for it increasing power and usefulness.

Forsyth Charge

It was our pleasure to be with Pastor Gerringer and his people in three services, Sunday, June 14. The morning service was at Hickory Ridge, the afternoon at Oak Grove, and the closing service at Union Ridge at night. The spirit of every service was good and the attendance gratifying, though not so large at Oak Grove as at the other two points. The pastor boosted the Leadership Training School and our great INSPIRATIONAL DAY, June 26, at each church. We were much pleased to learn, also, that the three churches are planning to observe Children's Day. Brother Gerringer and his family are highly esteemed by the charge. They are laboring earnestly and thoughtfully to promote every interest of the church. Finances are in arrears here, as at other places, though we trust that marked improvements will be made in this particular as the year lengthens. This is one of the few charges that overpaid the salary last year. The spiritual record of the charge for last year is good also, judged by the professions and accessions. It should be said to the credit of the charge that the first quarterly conference this year increased the salary to $1,900. The total budget would seem to be in reach of the charge, as $6.80 per member would pay it in full. Last year the charge paid for all purposes a per capita amount of $11.72. This is $2.44 above the average for the conference. The HERALD subscriptions of the charge is considerably under mark. We trust that the pastor may meet with encouraging success in his efforts to raise this. We enjoyed the day greatly—the services, the fellowship, that of the pastor and his family, and of the people. We were graciously entertained at dinner by Brother R. M. Cox and his family, and at supper in the pastor's home. We were glad to see Brother and Sister Pritchard during the day. An intended visit with Brother C. H. Whitaker was prevented for lack of time. Brother Gerringer and his family are happy in their work, and we bespeak for them and their people a year of progress.

These Matters Are Important

1. The Pastor's Summer Conference, June 23-26.
2. Registration for the Leadership Training School, June 22-29.
3. The observance of Children's Day.
4. Our great Inspirational Day, June 26, Friday.

We trust that all of our pastors can attend this Summer Conference. The fellowship will be most pleasing, and the programs highly helpful.

The registration of the Leadership Training school is very important. Pastors will please urge this upon their people. It is not too late yet to register. Brother Elwood Carroll is the registration manager. Let us give him every possible co-operation, and urge, also, that our people attend the school.

June is Children's Day month. We beseech pastors and superintendents to see that it is observed in every church.

And please, everybody, be with us on our great INSPIRATIONAL DAY, FRIDAY, JUNE 26. We will meet in the college chapel at 10:30 for the program—and a good one is being prepared. Don't forget the basket, and see that it is filled with gospel measure. Let's have a great host of our people at the College and the Home for this occasion. We want it to be honoring to God and strengthening to his church. We believe that he will be present to bless us, for our hearts are right in the purposes of this occasion. ON TO HIGH POINT, JUNE 26!

TAKE TIME TO BE KIND

We are not kind enough, we are not kind enough in our actions. Commentators tell us that this sentence might be translated: Show yourselves kind. There are many of us who are conscious that we are kind at heart. We have many tender feelings, but we never take the trouble to express them. We are too busy to be considerate, too afraid of showing an inner depth to be tender. No one would ever know from our outward behavior that our heart was sensitive and gentle.

We are not as kind as we ought to be in our judgments—on the other hand, we are oftentimes harsh, and sometimes cruel. We condemn men without mercy: we say, "That man said thus and thus; I heard him say it." But do you know that he was sorry when he said it, he would have given anything if he could have taken it back? He was uncomfortable for a whole day because he had said it. You must not judge him simply by what he said.

"That man did thus and thus"—so he did, but you did not know how bitterly he repented it, and how that very night he asked God to forgive him because he had done it. It is not fair to judge a man entirely by his deeds. You must know his attitude to his deeds after they have been done. "I dislike that man very much, he is so crabbed and ill-natured. He is so cynical and sour." But you must take into account the experiences through which he has come.

You have sometimes seen a tree all twisted and gnarled. It has been made such by the winds. It grew in an exposed position, and the winds kept striking it, and striking it, and striking it until it lost its symmetry and beauty and became gnarled and twisted. So it is with men. Some of them are struck again and again and again by the rude winds of fortune until they lose all of their beauty and become ugly and twisted. You ought to deal gently with them.

"I do not like that man. He is so disagreeable, he is rude, he has no manners at all. I never like to go near him." Do not be so harsh; you must remember that his mother died when he was a baby, and that he had to leave school before he was fourteen, and that he has never had half an opportunity, from the day of his birth until now, to make anything of himself. Of course he is not so cultivated and polished as you are because he never had your chance. You ought to deal generously with him.

"I have no patience with that man." You would have patience with him if you were more like God. Think of how patient God has been with you. If He had not been patient you would not have been alive. If you had the love of Christ in your heart you would be more patient. Love suffers long and still is kind.

"I have no hope at all for the man. I used to think he would amount to something, but I have given up hope entirely." That is because you are deficient in love. Love believes all things, hopes all things, and endures all things. Love never fails.—Publisher Unknown.

CLIMBING UP THE HILL

Never look behind, boys,
Up and on the way!
Time enough for that, boys,
On some future day.
Though the way be long, boys,
Fight it with a will;
Never stop to look behind
When climbing up a hill.
First, be sure you're right, boys,
Then, with courage strong,
Strap your pack upon your back
And tug, tug, along;
Better let the lag-out
Fill the lower bill,
And strike the further stake-pole
Higher up the hill.
Trudge is a slow horse, boys,
Made to pull a load,
But in the end will give the dust
To the racers on the road.
When you're near the top, boys,
Of the rugged way,
Do not stop to blow your horn,
But climb, climb away.
Shoot above the crowd, boys,
Brace yourselves and go!
Let the plodding land-pad
Hoe the easy row.
Success is at the top, boys,
Waiting there until Brains and pluck and self-respect
Have mounted up the hill.

—James Whitcomb Riley.

OUR STORY PAGE

THE BOY THEY DISLIKED

Fred was that kind of a boy whom most people disliked. Not that he had any vicious habits, or was extremely naughty, but he always insisted on having his own way. It was nothing new for him to roll on the ground, screaming and kicking, if things were not satisfactory to him. Things reached the point where the other children either played what he suggested or did their playing when he was absent. Instead of greeting him with a welcome, the children gave him to understand that he was not wanted by them.

This was the state of affairs about the time that Fred and his mother went to Uncle Howard's for a short vacation.

"Whatever you do, Fred," his father cautioned him, "get along good with the children you will meet up there. They don't know how disagreeable you can be, and I wouldn't let them find out. You do as they suggest, and let them have their way."

Fred agreed to do this, but the habit had grown so strong he was unable to depart from his every-day actions. The first day of his visit he met several children, but as they didn't play together, Fred was safe for that day. But the next day things became lively. Uncle Howard at work in the barn saw the whole affair. Out there beside the barn some one suggested they play fox and geese. Fred didn't want to do so.

"Majority rule," cried another boy. "Everybody in favor of playing fox and geese raise your hand."

Every hand went up but Fred's.

"That's the game we play then," the boy declared.

Fred forgot he was among strangers, and immediately started to act as he was accustomed to at home. Rolling on the ground, kicking and screaming, he endeavored to spoil their game. This time it didn't work. A larger boy, disgusted with such tactics, picked Fred up and dropped him on the other side of the fence.

"You stay over there until you get over that spell," he said. "Those actions don't get you anywhere with us."

Uncle Howard smiled as he saw Fred get up and start for the barn.

"Guess that ought to tame him some," he said, chuckling to himself.

Just outside the barn Fred came across four half-grown kittens who were sunning themselves. He forgot about his trouble in his eagerness to pet the kittens. Three of them enjoyed it, but the fourth was not agreeable. When Fred started to pet this kitten, the kitten promptly scratched Fred's hands. This made Fred mad. He grabbed the kitten up, and found out he had more than he looked for. The kitten, growling and snarling, bit Fred as well as clawing him. Fred threw the kitten away from him just as Uncle Howard came to the barn door.

"Well, Fred," he asked, "what's the trouble?"

"Just look what that kitten did," he said, crying as he held up his scratched hands from which the blood was flowing. "And all I tried to do was to pet him."

"That's too bad," Uncle Howard sympathized. "But you know that kitten doesn't like petting. He's as ugly and disagreeable as he can be. The other three will make nice pets, but you can't do anything with this one. Wouldn't you like to take him home with you?"

"I should say not," Fred retorted. "I don't want anything to do with him."

"I don't know of anyone who will want him," his uncle said, "but I thought perhaps you would like him."

"What made you think that?" Fred asked in surprise.

"You are so near alike," Uncle Howard informed him. "You like to quarrel and fight, and have your own way all the while, and so does that kitten. The children you play with don't like you any better than you like that kitten. Yes, I saw what happened out there in the field. I thought maybe you could take the kitten home, and then when the other children refuse to play with you any longer, you could go home and have somebody to fight with. What do you think about it?"

Fred hung his head in shame as his uncle waited for an answer.

"It's like this, Fred," he continued when Fred refused to answer. "Folks can't love a kitten that spits and scratches, and it's very hard to love a boy who acts as you do, simply because you don't make yourself lovable. I hope this will be a lesson to you, and when you come here again next year I trust you will be a far different boy."

"I will," said Fred, realizing now just how other folks looked at him, and what they thought of his actions.—Selected.

THE SAVING HAND OF GOD

Sosin lost his interest in toys and childish things at an early age. He grew sad and quiet, and disliked to associate with boys of his own age.

In his home he often heard stories from his grandmother concerning the sufferings of Jesus Christ, and these stories evoked responsive feelings of love in his little heart. He had no Bible to read, but he knew many Greek orthodox prayers and Psalms.

Childhood and boyhood slipped away. Young manhood came, and with it came doubts. His soul became heavy-laden and unhappy; pain and grief filled his heart. He tried to find rest, but whatever he touched was a disappointment. He was distracted, not knowing what he wanted, nor for what he was living. He could not understand God nor future life, and even doubted their existence. The uncertainty and dissatisfaction of it all so wearied him that the thought of committing suicide grew upon him more and more. Death alone seemed to be a consolation. He began to wonder by what method he could dispose of his life. His attention was drawn to the dagger and to poison, which he obtained. On the way out of the city one Sunday, dark thoughts passed through his mind. He felt that he was sinking into hell. But the strangest thing was that the nearer he approached the fateful moment, the clearer his thoughts became. A desire to wait arose in his soul, as if some voice were trying to convince him not to do this terrible thing. He stopped. The thought came, "Better wait; perchance God will yet do something for me." Faith appeared dim and weak, but it directed his steps back home.

The week which passed was spent in waiting for something to enlighten him. The dagger and poison were temporarily hidden away. On Sunday morning his expectation was rewarded. A friend visited him, and in their conversation mentioned that not long ago he visited a meeting at the Evangelical Church, where he heard very fine singing. Sosin was intensely interested, and asked his friend to take him there. To this his friend gladly consented.

As they entered the church, a man was speaking from the pulpit. As Sosin listened eagerly and heard the precious Gospel words, "Come unto Me, all ye that labour and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest," the words pierced his very soul, convicting him and revealing the sad condition of his life. An overpowering sense of his guilt seized him and tears of repentance began to flow. He fell on his knees and pleaded with the Lord to show mercy and redeem his soul.

Following the prayer, the choir sang, "Do not fear, O stranger, be of good cheer!" As he listened to this singing, it was as balm flowing into the soul of Sosin.

On returning home he destroyed his instruments of death, the dagger and poison, and began to sing a new song—a song of a new life in Christ which will never end.

Brother Sosin is now being greatly used of the Lord in spreading the Gospel of Jesus Christ in Russia.—Publisher Unknown.

WHAT WAS IT THAT PUZZLED KITTY?

"I want to," said Kitty, thoughtfully, "but I don't know how. I can't understand how I can possibly come to anyone I can't see."

Kitty had been going to Children's Services, and had heard a great deal about belonging to Jesus, so when Auntie Joyce had asked her whether she had yet come to Him she said straight out that she was puzzled.

It was several seconds before Aunt Joyce replied, then she said, "I am going to tell you a story, dear; I fancy perhaps that may help you better than anything I can say." Kitty nodded.

"There was once a little girl named Nellie Wakeford," she began slowly, "and when she was very small she had a dreadful illness which left her both blind and deaf. Well, her parents were ever so sorry, of course, but they were determined they would do everything they possibly could to make her happy; and so they engaged a very clever lady to be Nellie's governess. She was very patient and very kind, and by degrees taught the little girl the deaf alphabet, so that by and by Nellie's friends were able to talk to her on her fingers, and she could understand what they said quite easily.

"Then her governess thought it would be nice for her to learn to read. And so little by little Nellie mastered the Braille characters, until at last she could read long sentences without any trouble. Then something dreadful happened. Nellie's mother became very, very ill, and poor Nellie was ever so miserable because a few days before she had been very naughty, and now she felt that she could not be happy until she had been to mother and said she was sorry. At last the nurse consented to let her go to the sick-room for just one minute. 'But,' she explained, 'your mother is so ill that you must not even touch her. You can speak to her, but that is all.' Poor little Nellie! It didn't seem much use to go. If she couldn't see her mother or hear her, or even feel her, how could she be sure she was forgiven?

"But Nellie was sent for. She was led to the door of the sick room, and although she could not see her mother, she knew she was there, and so with her little heart going pit-a-pat, she faltered, 'Oh, mamma! I've come because I wanted to say how sorry I am I was so naughty, and that I do want to please you and be obedient.'

"Oh, how glad mother was, and yet she knew that if she spoke ever so loudly Nellie would not be able to hear. Instead, she made a sign to Nellie's governess, who quickly crossed to where Nellie was standing, and put a piece of paper with her mother's reply on in into her hand.

"Eagerly she ran her fingers over the raised characters, and what should you think she read? 'Mother loves you. Mother forgives you'."

"With a glad cry Nellie hugged the paper tight. 'Oh!' she exclaimed, 'mother has forgiven me! She has said so. I am happy now!'"

Aunt Joyce stopped speaking, and for several minutes there was silence, but Kitty's face became very thoughtful. "I think I understand," she said softly. "I can come to Jesus just like Nellie came to her mother, I can't see Him, but He is here. I do not hear His voice, but I know He is calling me." "Yes, darling," added auntie; "and when you come He has a message written ready for you in His own Book." Auntie turned the leaves of her pocket Bible. "Listen, this is what He says, 'I have loved thee with an everlasting love' (Jer. 31:3). 'The Blood of Jesus Christ *** cleanseth us from all sin' (I John 1:7)."

Quietly Kitty slipped from her seat. "Oh, auntie!" she exclaimed, "I understand at last what it means to come to Jesus, and I won't put it off; I'll kneel down this minute and ask Him to take me and make me His."

"I wonder, little reader, if you are on Christ's side?

Do you yet love the Saviour who for your sake once died?

Perhaps you want to trust Him—oh, if you do, just say:

'Please, dear Lord Jesus, take me, and make me Thine today'."

JUNE 28: MY ATTITUDE TOWARD OTHER RACES IN THIS COUNTRY

Scripture Text—Gal. 3:26-29

Daily Bible Meditations

Monday: An Attitude of Kindness. Luke 10:30-35.

Tuesday: How Jesus Treated a Foreigner. Mark 7:24-30.

Wednesday: Jesus in Samaria. John 4:1-14.

Thursday: Peter Learns Equality. Acts 10:28, 34, 35.

Friday: No Races "in Christ." Romans 10:12.

Saturday: All Races in Heaven. Rev. 7:9-17.

Suggestions

How we shall treat other races in our country is a real problem. Not only is it a problem in our own country but all over the world. From statistics we learn that about one-third of the world's population is white, nearly a third yellow and a little more than a third black or brown. Thus two-thirds of the world's population is colored. Do you really think that God disfavors them? The way we treat other races in this country will determine to a great extent how successful our missionary work is in other countries. When we go to them with the gospel of world brotherhood they point back to our practice of it here and if we have failed to carry out the examples which Jesus Christ set for us we cannot blame them for turning away from the gospel of Jesus Christ. It is not the fault of the gospel but of our failure to live it.

Surely in every individual living there is some good if we only know how to find it. Perhaps they haven't but one talent yet they may have a great contribution to make. We cannot deny anyone the right to develop to the best of his ability the things which God has given him but when we begin to discriminate because of color we are doing this very thing. H. G. Wells has said: "I am convinced myself that there is no more evil thing in this present world than race prejudice." What are we doing to get rid of this evil?

For Discussion

1. Can the same principles of treatment towards the negroes be used in the North and in the South?
2. Should we have immigration restriction? Why? Would this be Jesus' principle?
3. Why is lynching wrong?
4. Is there such a thing as racial superiority?
5. How should one show friendliness to men of other races?

FEAR AND GLOOM

Fear and gloom,

A busy pair,

Sallied forth,

To smite and scare.

Long of face

And threatening mien,

The ugliest pair

You've ever seen.

For many weeks

They did their worst,

Loathed, despised,

And much accursed.

Until one day

The public rose,

And kicked them out,

Unwelcome foes.

Swept them out

As with a broom,

And then began

A BUSINESS BOOM!

NOTICE

I am wondering how many of you brethren in the pastors' reading circle have received your books. I mailed out every book that came to me, but for some reason the circle was never completed and my copy never came back. It is my opinion that this book has just been overlooked.

My name was not written in the book, but as you remember all names who were in the circle are pasted in the book. My name was checked with pen and ink. May I suggest to you who are in the circle, that you look through your library, and if you have one of those books that does not belong to you, please bring it to our Pastor's Summer Conference, and it will be easy to get the books to their rightful owners.

WOMAN'S MISSIONARY DEPARTMENT

ATTENTION LADY VISITORS FOR HIGH POINT COLLEGE

At the Branch meeting in High Point in April, Dr. Humphreys asked for the organization of a committee of Lady Visitors for High Point college; and we have endeavored to form such a committee.

All charges have been reached either through the pastor or an auxiliary president in the charge. Some have responded and some have not.

Dr. Taylor has designated Friday, June 26 as High Point college and Children's Home day with a great inspirational meeting in the college chapel at 10:30 and a picnic dinner at the Children's Home. All lady visitors for High Point college are urged to be there.

If the pastor or auxiliary president has not secured their representative please do so at once—notify her of this meeting and send me her name immediately.

All women interested in the college and Children's Home are urged to pack their baskets full and come, bringing the whole family.

Let's help Dr. Taylor and Dr. Humphreys by being there.

—Al Capone, Chicago's famous gangster who has accumulated great wealth by underworld methods and has lived in luxurious style, has been convicted of various crimes and is to be sentenced June 30th. He was run down by agents of the federal government, men who would not accept bribes, it is said.

—Of the entire population of North Carolina, 70.5 per cent. are white, and practically all of the white population are native, there being only three-tenths of one per cent. foreign born. Likewise, of the native white population, nearly all are of native parentage, there being only six-tenths of one per cent. of foreign or mixed parentage. Persons born in England formed 13.7 per cent. of the 8,788 persons comprising the foreign-born white population of North Carolina. More than one-half of the foreign-born white population have been naturalized.

FROM PASTORS and PEOPLE

Bethesda, Halifax Circuit.—Mr. Fogleman gave us a very earnest talk yesterday in regard to the mission of the church and its failure to accomplish this mission, because of indifference and lack of spirituality. Another cause, he said, is lack of unity in purpose and action among church members and among the different denominations. He gave some rather startling illustrations. This failure of the church properly to teach and guide, he held to be the cause of the present fearful condition of the world—the increase in crime and the desperate mental condition leading to wholesale suicide.

On second Sunday in May, he gave us an unusually good sermon, and some of the comments heard were: "He makes you think," "He outdid himself," "One of the best I ever heard." This was Mother's Day, and many beautiful flowers were used in decoration.

Just before the preaching hour, there was a sweet service, when three little boys joined the church: Phil Taylor, son of our Sunday school superintendent; John Edward Perry, and Reuben Brown. As is usual, some anxiety was felt about children so young taking this step, but Mr. Fogleman feels, as do many others, that where the child himself is eager to join, it is not wise to hold him back, lest he be discouraged.

Mr. Fogleman suggested that our church should have a new ritual adapted to children, and he proposed that some one take up the matter and push it. To some of us this has long seemed a needful thing, as it is very inappropriate, and even absurd, to put to very young candidates such questions as those of the ritual in our Hymnal.

The Sunday school is preparing for a Children's Day service, to be held next Sunday night. Mrs. Ernest Swaingen (nee Helen Harrison) who is visiting her people here, is acting as pianist and helping otherwise with the necessary preparations and arrangements. The scarcity of children at this church makes it a very difficult matter to get up a service of this kind. However, it is felt that some effort should be made along this line and the collection taken for missions.

Miss Maxine Taylor, of this church, will be one of the teachers in the "School of Religious Training" to be held at Aurelian Springs school the week following the fourth Sunday in June.

REPORTER.

Burlington, First Church.—Attendance in the Sunday school today showed a slight increase over last Sunday's record. The register today gave the following figures: Attendance 331; offering $49.49. The work of the school is moving forward very nicely.

The Daily Vacation Bible school is in progress with the final week's work ahead. This is a great work and we feel that much is being done for the Kingdom in this way.

A number of our folks are still ill and we are praying that they will soon be well, if it is according to God's will.

The regular monthly business meeting of the Barnea class was held on Tuesday evening, June 9th. Among the important items of business was the election of new officers for the coming six months. The following were among those elected for the coming term: President, U. S. McAdams; secretary, A. M. Wagoner; treasurer, M. A. Coble, and Dr. F. W. Paschal was the newly elected teacher. We feel that we are to be congratulated upon having these men as our leaders for the coming months. A review of the splendid work done in the past reflects credit upon the good way in which the retiring officers and committees performed their respective duties. Just recently, the class raised $19.00 for a fund to provide a suit of clothing and outfit for a fifteen-year-old boy. This was done in order that the young man could attend Sunday school and preaching services. Also, the class has been supporting a child at the M. P. Home at High Point, N. C., for sometime.

Let's work hard during the summer months and keep the attendance and interest in all the services even above normal.

L. A. BRAXTON, Reporter.

Alleghany, Davidson Charge.—Our pastor, Rev. E. A. Bingham, preached yesterday a fine sermon. There was a fine crowd to hear him.

Only two months until our protracted meeting. Let us not forget to pray for the meeting.

Since our last report the church has lost one of its most faithful members, Mr. F. M. Cook. We pray God's richest blessings on the family and the church. Death is coming to all; let us prepare for it.

Don't forget the quarterly meeting on Saturday before the second Sunday in July at Alleghany. Let us not forget to do our part in paying if the times are hard. We can do our part and the Lord will bless us, if it is but a little that we can do. We can pay and pray.

ABIGAIL COGGIN.

Henderson.—There were nine members of the Henderson church in the high school graduating class this year, as follows: Eugenia Boyd, Scott Boyd, Lula Page Gooch, Alma Grissom, Marian Mardee, Charlie Hight, James Hight, Hyacinth Hunter, Virginia Wilson. These young people were recognized in the church service Sunday morning, June 7, and were presented with Bibles by the Woman's Auxiliary. Mrs. J. M. Baity made a brief impressive talk in presenting these gifts. These are among our best young people and it is expected that quite a number of them will attend High Point college next fall.

Last week we had our Leadership Training school. Fifty-five enrolled in the various classes, twenty-one of these being from the Henderson church. In the closing session of the school the members voted unanimously to have the school again next year. We feel that it was one of the finest things that has come our way in many days.

We are glad to report that Mrs. S. R. Harris, who has not been able to attend the church services for many weeks on account of illness, was with us in the service Sunday morning, June 7. Our hope and prayer is that she may continue to improve in health until her normal strength has been regained.

Yesterday was communion Sunday with us. It was a very inspiring service, practically the entire congregation partaking of the Lord's Supper.

We are to have our Daily Vacation Church school the last week in July and the first week in August. This will be the fourth school of this kind held in the Henderson church and the children are looking forward to it with a great deal of interest. Miss Elizabeth Fox, who has been our director for the past two years, will direct the school again this year.

R. A. HUNTER.

Spring Church, Spring Church Charge.—Brother Lowdermilk was sick and not able to fill his appointment on the fourth Sunday. We are glad to report that he is much better. He brought us a good message yesterday taken from the first chapter of Job. His subject was "How to overcome trouble." We enjoyed the letter he read sent out by the convention, which was held at Washington.

On the fifth Sunday our district rally met with us in connection with the celebration of Spring church's one hundredth anniversary. I consider both a success. I would like to say to Brother Fogleman, our chairman to bring the rally to our church again.

I am sorry some of our former pastors couldn't be with us. Those who were absent were: Brothers J. D. Williams, J. L. Trollinger, T. F. McCulloch and A. D. Shelton.

Those that answered to the roll call were: Brothers W. F. Ashburn, H. S. B. Thompson, R. L. Hethcox, W. T. Totten and E. G. Lowdermilk.

Mrs. H. C. Nicholson represented her father, Rev. W. D. Fogleman, who was responsible for having our nice parsonage and church built. We enjoyed her talk on missions very much.

Everyone enjoyed Dr. Johnson's sermon. Also addresses made by Rev. H. F. Fogleman and Brother Ashburn.

We were very proud of the history of our church, which was gotten up and presented so well by Mrs. H. E. Vassar.

Mrs. Cutchin met with the ladies after services for the purpose of organizing an auxiliary. We decided to try it, although we are few in number. I hope we can be successful.

Mrs. Rosa Crew, who has been ill, is much improved.

Misses Virginia Massey, Inez Massey and Katherine Crew have been appointed to take charge of the children's Day program, which will be given on the fourth Sunday in July.

I feel sure these young ladies will get up something good. They have some nice children to work with.

REPORTER.

Tabernacle Charge.—Painters are now busy putting the finishing touches on the new Sunday school building at Tabernacle. The building contains six class rooms and an assembly room, furnishing ample room for the growing Sunday school. The building when complete will cost approximately $1,300.00. Brother R. L. Jones, treasurer of the building fund, hopes to have all bills paid in a few weeks.

Annual memorial services were held at Tabernacle on the third Sunday in May. Following a custom of many years of having a visiting speaker, Dr. S. K. Spahr, of Greensboro, preached the sermon at 11 a. m. In the afternoon short talks were made by Rev. T. F. McCulloch, Brother C. L. Jones, and the pastor. Special music was rendered by the choir both morning and afternoon.

On the first Sunday in the month a very pleasing Children's Day service was held at Tabernacle. Attendance and offering were both gratifying. Mrs. Worth Trogdon, Miss Bonnie Staley, and those who worked with them, deserve much credit for arranging such a splendid program. Julian church will hold this service in the near future.

Miss Bonnie Staley, Miss Ollie Meade Reynolds, and Mr. William Hardin were among the recent high school graduates of Tabernacle church.

Misses Elizabeth Hanner and Ethel Fields, who have been teaching school, are spending the summer at home. Miss Ezda Deviney, who has been teaching in Florida State university, is an instructor in the summer school of N. C. university.

Mrs. W. E. Horney recently joined Tabernacle church by letter, coming from Mt. Hope Reformed church. We are glad to welcome her into our fellowship.

The pastor is grateful to Mrs. Henrietta Goley, Mrs. John Coble, and Mrs. Charlie Sizemore for donations.

H. L. ISLEY.

Midway, Haw River Circuit.—Yesterday was a good day for us, there being eighty present at Sunday school. Just after Sunday school the young people held their C. E. society which was led by Miss Alice May Butler.

Our preaching services have been changed from 3 p. m. to 8 at night on the second Sundays. So Brother Trollinger came to us last evening with another good sermon.

The revival begins at this place next Sunday evening at 8 o'clock running through the fourth Sunday. Brother Trollinger will do the preaching with Prof. Pender directing the music. Will ask all who read this to pray that there may be a revival in the heart of every member of Midway church and that much good may be done. Pray for us.

MRS. G. W. APPLE, Reporter.

Albemarle.—The revival at Albemarle has just closed with good results. Brother Troxler did his best preaching and singing. He left his very fine impression on the lives of the Albemarle people. The attendance was not large but it increased from beginning to the close. Nine additions and of course we hope there will be others to follow.

GEO. L. CURRY.

Fountain Place.—The reporter from this church has done very little reporting lately and there has been very little out of the ordinary to report. The Sunday school is going much the same as usual and Christian Endeavor too except for one change: the meeting hour has been changed from 2:15 on Sunday afternoon to 2:15 on Thursday afternoon. This is a junior society and I hope that parents especially will make a note of this change.

We were delighted to have Rev. Mr. Elwood Carroll with us in the absence of our pastor the fourth Sunday in May. He brought us a very helpful message on the place of the church and Christians in the community in this time of unrest and change. Miss Sexton of Enfield sang a beautiful solo at this service.

Last Sunday evening Rev. Mr. Hearst, pastor of the Elon College church, preached for us, bringing a message of inspiration and encouragement to Christians. He and Prof. T. C. Amick had entire charge of the service as our pastor was away helping Mr. Gerringer in a revival meeting.

We enjoy very much having these visiting brethren with us but this doesn't mean that we fail to enjoy our pastor too, for we will be glad when he is with us again.

MRS. A. V. AMICK, Reporter.

Cedar Falls.—Franklinville Township Sunday school convention convened here Sunday, May 31. A goodly number were present, practically the entire township being represented. A number of inspiring talks were made by speakers from different parts of the township. Special music was furnished by the Cedar Falls quartette. The outlook for the future was encouraging based on the written reports from the various schools, read by the convention secretary. The next convention is to be held at Bethany church, date to be announced later.

The convention adjourned with a feeling of goodwill and fellowship prevailing.

MRS. ALICE LAUGHLIN, Reporter.

West End, Thomasville.—Our church services have greatly improved.

We had such a wonderful revival last month that we are all rejoicing over the wonderful things that the Lord has done for us. Many souls were brought into the kingdom. We owe a lot to Brother Robert Short who preached here during the revival. He was wonderful and gave us his best. Twenty-six persons have joined the church during and since the revival. So many of the new converts, especially the fine young men, are taking part in our services. We have had some wonderful prayer services with the young people as leaders.

Our Ladies' Aid society is still growing. We have 24 members on roll that work together wonderfully. We are planning for our first ice cream supper June the 20th. We have many different things to sell, and we always make good.

We ask the prayers of all our friends for the new converts that they may grow stronger and never go back in sin.

REPORTER.

Forsyth Charge.—Our evangelistic meeting began at Maple Springs, Sunday, June 7th, and closed the following Friday night. Bro. N. G. Bethea of Burlington came in time for the Sunday evening service and did the preaching for the rest of the meeting. There was evidence of good interest throughout the meeting. Our own church people and visitors enjoyed very much the good preaching done by Brother Bethea. His sermons were thoughtful and earnest. Just such preaching as should bring forth fruit even after the meeting closed. There was a number of professions. A few will unite with the church later. The pastor and his wife and children enjoyed having Brother Bethea in our home again. It is always a pleasure to have him and Mrs. Bethea visit us.

President Taylor made us a visit last Sunday. He visited three of the churches, Hickory Ridge, Oak Grove, and Union Ridge. He gave us stirring messages at each place. We believe that his gospel messages together with what he had to say concerning our conference work will assist us in doing the work we are supposed to do as a pastoral charge. It would doubtless be worth while if the President could visit more often upon the fields. This, of course, we know to be impossible.

We hope that we are holding our own. All appointments are being met and the people seem interested in Kingdom enterprises.

L. W. GERRINGER, Pastor.

Winston-Salem, N. C., Route No. 2.

Reidsville.—The Methodist Protestant church of Reidsville has not been heard from but the folks are silent workers; especially the Woman's Auxiliary, has been doing unusually good work. The attendance increased with every meeting. At its last regular monthly meeting there was a large attendance, the big event of the evening was the presenting of a "Life Membership Certificate" to Mrs. L. C. Yount by Circle No. 2, Mrs. Yount having been leader of Circle No. 2 last year. The auxiliary hopes to double itself this year.

Our Sunday school becomes more interesting with every Sunday. It is also increasing in membership.

The Philathea class has kindly consented to take charge of the Children's Day exercises. They are working on it now, we are sure that we will have a most interesting program this year as the Philatheas always prove such faithful workers.

Just look out for us Reidsvillians, we expect to let you hear from us often from now on.

REPORTER.

Oak Grove, Forsyth.—Our Sunday school was a little short Sunday because so many were absent. We were very sorry because our Sunday school had just begun to pick up.

Dr. S. W. Taylor, president of our conference, rendered a wonderful sermon for us last Sunday at 3 o'clock. His sermon was enjoyed by all, as we are always glad to have Mr. Taylor with us. We hope that God-speed may follow him in the future as in the past.

Our pastor, Rev. L. W. Gerringer, was also with us too, as it was his regular appointment.

We hope that our prayer meetings will be remembered on every Sunday night. We have had very good attendance for our past meetings, but we hope for them to be better in the future.

Mr. A. M. Kiger is on the sick list and his many friends are sorry to learn.

MRS. R. M. WARREN, Reporter.

Gideon Grove, Flat Rock Circuit.—The memorial services were held Sunday morning. The pastor, Rev. Paul Pegg, delivered a very appropriate and inspiring sermon. Special music was rendered by the Stokesdale girls' quartette. We were very glad to have with us a number of visitors and hope that they will come again.

The Children's Day services, under the direction of Mrs. R. W. Pogram, were given Sunday night, June 7th. A good audience was present and the pieces were well rendered. Much credit is due both to the director and the children.

The revival services will begin at this church the first Sunday in July. There will be two services on Sunday, dinner on the ground. Rev. C. G. Isley of Lexington will assist in the meeting and he is expected in time to conduct the afternoon service on Sunday.

The Woman's Auxiliary of the church held its regular monthly meeting in June with Mrs.

C. J. Angel. The auxiliary is having some fine programs and doing some things in a financial way. The Auxiliary had much success in raising funds by soliciting names and embroidering them upon a quilt. The quilt after being completed was presented to Mr. Pegg, our pastor, as a small token of appreciation of his services in our midst.

Born to Mr. and Mrs. Paul Pegg, June 13th, at Stranberger's Children's hospital, Greensboro, a daughter, Paula. Both the mother and baby are doing nicely.

MRS. H. R. ANGEL, Reporter.

First Church, High Point.—Last Sunday morning a large audience attended services. After listening to a beautiful and well-rendered solo by Miss Anne Robbins, who has been studying voice at Cincinnati Conservatory for the past year, the congregation heard a very helpful and timely discourse by the minister, Rev. R. I. Farmer, on the subject of "Worry or Calm." Announcing his text from Psalm 37:5, "Commit thy way unto the Lord; trust also in Him, and He shall bring it to pass," he said in part: "It is possible that there are more people in the world who worry than those who do not. Some claim that women worry more than men, but if true, it is because they are more sensitively organized and more keenly alive to the responsibilities of life. The greatest quest in life is for happiness, which the majority of people seek with great zeal and determination, but we often seek those things that do not really bring happiness. Another version of the Psalmist's exhortation is thus: 'Consign thy way of living unto the Lord.' Expressed in modern American slang it would be, 'Don't get hot—keep cool.' Worry is heat in the wrong place, and undue anxiety is to life what a hot box is to a train of cars, heat in the wrong place, which hinders progress. This state of perpetual care, annoyance, and anxiety was feared by John Wesley who said, 'I no more dare to fret and worry than I would to curse or swear.' Distress of mind about things that we cannot help causes us to yield to the fear of failure and sink under responsibility instead of seizing the helm and sailing toward the port. One way in which we worry is the effort to carry tomorrow's burden with that of today. Strength for the day is all we need. 'As thy days, so shall thy strength be,' Jesus said 'take no thought for the morrow,' and he meant undue or over-anxious thought. Daily trust brings daily calm and repose. Then we worry by carrying burdens intended for other shoulders. Henry Ward Beecher said, 'I got along very comfortably after I ceased trying to carry the universe on my shoulders.' There are times when we must bear one another's burdens and so fulfil the law of Christ, but some things are to be left to God. On the mantel-piece of one who died was found these words: 'I am an old man who has had many troubles in life, most of which never happened.' Undue worry tends to impair the judgment, to ruffle the temper, to check clear thinking, and to weaken spiritual contact. We worry by attaching too much importance to little things, but they can be very aggravating. What annoys you more than the sharp edge of a tooth or a small pebble in the shoe or a splinter in the finger? We have Jesus for our helper; having done our best, we may well leave the rest to Him. Paul's three rules for ceasing to worry are found in Philippians 4:6-7, anxious for nothing, thankful for something, and prayerful about everything. He who cares for the lilies and birds will not forget us. 'Not a sparrow falleth, but its God doth know.' The cure for worry is trust in God.

"Never you worry, never you fret,
God is not done with this old world yet."

The minister will take his annual vacation in July this year, and he, Mrs. Farmer, Mary Elizabeth and Joseph will motor to California to attend the Golden Jubilee C. E. Convention at San Francisco July 11-16. This will be a grand trip across the continent with a stop-over en route in Ohio with relatives, and will be the opportunity of a life-time. Rev. Mr. Farmer's congregation is delighted that he and family can enjoy this rare and happy privilege. During his absence the pulpit will be supplied by different speakers, the committee for this supply being Richard H. Shaw, J. H. Pritchard, and Captain Rankin.

The members of the C. E. society enjoyed a picnic Monday evening at Municipal lake, Jamestown. Ralph Vance was leader of the topic.

The six different circles of the Woman's auxiliary held meetings on Monday afternoon. Circle No. 6, Mrs. J. A. Gray, chairman, met at the home of Mrs. Allie Welch Foister on N. Hamilton street. There were 11 members present. The question box was given by Mrs. George Penny and Miss Elizabeth Welch. The minutes were read by the secretary, Mrs. P. E. Lindley, and the chapter in the Mission Study book, "Trailing the Conquistadores," was presented by Mrs. R. T. Pickens. After the business was finished, the hostess, assisted by her sisters, Mrs. Penny and Miss Elizabeth Welch, and her small son, "Tommy" Foister, served delicious refreshments. The July meeting will be held with Mrs. J. C. Welch.

Miss Anne Robbins, who has been a student at the Cincinnati, Ohio, Conservatory for the past session, has returned home to spend the summer with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Robbins south of the city.

Little Miss Martha Moffitt, daughter of Mrs. H. A. Moffitt, underwent an operation for appendicitis last Saturday morning at High Point hospital, and we are much pleased to announce that she is improving in a satisfactory manner. Earl Teague, who had the same operation at the Guilford General hospital, is also doing nicely.

Mrs. L. R. Johnston and daughter, Rebecca Holt, are visiting relatives at Elon College.

Sandy Ridge, Kernersville Charge.—Our faithful pastor was with us Sunday and brought us another uplifting sermon.

Our Sunday school is still doing fine. We had some new ones with us Sunday. We hope they will continue to come. Our Ladies' Aid society met with Mrs. Annie Goode Saturday evening. After the meeting Mrs. Goode served refreshments. The meeting was enjoyed by all.

Our Children's Day program will be held Sunday, June 21, beginning at 10:30 a. m. Everybody is invited to attend.

The Wood reunion will be held at Sandy Ridge church the fourth Sunday in June. Everybody is welcome. Be sure and bring a well-filled basket. There will be plenty of good singing and there will be some speakers. I don't know who they are, but come on and we will find out.

Our revival meeting begins the second Sunday in July. All of you Christians pray for us that we may have a great revival.

MRS. L. A. HOLT, Reporter.

English Street Church.—At last our hut is completed, a thing which has long been looked forward to; and the Philathea and Baraca classes are now meeting there for their Sunday school lessons.

Sunday, June 7, the C. E. society greatly enjoyed a trip to Lovejoy church. A large crowd was present, and we learned to know and love these people. We hope that we will again have the opportunity to be with them.

We regretted to learn that our pastor, Rev. G. R. Reynolds, could not fill his appointments on Sunday, June 7, due to illness; but we were glad to see him back again at his regular place last Sunday. At the evening service, his text was taken from Luke 15:11-28, his subject being "The Seven Downward Steps of the Prodigal Son." The seven steps were self-willed, heart-selfishness, separation, sensuality, spiritual extinction, self-abasement, and starvation. He announced that at the evening service next Sunday, his subject would be "The Six Upward Steps of the Prodigal Son." These sermons are both interesting and helpful.

At the regular C. E. meeting Sunday evening, new officers were elected as follows: President, Miss Kathleen Embler, re-elected but as she refused to serve another term, Miss Annie Bonkemeyer was elected; vice-president, Miss Ruth Bonkemeyer; secretary, Miss Tressie Caudle; treasurer, Mrs. J. A. Bowers; chairman of social committee, Mrs. A. L. McBride; prayer meeting, Mrs. J. A. Lee; membership, Frank Ring; sick and flowers, Callie Loflin; corresponding secretary, Mr. J. A. Bowers; society reporter, Miss Iris Caudle. We are expecting much from these new officers and hope for a very successful year.

We are now having choir practice every Tuesday night at the church.

Mrs. J. A. Bowers has been ill at her home for the past week, but was able to return to church Sunday night.

Thursday night, June 11, the C. E. society enjoyed a picnic at Tar Heel Inn, planned by the social committee. After a truck ride to the picnic grounds, a large picnic supper was spread, with approximately 35 present.

Chestnut Ridge, Orange Charge.—Sunday, June 13, was a good day for us. We had our Children's Day service. The exercises were good. Each child did well and we feel very proud of them. Every one seemed to enjoy the exercises very much.

Much credit is due to Mrs. A. V. Jones and Miss Elevean Hayes, who trained the children.

Hawkins' Chapel, Littleton Charge.—Sunday a. m., Rev. P. E. Bingham brought to us a message from Luke 8:5-15. After this the Lord's Supper was observed. We were glad to have with us at this hour Rev. N. M. Harrison.

The C. E. society sang a special selection at the preaching service. They used "My Desire," one of their new songs. The organization recently purchased a dozen new song books, using for this purpose a part of the money made through presentations of a play, "Home Ties," this spring.

Sunday p. m., Rev. N. M. Harrison also was a most welcome visitor at the C. E. meeting. After the discussion of the lesson by members, Rev. Mr. Harrison gave an inspirational talk. He urged the group to take advantage of their every opportunity to train themselves to become better workers, and encourage them to work more earnestly.

It will be remembered that Rev. Mr. Harrison was instrumental in the organization of the local society during the few months he served as pastor here in 1928. For this reason, as well as the fact that he endeared himself to us while here, we are always most happy to have him visit us and talk to us. Please come again.

Mr. and Mrs. Luther Shaw were the dinner guests of her sister, Mrs. J. D. Hawkins Sunday.

Misses Beatrice and Clyde Hawkins and writer spent part of last week in Rosemary with our 84-year-old grandmother. The fifth of September she was the guest of her daughter, Mrs. J. E. Hawkins.

Mr. and Mrs. Willie Gray Michel are very proud of their little son, Willie Gray, Jr.

Best wishes to the Herald and its readers.

MRS. CLAUDE H. HAWKINS, Reporter.

First Church, Albemarle.—The Fifth Sunday night our regular union service was held in the Tabernacle M. E. church. Rev. M. L. Dorton of West Asheville Baptist church delivered the sermon. Our choir furnished the music. These services are becoming more impressive each time we have them. It seems to draw our churches closer together; we now feel just like one great body of people.

Our revival closed last Sunday night. Mr. Troxler did splendid work, and I know I will be safe in saying he will never be forgotten by our people. His messages were sealed upon the hearts of many of our congregation. We sincerely hope that Mr. Troxler can be with us again.

The twenty-five cent social will meet in the home of Mrs. Walter Russell Thursday night, with Mrs. Russell and Mrs. Don Helms acting as joint hostesses.

Miss Beulah Moton of High Point, is visiting in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Moton.

Lexington.—South Lexington work is progressing nicely. Our Sunday school and preaching services are being well attended.

At our morning service we were glad to have the firemen of this city to hold their annual memorial service with us and Brother Isley delivered a splendid message, his subject being "The Three Greatest Things in Life." Hope, faith and love, the greatest of these was love.

The Ham campaign began here in our town Sunday, June 7, and is being attended by large crowds. Dr. Ham is doing some wonderful preaching and we are expecting one of the greatest revivals this city has ever witnessed. All churches in town have called off their evening services and are co-operating with Dr. Ham in his great work.

REPORTER.

St. Paul, Greensboro.—We are moving along nicely. Our Sunday school is off a little since the weather has gotten warm, but there were over 200 present Sunday.

The Ladies Aid held its regular meeting Saturday night with Mrs. W. W. Oaks. One of the things taken up at this meeting was to try the penny plan to raise money by placing a gallon jug on the table where all the classes pass as they go to their class rooms, and they are asked to drop pennies in each Sunday and Mr. C. E. Wilson, Mrs. R. C. Lineberry and Mrs. J. S. Wade were appointed as the boosting committee to see that the jug is filled; when it is full it will hold about $25, and the money is to go to the church to help out on some of our conference claims. We hope that it can be filled and refilled.

The Royal Blue class had a hat sale in the new hut week before last. Hats were sold in paper bags, so that no one knew what they were buying. It was right much fun to see the men wearing the ladies' old hats, also had refreshments to sell. The profit was around $10 from the sales.

The class of young girls will hold a class meeting Tuesday night; they will meet with Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Yates. Miss Lillian Wade is teacher of the class and it is a fine class of girls.

We are glad to report that Mrs. C. O. Kennett has returned home from St. Leo's hospital much improved and trust that she will soon be able to be at her place in church and Sunday school.

Our pastor, Rev. D. I. Garner, preached two splendid sermons the second Sunday. He told us Sunday that while the weather was hot he would preach only twenty minutes.

The C. E. society held its regular meeting Sunday just before preaching. Miss Lillian Wade had charge of the meeting Sunday night. Mr. L. A. Parr is the president of the society.

The Royal Blue class will hold a class meeting Thursday night of this week to elect new officers. The class will meet with Mrs. F. H. May.

WOMAN SUFFRAGE PROPOSED

Louis Marin, former French cabinet officer and now leader of an important centrist group in the Chamber of Deputies, made an attempt to compel the French nation to face the question of woman suffrage. He submitted to the suffrage committee a proposal which would not only grant women in France equal rights in respect to voting but would also grant them equal rights in respect to holding public office. ## FAMOUS ART GALLERY BURNED

One of Europe's outstanding art galleries, the famous Glass Palace at Munich, Germany, was completely destroyed by fire on Saturday of last week, and with it a priceless collection of paintings, besides the Romantic paintings, the most valuable part of the exhibition, nearly 300 others of later periods and of contemporary Germany, Italy, and other countries are lost. The tentative loss is set at more than $6,000,000, not including the value of the historical structure.

IN HONOR OF THE DEAD

Poythress

On May 23, 1931, Mrs. A. H. Poythress, aged 32 years, wife of A. H. Poythress, departed this life for her home above.

She died in the Norfolk General hospital in Sarnia, Ontario, Canada, her home being near Delhi, Ont. She was formerly of Vance county, but had made her home in Canada for about a year where her husband is employed.

She was a member of Union Chapel M. P. church, having joined early in life. She was a kind, loving wife and mother, and was loved by all who knew her, always greeting everyone with a smile.

Funeral services were held at the home of her husband's grandfather, G. M. Stainback, conducted by her pastor, Rev. C. L. Spencer; interment being in the family cemetery. She was laid to rest under a beautiful mound of flowers, tokens of love and respect of her many friends and loved ones. She is survived by her husband and two children, A. H., Jr., 10 and Ralph, 7, also her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Rogers; three brothers and one sister. May the Lord bless each of them and guide them onward so that they may meet her again.

MRS. WARREN DUKE.

Foust.

About 9:45 a. m. Sunday, May 17, 1931, Maggie Allen Foust bid farewell to earth and loved ones to go and be with Jesus, aged 32 years, 6 months and 1 day. She was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Allen. She married George W. Foust October 27, 1918. She leaves to mourn their loss a heart-broken husband and four children, Wade, Willard, Dorothy and Eleanor; also her parents, three brothers, Messrs. Ralph, Daniel and John; three sisters, Misses Ethel, Alice Myrtle and Esther Allen, and her husband's family who loved her as a daughter and sister. She had many other relatives and friends, who are sad because of her going. As a child Maggie was a beautiful, sweet girl. She gave her heart to God in her early teens and as she daily walked with God her spirit grew more beautiful and her influence went out to those about her, and she had many friends whose lives, we trust, have been made better by having known her. She united with Bethel M. P. church and remained a faithful member until death. She was a member of our missionary society before moving to Burlington. She loved her church and all of its interests, doing what she could, but the beauty of her Christian character was shown most in the home, I know, for my home was also her home for the first year of her married life. She was always kind, gentle and sweet, doing all she could to help others. Day by day she lived for Jesus and death held no terror for her. She was sick five weeks, part of the time in Rainey hospital. She suffered very much, but bore it all with patient Christian fortitude. She talked of her husband and children and the home work, but didn't seem to worry over herself. Her thoughts were for others. When asked as to her spiritual condition, she said, "Don't worry about me, I'm all right." We cannot understand why God took her from her dear ones just, it seemed, when she was needed most, but we know He doeth all things well and for the good of all who trust Him. Maggie is one more tie, oh, such a strong one, to bind us all heavenward and sometime in the coming years we'll understand. Maggie has gone Home. We feel sure of that. We know she is happy, oh, so happy, surrounded by all the glorious beauty of Father's Home. "For eye hath not seen, nor ear heard, neither hath it entered into the heart of man the things which God hath prepared for them that love Him." Dr. F. W. Paschall, of Burlington church, where she attended church and Sunday school, conducted the funeral at Bethel M. P. church, assisted by Revs. J. A. Burgess, G. W. Holmes and Virgil Pike. Burlington and Bethel choirs sang sweetly many of her favorite songs, and interment was in Bethel cemetery. A very large audience assembled to pay a last tribute of love to one they loved and many beautiful flowers covered the mound beneath which lay a flower so fair and sweet that the Good Gardener transplanted it to the garden above and its perpetual blossoms shed forth a delightful fragrance which is wafted back to earth and draws us all heavenward. Dear husband and children, we must not miss heaven now, for Maggie, so gloriously beautiful, anxiously awaits our coming. We will not disappoint you, Maggie dear. With God's help we will meet when He wills, and we'll never say goodbye.

Her mother-in-law.

MRS. J. M. FOUST.

Bobbitt

After a lingering illness Mr. John Watson Bobbitt, a former resident of Littleton, N. C., died on April 15 at his home in Cove City, N. C., at the age of 79 years.

Since early childhood Mr. Bobbitt had been a faithful member of the Methodist Protestant church, always ready to aid in its support.

He was twice married. His first wife was Virginia Olivia Phelps. From this union one son, John T. Bobbitt, of Enfield; Miss Lena Bobbitt and Mrs. Richard Powell, of Richmond, Va., and LeRoy Whitley, of Enfield, and several grandchildren survive. Also his second wife, formerly Mrs. Hattie Avery, of Cove City; one brother, James H. Bobbitt, and two sisters, Mesdames T. H. Isles and W. N. Thornton, of Littleton, N. C.

An impressive service was held at Enfield in the home of his son, John T. Bobbitt, at 3 o'clock April 16, with a large gathering of relatives and friends. Rev. Mr. McWhearter, pastor of the M. E. church, conducted the services, assisted by Dr. Johnson and Rev. Mr. Anderson, of the M. P. and Baptist churches. "How Firm a Foundation" and "In the Hour of Trial" were sung by a mixed chorus led by Mrs. Charlie Miller.

Pallbearers were Messrs. Watson N. Sherrod, Reuben Jordan, Louis B. Meyers, Ralph Rives, J. R. Powers and J. L. Bass. Nieces of the deceased placed the lovely floral tributes on the grave in the Enfield cemetery.

May his faithful, devoted wife, with his children and other loved ones, live in the service of Him in whom he trusted. "Till morning's joy shall end the night of weeping
And life's long shadows break in cloudless day."

A FRIEND.

YOU CAN'T FOOL GOD

You can fool the general public,
You can be a subtle fraud,
You can hide your little meanness,
But you can't fool God!

You can advertise your virtues,
You can self achievement laud,
You can load yourself with riches,
But you can't fool God!

You can magnify your talent,
You can hear the world applaud,
You can boast yourself somebody,
But you can't fool God!

You can criticize the Bible,
You can be a selfish clod,
You can lie, swear, drink, and gamble,
But you can't fool God!

SILENT STREET

I like to stroll in Silent Street,
Where quiet friends are wont to meet,
And everything is most discreet,
In simple, smiling, Silent Street.

Come walk with me in Silent Street,
From sound and stress a safe retreat;
Where we can think with measured feet,
In serious, sapient, Silent Street.

NIGHTINGALE BROADCASTS

The song of an English nightingale was broadcast to the world when Beatrice Harrison, English musician, lured one of the feathered songsters to a microphone concealed in a thicket on her estate in Surrey. The bird was stimulated to enter the thicket and sing when the musician played a cello and sang softly. Many unsuccessful efforts had been made previously and when the bird began to sing in front of the microphone it was switched on the air and all other programs interrupted. The nightingale's song was picked up distinctly in the United States and Australia.

THE ROYAL COLOR

Tyrian purple, which is really a deep crimson, was the first famous of all dyed colors known to ancients. According to a legend, this color was discovered near Tyre in Phoenicia when a man named Hercules saw his dog bite into a shellfish and stain his mouth. At any rate the ancients ascribed the discovery of purple to the Phoenicians and it was probably the first dyed color to be fixed on wool and linen.

It was obtained from the small cysts near the head of the M-diterranean mollusk known to the Romans as "purpura," from which the word "purple" is supposed to be derived. Shells of this species have been found in the vicinity of ancient dyeworks at Athens and Pompeii. Each shellfish, or purple-fish as it was also called, yielded only a minute quantity of the dye and by reason of this fact the color was very costly and consequently highly prized by kings and persons of wealth.

In the Old Testament purple frequently occurs as the symbol of wealth, grandeur and high rank, and in Luke 1:19 Jesus refers to "a certain rich man, which was clothed in purple and fine linen, and fared sumptuously every day." A pound of wool dyed with Tyrian purple was worth nearly $200 in the time of Julius Caesar.

Since consuls wore purple togas and kings and princes dressed in robes of the same color it was natural that the Roman emperors should do likewise and gradually purple became not only the symbol of high rank and authority but also peculiarly associated with the imperial office. The Byzantine emperors wrote their decrees in purple ink, and Justinian I in 532 attempted to have the use of purple restricted to the emperors. Thus "the purple" came to signify imperial or royal rank, and "born or cradled in the purple" was said of a child born in an imperial or reigning family. When a man became emperor he was said to "assume the purple."

Although purple is an emblem of penance, the purple costumes worn by Roman cardinals are reminiscent of the Roman consular togas. He has been "promoted to the purple" is said of a churchman when he is made a cardinal. Modern purple differs from the ancient Tyrian purple and is produced by mixing red and blue pigments.—The Pathfinder.

THE WISE MAN

He did not ask for riches,
To play a pompous part;
But humbly prayed to have
An understanding heart.

God heard his meek petition
And gave him wisdom rare;
All other things He added
In which to richly share.

—La Fiesta de Los Angeles, 150th anniversary celebration of the California city to extend from September 4 to 13, is to be the occasion of most impressive and beautiful religious services. The scene of the Protestant services will be Hollywood Bowl. They will be held on the afternoon of Sunday, September 6. The famous Bowl, whose marvelous acoustics make possible the perfect rendering of the "Symphonies under the Stars," seats 35,000; and persons in all of those, of course, will hear the addresses and music.

GOVERNMENT IN RED

After laying practically completed his series of parties on the Rapidan, where the various department heads were invited to come out and be sheared like sheep, President Hoover held a long meeting with his cabinet and announced that the deficit for the fiscal year would be between $900,000,000 and $950,000,000, and that the fiscal year of 1932 promised a deficit of about $1,500,000,000. June 30, he said, would find the national debt increased by about $500,000,000. Receipts of the Treasury fell off about $890,000,000 as compared with last year. The one bright spot in the gloomy picture was the announcement that the economies planned would save the government about $100,000,000 a year for the next three years. In addition to a bond issue of $500,000,000 in June, for retiring maturing certificates and to furnish funds, there was talk of another long-term bond issue in September to convert a large part of the short-term debt now outstanding. The June bonds bearing 3½ per cent. interest will mature in 1949.—The Pathfinder.

DON'T YOU KNOW BETTER?

Don't you really know better
Than to sit down and complain,
If you want days of prosperity
To come your way again?
Grumbling will not do it,
Shirking makes things worse,
Doubting is a drawback,
Worrying just a curse.

Don't you really know better
Than to speculate in stocks,
And some black day, minus money,
Be left stranded on the rocks?
Buy only bonds and mortgages,
Avoid the quick-rich bet;
Do not throw away your money,
Better safety than regret.

Don't you really know better
Than to squander precious days?
Be wise today and realize
Aimless effort never pays.
Work away with earnest purpose,
Push ahead through storm and stress,
Know that persevering labor
Is the key to true success.

—Grenville Kleiser.

—The 1931 General Assembly of North Carolina made several changes in the laws which regulate the employment of women and children in industry, proving thereby that its members were progressively inclined and fully awake to the needs of a growing industrial state, cognizant of the necessity of promoting education and health among the people and convinced of the righteousness of granting increased protection and shorter hours to working men and women.—By George B. Lay.

—The Lancaster Mills, at Clinton, Mass., were at one time valued at $15,000,000, and employed 2,200 workers. There was an inn, which had 140 rooms for employees who boarded, and the company also owned a number of dwelling houses. Citizens of Clinton recently purchased the mills, the inn, and the residences for $8,500 cash, at the same time assuming tax obligations of $32,000. It is hoped to divide the mills into smaller manufacturing units and to bring new industries to the town.

CORRECTING AN EARLIER REPORT

Dear Mr. McCulloch:

Will you kindly permit the correction of an item in last week's Herald. While the Presbyterian General Assembly (Northern) voted on Saturday to discontinue its financial support of the Federal Council of Churches, on Monday following it reconsidered and reversed that action. Its commission on the family omitted the section of its report endorsing "Birth Control." This is no indication, however, of a change of conviction on the part of a majority of the commission. The idea went across in the press before the Assembly met. It has lodged in many minds. Further and more mature consideration doubtless will insure more intelligent and fairer action than would have been possible at this meeting.

LUTHER K. LONG.

JEWS INTERMARRY

"No period in Jewry has been more critical than the present one," declared Rabbi Coblentz of Baltimore at a meeting in Washington of the United Synagogue of America, which was attended by prominent rabbis and officials from several cities. Rabbi Coblentz said that in one small community near Baltimore there had been 17 inter-marriages in Jewish families in the last two years, and that the situation was the same in many other small communities in Maryland and Virginia. Disintegration "loves to invade the small community," he said, "because it has no defense." The children of such marriages, it was said, are brought up in ignorance of the Jewish faith, and the rabbis agreed that the race is doomed unless such movement be checked. In 1929 it was reported that 25 per cent. of Jewish men marrying in Russia were taking non-Jewish wives, while a smaller proportion of Jewish women were also marrying non-Jews.—The Pathfinder.

—At the Baltimore Academy of Music in April 1917 David Starr Jordan was almost mobbed by rioters who sang: "Hang Dave Jordan on a Sour Apple Tree!" After the U. S. entered the war, however, he made no more speeches. And ten years after the Baltimore incident he received a letter from one Carter G. Osburn, who said he had led the Baltimore mob: "No apology is possible for such an act . . . I was at the time 20 years old . . . In these ten years I saw something of the actuality of war . . . You were motivated by the principles of civilization, while I was motivated by . . . barbarism."

A Warring World

The creatures all have joined the army,
Well armed with stings and fangs and claws,
With horns and hoofs and dreadful trunks,
And everything allowed by laws.

No cowards they, but full of courage,
Red-blooded heroes are they all.
We craven men should have the nerve
To build them monuments when they fall!

Open Letter to General Douglas MacArthur

MY DEAR SIR:

I take pleasure in printing your letter to Mr. Kirby Page sent to me by the War Department of our national government. It will help our readers to a realization of the need of police protection and of national defense. But I must be permitted to say that I believe your reprimand to the preachers who are unwilling to bear arms is undeserved. Their first allegiance is to One who said, "I am not come to destroy men's lives but to save them." These ambassadors of Christ must have His spirit and follow His example and obey His teachings. There may be a few clergymen who can be classed with the opponents of national defense, but it is a grievous error to assume that every minister of the Gospel who is unwilling to bear arms in war is opposed to national defense. The role of the minister is inconsistent with the role of the soldier. Men generally recognize this fact, and for this reason ministers have heretofore been exempt from military service. But in these recent years somebody has given currency to the fallacy that citizenship necessarily involves the obligation to military service. Even women have been required to take the oath to bear arms in order to be admitted to citizenship. If citizenship necessarily involved the obligation to military service, then men would never become too old or too infirm to be soldiers. General, I wonder how you would like to be put in command of a regiment of octogenarians on the field of some decisive battle. I think common sense teaches that preachers and women and old men and invalids should be excused from military service. The oath to "defend and support the Constitution" does not necessarily involve a promise to render military service; there are numbers of other ways in which we can render service, ways fitted to our powers and circumstances. And since as you report the training camps are filled by eager candidates for military service, it ought to be easy to excuse the clergymen and the women and the old and the infirm. The nation will be best off when all classes of men attend faithfully to their own duties.

Your attempt to teach ministers the Scriptures reminds me of a story which you will pardon. A man with a wonderfully trained dog was asked how in the world he ever succeeded in teaching the dog so many tricks. He replied: "In order to give such a course of training you must, first of all, know more than the dog knows." You would teach clergymen that Jesus favors national warfare because he said (Matt. 10:34): "Think not that I am come to send peace on earth; I came not to send peace, but a sword." But ministers know from the context that Jesus here uses the word "sword" not in a literal but a metaphorical sense. If you wish to know Jesus' thought regarding the use of the literal sword turn to the 26th chapter and 52d verse of the same book: "Put up again thy sword into its place: for all they that take the sword shall perish with the sword." Jesus was the Prince of Peace and should not be represented as the chief instigator of war.

You ask whether ministers have considered the meaning of our Lord's words in Luke 11:21—"When a strong man armed keepeth his palace, his goods are in peace." I am wondering whether you have read those words in the light of the words of Jesus that immediately follow, Luke 11:22—"But when a stronger than he shall come upon him, and overcome him, he taketh from him all his armor wherein he trusted, and divideth the spoils." The man in the 21st verse does not look so safe after reading of the man in the 22d verse. The context seems to suggest as an interpretation of this parable that the strong man of the 21st verse represents Satan and the stronger man of the 22d verse represents Jesus Christ. Because Jesus came to destroy the works of the devil, it does not follow that men are to destroy each other's works and lives. A great preacher and writer who understood quite well the genius of Christianity has left on record this statement: "The weapons of our warfare are not carnal, but mighty through God to the pulling down of strongholds." Early Christian ministers felt that it was not meet that they should leave the word of God and serve tables. You need not be surprised if ministers now feel that it is not meet that they leave the word of God and take up arms against their fellowmen. The insistence that they should do so shows a false perspective of life's chief values.

Let us all avail ourselves of the service of the fanatics: their business is to show the rest of us the extremes to be avoided.

With respect for your high office and your efficiency as an officer and with appreciation of true military service, I am,
ONE OF THE CLERGY.

JEFFERSON DAVIS IN STATUARY HALL

By REV. LUTHER K. LONG

It was an unexpected pleasure, on June second, to be present at the unveiling of the statue of Jefferson Davis in the Capitol building in Washington.

Of course, my early judgments and feelings concerning him had been adverse.

I was at Fortress Monroe in 1896 and viewed with no little interest the prison cell in which he was for a time confined. Visitors were reminded that he had on women's clothes when captured.

His pictures—high cheek-bones and exceedingly angular face—never favorably impressed me.

In 1920 I spent a night in Montgomery, Alabama. Before retiring I took a walk about the city, and came up to the state Capitol. Lights were burning on the portico and in the open rotunda. On the floor of the portico, a brass star marked the spot where Davis stood as he took the oath of office as the first—and only—President of the Southern Confederacy. In the rotunda hangs a fine portrait in oil of the man whom the South so signally honored. I am glad to have seen that. It was painted in his earlier manhood, and made on me a very pleasing impression. I wish the statue might have preserved some of those more pleasing features.

Many years ago the editor of the HERALD and myself—class-mates and room-mates in college—went over together many things concerning which we would naturally be expected to differ widely—he having first seen the light in slavery times in North Carolina, while I came onto the scene several years later in Illinois. To be exact, I was born the day General McDowell left Washington with his army, crossing the Potomac on the Long Bridge, on the way to settle issues with the Confederate forces gathered at Manassas Junction. Five days later—I was then spending my fifth hot day on earth, probably crying—occurred the First Battle of Bull Run.

It was this disastrous battle that aroused the North to the realization that men, many men; and money, much money; and lives, many lives; and untold suffering would be the price at which the union would be restored and preserved. How glad we all now are that Lincoln persistently stuck to his determination to save the union at any cost!

At the unveiling of the statue was a considerable crowd—mostly from the South, but with a goodly number of those who, like myself, were sympathetically interested in so unusual a sight. We were interested in the fact that a man who had served conspicuously in the government of the nation, had not been put to death when he and his conferees had been defeated in the attempt to withdraw and establish another nation on a part of the original territory, could now have his memory perpetuated by this bronze statue in the seat of the government from which he had attempted to withdraw.

At the foot of the statue were placed wreaths of flowers. The United States flag was at first folded about the statue. When the statue was unveiled, the Stars and Stripes hung behind the statue—its original thirteen stripes all there and not one star of the entire galaxy missing!

No one today can begrudge the South the sad privilege of honoring this leader who had real abilities and excellent qualities. He did as well as he could the things he believed himself under obligation to do. Fortunately for us all, the cause he served is a lost cause. It has gone with the many other lost causes. It was one that never, in fairness, could have permanently prevailed.

MUSIC IN THE CHURCH PROGRAM

By MISS BESSIE HOLMES

Music holds today, as always, an important and prominent place in the church program. It is no mere chance that the Bible is full of music from Jubal, the father of the art, to the vision in Revelation with which the record ends. Music was used in the Hebrew feasts and festivals. It formed a large part of the temple worship. Great choruses lifted up their voices with the trumpets and cymbals and instruments of music and praised the Lord. The Psalms, those most wonderful of hymns, have been the voice of the church in all ages. We are told that Jesus went from the Last Supper to Gethsemane singing and that Paul counseled his converts thus: "Let the words of Christ dwell in you richly in all wisdom, teaching and admonishing one another with Psalms and hymns and spiritual songs, singing with grace in your hearts unto God."

Throughout the Bible one cannot fail to be impressed with the beauty and power of music. Yet, the flippant and thoughtless attitude taken toward music by many of the church members is amazing. They look upon the music of the church as merely a pleasure, a means of drawing a crowd and furnishing variety and fail to realize the fact that the music used is helping to determine men's ethical ideals and spiritual power. As to what is sung, why it is sung, and the results attained, they apparently have no care. Scientists have found music to have a great power over the nervous system and even in case of certain illness, mental and physical it is used, but we are told by authority that its highest practical efficiency has been reached as an applied art in the service of religion. In the periods that religion has flourished most, men have sung most. Without music worship has seemed imperfect if not impossible.

Music has a place in the church program as a preparation for the preacher's message. A congregation assembles with various thoughts in the minds of its members. The singing of a hymn in which the congregation is asked to take part, or the playing of some suitable piece of music will rid the mind of these cluttering particulars and help to organize the group into a worshiping unit.

Some one has said: "Let me write a people's songs and whoever will may write its laws" intimating that songs more than laws govern one's conduct. To make the hymnal, then, is to shape the faith of the church. Looking at it from this standpoint we see that the selection of a church hymnal or "song book" is of vital importance to any church. It is a wise minister who will insist upon the use of the church hymnal for church service. It is surprising to find that a great number of the songs being used in our churches today do not help in the worship service because they are mere jingles, written to loud snappy tunes that have more effect on the feet than heart. Every hymnal should be tested for the character of the poetry and music and the adaptation of both to use by the individual.

The preacher has an important part in the musical program in the selecting of the hymns to be used and in teaching the congregation in singing. He should know how to make wise selections so that the central idea of the service would dominate everything and, at the same time, not express the exact theme before the sermon. The one following the sermon, if closely related, will deepen the impression made by the service. Hymns should always be announced by the preacher and sometimes the reading of a stanza or the relating of the circumstances under which the hymn was written has a wonderful effect upon the lives of the listeners.

The choir of any church has its necessary place as a leader and in the singing of anthems and the like, but the singing of hymns is no more a duty of the choir than any other group of the congregation. Everyone that can sing should try to have an appreciation of what is being sung, to sing sincerely, and co-operate wholeheartedly with the leader and pianist. You will get little from a song service unless you put something into it. The choir does not need to do for us what we can do for ourselves.

Congregational singing needs to be revived, but how can it be done? Someone recommends the old time singing school, but in these busy days it would be hard to get the congregation together for such. Another suggests that the leader and pastor earnestly insist upon the congregation taking a larger share in the song service. Another says furnish more hymnals so that each person may have use of one. After various things have been tried and nothing brings the desired results, it is a sure sign that the people need a revival in their own hearts to awaken them to the fact that worship through song is one of the most vital parts of the service of worship and it is the duty of each one to participate in it.

A wise selection of songs, suited to the ages of the congregation and presented by consecrated and enthusiastic leaders, in an appealing way, cannot help but bring about better group singing.

"Let the people praise thee, O God, let all the people praise thee," should be the aim toward which we are continually striving.

LETTER FROM CHIEF OF STAFF TO MR. KIRBY PAGE

Mr. Kirby Page, editor of The World Tomorrow, who recently sent out a questionnaire to clergymen inquiring their views as to whether they would bear arms in case of future war, requested the Chief of Staff, General Douglas MacArthur to express an opinion for publication in his paper as to his views upon the result of the replies received from the clergymen.

General MacArthur wrote as follows:

"I appreciate very much the courtesy of the suggestion contained in your note of April 20th, and am glad indeed to avail myself of the privilege of commenting on the general subject of the Church in war.

"My predominant feeling with reference to the majority of the replies received by your paper from 19,372 clergymen is that of surprise. Surprise at the knowledge that so many of the clergymen of our country have placed themselves on record as repudiating in advance the constitutional obligations that will fall upon them equally with all other elements of our citizenship in supporting this country in case of need. To exercise privilege without assuming attendant responsibility and obligation is to occupy a position of license, a position apparently sought by men who do not hesitate to avail themselves of the privileges conferred by our democracy upon its citizens, but who in effect proclaim their willingness to see this nation perish rather than participate in its defense.

"The question of war and peace is one that rests under our form of government, in Congress. In exercising this authority Congress voices the will of the majority, whose right to rule is the cornerstone upon which our governmental edifice is built. Under the Constitution, its pronouncement on such a question is final, and is obligatory upon every citizen of the United States. That men who wear the cloth of the church should openly defend repudiation of the laws of the land, with the necessary implications and ramifications arising from such a general attitude toward our statutes, seems almost unbelievable. It will certainly hearten every potential or actual criminal and malefactor who either has or contemplates breaking some other law. Anomalous as it seems, it apparently stamps the clergyman as a leading exponent of law violation at individual pleasure.

"I am mindful of the right accorded every American citizen to endeavor by lawful means to secure such changes in the Constitution or statutes as he may desire. But to concede to him the right to defy existing law is to recognize a state of anarchy and the collapse of properly constituted authority. May I remark also that if we acknowledge the prerogative of the individual to disregard the obligations placed upon him by American citizenship, it seems only logical to ask him to forego all rights guaranteed by such citizenship.

"It also surprises me that while apparently entering a plea for freedom of conscience, these clergymen are attempting to dictate to the consciences of those who honestly differ from them over questions of national defense. Their sentiments and implied efforts are injecting the church into the affairs of state and endangering the very principle that they claim to uphold. Perhaps the greatest privilege of our country, which indeed, however, can exist only so long as government survives. To render our country helpless would invite destruction, not only of our political and economic freedom, but also of our religion.

"Another surprise comes in the revelation that so many seem to be unfamiliar with the struggle of mankind for the free institutions that we enjoy. Magna Charta, the Declaration of Independence, the Emancipation, the rights of small nations, and other birthrights of this generation have been bought with the high price of human suffering and human sacrifice, much of it on the fields of battle.

"I am surprised that men of clear and logical minds confuse defensive warfare with the disease which it alone can cure when all other remedies have failed. Do they not know that police systems and armed national defense are the human agencies made necessary by the deep-seated disease of individual depravity, the menace of personal greed and hatred? Should not these clergymen turn their attention to the individual sinner and rid the country of crime rather than attack the national keepers of the peace, the most potent governmental agency yet devised for this very purpose? It is a distinct disappointment to know that men who are called to wield the sword of the spirit are deluded into believing that the mechanical expedient of disarming men will transform hatred into love, and selfishness into altruism.

"May I also express surprise that some have lost sight of the fact that in none of our past wars have clergymen been required to bear arms, and that under the terms of the Geneva Convention, ratified by the United States in 1907 (Sec. 130 and 132), chaplains are non-combatants and not authorized to be armed. And if United States army chaplains are ever guilty of inflammatory propaganda, such activity is without warrant or authority by any statute or order ever promulgated in the history of the country.

"Perhaps I should also remind them that under the terms of the League of Nations the United States would be required to maintain a standing army of at least a half million men in order to be able to carry out its mandates. I am curious to know how many of the clergymen who voted for the League have read the articles and understand that under them the peace of the world is to be maintained in the last analysis, by armed military forces. It is difficult to reconcile the faith of these people in the efficacy of newly organized international agencies to keep the peace and enforce respect for international covenants with their self-confessed intention to violate the existing laws of their own long-established government.

"A few questions occur to me that could appropriately be asked the clergymen who replied to your questionnaire. In stating that they were in favor of the United States taking the lead in reducing armament, even if compelled to make greater proportionate reductions than other countries might be willing to make, did they know that the existing total of our land forces, including Regular Army, National Guard, and Organized Reserves is about one-third of one per cent. of our population? Did they know that in other great countries, except Germany, whose army is limited by treaty, this ratio is from three to forty-five times as great? Did they know our total forces in actual size are exceeded by those of at least fifteen other nations, although in population we are exceeded only by Russia, China, and India? Finally, did they consider the words of our Lord as given in the 21st verse of the 11th chapter of St. Luke: 'When a strong man armed, keepeth his palace, his goods are in peace'?

"In all modesty may I not say to the opponents of national defense that our Lord, who preached the Sermon on the Mount, later in his career declared: 'Think not that I am come to send peace on earth; I came not to send peace, but a sword.' St. Matthew, 10th chapter, 34th verse. It is my humble belief that the religion which He came to establish is based upon sacrifice, and that men and women who follow in His train are called by it to the defense of certain price-less principles even at the cost of their own lives. And I can think of no principles more high and holy than those for which our national sacrifices have been made in the past. History teaches us that religion and patriotism have always gone hand in hand, while atheism has invariably been accompanied by radicalism, communism, bolshevism, and other enemies of free government.

"Have not those who oppose our modest and reasonable efforts for national defense miscalculated the temper and innate spirit of patriotism in the average American? The fact that our Citizens' Military Training camps are over-subscribed long before the opening of the camps comforts me that patriotism is still a dominant power in our land. Any organization which opposes the defense of homeland and the principles hallowed by the blood of our ancestors, which sets up internationalism in the place of patriotism, which teaches the passive submission of right to the forces of the predatory strong, cannot prevail against the demonstrated staunchness of our population. I confidently believe that a red-blooded and virile humanity which loves peace devotedly, but is willing to die in the defense of the right, is Christian from center to circumference, and will continue to be dominant in the future as in the past."

A BEAUTIFUL ANSWER

One day a little girl in a white frock, and with a great bunch of flowers, passed by a boy who was playing in the dusty street. Somehow, the sight of that dainty figure stirred the spirit of mischief in the boy's heart. He threw a handful of dirt which struck the white dress and fell in a shower upon the kid shoes.

The little girl stood still. Her face flushed pink. Her lips trembled as if she would cry. But, instead, a smile broke over her face; and, taking a flower from her bunch, she tossed it to the boy, who stood waiting to see what she was going to do.

A more surprised boy no one ever saw, nor one more heartily ashamed. He hung his head, and his cheeks reddened under their tan and freckles. His unkind fun was quite spoiled, just because in return for a handful of dirt some one had thrown him a flower.

What a changed world this would be if everybody, big and little, were as wise as this six-year-old maid! How quarrels would go out of fashion, if for angry words we threw back gentle answers!—Publisher Unknown.

"Thy Kingdom Come"

This Is Not So Good

The per capita membership payment to budgets for the first six months of the conference year is only 19 cents. This includes, too, the amount paid for college maintenance. If we deduct what was raised by our women during this period, the per capita membership payment dwindles to 9 cents. One explanation of this is found in the fact that 47 charges have no credits on the A. C. B.; 20 charges have no credits on the G. C. B.; and 55 have no credits on college maintenance. An examination of the treasurer's report will show that among these charges that have no credits are many of the strongest in the conference. All of us know, of course, that money is tight; but in the light of these facts, we are led to wonder if we are over-estimating the money stringency, and being too much deterred by it. This is entirely possible. People have lots of money for some things. Every week $30,000,000 goes from our people in the United States for movie tickets, to say nothing about the large sums that are being paid for baseball, golf, and other sports. It is claimed that only three-fourths of one cent out of every American dollar gets to the church. Just so long as people have so much money for other things, we must insist that the church, the most important institution in the world, shall not be neglected.

St. Paul

June 7.—We were with this charge on this date in the morning service. This was our first visit to this charge since the erection of the hut. This is located immediately back of the church building, and is connected with the latter by means of a side entrance. The hut is used as a class room for the men's Bible class. It will afford also a place for social functions. Space is cut off in the rear for a kitchenette. We were much pleased with the construction and general appearance of the building. It will no doubt prove of much value to the church. We were glad to learn that there is no indebtedness on the building. Our visit was enjoyed here, as usual, and we found the work, under the leadership of Brother Garner, the pastor, moving smoothly and hopefully. It was our pleasure to be a dinner guest, with the pastor and his son, in the home of Brother G. H. May. We shall expect a year of progress at St. Paul.

Orange Chapel

This is on Saxapahaw charge. We were here on Sunday, June 21, in a Memorial Day program. The day was hot, but fair, and a large crowd was present to do honor to deceased friends and loved ones. Mr. J. G. Rogers, president of Orange Chapel Memorial association, was in charge of the morning program. Prof. C. V. Ferguson was in charge in the afternoon. The pastor, Rev. T. J. Whitehead, was present, also Dr. J. D. Williams and Brother Bennett, of the M.

E. church, South. Special singers from Burlington and Graham assisted in the music. It was our privilege to make the memorial address, which was a part of the morning program. A bountiful dinner was spread in the shade of the oaks on the church grounds. In the afternoon obituaries were read in honor of those who have passed into the great beyond since the observance of Memorial Day last year. The address of Mr. Charles H. Ireland of Greensboro, featured the afternoon program. Mr. Ireland is lay leader in the Western North Carolina Annual conference, M. E. church, South, and has been a long-time friend of Mr. Lamb, and his Sunday School teacher for many years. He spoke in highest terms of the deceased. His address was heard with deep interest and full appreciation by the large congregation that filled the house. It was my privilege to have Mr. Ireland as a traveling companion, going and coming. His fellowship was delightful. Our impressions are that the day was well planned for, and that it was well spent. The Memorial association at this place is only two years old, but its usefulness is already seen in the improved condition of the cemetery. Further improvements are to follow. We are grateful for the privilege of being with our friends here again, and we enjoyed the day with them here immensely. It was a day of spiritual refreshing also. The Lord was with His people.

Married

On Monday, June 22, it was my happy privilege to officiate at the marriage of Mr. Troy Stanford to Miss Alice Homewood, both of Burlington. These are splendid young people, and their many friends will join me in hearty congratulations, and in all good wishes for their happiness and prosperity, as they walk life's pathway together. They will continue to live in Burlington.

That Black Mark

It is pleasing to see it climb. Just a little more campaigning heat—not June heat—and it will stand at 800. And First Church, High Point, is putting on that campaigning heat, too. The laymen are after this matter, and they are making it go. Already they have received 34 new subscribers, and they are confident of their quota of 73. They've found the secret. It's just a little work, and the thing is done. Other charges are near the goal. Just a few more subscribers, and they will be out. Three thousand subscribers this year would be a great achievement. But the paper is worthy of it. Let's do it. Everybody, now, lifting that black mark.

Our Problems

We have them, of course, and always shall. It has never been a perfectly easy matter to carry on the work of God's Kingdom in the earth. It was not easy for Jesus to institute the Kingdom. It was not easy for his Apostles to go on with the work when he committed it to them and went back to the Father. They found problems many and hard of solution. And their successors down to this very day have found that "this world is no friend to grace to help us on to God." But many of our problems are probably those of our own making. We are short-sighted and imperfect at best, and subject to influences and forces that are not always in harmony with God's plans and purposes for His Kingdom. God suffers his church, too, to be the victim, as He does individuals, of economic conditions brought about by unsound social, political, and industrial systems that can draw the wealth of the world into the coffers of a few folks, and leave the masses to work out their salvation in stint and poverty. And this, of course, creates a problem for the church. But this is our hope and our assurance: Jesus Christ is the solution for every problem that His church has. Has He not said, "The gates of hell shall not prevail against It?" I do not know just how he will solve the problems of his church; but I do know that if the church will be true to him, he will be sufficient for every problem that his church has. And likewise is he sufficient for every problem of every one of His friends. "Henceforth I call you not servants; . . . but I have called you friends."

"Give to the winds thy fears;

Hope and be undismayed;

God hears thy sighs and counts thy tears;

God shall lift up thy head."

FAIR-MINDEDNESS

(An oration delivered by Mr. Vernon A. Morton, Walkertown, N. C., in the Annual Oratorical contest at High Point College. Mr. Morton won the contest. At the same time Mr. Morton was doing college work, he served an M. E. church at the above address. He graduated in June.)

Behold the new sun that slowly and gradually arises above the horizon of yonder hill intolerance to shine upon and to give light to this modern civilization of ours. And, oh, hasten the day when he shall have risen so far above the horizon of the hills of injustice, intolerance, and prejudice that we may bask in the light of this sun—the sun of fair-mindedness.

However, before this sun of fair-mindedness can rise very high above the horizon of these hills; before it can reach its zenith and give full light to the present civilization, we must know something of what this light is, of its value, and what suffering the want of it has meant to the past generations.

Fair-mindedness is to be fair-minded; to be fair-minded is to be tolerant; to be tolerant is to be broad and unbiased.

For one to be fair-minded toward his fellowman, does it mean that he must always agree with the other person's thoughts? No, not at all. That would only mean that he was stupid. Be an original thinker. Apply your mental exrays to every unanswered question and every unsolved problem. Have faith in your own conclusions when every test known to reason, knowledge, and experience has been applied to the question before you. Be original. But if in your originality you have reached an honest conclusion to some problem, and you find that someone else in his originality has reached an honest but a different conclusion to the same problem, it is all right for you to disagree with his conclusion; but, in the name of all that is right, be fair-minded toward him and do not disagree with his disagreeing with you. Allow him the same privilege, the same originality that you take. To be too sure that we are always right is to be conceited. One pair of eyes cannot focus all rays of light for the retina's transmission of vision to the brain; it receives to capacity and is then done. One mind cannot conceive all to be known or done, so when the great boon of friendly difference or friendly criticism comes as an illuminating ray of light, it is proof of fair-mindedness, of worth and wisdom to benefit our work therefrom to the fullest extent that it may be passed along in greatest value. Here we might call to memory the old proverb which says, "Every way of man is right in his own eyes; but the Lord pondereth the heart." To concede the right of opposite views to others, to feel respect for those who differ from us, is proof that we are growing in mind and in heart,—that we are becoming fair-minded. Someone has termed truth as a point of view. What is truth to one may be error to another, both being honest in their conviction. Every man has his own theories about the universe—his own theology and his own creed. But in the main we are pretty much agreed about most things. Our differences are superficial—occasioned by birth, environment, and geographical location. The one thing we need to bring us together is understanding, harmony, and goodwill is fair-mindedness. We need to learn to view each other's differences in the light of both parties concerned and not view them merely from our point of view only. Fair-mindedness is the opposite of prejudice, and Aeschylus said of prejudice: "He hears but half who hears one party only." In considering our differences we should not be prejudiced and one-sided; but we should consider both sides of every question, weighing all arguments both pro and con.

Goldoni says of prejudice: "He who never leaves his country is full of prejudice." That will bear examining. He who never leaves his own country, at least in thought and study, he who thinks only of his own country becomes biased and prejudiced. The reason we become prejudiced toward other nations and races is that we have never gone beyond our own petty selves to think about them in a fair-minded way—in a way that we would have them think about us. We have looked at life and God from our point of view only, and have not taken the trouble to look at life and God from their view point. Fair-mindedness seeks the highest welfare of every person concerned. What is true of countries and races is also true of the intellect. He who never leaves his own little circle of ideas and thoughts and searches after others is biased and full of prejudices. Fair-mindedness is essential to the growth of any one individual. Narrow-mindedness causes us to remain in the same old rut of life, to think the same old thoughts and have the same concepts of life that our forefathers had. We must be fair-minded toward new ideas—weigh them both pro and con, give them due consideration, and accept them to the enriching and growth of our lives if they are worthy, or else we will remain in a stagnant routine of life and early become “old fogies.” So let us bask in the light of the sun of fair-mindedness that we may remain unbiased and in complete loyalty to reality and truth.

We have seen something of the nature of fair-mindedness; thus we can better appreciate the values of it. But before we can more fully understand and appreciate the value of fair-mindedness, we must have some knowledge of what the want of it has meant to past ages.

Many are the barriers that obstruct the path of progress, legion is the name thereof; but of all the hands that have crushed the spirit of progress and thrown destruction in its path, none have been stronger than the hand of narrow-mindedness. Through narrow-mindedness civilization has been deprived of centuries of progress. Had the people of each generation of the past two thousand years dealt fairly-mindedly with each other—man with man, nation with nation, race with race, and religion with religion; and had they accepted in a fair-minded way the progressive ideas and ideals of the ages, we of this generation would be living in an age so far advanced from the present one that our great-great-grand-children would not be able to dream about it.

Christ brought this wonderful principle of fair-mindedness to earth two thousand years ago, and He has had followers here ever since. Why has it not acted as the great panacea? It is because men who claim the name Christian have waged bloody wars under the banners of their definitions. The name smokes with the stench of myrtardom. Innumerable in the number of human lives that have been destroyed in the innumerable wars waged under the banner of religion. Why such wars? Why such horrible things as the Spanish Inquisition? There is one answer, and that is narrow-mindedness! The adherents of the different religious sects have said, “Our creed, or our definition of religion, is the only right one, and everybody must accept it.” They have only failed to be fair-minded in their opinions. Since people have become more tolerant in their religious views, the so-called religious wars have ceased. Not only the causes of religious wars, but the causes of all wars and all personal strifes when traced to their final analysis are selfishness, prejudice, and intolerance, which sum up in narrow-mindedness.

To judge a man in a fair-minded way is to judge him according to his human worth—not according to his financial possessions, his social position, his profession, his nationality, his race, creed, or color, not even by his reputation of having committed some deed either worthy or unworthy; but it is to judge him in the light of the conviction that human life is of supreme worth and the source of all values, for man is that intrinsic something which gives value to everything in God's creation.

It is, therefore, because man has judged his fellowman in an unfair-minded way—because he has placed dividends and economic gains over against human values that untold suffering has been witnessed and that millions upon millions of human lives have been slaughtered in the numerous wars that have stained and blighted the pages of human history. So, thanks to the present age with its frankness and its tolerance, that the Sun of Fair-mindedness, the broad, liberal view is gradually arising, resplendent and pure, to illumine the pathway of truth—the Truth that makes men free.

YOUR LINE

If you can't write a book, or sing a song,
Don't sit and pine,
Just look about a little bit, ere long,
You'll find your line.

If you can't make a speech, or run a race,
Why that's no sign,
That in this big old world, you have no place.
You hunt your line.

Try every little thing you know, to do.
Big things are fine,
But maybe little things were meant for you.
Who knows your line?

And, when you find it, learn to do it well.
Your face will shine
With joy unbounded. All the world can tell,
You're found your line.

—Lauraine Coley in The Baptist.

HOW THEY DID IT

The basket of blocks was on the ground, and three rather cross little faces looked down at it.

“It's too heavy for me,” said Jimmy.

“Well, you're big as I am, 'cause we're twins,” said Nellie.

“I'll not carry it!” said the little cousin.

Mother looked from her window and saw the trouble. “One day I saw a picture of three little birds,” she called. “They wanted a long stick carried somewhere, but it was too large for any one of them to carry. What do you think they did?”

“We don't know,” said the twins.

“They all took hold of it together,” said mother, “and they could fly with it.”

The children laughed and looked at each other; then they all took hold of the basket together, and found it very easy to carry.

“The way to do all hard things in this world,” said mother, “is for every one to help a little. No one can do them all, but every one can help.”—Publisher Unknown.

HER MISSION

Ida Hamilton sighed. Rev. William Gray regarded her with a look of sympathetic interest.

"Your desire is a very laudable one, Ida," he said gently. "There is much work to be done for Christ in foreign lands. How long have you felt the call to go?"

"Oh, for a long time, Mr. Gray. There is so little that I can do here—it seems as though my life was being wasted."

"You are sure that it is the Lord's will for you to seek a wider field of labor?"

The girl raised her large dark eyes frankly. "No, Mr. Gray, I am not sure. I want to go, but I realize that it would be hard for uncle and aunt, if I left them. I was only three years old when they took me in, and for nearly twenty years their home has been my home. They educated me—they have always been so kind and loving. Now they are getting old, and Aunt Marie is feeble. They need me, and it may be my duty to stay with them. But I am so anxious to win souls for Christ."

"And you feel as though your life was being wasted. You sigh for opportunities to do more in the Lord's vineyard. But, my dear girl, you do not realize how much you are already doing."

"No?" said the girl, with a puzzled look.

"You cannot understand how much you mean to your uncle and aunt, or how desolate their home would be without you. Besides, there are opportunities for missionary work here in Newburgh. There are many persons in town who have not seen the inside of a church in many years."

"W—why, I suppose so. But I could not persuade them to attend church."

"Probably not. In fact, I am not sure that it would be well to try to persuade them to do so. But there are so many of the young who take so little interest in the middle-aged and old. Do you ever call on Mrs. Steadman?"

"Why, no."

"She lives directly across the street from you."

"Yes, but she is so aristocratic and reserved. And she has everything."

"She has everything that money can buy, I admit. But she has no relatives, and, seemingly, few friends. She is cold and reserved, I know. Many years ago she lost her only child. Then, when her husband died, she was left alone, and now she is almost a recluse. She is a hard woman to approach, but under that forbidding exterior there must be a lonely heart."

"If one could only reach it," sighed Ida, rising to go. "I have taken enough of your time, Mr. Gray, and I will think of what you have said."

"Dear child, if it is your duty to go as a missionary, I would not put a straw in your way. May God give you a clear understanding of what He desires."

As Ida walked briskly toward home, she thought of what her good pastor had said. After all, perhaps the Lord did not want her to leave her uncle and aunt. She had no clear evidence of such a thing. Mr. Gray's words, "There are opportunities for missionary work here in Newburgh," kept occurring to her. Yes, surely there were many such opportunities, but in what way could she grasp them? Well, she could begin by calling on Mrs. Steadman.

As she neared the large white house where Mrs. Steadman resided, her heart quickened its beating, but she went resolutely up to the door and rang the bell. "At least," she thought, "she can do no more than tell me that she does not care to have callers."

But Mrs. Steadman said nothing of the kind. She looked at Ida sharply and actually smiled. "You need not look so frightened," she said abruptly. "I am not an ogress. I suppose you came on an errand of some kind."

"No, Mrs. Steadman, —I—I only came to call."

"Indeed! Young ladies are not in the habit of calling on me. Since you are here, come in. I think, on the whole, I am rather glad to see you."

She led the way into a comfortable living room, and motioned Ida to be seated.

"I cannot imagine what brought you here," continued Mrs. Steadman. "Perhaps you think that I need cheering up, and it is possible that I do. I seldom go anywhere except on business. Mr. Gray has invited me to attend church, and I do not doubt that he means well; but the church members do not care whether I go or stay at home."

"Oh, you must not think that, Mrs. Steadman. We should all be very glad to see you in church."

Mrs. Steadman laughed, but there was no mirth in the sound. "I am a hard woman, Miss Hamilton. You are a church member, I believe. I have nothing against the church, neither do I take any interest in it. I have had many hard things to endure in my life, and I have become selfish and cruel. How is your aunt?" she added abruptly.

"She has been feeble of late."

"She is fortunate in having you. If God notices such things, He approves of what you are doing. Tell me, girl, do you get any comfort out of religion?"

"I certainly do, Mrs. Steadman."

"Well, if that is the case, it would be a fine thing for me to be religious. I get little pleasure out of my life. But don't preach," she added, as the girl opened her lips. "When I want to hear a sermon, I will go to church. I think it will be wise for you to go now. Your call has been refreshing, and, if you like, come again."

Thus dismissed, Ida hurried away, and it must be confessed that her cheeks were burning. But she felt as though she had gained a victory.

The short October afternoon was drawing to a close as she entered her own home. Her aunt, who sat at a front window, welcomed her with a smile. "My dear, I see that you called on Mrs. Steadman."

"Yes, Aunt Maria, and I have her permission to come again."

"That is something gained, Ida. I have often thought of her, shut up in that great house, and how lonely she must be. If she would only take an interest in something outside of her own home, her life would not be so desolate. I have wished you would go to see her."

"Why did you say so, Aunt Maria?"

"I feared it would not be agreeable to you. You have one old woman on your hands, and I fear it is no pleasant task; but what should I do without you?"

For answer Ida kissed her aunt, and then went about the simple preparation for the evening meal.

"It is not the Lord's will for me to leave them," she said to herself. "There are others better fitted to cross the ocean, and I can do the little things that He requires of me."

A few weeks later, when Mrs. Steadman was seen in church for the first time since her girlhood, a ripple of surprise passed over the congregation. She received many cordial welcomes, and though her manner was somewhat icy, the heaven was working. Later on, the religious interest in the community deepened, and Mrs. Steadman was one of the numbers who united with the church.

Ida has found her mission. She goes often into homes where poverty and despair have found an abiding place; and her uncle and aunt, in the evening of life, rely on the sweet-faced girl who is their greatest earthly comfort.—Willard N. Jenkins in Zions Herald.

THE LITTLE BLIND BOY

The piano was playing softly in the Primary Department of Melrose church.

"Who can tell me what hymn the piano is singing?" asked Miss Ellston.

All hands went up. "The Whithper Thong," lisped little Billy Murray.

The children stood up and sang happily the words of their favorite song, "I want to send a whisper song, across the waters blue." Then each child went forward and slipped an offering into the cardboard bank that was built like a tiny hospital. Every child knew that this offering was to go to Dr. Clark away over in China, to help with the work in his hospital. Dr. Clark had once been a little boy in this very Sunday School, and now he was a missionary in China.

"I have a letter written by Dr. Clark. He tells a story about a little Chinese boy. Would you like to hear it?" said Miss Ellston.

The class was eager to hear the story so Miss Ellston read from the letter: "One of our patients at present is a little boy of seven years old. His name is Ah-Fu. He is a bright and happy little chap. He went blind when only three. Soon after, his parents died, and he was left to look after himself. He lived the life of a beggar for a few years. One day he heard of the Christian hospital where they made new eyes. So he walked all the way from his home village, one hundred miles it was, to us here. He was half starved and covered with sores when he arrived. We could heal his body, but it was too late to help his eyes. Soon he will be well again, and we will have to turn him away, for we need his bed in the hospital. We hate to do it, for he is lovable, and is always begging for a "Jesus story." I wish that we had the money to send him to a school for the blind where he could learn to read about Jesus for himself and be taught to earn his living."

There was a dead silence in the Primary Department for a minute after Miss Ellston finished reading. Then little Ivy Malcolma stood up.

"I will give the twenty-five cents I got for my birthday," she said breathlessly. "So Ah-Fu can go to school."

Billy Duncan waved his hand wildly.

"I've got a dollar in my bank. He can have all of it," he said.

By this time more hands were up. Miss Ellston motioned for silence.

"All those who would like to have us try to get the money to send Ah-Fu to school, stand up," she said.

Every child stood.

"Bring your money next Sunday, then," she said. "I'll write to Dr. Clark at once and tell him what you are doing."

The next Sunday the little cardboard bank was fairly stuffed with pennies and nickles, quarters and half-dollars, and even several bills. Many of the children's parents wanted to help too. When the money was counted, there was enough to send Ah-Fu to school for six years.—Olive Plants.

FACE MEDICINE

A Hindu trader in India once said to a native Christian, "What medicine do you put on your face to make it shine so?" The other one answered with surprise, "I don't put on anything." "You may expect me to believe that if you like, but tell me, what do you put on?" "Nothing," answered the Christian again, "I don't put anything on." By this time the heathen was losing his patience and he said: "Yes, you do; all Christians do. I have seen it in Agra, and I have seen it in Surat, and I have seen it in Bombay."

Then the Christian understood, and his glowing face shone all the more as he said: "Yes, I'll tell you the secret. It is happiness of heart." It is a remarkable fact, attested by missionaries to China, that there is such a difference between the faces of native Christians and those of the heathen that it is impossible to make the mistake of the two.—The American Messenger.

THERE'S A DIFFERENCE

A traveler seeing three farmers working in a field walked up to the first man and put this question, "What are you doing?"

"I'm breaking my back in this beastly field—working thirteen hours a day," he complained.

So the traveler asked the second farmer, "What are you doing?"

And this time the answer was, "I am earning $5.00 a day."

Then to the third farmer he put the same question.

"Why," replied the tiller of the soil, "I am turning this barren valley into a garden of the Lord."

In what spirit do you work? It is the motive that counts.—W. L. Oliphant in The Christian Visitor.

July 5: WHAT IS CHRISTIAN PATRIOTISM?

(Consecration Meeting)

Scripture Text—Matt. 6:33; Ps. 122:1-9.

Daily Bible Readings

Monday—Law Observance, 1 Pet. 2:13-17.

Tuesday—Honest Taxpayers, Matt. 17:24-27.

Wednesday—The "Things to Caesar," Matt. 22:15-22.

Thursday—Respect for Authority, Acts 23:1-5.

Friday—Honest In Office, Ps. 24:1-6.

Saturday—Denounce corruption, Neh. 5:7-13.

Suggestions to the Leader

As we suggest this topic let us remember that it is one which deserves careful thought. Christian patriotism means more than singing the "Star Spangled Banner," or shouting "Onward Christian Soldiers!" In the scope of Christian patriotism there is a place for every obligation of every Christian citizen.

A patriot of a country loves his own country and his own people but a true Christian patriot's love overflows the boundary lines of his own land, and includes all peoples of every nation. The Christian is the very best kind of citizen. He is honest, he stands for the highest moral standards, he is peaceable and recognized as a good neighbor to get along with, he is helpful and the needy find him a friend indeed, he is law abiding and sets a good example for all to follow. He is dependable and it is not to be wondered at that Jesus referred to such folks as "the salt of the earth." Christians should be the best citizens and patriots.

Problems for Thought

1. What is Christian Patriotism?
2. Name some of the obligations which we as Christian citizens owe to our nation.
3. What is the relationship of our privileges to our obligations?
4. Has Christianity been the friend or foe of organized government?
5. In what way and to what extent has the Bible influenced our nation?

Poetry

PATRIOTISM

It ain't in throwin' your cap in the air
And shoutin' your candidate's praise;
It ain't in arguin' all day long
Until you are red in the face.
It's to vote as your pray
On election day—
That's patriotism.

It ain't in swellin' a torchlight parade
And settin' off rockets and flare;
It ain't in yellin' applause each time
Your candidate speaks on the square,
It's to do your best work
And not play the shirk—
That's patriotism.

It ain't in votin' the ticket straight,
However its platform may read;
It ain't in makin' a god of a man

Just because he's appointed to lead.

It's livin' forsooth,

At the dictates of truth—

That's patriotism.

It ain't in singin' the national air,
Or salutin' "Old Glory" each morn;
It ain't in bombast and boastful acclaim,
And blowin' the national horn.

It's treatin' folks right,

Be they black, yellow, or white;

It's baring your heart to God's sunlight—

That's patriotism.

SUICIDES IN GERMANY

Statistics compiled up to the end of 1928 show that Germany still leads the world in the number of suicides. In that year 16,036 persons in Germany committed suicide. This is an average of 44 a day or 39 for each 100,000 persons in the country, as compared with 12 per 100,000 in Great Britain, 13 in the United States and 16 in France. It is believed that the percentage of suicides in Germany is even greater for the last two years, due to increased unemployment and general economic depression.

DIXON-SMOTHERS-WILLIAMS REUNION

Members of the Dixon, Smothers, and Williams families and their friends will please take notice and pass the word along. This family reunion will meet this year, with the people of Flat Rock church, to celebrate with them the one hundredth anniversary of the founding of that church. A local committee is preparing a program which will be fitting for the occasion. The celebration will be held Sunday, August 23. May the Lord give us a great day.

Yours in His service,

A. G. DIXON.

SUGARS FROM WEEDS

Uncle Sam's ever busy Bureau of Standards announces the discovery of three kinds of sugar heretofore unknown to science. These new sweets are valued by bureau chemists at $50,000 a pound. They were discovered by Dr. R. F. Jackson and his assistant, Miss Emma McDonald, while determining the amount of levulose or fruit sugar that can be obtained from inulin. Inulin, by the way, is a starch-like substance obtained from the roots of such weeds as artichokes, dandelions, goldenrods, dahlias and chicory. In his experiments Dr. Jackson found inulin to be 92 per cent levulose, a sugar many times sweeter than cane sugar; three per cent glucose, and five per cent a combination of the three new members of the sugar family. Parsnips, oyster plants and small amounts of "difructose anhydride one, two, and three," the scientific names of the sweet little triplets. They bring the number of known sugars to 78.—Pathfinder.

—Bees kept solely to pollinate an 80-acre apple orchard proved so profitable to J. W. Daniels of Taylorsville in Alexander county that he placed the insects in new hives and bought new queens.

COMMENTS BY BROTHER GRABBS

The occasion at the charming "Home" to come off next Friday is very desirable. I could call the names of many friends that I hope to see there—but I will only mention three names—Brothers Pegg, Ashburn, and Powell.

I am glad that Brother Powel goes so loyally for temperance and prohibition. Perhaps Brother R. A. Hunter could contrive to lend me a book the commentary by Dr. Clarke. The Volume of the Four Gospels. I would take good care of it and return it later on. Some one reading this may have the books.

Of course we can suppose that Brother H. A. Garrett will be on hand.

Some churches unite, and thus become stronger and may improve their individuality, but not so with our own M. P. church. Every church has an individuality, and this is so peculiar in our mutual rights that our church must stay "single." My near relatives belong to the Moravian church, and do well, but it is a clear case that these two churches should not unite. Each one has a sacred individuality of their own, and the way for them to do is to go on in their own course—under the order of God.

Some of the various branches again unite, and do well, but the M. P. C. is so firmly formed, and is so peculiar that there is no excuse to try to make such a change as must be made by uniting with other churches.

The order of our own M. P. church is very consistent, and the thing to do is to "continue."

W. F. GRABBS.

FROM PASTORS and PEOPLE

Hope, Chatham Charge.—On the second Sunday in this month we held a union memorial service at Hope church which was thoroughly enjoyed by all present. There was a large crowd present, many coming from quite a distance. In the forenoon, Pastor Lindley delivered the address, and let me say here, that he seemed to be at his best, using as the basis of his talk the fifth commandment. We heard many comments on his splendid discourse. The address of the morning was followed by the decoration of the graves and an appropriate service in the cemetery. Dinner was spread on a long table in the grove and from all appearances every one enjoyed this part of the program. In the afternoon Mr. I. H. Dunlap of Bonlee spoke, paying splendid tribute to the founders of Hope church and the noble citizens of that community who made possible the worthwhile things of the community and who have long since passed to their reward. Brother Lindley made the closing talk which was also very appropriate.

Special music was furnished throughout the day by the choir supplemented by the Thomas family. Mr. and Mrs. Thomas and children rendered several special numbers which were much enjoyed.

We appreciate the splendid co-operation manifested by the entire community in making this service possible.

Efland, Orange Charge.—Sunday morning our pastor brought us an inspiring message. Sunday night we had our Children's Day program. This program was well prepared and each child rendered his part well. Much credit is due Misses Eloise Efland, Margaret Efland and Kathleen Brown for the preparation and training of the children.

Our revival meetings begins the first Sunday night in July.

Our S. S. is increasing in number and much interest is being shown. We had 130 present last Sunday. It looks good to see the boys and girls back home from their school work and in their places at church.

Some of our members are on the sick list. If it be God's will may they all be restored to health.

MRS. E. S. TAYLOR, Reporter.

Giles Chapel, Richland Circuit.—Our Sunday school is progressing nicely, with an average attendance of 65. Last Sunday we held our Children's Day service which was much enjoyed by a large congregation. The forenoon was given over to the children, who rendered a program that gave much credit to Mrs. S. E. Trogdon, Mrs. Joel B. Trogdon, Mrs. R. E. Tilley and Miss Essie Alfred, who trained the children for the hour. The children all did so well many said it was the best "Children's Day" we had ever had at this place. The Blue Bell quartet from Tabernacle did much to the enjoyment of the hour by giving several special songs during the program. After about one hour of fellowship we re-gathered in the church to hold a service in memory of the dead. During the service we had a number of songs by the Cedar Falls quartet and by our own band of singers. I feel that the day was well spent and many good impressions were made upon the hearts of the congregation. May God bless every one that helped to make this good day possible for the children and us.

JOEL B. TROGDON.

Oak Grove, Forsyth.—Our Sunday school attendance last Sunday was far better than the Sunday before. Our attendance seems to be irregular.

Our prayer meeting service was greatly enjoyed Sunday night with a good attendance. We had several members from other churches, this we always enjoy and welcome them with us.

Brother D. G. Mettee made an interesting talk from the eighth chapter of Romans, after which he read an interesting piece on kindness found in the church Herald. Brother C. M. Ingram also made an interesting talk with the "Lord's Prayer" as his subject.

Mrs. C. M. Ingram will lead for us next Sunday night. We give a cordial invitation to any one who would like to come and be with us.

We are glad to learn that Mrs. A. M. Kiger is improving.

We are also thankful for the rain that fell Sunday night. The farmers, especially, of this section of the country seem to be gladder than we because the crops needed the rain very much.

MRS. R. M. WARREN, Reporter.

Moriah.—Sunday, June 21, our pastor brought to us an excellent sermon. Text found in the fourteenth chapter of St. John. Subject: The World's Greatest Event, the Coming of the Kingdom or the Second Coming of Christ.

Lexington, State Street.—Our Sunday school is growing rapidly since entering the attendance contest. Last Sunday we had a gain of 99 over a year ago last Sunday. There were more present than we had on roll. Special music was enjoyed during the opening period and an address just before adjournment by Mr. Rodgers, member of Dr. Harris' company, who is assisting in the work of evangelism now going on here conducted by Dr. Ham.

All Sunday night preaching in the churches of the town has been suspended. The C. E. society of our church meets Sunday evening but closes in time to attend the meeting at the tabernacle.

A beautiful feature of the Sunday morning services was the presence of the cradle roll. We have 15 babies on the roll and all were present. Thomas Adron Neal, infant son of Mr. and Mrs. T. W. Neal, was baptized by Mr. Hendry, pastor.

We are glad to announce the return to Lexington of Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Blanton and their attractive little son, Francis. Mr. Blanton lived here last summer but moved to Salisbury in the fall, living there until their return here last week.

Mrs. Douglas, of Jacksonville, Fla., mother of Mrs. Blanton, visited her daughter here last week.

The great revival at the Tabernacle conducted by Dr. M. F. Ham continues to grow better and attract still larger crowds. People attend from all the nearby rural sections and many come from other towns. The tabernacle is comfortably and sensibly constructed and large enough to seat thousands. The addresses by Dr. Ham are instructive and deeply spiritual. There have been many conversions already and everything indicates the coming of the greatest turning to God this town has ever known. We ask the prayers of all Christians to this end.

REPORTER.

Mt. Hermon, Mt. Hermon Charge.—A large congregation heard an excellent sermon by the pastor, Rev. J. Elwood Carroll the third Sunday on the love of God. His talk to the children was on the influence of the light of God and their lives and was illustrated by the light that falls on the film where a picture is made.

Interest seems on the increase in the Woman's auxiliary judging from the number present at the last meeting.

Mrs. Jewel Steckard Enoch was buried here Sunday p. m. Rev. J. Elwood Carroll preached the funeral. Mrs. Enoch was converted when just a girl and united with this church, she was faithful to the last, although the distance of her home from the church and bad health kept her from attending regularly as she would have liked. May the Heavenly Father comfort the husband, daughter, mother, father, sisters and brothers, and may they meet her on the other shore.

Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Jones and daughters, Carroll and Margaret, from Reidsville, worshipped with us Sunday and spent the day with Miss Ruby R. Isley.

Eden, Halifax.—Mrs. L. A. Williams, our faithful reporter from Eden church for a number of years, has moved to Durham in the early spring. We miss her in our church and in all of our church and community activities. She was willing, efficient and capable.

We are having about the best Sunday school at Eden that we have ever had. Though there is plenty room for improvement. The Woman's auxiliary meets regularly each month with good attendance and interest. Our new president, Mrs. R. G. Willy, with Miss Blanche Hardee as delegate, also Mrs. J. R. Dickens attended the branch meeting held in Burlington in May. Mrs. Willey gave us a good report at our last meeting.

Two of our girls from the Junior auxiliary, Misses Lottie and Millie Mae Neville, also attended the Branch meeting. They brought back good reports, interest, enthusiasm and some workable plans. They will hold their monthly meeting Thursday night of this week in the home of Mrs. Jim Bellamy.

The School of Religious Training for all church and Sunday school workers and all interested persons will be held for this district at Aurelian Springs school beginning June 29, and continuing through July 3rd. You can't afford to miss this opportunity to better prepare yourself for work in the church.

Quite a number of the children from Eden church attended the daily vacation Bible school sponsored by all the churches in Enfield. This school closed yesterday.

The Woman's Auxiliary is sponsoring a supper, consisting of Brunswick stew, fried chicken and other things to be held at Hardaway school house on July 1, at 6 o'clock. Please come if near enough to conveniently do so.

It was my delightful privilege to attend the Children's Day service at Bethesda church last night. The program in the form of a pageant, "God's Garden," was well rendered. It bespoke credit to those in charge and also for the children themselves.

At our regular appointment the third Sunday in July, Rev. T. M. Johnson of Whitakers and Enfield will preach for us in the absence of Mr. Fogleman, who will be away conducting a meeting at this time.

Pleasant Hill, West Forsyth.—The Young People's class held their meeting with Miss Lola Long Monday evening, June 8. Only a few members of the class being absent. The monthly meeting of the Woman's auxiliary was held in the home of Mrs. C. E. Holder on Tuesday evening, June 9. Miss Juanita Hunter was devotional leader for the evening. The exercise opened by singing, "We've a Story to Tell to the Nation." She read for the Scripture the first 14 verses of the 18th chapter of Matthew and was followed by prayer. Then a song, "Dear to the Heart of the Shepherds." The secretary read the minutes and called the roll. During the business period of the meeting plans were made to raise money for the auxiliary. The report from the secretary of Pastor's Aid showed that 31 visits, 19 phone calls had been made, 12 trays and three bunches of flowers had been sent to the sick since last meeting. A talk on, "Our Kindergarten Work In Japan," was given by Lola Long, followed by a piano solo by Juanita Hunter. Martha Louise Speas also gave a very interesting talk. The hostess then served delicious refreshments.

Our Sunday school is improving and the attendance is gradually increasing. We had 82 present last Sunday. We hope it will continue to grow.

Our pastor, Mr. C. B. Way, brought to us another good message Sunday morning at 11 o'clock. We were very much delighted to have the young girls to sing for the service. Then sang a very beautiful selection entitled, "Sing Praise."

Kannapolis.—Yesterday we celebrated our second annual Home Coming. The day was clear and hot, but that didn't keep our good people away from church. We had 168 present for Sunday school, and at the 11 o'clock service the church was crowded. We had a splendid program, as follows: First a selection by the string band; then a song by the entire congregation, and sermon by Rev. W. T. Totten. It was certainly fine and enjoyed by all. Then we had a duet by the Misses Fisher from Concord; then dinner. A long table was put under the trees beside the church, and oh, my, what a feast. I did not count, but I think there must have been 150 or 200 at dinner.

At 1:45 the evening program was as follows: Selection by string band; then song by congregation, "Blessed Assurance." Remarks by the pastor. The Kannapolis quartet sang two numbers "The Great Home Coming," and "I'm On the Right Road Now." Then the song, "Mother and Dad," was beautifully sung by the Fisher sisters in honor of Fathers' Day. The song "Do You Love Your Daddy Too," was sung by the Kannapolis quartet, and was enjoyed so much. The Winckoff quartet was next called on and sang "In the Land Where We Never Grow Old," and then the song, a duet, "Sometime, Somewhere."

The Lexington quartet was ready and gave two numbers, "Wonderful," and "He Hideth My Soul." The Kannapolis quartet sang "I Want My Life to Testify," and "I'm On My Way." "Beautiful Home." The Winekoff quartet sang "Unanswered."

An instrumental number on the piano and saw was given and the Tilley quartet sang two numbers, "The City of God," and "I Want to Go There, Don't You?" Another selection by the string band and the Winekoff quartet sang "Meeting in the Air." The Kannapolis quartet sang the closing number and the meeting was dismissed with prayer by our pastor. Every one felt that it was a wonderful day spent to the Glory of God.

We were so sorry that none of our former pastors could be with us. On next Sunday night our Children's Day program will be presented. We are hoping for a large audience. We were blessed before day this morning with a good rain which was badly needed. The crops and gardens were very dry and withering up. But everything looks so fresh and green this morning.

We are glad to say there is no serious illness among our members.

Mrs. Ralph Morgan has our sympathy in the death of her mother. May God comfort her.

Seagrove.—Our meeting began the fourth Sunday in May. Rev. J. W. Hulin did the preaching in his usual forceful way. Much good was done. One girl united with the church.

A large group of young people from English Street church went over to Love Joy on the first Sunday in June and held a C. E. meeting. Following this a society was organized.

First Church, High Point.—On Friday evening in the Philathea room an enjoyable recital was given, when Mrs. Minnie P. Harrell presented her music pupils in piano. A splendid program was rendered before an appreciative audience. Two prizes were presented by the Musical Arts club, one for the best all-around work for the year to Georgia White and another for the best improvement in the year's work to Dupuy Sears. Mrs. Harrell gave each one of the class a gift.

On Sunday morning at the 11 o'clock service a quartet composed of Misses Anne Roblins and Elizabeth Welch, Messrs. C. L. Gray Jr., and Arthur Fidler, sang a beautiful selection by Shelley, "The King of Love, My Shepherd Is." In the anthem by the choir, "Fear Not, O Israel," the solo parts were well rendered by Miss Elizabeth Welch, and Messrs. Fidler and Gray. The minister, Rev. R. I. Farmer, spoke on the subject, "Gripped by a Master Passion," using as the basis of his discourse the text in Psalm 27:4, "On thing have I desired of the Lord, that will I seek after; that I may dwell in the house of the Lord all the days of my life, to behold the beauty of the Lord, and to inquire in his temple." He said in part, "Those who have moved the world have been gripped by a great passion. With Martin Luther it was 'The just shall live by faith,' with John Wesley it was, 'Without holiness no man shall see God' and with David his mastering desire was, 'To behold the beauty of the Lord, and to inquire in His temple.' His life was to become a ceaseless round of worship. Habitual church going is what makes life safe. Because we have not acquired the habit of beholding the beauty of the Lord and inquiring into His temple, we run everywhere else when trouble and adversity come, and say that God is not fair, and we become bitter and rebellious. Lew Wallace before writing 'Ben Hur' was an atheist, but he made an intensive study of the life of Christ, settled the question in his mind for all time, and then wrote that masterpiece. Whether day-laborer, housewife, business man, or student, one can make his life a ceaseless round of worship and praise. Desire followed by seeking brings men to God. 'This is life eternal, to know Thee the only true God and Jesus Christ whom thou hast sent!'"

In the Sunday evening service the annual observance of Children's Day was held, and the major part of the program was given by 16 young people from the Children's Home. For the most part it was the same program rendered at the Washington Convention in May. The group announced its own numbers, and provided its musical accompaniment. The program was received with enthusiasm by a good audience, and a generous offering was taken for the work of the general mission board.

At the annual memorial service at Jamestown M. E. church Sunday afternoon, Dr. G. I. Humphreys, president of High Point college, delighted the large audience with a masterful address on the meaning of memorials and the enriching influence of the memory of the worthy dead. Mrs. C. L. Gray Jr. sang very beautifully, "I Heard the Voice of Jesus Say," and he and Mrs. Edith Moore Sherrod sang a lovely duet, "When They Ring the Golden Bell."

The Leadership Training school and the Pastors' Summer Conference are in session at High Point college this week. Addresses to the joint sessions in the evenings will be delivered by Dean P. E. Curry of Albemarle, formerly of High Point, is president of Pastors' Conference, and Dr. Fred W. Paschall, of Burlington is president of Young People's Conference. Taylor, to inspire denominational enthusiasm will be held at 10:30 a. m., in Roberts Hall, followed by a basket picnic at the Children's Home. A large crowd is expected.

Circles No. 2 and 3 of the Woman's auxiliary

DUST AN EXPLOSIVE

Don't stir up too much dust—it is an explosive to beware of. In tests conducted at the Arlington farm of the Department of Agriculture recently certain kinds of dust mixed with other kinds of dust exploded like dynamite. The "charges" used were such common varieties of dust as starch, powdered cork and pulverized aluminum. These tests were to demonstrate the necessity for adequate venting places to serve as safety valves in grain elevators, factories and other buildings. Unless the explosive powder of dust can escape through windows and other vents, said David J. Price, engineer in charge of the tests, great havoc might result. The department of Agriculture has found that the big industrial blasts which cost million each year are caused by more than 20 kinds of dust. All that any one of them needs is a little spark. And where there's dust there's usually the makings of a spark.—Pathfinder.

Men of the Northland,
Happy in song,
Toiling together,
Valiant and strong.

Men of high honor,
Freedom and light,
Marching together,
Championing right.

Sturdy in hardship,
Staunch in defeat,
Standing together,
Scorning retreat.

Noble crusaders,
Facing the foe,

THINK IT THROUGH

Are you worried or depressed?

Think it through,
Feel unequal to the test?
Think it through.

Concentrate your heart and mind,
Get right down to facts and grind,
A solution you can find—
Think it through.

Are you out of luck and work?
Think it through.
Face your problem, do not shirk,
Think it through.
Search and find your proper place,
Persevere with smiling face,
Be a warrior in the race—
Think it through.

Do you feel like giving up?
Think it through.
Is your share a bitter cup?
Think it through.

God gives you the power to do,
He will make it clear to you,
You must do some thinking too—
Think it through.

THE FIRST DOG CEMETERY

The first dog cemetery was founded in the eighteenth century by the then Duchess of York, and it is still in existence. This cemetery is at Outlands, which was one of Queen Elizabeth's favorite homes, and which was built by Henry the VIII. In fact, so fond was Elizabeth of the place that some of the trees on the grounds show traces yet of where her shots were wont to land when she practiced archery. Outlands is now known as the Outlands Park Hotel, and where Anne of Cleves once walked is now situated England's most modern bathing pool.—Leo I. Mooney, in Our Dumb Animals.

GIVE ME A BOOK!

Of many things
I want but few,
But since you ask,
A book will do.

To me a book
Is better far
Than jewel rare
Or gaudy ear.

If you would have Me think of you,
Know, good friend,
A book will do.

THE TALKER

(A Warning to the Loquacious.)

He talked away at break of day,
He talked when he had naught to say,
He talked at home and in the shop,
He talked and simply would not stop.

He talked of politics and crime,
He talked and wasted precious time,
He talked of money and the probs,
He talked of gossips, neighbors, snobs.

He talked as long as one would stay,
He talked his wearied friends away,
He talked for merely talking's sake,
He talked nor any hint would take.

He talked of much he did not know,
He talked for ostentatious show,
He talked and firmly held the floor,
He talked whil' one walked out the door.

He talked to ventilate his mind,
He talked a tiresome steady grind,
He talked of health and made it worse,
He talked and made his talk a curse.

He talked of trifles, things inane,
He talked to drive his friends insane,
He talked right on the whole day long,
He talked though he was in the wrong.

He talked nor would he silence keep,
He talked and mumbled in his sleep,
He talked aloud—he caught his breath—
He talked at last himself to death!

—Grenville Kleiser.

NEW CANCER FINDINGS

While a cure for cancer has not yet been discovered, new facts about the dreaded disease are learned every day. One of the latest of these has just been reported by Dr. Elhee McDonald, director of cancer research at the University of Pennsylvania graduate school of medicine, and his associates. They have found that the blood of the patients with untreated cancer is more alkaline than normal. The greater the alkalinity, says Dr. McDonald, the quicker the disease kills the sufferer. They have also observed that treatment by X-ray or radium affects the alkalinity of the blood.—Pathfinder.

THE CATS WIN IN MARYLAND

"Every person convicted of feloniously taking and carrying away any dog, or cat, as is necessary thereto before or after the fact shall be deemed guilty of the crime of larceny, and shall restore the dog, or cat, to the owner thereof, or shall pay to him the value thereof, and shall be sentenced to confinement in jail for not more than three months."

This is the law in Maryland, beginning June 1, 1931,—so far as we know the only law of any state that protects cats equally with dogs. Notice the teeth in this law. Surely Maryland is a leader in this respect, and for this we have to thank Mrs. Douglas C. Elphinstone, indefatigable worker of the Maryland S. P. C. A. and the personal interest in the matter of Governor Ritchie.—Our Dumb Animals.

—There is a surplus of both vegetables and fruit on nearly all Orange county farms this spring. Most housekeepers are canning the surplus.

Under the terms of the will of the late Harvey G. Woodward, of Birmingham, Alabama, a fund of $7,500,000 is provided for the foundation of schools for boys, to be called "The Woodward Schools," which will admit Caucasian boys, aged 12 to 18, who will remain in school until they are 25 years old. The schools will be located in Alabama, and several other Southern States. This is a great foundation and will mean much for the education of Southern youths.—Christian Sun.

—Let our temper be under the rule of the love of Jesus. He cannot alone curb it—He can make us gentle and patient. Let the vow, that not an unkind word of others shall ever be heard from our lips, be laid trustingly at His feet. Let the gentleness that refuses to take offense, that is always ready to excuse, to think and hope the best, mark our intercourse with all. Let our life be one of self-sacrifice, always studying the welfare of others, finding our highest joy in blessing others. And let us, in studying the divine art of doing good, yield ourselves as obedient learners to the guidance of the Holy Spirit. By His grace, the most commonplace life can be transfigured with the brightness of a heavenly beauty, as the infinite love of a divine nature shines out through our frail humanity.—Andrew Murray.

Teacher—Now, Nellie, tell me, what did Belshazzar learn from the writing on the wall?

Nellie—That his walls hadn't been cleaned for a long while.—Pathfinder.

Clothing and Other Gifts

Mr. and Mrs. A. S. Pickert, now of Graham, N. C., 2 pillows, 6 quilts and some dishes and kitchen utensils. Mrs. M. J. Kivett, High Point, N. C., 56 baskets of string beans, our women folks are doing some canning today. Mrs. C. L. Stanfield, Brown Summit, N. C., several thousand sweet potato plants.

We are so thankful to all those who have contributed in money or substance for our help. May the dear Lord bless each of you.

Promise of Produce for Fall

We took glass cans to the parsonage on Orange circuit last Friday, and we have the promise of 100 or more quarts being filled and saved for us by fall. We thank you.

And we know that many others are preparing to do likewise.

The extended drought here is very trying on our crops, but our farmers are still planting and working, trying to produce as much as possible.

With the blessings of the Lord upon us in showers we hope yet to have a good crop.

Picnic Friday, June 26

The preachers and young people will be with us this week. We hope they will have a pleasant and profitable time, and that several hundred of you will join them at the Children's Home for the picnic on Friday at noon, June 26.

God bless and keep all of you.

Yours In His service,

A. G. DIXON, Supt.

CHINA'S CHIEF NEED

Dr. Z. T. Koo, of the national committee of the Y. M. C. A. in China, says that the chief need of China today, in order that its people may again become creative, is not scientific or material development, but contact with God. "When a people loses its contact with the vital personality of God, a God greater than anything the human mind can conceive," Doctor Koo declares, "that people soon begins to lose its vision; and when a people loses its vision, its creative capacity steadily dies out." He says that there was a time when the Chinese were discoverers and pioneers in art, literature, philosophy, government and science, but for the past thousand years they have lived merely on their past. Creative intelligence does not come from the past, but from keeping the past and looking to the future. Christ did not repudiate the traditions of the past, but had a tremendous insight into the future and would urge us to look for the coming Kingdom.—Christian Sun.

South Lexington.—Good attendance in Sunday school, also for preaching service, there being 286 present Sunday and a good number of these remained for the morning service.

We were delighted to have with us Sunday one of our old members when a boy, Mr. Johnnie Hays. His subject was "Boyhood Days," and all present seemed to enjoy the message fine. He now resides in Thomasville, so he brought with him the choir that rendered splendid music.

The Ham revival is still going on in our town and to all we extend a cordial welcome, for we want to see souls saved every where. We ask your prayers for the lost of our town and others.

—H. P. Green, of Raleigh, Route 3, is growing no cotton this year for the first time in his 40 years of farming. He has 14 cows, 600 hens, about 1200 chicks, and plenty of feedstuffs.

THE CHURCH STILL COUNTS

Here is something of what the church did last year: The philanthropic gifts by all classes in the United States reached the huge total of $2,330,000,000, according to a survey made by the New York Trust company. Also, mention is made of that remarkable organization and work among the Young Men's Christian Association, that has extended its permanent equipment from $100,000,000 in 1920 to well over $160,000,000 in 1926; while in four years the membership of the American Red Cross mounted from $8,720,674 to $10,588,201. Gifts for the benefit of education increased from $15,000,000 in 1900 to $126,000,000 in 1926. There are 179 American foundations established for the common good, with a combined endowment aggregating one billion dollars.

When a man loses his patience with the church, let him consider these figures. When a man gets an egoistic complex and wants to berate those who believe in Jesus Christ and program for modern life, let him consider what the church is doing, what her influence is creating. Out of the church flows a great stream of benevolence for the benefit of mankind, so wide, so deep, so crystalline, so golden, as to throw a light across the ages that should support the faith of humanity in the goodness of God and the everlasting mercy of His eternal justice.—Western Christian Advocate.

—By a vote of 58 to 14 the Tennessee House of Representatives refused to repeal the State law forbidding the teaching of the hypothesis of evolution in schools supported by State funds.

—A short course for farm women, a meeting of the State Federation of Home Demonstration clubs, discussion of late findings in agricultural research, and general speeches and lectures will feature the 29th annual session of the State Farmers' Convention to be held at State College during the Farm and Home Week, July 28, 29, 30 and 31.

IN HONOR OF THE DEAD

Boole

Died at Winston-Salem, N. C., May 30, 1931, Mrs. Mary Ellen Davis Boole, the beloved wife of the late W. H. Boole, who preceded her in death in 1921. She was born in Guilford county, June 22, 1859. She leaves seven sons and two daughters to mourn their loss, D. A., C. H., G. E., W. L. E. W. J., and L. B. Boole and Mrs. R. A. Kidd and Mrs. H. R. Mills and one brother, J. M. Davis, also a host of friends.

She lived a beautiful Christian life. She was a consistent member of the church until the day of her death. She was a member of the M. P. church until a few years ago she joined the Wesleyan Methodist church at High Point. She was faithful, trusting in her blessed Saviour. May her children always remember their mother's prayers and when tempted may they ever look to her Saviour for help, who took her home where a crown of righteousness was awaiting her. May the grace of our Heavenly Father whom she loved and served comfort and sustain the broken-hearted children and other grief-stricken relatives and friends and may we so emulate her sweet life and live so close to the Lord that some sweet day we will meet her where partings are no more.

Funeral services were held at Mitchell's Grove church Sunday, May 31, conducted by her pastor, Rev. Mr. Connor, assisted by Rev. Mr. Jones and Rev. Mr. Loving of High Point, and her remains were interred in the family plot beneath a mound of flowers.

MARTHA PARSONS.

Power From On High

Ground down beneath the tyrant's heel,
The sense of shame they keenly feel.
They pray and hope for better things
From Him who'll be their King of kings.

When He shall come, their Great Desire,
He'll make their foes to feel His ire;
He'll arm His people with His power
And be to them a mighty Tower.

He'll bring to them their ancient glory,
Renew the old triumphant story,
Make them the head of every nation,
The crown and pride of all creation.

They're sure that God will hear their prayer,
For in His word it's written there:
Relief may be for years delayed,
But power in time will be displayed.

One Pentecost the Power came
With rushing sound and tongues of flame!
The world was shocked as ne'er before;
What strange effects are there in store?

This Higher Power released below
Will work results as ages go;
We'll see a sight before not seen —
An emperor bow to Nazarene!

This Power will spread through all the lands
And men will wait for God's commands:
God's greatest plans will all prevail
And Israel's promise will not fail.

Above what men now ask or think—
It can't be shown with pen and ink—
The far-exceeding good will come Through widest spread of God's Kingdom.

—The failure of great corporations in these times is teaching many a much-needed lesson. Attaches of these corporations have said by their attitude if not in words: "Others may fail, but our firm is as impregnable as the rock of Gibraltar." But now their idols have fallen. Men may form large and strong combinations, but the greatest may topple. When men put their supreme trust in the works of men, they are pursuing a dangerous course. It is a form of man-mon-worship and is sure to result in disappointment. God rules the world in righteousness.

Calls to Prayer

Frequently we are asked by our fellowmen in special trouble or anxiety to join with them in prayer for deliverance or the accomplishment of some purpose that will bring relief. We ought always to heed such requests as far as practicable. God honors the prayers of His people and it seems reasonable to suppose that He will be more influenced by the prayers of many than by the prayers of a few. Then it does our souls good to pray for those in need. It softens our hearts and deepens our love for humanity. It may be that some one is afflicted by God more for our good than his own. He is suffering for us in the good providence of God. Through his sufferings we will be softened and helped if only we will sympathize with him and pray for him. If the prayer life is to accomplish most for you, you must not only pray for those who ask your prayers, but you must extend your prayer list by adding the names of any that you have reason to believe God would have you pray for. It is a great privilege to pray for others. What if it were denied us? It is also a great responsibility and a great means of grace. The Scriptures urge us to pray without ceasing and to pray for all men everywhere. We may have only small means of helping our fellowmen in a material way, but we can help wonderfully by sincere and earnest prayer. Pray for the sick man a few doors away. Pray for those in trouble. Pray for parents. Pray for the aged and for the young. Pray for those who have the care of souls. Pray for those in temptation. Keep your heart busy in the prayer life.

—Life, like war, is a series of mistakes, and he is not the best Christian nor the best general who makes the fewest false steps. He is the best who wins the most splendid victories by the retrieval of mistakes. Forget mistakes; organize victory out of mistakes.—F. W. Robertson.

—“When were the apostles of Jesus converted?” This question has been much discussed, more in former times than in these times. Just what is meant by “Converted” should be explained as clearly as possible. Giving to the word its deepest spiritual meaning and carefully noting the spirit and conduct of the men who composed the Twelve, I think we will have to conclude that they did not display real Christian character before the day of Pentecost when they received the baptism of the Holy Spirit. When Jesus said, Ye must be born again, he recognized the necessity of the Spirit's operation in the human soul in preparation for the Christian life. If conversion is taken to mean simply turning to Jesus in discipleship, as learners, then the apostles were converted at the beginning of Jesus' ministry.

THAT WHICH CANNOT BE BOUGHT OR SOLD

By THEODORE WEICKER an interview with WM. A. MCGARRY

"False values have more to do with personal failures than any other single cause. They are at the root of that familiar tragedy, the man who is honest, industrious and persevering, yet does not get ahead. His limitation is within himself, and he cannot make progress until it is removed.

"Such a man, frequently, has reversed what should be the normal order of his aims. He seeks first money, position, and power—the tangible things of life. He regards the intangibles, the inner rewards of the spirit, as by-products, or as something to be acquired after his real work is done.

"The truth is that these rewards are the foundation of all great and enduring human achievements. If a man gets nothing else from life than the self-respect which comes from following his ideals, he generally regards himself as well paid. But the point for a young man to remember is that as a rule he gets much more, and for sound and demonstrable reasons.

"He gets, to begin with, a freedom of mind and vision, of heart and soul, which makes progress almost inevitable. He does not envy others. He does not hate. Greed does not enter into his thoughts and therefore it does not influence his actions. His work becomes marked with a clear generosity that looks to the good of others, so that in the very nature of things these others lean upon him and give him increasing support, confidence and authority.

"In a man even more than in a product, the priceless ingredient is that which cannot be bought or sold, his honor and integrity."

Theodore Weicker, Executive Vice-President of E. R. Squibb & Sons, was talking to me about the cultural rewards of business. He has been gathering them since one day in 1878 when, a boy of seventeen, he went to work in his native city of Darmstadt for a great German drug and chemical concern that had then been in existence more than two hundred years.

Material rewards also have come to Mr. Weicker since then. He came to the United States in 1887 representing his old house and entrusted with full power. He promoted most successfully its interest until 1905 when, in association with the late Lowell M. Palmer, he acquired control of E. R. Squibb & Sons, manufacturing chemists to the medical profession since 1858. For more than twenty-five years, first with Lowell M. Palmer and later with his son, Carleton H. Palmer, he has been active in the management of this institution which, during that period, has achieved a position of undisputed leadership in its field.

He has traveled widely, accumulated fine paintings by great masters, a library in several languages and made many friends in high places. Yet all of these possessions and enjoyments, in his opinion, are but by-products of the personal satisfaction arising, not from what he has done, but from a certain way of doing it.

The title of this article is taken from a parable written by Mr. Weicker for E. R. Squibb & Sons a dozen years ago. This piece of business literature is now familiar to magazine readers and users of Squibb products all over the world, but the story of how it came to be written is worth telling as a concrete example of what Mr. Weicker has in mind in his advice to young men. His company previously had advertised only to the medical and pharmaceutical professions. Both of these frowned on any direct appeal to the public because it might appear to be a commercialization of products enjoying high professional and ethical standing.

Mr. Weicker held that this would depend on what was advertised, and how the work was done. He contended that it was possible to subordinate private interest to the public good, and thereby to use the unquestioned power of advertising to advance the interests of the public and also uphold the ethical aims of the medical profession. Challenged, in effect, to prove that this could be done he wrote, as the keynote of all Squibb messages to the public, the following legend which is frequently quoted:

"In the City of Bagdad lived Hakeem, the Wise One, and many people went to him for counsel, which he gave freely to all, asking nothing in return.

"There came to him a young man, who had spent much but got little, and said: 'Tell me, Wise One, what shall I do to receive the most for that which I spend?'

"Hakeem answered: 'A thing that is bought or sold has no value unless it contains that which cannot be bought or sold. Look for the Priceless Ingredient.'

"But what is the priceless ingredient?" asked the young man.

"Spoke then the Wise One: My son, the Priceless Ingredient of every product in the market place is the Honor and Integrity of him who makes it. Consider his name before you buy."

The principle laid down in the foregoing for the buyer—and by implication for any business offering something for sale—applies with equal or greater force, in Mr. Weicker's opinion, to the individual who is selling his services. The spiritual rewards of building a name, in other words, are just as certain as the commercial rewards, which he contends are inevitable.

"We bought a name," Mr. Weicker told me, "when we took over the Squibb business. That name had been nearly fifty years in the making. By consistent high service it had become a guarantee for honesty and reliability. It was indestructible. Once, when the laboratory operated by Dr. Squibb in Brooklyn was destroyed by fire, members of the medical profession raised, upon their own initiative, the capital to start it again.

"Something like that is happening every day in the affairs of individuals. There is really no such thing as any man getting ahead by his own unaided effort. Material progress, particularly, is essentially co-operative. We speak of a man succeeding because of character, personality and other attributes. We even define success as the ability to influence others. But we do not always go far enough in analyzing it to appreciate that, in the material sense at any rate, success for any individual is but the sum total of contributions made to him by others.

"Advancement in business therefore is in direct proportion to the amount of such co-operation and help that a man can get from his associates. In the long run, he can get both continuously and in increasing measure only by those traits of character and personality that come from within, from an idealistic conception of his duties toward others.

"The recognition of these demonstrable facts becomes more widespread year by year. Yet in looking back over more than half a century of business experience, I am puzzled and saddened at times by the slow pace of our progress. Young men particularly are still being directed almost exclusively toward the externals, the inevitable and automatic by-products. Concentrating thereon, they lose sight of the higher values constituting the foundation of these returns and the only really enduring rewards of life.

"Let me state this in terms of the individual. We all admire leadership, no matter what its field. The attempt to describe it is one of the high notes of all art, literature and business. Almost all of that description, however, is devoted to the effect. We do not analyze the effect enough to get at the basic cause. Why do some men lead? Why do others follow, willingly and without question?

"In the vast majority of instances which have come under my observation it is not so much because of what the leader does as it is the way he does it, and the things he will not do. Therein lies the key for the young man going into business or a profession. Let him study leadership from that point of view, and he will begin to find in his own daily contacts innumerable opportunities to build for himself the priceless ingredient."

"Honor, he will learn, is more than mere honesty, and integrity, is more than truth telling. I have no patience with that type of advice which tells the young man taking his first position how to attract the attention of his superiors. It sets up a false sense of values when that is the primary aim—and in cold truth it rarely works. The man who has been intelligent and resourceful enough to become an executive of any kind is generally observant enough to know when an effort is being made to attract his attention.

"If the young man will put himself in the position of his superiors he will recognize instantly that the natural reaction to such an effort is suspicion and distrust. He will be suspected—and generally with reason—of seeking something which he has not earned.

"Contrast the situation of such a man with that of one whose aspiration is to do something better than it has ever been done before. He becomes absorbed in his work, and finds it engaging areas of his mind that had never before been related to business or to the earning of a livelihood. He finds, too, that in order to improve his own work he must help improve that of those around him, since all human activities are inter-related. These others begin to depend on him, and his influence spreads.

"Superiors put confidence in such a man because they know there are things he will not do, that he needs no watching. In the very nature of things they must depend on him. The more men like him they can get, the more time they have to devote to executive problems. He is given more responsibility. His authority is increased."

Emphasis has been placed here on the material rewards to be gained from business by a course of conduct such as that outlined by Mr. Weicker. That is necessary, in his opinion, because young men must be taught to think in such terms. Moreover, it is easier to set up a material yardstick than it is to define the spiritual and cultural values.

"The only way to define them," Mr. Weicker remarked, "is in such general terms as self-satisfaction, self-respect and happiness. Men who have not known the thrill of these experiences do not get an adequate comprehension of what I have in mind from the mere statement of these terms.

"It is necessary to take the worldly measure of value. But I should like to make it clear that there is potentially as much return to the spirit in any business as there is in any of the arts or professions. It might almost be said there is more, since in the past there was a belief, now happily disappearing, that business was a hard and fast affair in which there was no place for ethics and idealism. The opportunity therefore for higher standards is greater, and the returns are in the same degree as the contribution.

"All business can be conducted on the highest plane of personal honor and integrity which men set up for themselves. If all business were so conducted, it is my firm conviction that the nation-wide economic effect would be as certain as the individual results. Many if not all of the problems for which remedies are now being sought in legislation or restriction of some sort would disappear. The social advantages would be incalculable.

"I submit that a young man can find no finer opportunity for the full development of his cultural and spiritual aspirations than in business."—Young Men.

AN OPEN LETTER TO A MINISTER

MY DEAR FRIEND:

It is perfectly natural and commendable that in the strangeness and loneliness of your new field you should desire an intimate word from one who is deeply interested in yourself and in your family.

In all the years of your ministry you have never made so broad a jump from one field to another, neither has there ever been such a complete change in the sort of field you have been called upon to serve. Heretofore you have had from four to six churches over which to spread your affections and services. Now, your efforts are to be confined to a single church.

You will find differences, and you will find similarities. But, because humans are so much alike everywhere, there will be more of similarity between the folks you are now serving and those to whom you have previously ministered than there will be of difference. You will encounter those whose hearts and lives it will be difficult to enter, but there will be vastly more who will be easy of access as you speak to them in their homes and their places of business, or as you address them from the pulpit.

I am glad for the intimation in your letter that you are specially concerned with the matter of your studies and the courses of thinking on which it might be wise for you to enter at this time. Every shift from one pastorate to another is a new beginning, a chance for new adventures in church work, a new opportunity to move on and up to higher achievement on a somewhat more exalted level.

Your family is of reasonable size and your salary is fairly good, so that your personal financial problems will not be specially pressing. You have accumulated a considerable stock of sermons in out-line and you have fair facility in public address, so that while you surely will not yield to the temptation indolently to use these discourses over and over—you will not need to give all your study time during the week to special preparation for the next Sunday's services. Your son is in the high school and, because his mind is naturally active, he will encounter many new questions and will come to you for discussions—questions that you did not encounter, at least in the same form, when you were in high school. You will find at least a small number of individuals in your congregation—in the community surely—who are reading and thinking, to some extent, along the lines of modern social, industrial, biblical, theological, and scientific questions.

I judge that you, more than ever before, will be interested in touching and serving people both young and old—who are questioning and seeking and who are on the outer rim of the church. Now, because you will not need to spend so much time driving from place to place, I am sure you will be able more largely to gratify your desire for study and to make use of your opportunities to speak words that will materially help those individuals in your parish whose minds are more or less blindly struggling with perplexing present-day problems.

In response to your request I am here making a few suggestions:

1. You have already done some thinking along the lines of self-improvement. You are at a good age to devote considerable time to advanced study. Your experience in dealing with people has made it clear that you can be helpful to many. Adult education is in the air. By using the right sort of books you will be able to get a good all-round view of the matters of greatest importance to yourself and to those whom you would benefit.

2. You need have no nervous fear as to the consequences to yourself, or to your ministry. Many ministers of many denominations are finding great satisfaction and profit by renewing their activities as students. Foundations, in these times, are neither crumbling nor slipping. "God has still much light to break forth from His Holy Word," said good Pastor Robinson in his farewell address to the Pilgrim Fathers as they were embarking at Delfshaven for their perilous journey in the Mayflower—and that light is breaking forth today. There are good years ahead for the minister who will apply himself to the task of bringing a vital message to a restless, needy age.

3. Know and use books. A good book is a marvel! It enshrines the thought and spirit of a choice man. It can be held open in the hand, neglected on the shelf, or cast ruthlessly on the floor. But always it is ready quietly to yield its contents to the interested reader. Here are some desirable specimens that will repay your thoughtful study:

a. To stimulate and broaden your thinking read The Mind in the Making by James H. Robinson, and The Making of the Christian Mind by Gaius Glenn Atkins. These will repay several readings.

b. To make the Scriptures more real and appealing read The Modern Use of the Bible by Harry Emerson Fosdick, and The Cardinal Ideas of Isaiah by Charles E. Jefferson. These men love the Bible and are thorough students.

c. To inform and steady your mind on evolution read Where Evolution and Religion Meet by Professors John M. and Merle C. Coulter, The Direction of Human Evolution by Professor Edwin Grant Conklin, and Evolution and its Relation to Religious Thought by Professor Joseph Le Conte. These men are able Christian scholars.

d. To make more rational and reliable your social and religious thinking read Man's Social Destiny in the Light of Science by Charles E. Ellwood, and The Christian Doctrine of Salvation by George B. Stevens.

e. To be informed on marriage and family problems read The Next Age of Man by Albert E. Wiggam, The Pivot of Civilization by Margaret Sanger. In these last books—in fact, in the entire list—you will need to bring your own best powers to the task of understanding and interpreting. May you be well paid.

Most cordially,

LUTHER K. LONG.

GENERAL DISARMAMENT CONFERENCE

Because of the grave importance to the entire world of the General Disarmament Conference of 1932 everyone must do their utmost to promote discussion of disarmament, and those who are informed must do everything in their power to educate those who are not. It is a great opportunity for the ministers and teachers of the country. As Mr. Henderson has said, "If the people want disarmament they can have it. If they will exert their will they can compel results." But we must stir up the people so that they will be interested to make their will felt. This need for intensive education has brought representatives of forty large organizations, interested in peace, together in constant sessions this spring, with a view to creating as nearly a common programme as possible. We quote from the statement finally issued by that group:

"Fifty-nine nations of the world through the Kellogg-Briand Pact have renounced war as an instrument of national policy, and have agreed that the settlement of all international disputes shall never be sought except by pacific means. This Pact logically calls for immediate steps toward general disarmament and requires nations to put the same reliance for security in their Peace Treaties that they have hitherto put in military alliances and armaments."

—These times of partial employment are developing versatility and resourcefulness. A Greensboro man holding a connection with the Southern Railway company which has given him only twelve days' work this year has yet made a living for himself and family by doing any work he could find, and he has done several kinds of work that he did not know how to do before. He is making an all-around man of himself as he could not have done as a mere engineer.

EVANGELISM

"Thy Kingdom Come"

The Chicago Meeting

Notice was given last week of my attendance upon this meeting, as a substitute for Mr. J. Norman Wills, who is a member of our Commission on Church Union. The Commission on Church Comity of the Methodist Episcopal church, South, was present, but only to deal with matters of overlapping church territory. Their commission was not authorized to deal with the question of church union. And since our commission was not authorized to deal with anything but church union, the negotiations on the matter of overlapping church territory was confined to the two larger bodies of Methodism. The negotiations between the Methodist Episcopal church and our church on union went forward with marked agreement toward the final completion of the work of the commissioners at no distant date. An official statement will be given soon to the churches through the official organs of the two denominations. Uniting churches is serious business. Much is involved that will present difficult problems if only the human element dominates. Let us pray much that the will of the great Head of the church may be done in this movement. Many of us have longed, and still long, for a united Methodism. Who can tell but that this day of the Lord draweth nigh.

Sunday, July Fifth

This was a very full day for us. The first appointment of the day was with the Winston church. We arrived in time to share in the Sunday School, and then preached at the 11 o'clock hour. It was a pleasure to be with these friends again, and to participate with them in the worship of the day. The city has widened the street on which the church fronts, and has cut away the steps to the main entrance and laid cement sidewalks right up to the wall of the church. There is no way at present to get into the church from the front entrance. We understand that the city compensated the church for this damage. Business has so encroached upon us at this place that it may be necessary to relocate. The brethren have this matter under consideration. We trust that the matter may be prayerfully and wisely worked out. Brother Pritchard is confined to his bed for a month, in an effort to completely recover his health. We do not think of his condition as being serious, as might be implied from the fact that he is confined to his bed. This is simply a part of his treatment. He will have our prayers, and our expectant hope for his complete restoration to health. And his church will be unfailing to him, we are sure, in their prayers and their affectionate attention.

We were glad to see Mrs. Pritchard in the service, and also Rev. C. H. Whitaker, and to learn from him that his health is improving.

The afternoon was spent at Fairgrove, Haw River charge, in the Centennial celebration of that church. Dr. Humphreys preached in the morning, and presided during the afternoon program. Other ministers present were Brothers Bates, McCulloch (T. F.), Reid and Williams (B. M.) Brother Bates, as the secretary of the general conference, read letters of greeting from the general conference officials, and also felicitated the church on his own behalf. Brother McCulloch was present at the annual conference in 1883, held at this church. It was here that Dr. T. H. Lewis made his first visit to our conference. Brother McCulloch spoke interestingly of his impressions of the young preacher, who was later to become one of our greatest denominational leaders. Brothers Reed and Williams, as ex-pastors gave their words of greeting to the congregation. It was our privilege to hear the congratulations of the conference to this Centenarian, and to assure our people here of the affectionate esteem of the 231 other churches that make up our conference family. Fairgrove was organized by Rev. Alson Gray, D.D. It was a fitting and pleasing thing to have two of his grandsons present, a granddaughter, and five great-grandsons. They are Mr. C. L. and Mr. J. A. Gray, and their sister, Mrs. Spencer, and the sons of the Gray brothers. One of the great-grandsons, C. L., Jr., is blessed with a fine voice, and made his contribution to the occasion in song. The pastor and people did most commendable work in arranging for this noteworthy occasion. The pastor prepared a thirty-page historical sketch of the church, covering the years 1830 to 1931, and read at length from it in the afternoon program. Much time and effort and a considerable amount of money were expended in preparing this sketch. It contains valuable information, both of Fairgrove church and the earlier years of the conference. The sketch is neatly bound, and is offered for sale at 50 cents per copy, barely the cost of the producing it. A feature in the afternoon program that is worthy of note was the display of the life size picture of Elisha Chilleut, and his old Bible that he had read through 121 times. Brother Chilleut had much to do with the early history of the church. We congratulate Brother Trollinger and his people upon this well-planned and impressive Centennial celebration.

The day closed with a service in the Julian church. The congregation was large for this place (the membership here is small) and we were heard with helpful attention. Children's Day had been observed in the morning. We dare say the program was good, and we were delighted to hear the pastor announce that the offering amounted to $15. We have a very faithful band here, and they number in their membership some of the leading citizens of the community. For several years their rule has been to go on the conference honor rolls. We have no reason to think there will be any departure from that this year, despite money shortage. It was a pleasure to be with them and their faithful pastor, Rev. H. L. Isley. Another delight of this visit was the privilege of being a supper guest, with our family, of Brother and Sister W. T. Hanner, and their accomplished daughter, Miss Elizabeth. Brother Hanner is the son of one of our honored ministers, Rev. R. R. Hanner, and a life-long friend of the writer. Thus ended a busy, but a pleasant day.

That Money for Church Extension

Dr. Brown tells us that most of it is in. I am grateful to our pastors and our people for their ready response to this S. O. S. call. The board, I am sure, is likewise grateful, and will say so in due time. Now, let's "go on to perfection," and finish this undertaking. Let's do it with gospel measure, too. It would be heartening to us, in these times of tight money, to raise this $500 with which to meet this emergency of the Board of Church Extension, and do it hilariously, and with a plus. Come on, now, and let's finish the job!

July and August

These are the months in which most of our revival meetings are held. And our revival meetings constitute our chief evangelistic programs. We, therefore, should be much in prayer during these two months for the blessings of God upon these efforts. Unmistakably we need a revival—a pronounced revival of the spirit of evangelism in the church. I am sure that this would please God more than anything else that could happen to his Zion. A great spiritual awakening, with the tides of evangelism running high, would mean a year of memorable results. Let us pray for this. Let us unite our prayers daily that they may be occasions of great spiritual power that shall bring conviction and conversion to multitudes of unsaved people.

Appointments

July 12.—Sapling Ridge church, Alamance charge, in dedication service.

July 15.—August 1.—Vacation.

August 2.—Mt. Carmel church, South Lexington charge.

August 23.—Flat Rock church in Centennial Service.

"He that goeth forth and weepeth, bearing precious seed, shall doubtless come again with rejoicing, bringing his sheaves with him."

S. W. TAYLOR.

THE PRESIDENT'S SERMON

President Coolidge said, standing beside the grave of the Unknown Soldier:

We do not need more national development; we need more spiritual development.

We do not need more intellectual power; we need more spiritual power.

We do not need more knowledge; we need more character.

We do not need more government; we need more culture.

We do not need more law; we need more religion.

We do not need more of the things that are seen; we need more of the things that are unseen.

WORLD CONFERENCE FOR INTERNATIONAL PEACE THROUGH RELIGION

The Executive Committee of the World Conference for International Peace Through Religion will hold a meeting in Geneva, in the "Athenaeum," August 12-14. This will be a public meeting in behalf of disarmament and in support of the World Disarmament Conference.

THE ABSENTEE CHURCH MEMBER

Like the poor who is always with us, the absentee church member is an abiding source of bother to the pastor, whether in the rural or urban church. And as the membership increases, the absentee list usually grows larger and more difficult to handle.

What shall be done with them? I have seen both methods of disposal of them tried out; dropping the name after carrying for a reasonable length of time; and carrying them on indefinitely. Pastors and churches divide on which of the ways is less harmful to the church, and while we debate the question the list grows larger and the absentee becomes less efficient as a church member.

Recently I have tried to recall some of the reasons why this absentee list exists in any church. And I have listed the following among the known causes or excuses for the absentee member.

First, invalidism—continued sickness. There are but few churches which do not have an invalid or invalid members who are not physically able to attend the church service regularly.

Then there is the absentee who lives away from his church and who for some reason, sentiment or indifference, leaves his membership at the home church. He or she is soon lost sight of when the budget is raised and only the older members and the pastor has knowledge of the fact of their membership at all.

Next, there is the group who never had any vital interest in religion, who were swept in through some high pressure revival or through social influence and now are carried on the church register because the church is as indifferent to their indifference as they are themselves.

Finally, there is the grouchy-group. They have ceased to attend church for various and sundry reasons. Church did not appreciate them; some member cheated them in a trade, did them a "dirty deal," they are living in open or secret sin, or they promised to pay the church some money once upon a time and didn't do it. So they stay away on this account. All these kinds I have known, and some others, for the list could be made larger; but it is useless to do it.

What Shall We Do?

Most churches let them alone. Some church conferences or pastors deal with them impulsively or occasionally—dumping them after the list has gotten to be so large they are ashamed of its size. Our church prescribes a method for dealing with such members. But either the machinery will not run, or those who handle it fail to know how to work it—anyhow, the list remains large and on the increase.

I think it might do some good for the question to be discussed through the HERALD. By such a means we might reach some of the absentee members or we decide on some uniform plan which would help very much in the solution. SHOULD A PERSON WHO NEVER ATTENDS HIS OWN CHURCH NOR PAYS TO ITS SUPPORT BE GIVEN A LETTER IN GOOD STANDING?

LITTLE DEEDS

Edward W. Bok in his book "Perhaps I Am" tells this incident.

There were once two boys working their way through Leeland Stanford University. Their funds got desperately low, and the idea came to one of them to engage Paderewski for a piano recital and devote the profits to their board and tuition.

The great pianist's manager asked for a guarantee of two thousand dollars. The boys, undaunted, proceeded to stage the concert. They worked hard, only to find that the concert had totaled them only sixteen hundred dollars.

After the concert the boys sought the great artist and told him of their efforts and results. They gave him the entire sixteen hundred dollars, and accompanied it with a promissory note for four hundred dollars, explaining that they would earn the amount and send the money to him.

"No, boys," replied Paderewski, "that won't do." Then tearing the note to shreds, he returned the money to the boys, and said to them: "Now, take out of this sixteen hundred dollars all of your expenses, and keep for each of you ten per cent of the balance for your work, and let me have the rest."

The years rolled by—years of fortune and destiny. The devastating war came, and Paderewski was striving with might and main to feed the starving thousands of his beloved Poland. There was only one man in the world who could help Paderewski and his people. Thousands of tons of food began to come into Poland for distribution by the Polish premier.

After the starving people were fed, Paderewski journeyed to Paris to thank Herbert Hoover for the relief sent him.

"That's all right, Mr. Paderewski," was Mr. Hoover's reply. "Besides, you don't remember it, but you helped me once when I was a student at college, and I was in a hole."

Such little deeds as Paderewski did make the world more friendly.—The Friend.

MOMENTS OF DECISION

An important letter comes requiring an immediate answer. What shall the answer be? His whole subsequent life will depend on whether he says Yes! or No!

He duly weighs up the matter in his mind and makes his decision. We have to determine this way or that, and the issues are at times most serious.

It is a serious event in a boy's history when his future career is fixed. It is a serious moment when a man becomes a partner in a firm. It is a serious moment when a man signs the register and becomes a husband. And such settlements require full and careful deliberation before one commits himself. So much for good or ill depends upon the right decision.

But what are all these compared with the things of our eternal welfare?

"What shall I do then with Jesus which is called Christ?" was Pilate's question of the Jews. Their decision was made and their cry was heard, "Let Him be crucified." They rejected Him who had come for their blessing and salvation.

We may see how great their sin was. But what have we done with Him ourselves? Have we rejected or received Him? Israel has said, "We will not have this Man to reign over us." Have you said, "I will have Him as my Saviour, my Master, my Lord?"

Now "Choose ye this day whom ye will serve."

Your decision is called for. Make it now, and let it be—"Christ for me."—Scattered Seed.

LET ME DIE!

O God, my heart doth long for Thee

Let me die! Let me die!

Now set my soul at liberty;

Let me die! Let me die!

Die to the trifling things of earth,

My Saviour calls, I'm going forth;

Let me die! Let me die!

If Christ would live and reign in me,

I must die! I must die!

Like Him, I crucified must be,

I must die! I must die!

Lord, drive the nails, nor heed the groans,

My flesh may writhe and make its moans,

But this the way and this alone—

I must die! I must die!

When I am dead, then, Lord to Thee

I will live! I will live!

My time, my strength, my all to Thee

Will I give, will I give!

I'll work with Thee, my blessed Lord,

I'll be obedient to Thy Word,

I'll wield with power the Gospel sword,

While I live, while I live!

OUR STORY PAGE

OUR CARRIER, JACK

Everybody on the route spoke of him as "Our carrier, Jack." Everybody considered him as a prized possession. Everybody was friendly toward this open-faced, clear-eyed boy with the pleasant smile who had that same newspaper route for two years. In all that time, Jack Wilson had never skipped a customer; never was late with his delivery except once when the press really did break down; and was always courteous and obliging even with the most disgruntled customer.

Five o'clock each morning brought Jack swinging merrily down Eighth street, his well-filled bag of local "Chronicles" on his back; each evening found him covering the same territory delivering the big city "Evening News" to his more opulent patrons. But Jack distributed something more than newspapers on that route. He scattered happiness and goodwill with a lavish heart.

Always he had a "Good-morning, Mrs. Wescott, how are the dahlias coming this season?" or "Hello, Mr. Brown, beat anybody at golf yesterday?" or "Good-evening, Mrs. Davis, how's Grandma's rheumatism these days?" Sometimes he bought a luscious orange at the corner fruit stand and carried it to Harold Bates, a little sick boy on the route; and once he even dared to give Mr. Jewett, whose testy disposition everybody dreaded, a Mexican five-cent piece for his curio cabinet—an act that won the rich, old man's friendship and gave Jack the privilege of examining all the curios in the cabinet while he heard an interesting story of each from the owner.

One evening Jack had stopped as usual at Mr. Jewett's to collect for the paper and was having another look at the curios. Mr. Jewett broke off in the midst of a sentence with, "Say, young fellow, what's this wriggling hump moving up your back?" He put his hand on a soft, warm, quivering lump in Jack's shirt.

Jack giggled and drew forth a trembling, blinking, little squirrel.

"It's Pete," he laughed, "my pet. You know he gets lonesome when I'm in school all day, so I take him with me on my evening route. Besides, he helps keep me warm, and then—he hesitated—"well, you know, a fellow likes company when he's tramping about in the dark." Jack's face flushed and his eyes scanned the floor after this confession.

"Sure, I know," Mr. Jewett slapped Jack's shoulder. "Didn't I shovel snow off people's walks in winter back East when I was a youngster, and didn't I parch corn and put in my pockets so I could warm my hands in it? Corn stays hot a long time. Many's the time I'd have given a lot to have owned a pet squirrel like yours."

Jack looked at the gray-haired, well-dressed man in the comfortable over-stuffed chair before the open fire and could scarcely imagine him a boy of his own age shoveling snow. He wondered would he himself ever own a home with a grandfather clock in its spacious hall and velvet rugs on the floors.

A week passed; then, suddenly, one morning Jack did not come. Ben Griffith had been put on the route. Now Ben had delivered that section before and people remembered him as the boy who invariably was late on holidays when a man has the most time to enjoy his morning paper; often overlooked a patron and never, even when he discovered his mistake, retraced his steps to deliver a paper. Moreover when Ben was collecting he always insisted he could not make change, thus causing his customer the inconvenience of ransacking every purse in the house at times in order to find the exact amount of the bill.

"What's the matter with our carrier, Jack?" Mr. Jewett asked Ben.

"Fired!" was the glib answer.

"For what?"

"Been stealing off the boss!"

"That's not true!" stoutly denied Mr. Jewett, "Jack never took a penny that didn't belong to him!"

"Huh, you don't know Jackie. You folks down this way thought him an angel," Ben sneered, "anyway, he was ten dollars short this month and where did he get money to buy oranges for Harold, and stuff for a radio set? That's what I'd like to know?"

Before Ben was out of hearing, Mr. Jewett was at the telephone.

"It's a fact, Jack has seemed a fairly good sort," Mr. Burton, circulating manager, was saying in answer to Mr. Jewett's inquiries, "but these chaps are pretty much all alike. They'll bear watching. No, we haven't had any kicks from your section, but he's ten dollars short. Claims he lost two five-dollar bills. Now you know and I know he didn't lose them. That ten dollars went into tubes and battery for a radio set. Collins says he bought them from him. Gave him two five-dollar bills in payment. O, we didn't fire him without investigating! Sorry, but we can't stand such monkey business. It's not the money, it's the influence on the other boys. There's Ben Griffith! He says Jack always has money to spend. Now tell me where he got it."

"I don't know; but if Jack said he lost that money, he lost it!" snapped Mr. Jewett.

"Then let him prove it!" challenged Burton.

"He shall, or I will!" Mr. Jewett clicked his receiver on its hook; then called Jack.

Five minutes later Jack climbed the broad stone steps to the Jewett home.

"What's this I hear of your being fired?" was Mr. Jewett's greeting.

Jack's merry smile was gone. The pink had drained from his cheeks. His eyes were bloodshot.

"I was short ten dollars in my cash Saturday night," Jack's honest eyes looked straight into Mr. Jewett's. "Mr. Burton thought I'd stolen it when Ben told him I'd made a radio set. He gave me till today to restore the money but I do not have it."

"You should have saved something, boy? Why have you not started a bank account?"

"Except for a few cents a week, my money goes for groceries."

"Well, listen, Jack. Take this money and get your job back." Mr. Jewett offered a bill.

"O thanks, but I couldn't! It would be months before I could repay you. It took two years to save the money for the radio for Mother's Christmas gift."

However, in spite of protests, Jack was forced to accept the money and that evening was back on the route.

Two weeks afterward Mr. Jewett was called to the telephone to hear Jack's excited voice saying, "Found my ten dollars! Wrapped in my handkerchief. It was hidden in the straw of my squirrel's nest. I remember I put them in my handkerchief inside my shirt. Must have pulled them out in the dark. Be right over with the money!"

Mr. Jewett, however, refused to take the ten dollars.

"Our carrier, Jack, is to start his first bank account with that," he insisted.—Florena A. Hayler in the Friend.

JACK AND THE JAPS

This Jack was a jolly good boy. He was jolly because he liked fun, and he was good because he liked to make others happy. Once a month he worked like a beaver in his father's woodshed splitting wood to earn five cents to take to the meeting of the "Cheerful Workers." He felt quite proud of his five cents. The cheerful workers were raising money to educate a boy in Japan and Jack thought a good deal about the Japs.

One Saturday Jack started off on his new bicycle. At least, it was as good as new, though it was a secondhand one that its former owner had outgrown. He had been saving his money for a whole year and it cost him just five dollars.

I cannot tell you what they did at the meeting, but that night Jack had a fearful dream. He thought his bicycle got started and took him straight across America to California. When he came to the Pacific Ocean a long narrow bridge stretched across it, and over it whizzed his bicycle; and the first thing Jack knew he was making a triumphal entry into Japan.

The Japs seemed glad to see him. They crowded around him and chatted and laughed and danced with delight at him and his bicycle. Finally one one boy asked: "Do you belong to the Cheerful Workers?"

"Yes, I do," said Jack proudly.

"How much do you give us Japs?" said another.

"Five cents," meekly answered Jack, wondering what was coming next.

"Oh, ho," said all the boys.

"What did you give for your bicycle?" asked another boy.

"Five dollars," said Jack. "Good, ain't it?"

"Oh, ho," answered all the boys.

"Mighty mean boy," said the first Jap. "Give five cents for us and five dollars for himself."

"All of a sudden the air grew full of sticks and mud. Poor Jack! What should he do? Everywhere these Japanese boys were coming after him like an army of grasshoppers, their shoes clattering, their hair flying, and every boy was yelling, "Oh, ho! oh, ho! Five cents for the Japs and five dollars for Jack! Mighty mean boy!"

But somehow, the bicycle started off, and Jack started for the shore. But alas! no bridge was to be seen, and the first thing Jack knew he went down, plunged head first, bicycle and all, into the Pacific Ocean. He was just thinking how cold the water was, and whether his mother would cry when she knew her Jack was drowned, when his eyes flew open, and lo! he and the water pitcher and towel rack were a pile of ruins on the floor. His mother stood in the doorway, rubbing her eyes and holding a candle in her hand.

"Why, Jack," said she, "what are you doing?"

"Oh, mother, the Japs!" gasped Jack.

Next morning he had to account for his conduct. His father said, "My son, there's a lesson in your dream. The Bible says: 'Thou shalt love thy neighbour as thyself.'—Gospel in All Lands.

ALONE WITH GOD

There are moments in our lives, and they come very often, too, when it becomes a necessity to be alone with God: when nothing will meet our spiritual requirements except silent communion with the Father. There are moments when, without this intimate and tender relationship with Him, the path of duty would be lost, and we would wander in the darkness without a guide.

The highest revelations come to us in those moments when we are alone with God. The presence of others sometimes appears to break the spell of sweetness that seems to exist around the spirit that seeks communion with Him. Even the presence of a very dear friend might cast a shadow between the seeking soul and God, and in some degree drive away the Holy Spirit that comes to bless our lives. God never fails of meeting the one that seek for the Divine influence of His Spirit, whether it be in the glowing morning, the bright noon-tide, or in the holy hush of night.

When the human heart is full of cares and crushed almost to the earth by heavy burdens; when every nerve and fiber groans with agony, there is no sweeter and surer relief than to fly to the sacred presence of Him who never fails to lift the load of sorrow from the suffering one. If the path of duty is lost to the tear-blinded eyes; if the wanderer is bewildered amid the shadows of the way, how oft has all been made plain by the sweet soul-communion with Jesus!

O ye who are weak and heavy burdened; ye who are sick and wounded in life's great battle; ye who with bleeding feet are journeying up life's rocky steep, seek God's blessed Spirit, and He will bear the burden for you.—Christian.

—Rev. C. W. Bates as secretary of the General Conference receives some letters that might have originated in institutions for the insane. Here is a sample:

"Dear Sir:—Would you co-operate to fill a direct order from Jesus? In following out certain prompting seventy copies of things given me to hear have been prepared. Hoping you will realize this is a gesture from one with no reasonable alternative, Sincerely,

THE MINNIS FUND

Did you notice what Mr. Minnis said about the Herald in his last letter? "Just like a letter from home." Sometimes letters from home have bad news in them. Sometimes they are a bit disappointing. I wonder if that isn't true as Mr. Minnis looks to see how the home-folks are contributing to his support? Are we really standing behind him, and helping him in his work, work that he is doing in our stead? What is your answer? Will you and your Auxiliary, Church, Sunday school, or Christian Endeavor society meet the challenge?

SPIRITUAL LIFE DEPARTMENT

Our united prayers in July are especially for our missionaries in Japan: Rev. and Mrs. Leigh Layman, Nagoya, Japan; Rev. Kiyoshi Otake, principal of Girl's School in Yokohama; also for our oldest workers.

"Power Through Prayer," by Rev. G. Armand Miller, D.D., given here:

Power Through Prayer

"Prayer is power.

"You admit it without question, but do you believe it? Do you so believe it that your life and the prayers that you pray are really influenced by that belief?

"Prayer is power. The Holy Scriptures leave no room for doubt of this truth. 'All power is given unto me.' 'Whatsoever ye shall ask the Father in My name He will give it you.' These are Christ's words. The divine logic leads irresistibly to the conclusion that prayer is power. Prayer moves the heart of God; God moves all things.

"The record of the experience of God's children makes plain the power of prayer. Study the prayers of Moses. See how, through prayer, the people were delivered from Pharaoh; the waves of the Red Sea were divided; the waters of Marah were made sweet; the rocks gave to drink; Amalek was overcome; Miriam was healed of leprosy; again and again the people were saved from the wrath of Jehovah; the bite of the fiery serpents was made harmless; Joshua was raised up to be the shepherd of Israel. No man ever needed power more than did Moses in his vast task. And he found it in prayer. He was a Master in the Art of Prayer. The keynote of his success is found in the oft repeated words, 'And Moses cried unto the Lord.' What sacred familiarity with God, what wonderful pleading, what prevailing earnestness are found in such prayers as are recorded in Num. xi-xiv, Exod. xxii, 11. What supreme self-abandonment of interest in Exod. xxxii, 31, 33. Moses knew how to pray, and his whole story tells us that prayer is power.

"St. Paul was a man of prayer. Back of all his achievement lay those three years of communion with God in the deserts of Arabia. He prayed in the prison at Philippi; he prayed for his friends by name; he prayed for his churches, such tender, intense prayers; he prayed for the cause; he looked to 'Him that is able to do exceeding abundantly above all that we ask or think.' There is one word of the great Apostle that gives us insight into his conception of the prayer that is power. It is where he asks the Christians at Rome to 'strive together with' him in prayers to God in his behalf. 'Striving' is a description of prayer that it is to be feared, applies to very few of our supplications. But the very word which St. Paul uses carries with it a suggestion of still greater intensity. It is a word which, spelled in English letters, we know well enough. He begs them to 'agonize' with him in prayer. So fully does he realize that prayer is power, so sorely is he conscious of his need of power, that knowing well what it was to agonize in prayer, accepting that as a description of what prayer meant to him, he yet feels that he must have the entreaties of others who with him enter this struggle. He felt his dependence not only upon the power of prayer from his own heart, but upon that which should come from the hearts of the believing brethren.

"Luther was a man of prayer. Here lay the secret of his power. The busiest days, he felt, must be days of more than usual prayer. By prayer he brought Melancthon back from the jaws of death. By prayer he gained the strength to stand unafraid before the powers of earth at the Diet of Worms. By prayer he fought the daily fight; gained might from God to see and to proclaim the truth that makes men free; a greater Hercules, swept out the defiled temple, and cleansed it until we might recognize and dwell within the Apostolic courts.

"Time would fail to tell of the power through prayer which sent forth men to preach the Gospel in this land and in many lands; which from the haystack at Williams college, has impelled the emissaries of the cross to every corner of the earth; which has been behind the going forth of the young men and women of our colleges in unparalleled numbers; which is stirring the men of the land in a new and marvelous crusade. Christian history from the first day until now reiterates the truth that prayer is power. By the Word, channel of God's energy in answer to prayer, the currents of divine power flow into your soul, and through it to other lives in blessed service.

"Do we believe it? Really believe it? Are the prayers of Christ's people ascending now as doves to Heaven's windows? Is there behind the undertaking to strengthen and extend our work in our Foreign Field, behind the laborers on the distant field, a vast fellowship of unceasing intercession? Is there, lack of the Home Mission Board and of all who work in this nearer field, the same un-failing agency of power? Is there, in every organized activity of the church, the might of many praying for God's strength? Are we striving, agonizing together, in prayer for our pastor, our congregation, our Missionary Society?

"Oh, never say there is nothing you can do. You can pray, and praying you can have a share in bringing the kingdom. 'Ye that are the Lord's remembrancers, take ye no rest, and give Him no rest, till He establish and till He make Jerusalem a praise in the earth.' (Isa. lxi, 6-7)."

FROM PASTORS and PEOPLE

Gray's Chapel, Randolph Charge.—Our Children's Day program was given Sunday evening, June 28, to a well-filled house. All the children rendered their parts well. Much credit is due Mrs. Brower York and Mrs. Herbert Lineberry who worked so faithfully in preparing the program.

We are sorry to report that the condition of Mr. B. P. Alfred, one of the oldest members who is seriously ill, does not improve much.

Our Sunday school is progressing fine, the attendance being very good.

EDITH LINEBERRY, Reporter.

Pine Bluff, Midland charge.—Our pastor, Rev. F. R. Love the first Sunday at 11 o'clock brought a sermon from the text, "We desire a better city." This was a very inspiring message to prompt us to strive to be able to enter into that Better City made and prepared by God.

The refreshing showers for the past three days and nights have been greatly appreciated by all. The parched corn fields of only last week are this morning transformed into green fields of a great promised harvest. This shows us how wonderful the hand of the Almighty really is. He can turn doubt and despair into brightness and happiness in so short a time. God so wonderfully blesses us and yet we are prone to procrastinate his all important work and put our time and talent to worldly and perishable things. In the place of harping "Hard Times" we should take courage and thank God that all is well as it is and go about doing His great work that He has so clearly mapped out for us.

Best wishes to the Methodist Protestant church, the Herald and all its readers.

REPORTER.

Tabernacle Charge.—A very interesting Children's Day service was rendered at Julian church last Sunday morning consisting of songs, recitations, and a pageant. It was really a children's service, a large number who participated being under six years of age. An offering, of course, was received for foreign missions. In the evening at 8 o'clock Rev. S. W. Taylor, D.D., president of our conference, preached to a large congregation, bringing a very inspiring message. We were glad to have Dr. Taylor's family worship with us in the service. Rev. Wayne Curtis, an evangelistic singer of the Baptist church, was present and gave us a solo; also the Tabernacle quartet furnished one number. We are grateful to them for the special songs.

Mrs. C. W. Bates, of Greensboro, addressed the congregation at Tabernacle last Sunday in the absence of the pastor, echoing the missionary part of the Washington convention. We thank her for the message.

The C. E. society at Tabernacle church continues to hold interesting and helpful meetings. Among those who spoke to the society recently were Rev. Mr. Levens, a ministerial student of the Reformed church and Mr. Lee Moser of our own church.

Just recently the Woman's Auxiliary of Tabernacle agreed to purchase seats for the assembly room in the Sunday school building. Those passing the highway are pleased with the appearance of the new building since the painters have finished their work. The inside shows up beautifully.

Brother Clark Kirkman's triplets, Mary, Marion, and Stacy, have been visiting their grandmother in eastern North Carolina for a number of weeks. They are missed in Sunday school and church service.

Mrs. R. L. Jones and Mrs. Charlie Holt have our thanks for peaches and Mrs. Will Shaw for some fine honey.

H. L. ISLEY.

Anderson Charge.—Sunday morning, July 5th, we were at Fairview church, a large congregation being present for preaching. Sunday school is doing fine work under the leadership of Mr. T. B. Nalley. They are having around 125 present each Sunday. Their goal is 200; pray that we may reach that number this year. We also have a fine Christian Endeavor; they are having a fine attendance, 70 to 100 each Sunday night. The Ladies' Aid also are doing fine work; they have 27 members at this time; they are getting up a play and hope to give it soon for the benefit of the church.

We are looking forward to the time when our leadership training school will start; it will begin the 27th of this month; we are hoping that we will be able to get several credits in our church and we know that we will, for they are going in with that in mind. We have some mighty loyal Methodist Protestants down here, they have their church at heart and are doing fine work and standing by their pastor and we wish to say that we are proud of them; they don't talk much, but they try to do what they can. Our revival meeting begins the first Sunday in August; we desire the prayers of all that the meeting may be a success for the Master.

Bellmont Church, Mt. Hermon Circuit.—Children's Day exercise will be held at this church, Sunday evening, July 12th, beginning at 8 o'clock. We hope to have a large crowd present.

Miss Margaret Pickett, Mr. Howard Pickett, and Mr. Lee Moser attended the Leadership Training school at High Point college.

There is to be a Daily Vacation Bible school at this church sometime in this month.

Mrs. E. E. Thompson, who has been in Rainey hospital, has come home.

Hebron, Orange Charge.—Children's Day was observed at this church the 4th Sunday. Attendance and offering were good, but most of all, the program ranked the highest. The pageant, "God's garden," was presented in a beautiful way. The decorations carried out the scene of a garden, which was very attractive. The children gave their best service in order to make this a great day of inspiration to young and old. We owe many thanks to Misses Betty Nelson, Velma Sykes, Nettie Jones and Grace Mebane for their excellent service in making this program possible.

Brother Williams gave us another one of his wonderful messages Sunday afternoon. In spite of the extreme heat his message was well received, and much good was accomplished. May the Lord help him in every way possible to carry on his work.

The third quarterly conference will meet at Union Grove Saturday afternoon. All officials and members are urged to attend.

NANNIE McADAMS, Reporter.

Zoar, Mecklenburg Circuit.—All were well pleased Sunday night, June 28, with the splendid program that was observed by the children. Each child rendered his part well. Special music was furnished by the quartet of Fort Mill. Much credit is due Miss Agnes Osborne for the preparation and training of the children. Our pastor, Brother Joyner, spoke very briefly of the children's exercise; his message was much enjoyed.

Our Sunday school has increased during the summer months; hope it will continue.

Saturday, June 27 the children were given a picnic at the home of Mrs. Sam Blankenship, ice cream and cake were served.

Revival services will begin on the charge as follows: Pleasant Hill, Monday night, July 19th. Lebanon, the second Sunday in August. Spring church, the fourth Sunday in August. Each of the above meetings is supposed to run at least ten days.

The third quarterly conference will be held at Lebanon church at 4:30 p. m. on the first Friday in August.

For we are laborers together with God.

First Church, High Point.—In the absence of the pastor, the pulpit was filled last Sunday morning by Rev. G. J. Murdock, of the Methodist Episcopal church, a returned missionary to India, and his wife spoke at the same hour to the children of the Junior church.

A number of our congregation including Capt. A. M. Rankin, Mrs. Rankin, and the younger children, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Gray and children, Dr. and Mrs. S. W. Taylor, and others went to Fairgrove, Rockingham county, Sunday to attend the One Hundredth Anniversary, which the church appropriately celebrated. Dr. G. I. Humphreys, president of High Point college, delivered the sermon at the 11 o'clock hour. An interesting history of the church, which was founded a century ago by Rev. Alson Gray, grandfather of Messrs. C. L. and J. A. Gray, was read by the pastor, Robert Rankin, who was Capt. Rankin's grandfather, was the layman who was most active in its establishment, and Rev. C. A. Piekens served the church as pastor for five years. It was the home church of Mrs. S. W. Taylor and many others who are prominent in the denomination today. The present pastor, Rev. Mr. Trollinger, is to be congratulated on the splendid program presented upon this auspicious occasion. A very large audience was present, and at noon a most beautiful and delicious picnic dinner was enjoyed. On August 23rd Flat Rock church, which is not far distant from Fairgrove is planning to celebrate its centennial with appropriate exercises.

During the warm summer months the Christian Endeavor society will meet on Monday evening at the homes of the members. Last Monday evening an enjoyable meeting was held with Mr. and Mrs. Ralph H. Vance at the home of Mrs. C. W. Vance on Monticun Avenue. Miss Grace K. on 2 was the leader.

Last Friday, July 3rd (Vol. No. 6 of the Woman's Auxiliary, Mrs. J. A. Gray, chairman, served a luncheon to the local Kiwanis club in the Assembly room of the church, proceeds from which netted $42.00.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Noble and daughter, Miss Margaret Blair, of Chicago, arrived in High Point to spend a few weeks with relatives including Mrs. Martha F. Blair, Miss Florence Blair, Mrs. A. M. Rankin, and Mrs. E. L. Auman. Mrs. Noble is pleasantly remembered here as Miss Etta Blair of Ashboro.

Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Davis and some of their children are planning to leave in a few days on a motor trip to California and other western states.

Mr. and Mrs. George T. Penny left last Thursday for a trip of ten days to Cleveland, Ohio.

Mr. Robert G. Garland has bought the T. V. Long residence at 215 Woodrow Avenue, and he and Mrs. Garland, who was Miss Virginia Pickens before their marriage one year ago, expect to move there in two or three weeks.

Miss Lucille Pickens is the guest of friends in Goldsboro for a few days.

South Lexington.—Sunday was another great day. We had 318 in Sunday school. We were very fortunate to have Dr. M. F. Ham preach for us at our morning service. The church was filled including the large Sunday school room and Dr. Ham made a very interesting talk. At the close of his sermon the invitation was given and 50 or 60 responded and were converted. This was one of the most wonderful services this writer has ever been in. It was one of the kind which our fathers and mothers used to have when the power of God would move on the people and make them shout the praises of God. At the close of the service the doors of the church were opened and 26 united with the church.

We are expecting to see some great things happen during these last weeks of the Ham campaign and all Christian people are urged to cooperate.

REPORTER.

Randleman.—June 21 was Home-coming day at Mr. Lebanon. The weather was very warm but many of our friends and former members of our church were present. Rev. W. F. Ashburn preached a splendid sermon, at the 11 o'clock hour, to a very large congregation.

Dinner was served picnic fashion. In the afternoon a number of talks were given by the pastors and laymen. I believe that those present felt the day was well spent.

Our revival began Monday evening, June 22 and continued for five nights. Rev. R. S. Troxler, of Lexington, did the preaching. There were a few converts and reclamations. Brother Troxler is not a stranger among us, as this was about the fourth time he has assisted in revivals at Mr. Lebanon. He always preaches very earnestly and forcefully. We feel that he is indeed one of God's great noblemen.

Attendance at Sunday school is increasing. The Young Men's Bible class visited the Young Men's class at Concord sometime ago. They were very enthusiastic over their visit and came home with the desire to increase their attendance. Since their class president, Mr. Clark Hinchaw, was called out of the class to teach the junior boys, about the first thing they did was to elect a new president, Mr. A. J. Daniel was chosen. I understand that they have put on or are going to put on an "Every member get one" campaign. Watch this class grow.

The third quarterly conference will convene at Worthville next Saturday evening, July 11, at 7:30 o'clock. It is hoped and expected that a goodly number will be present.

Siler City.—Our regular reporter, Mrs. J. A. Cooper, has been sick for several weeks but we are glad that she is improving.

Our church and Sunday school work continues to move along nicely. We have splendid attendance in Sunday school and fairly good church attendance. Mr. Williams always gives us a splendid sermon.

The revival meeting was held in the spring. Mr. Williams was unable to attend all the time, and Mr. J. C. Canipe was kind enough to preach for him. He gave us some lovely sermons, and everybody was benefited greatly.

Our Children's Day program was fine, and those that had the training of the children in charge did unusually well.

ASSISTANT REPORTER.

Lexington, State Street.—Sunday at the 11 o'clock hour the pastor, Mr. Hendry, delivered a very impressive sermon on the importance of sharing any and all blessings our own lives possess. The beauty of an unselfish life and the privilege of passing on to others any help, sympathy and encouragement we may have brought out in so forceful a manner that all were inspired to nobler resolve.

A week ago Sunday a chorus of girls from the Junior Orphans' home sang two numbers for us at the opening exercise of the Sunday school. An unusually large audience enjoyed hearing these sweet singers and we hope they can be with us again soon.

Rev. M. F. Ham, the evangelist conducting a campaign here, was also with us last Sunday a week ago and gave one of his appealing and convincing addresses to a very appreciative audience. There were about 30 conversions and 15 joined our church on that day. We are expecting others to come in soon.

The great revival meeting conducted by Mr. Ham under a large tabernacle here continues to grow better in every respect. Last Sunday night the immense structure was full and many listened from automobiles outside and many who came had to be turned away. A great number have been saved already and we hope for many more. The services are being broadcast from Beck and Harkey's Radio station here and many who for various reasons cannot attend are grateful for the opportunity of listening in. The singing, under the direction of Mr. Earl S. Rodgers as choir director and Mr. Rawley Treadway as pianist, is a most delightful part of the worship.

We are all very proud of our latest accomplishment, the organization and direction of a creditable-sized cradle roll, Mrs. Hendry has charge of this interesting department and shows off the babies every chance she has with the publicity they deserve. They are all "prize" babies and we hope to see the number increase.

REACHING THE HERALD GOAL

This week copies of the Herald Thermometer were mailed to the pastors. They are asked to post them in the churches on their charges! We hope those who read will run to help their charge get into BIG LETTERS, indicating that the goal for their charge has been reached.

There are several ways of doing it: 1. Let the pastor appoint a committee of three in each church. Take the membership list and find the heads of families. Find out which of these are already taking the paper, urge renewal of subscriptions, canvass those that are not now taking the paper for new subscriptions. One church has done this and is almost in sight of the goal and the quota is quite large. What they did every other church can do.

2. Let the Secretary of Literature in the Auxiliary get "on the job." It is part of her work to secure subscriptions for the church papers. She can do no finer service for the church than that.

3. Let the pastor in his visitation check up on subscriptions, getting renewals and new subscriptions as he goes about. One pastor has distinguished himself in this respect, as in others, by sending in long lists of subscriptions obtained as he makes pastoral calls.

4. Let's realize that the continued existence of the Herald depends upon both renewals and new subscriptions. It is fuel in the furnace that puts steam in the boiler. No fuel, no steam. Come on, folks, let's go!

HOME-COMING

There will be Home-coming day at Fairview church, near Attamahaw, Sunday, July 12. A children's day program will be given in the morning. Dinner served on the ground. In the afternoon the home-coming service.

The Draper quartet will render special music during the day.

All old members and friends are cordially invited to attend. This will be the beginning of the revival services.

BRADDOCK'S DEFEAT BROUGHT GEORGE WASHINGTON FAME AS A FIGHTER

One of the significant dates to be observed next year in connection with the Bicentennial Celebration of George Washington's birth is July 9, the anniversary of Braddock's defeat at the battle of the Monongahela. The battle, says the Division of Information and Publication of the United States George Washington Bicentennial Commission, materially affected the later history of this country and was an important factor in the early military life of its First President.

The people of Pennsylvania, especially those living in Braddock on the actual site of the famous battlefield, appreciate the great historical interest attached to the place. In recognition of this, the 175th anniversary of the event was observed a year ago with appropriate ceremonies and a statue of George Washington as a young Virginia militiaman was dedicated.

Beginning of Seven Years War

The battle of Braddock's Field, as the engagement is sometimes called, really was the beginning of the Seven Years War which cost France her possessions in America and considerably altered the subsequent history of the New World. The question of taxation which helped bring about the Revolutionary War grew out of England's attempt to tax her colonies for revenue to pay the costs of the French and Indian War, as it is known in American history.

When General Braddock came to America to force the French from the territory claimed by England he brought an army of British regulars who were veterans of European battlefields. He possessed the Englishman's contempt for the fighting ability and methods of the provincial militiamen and the Indians. However, he invited Washington into his military family and his force included Virginia riflemen, some of whom had been with Washington at Fort Mifflin the year before. Braddock's arrogant confidence in the superiority of his own men and European military tactics over the backwoodsman's method of fighting cost him his life and the battle of Monongahela.

As Braddock neared Fort Duquesne on that July day of 1755, the French and Indians attacked his advance troops, drove them back and encircled his main body. The Britons in their battle formation of closed ranks presented a solid target into which their foes, hidden behind trees and in the underbrush, poured a leaden stream with deadly effect.

There could be but one result. The redcoats, attacked by an unseen enemy, faced an unfamiliar situation. Discharging their muskets at random they broke ranks and fled precipitately despite the valiant attempts of their officers to rally them. The indiscriminate firing of the panic-stricken troops, Washington wrote, wrought havoc among their own companions in the Virginians.

Washington Showed Bravery

Young Colonel Washington was conspicuous in his courageous efforts to rally the Britons. As he rode frantically over the field he was an excellent target for the hidden marksmen. That every effort was made to bring him down is attested by the fact that two horses were shot under him and his coat was pierced by four bullets. His bravery and valor were ever after recognized at home and abroad.

It has been said that this battle was, in a way, part of the Revolutionary War. At any rate it was closely connected with subsequent events which precipitated that conflict. The war which commenced with Braddock's defeat help bring to a head the irritating question of Britain's right to tax her American colonies. It also brought to the front the name of George Washington—the man destined to lead the armies of his country to victory.

A WORLD METHODIST GATHERING

At Atlanta in October

Plans for the Sixth Ecumenical Methodist Conference which is to meet October 16 to 25 in Atlanta, Georgia, are going forward through the activities of committees in Great Britain and the United States and Canada. These committees are international in scope and are working out details of a very comprehensive program. Local committees in Atlanta are carrying forward preparations for the welcome and entertainment of the delegates of Methodism who will come from all parts of the world.

The Western Section has not entirely completed the details of its part of the program. However, it has selected some two score speakers who will present various phases of the general subject, "Methodism in the Life of Today," which is the general topic of the conference. It will work out further details of the program at a committee meeting of representatives from the Methodisms of the United States and Canada at Cincinnati on the 14th of July.

The opening session of the Ecumenical Conference will listen to addresses from Bishop William Fraser McDowell, senior bishop of the Methodist Episcopal church, and Dr. C. Ryder Smith of London, president of the Wesleyan Methodist church. Already the detailed part of the program which is to be furnished by the Eastern Division has been received from the committee with headquarters in London and assures a great program participated in by its leading brethren, both lay and clerical. Its list of speakers includes many well known authors and noted preachers. Some of them will come from India and China and other parts of their far-reaching field of activities. One of the daily features of the program will be a closing service under the leadership of the beloved and widely known Gypsy Smith.

While great emphasis will be placed upon personal Christian experience, every phase of the social aspects of Christianity will be dealt with. Noted speakers have been chosen to deal with such subjects as: Christianity and modern science; modern amusements and divorce questions; relation of capital and labor; the governmental and international implications of Christianity; and other phases of our modern life as it is related to the church.

Arrangements are being carried forward by the Methodists of Georgia to make Wednesday, October 21st, an outstanding day for those in attendance upon the convention by a trip to Savannah, Georgia, where John and Charles Wesley carried on their labors in their early life. It is expected that not only the delegates will make this trip but also that many of those who will be visitors at the conference will join in the interesting experience which this trip assures.

The local committees in charge are making all plans for entertaining not alone the delegates but also thousands of visitors who, it is expected, will desire to enjoy the advantages offered by this representative gathering of world Methodists. Special rates are being arranged at the hotels and plans are being perfected for welcoming those who come both by rail and by auto. The auditorium seating 6,000 persons will be used for the general meetings of the convention and nearby churches will be made available for various group gatherings. Further information as to hotels and other arrangements may be had by writing to the Atlanta Convention Bureau which is co-operating to make all arrangements for a successful conference.

WHY SOME BIRDS HOP AND OTHERS WALK

A little bird sat on a twig of a tree,
A swinging and singing as glad as could be,
And shaking his tail, and smoothing his dress,
And having such fun as you never could guess.

And, when he had finished his gay little song,
He flew down in the street and went hopping along.

This way and that with both little feet,
While his sharp little eyes looked for something to eat.

A little boy said to him: "Little bird, stop,
And tell me the reason you go with a hop.
Why don't you walk, as boys do and men,
One foot at a time, like a dove or a hen?"

Then the little bird went with a hop, hop, hop;
And he laughed and he laughed as he never would stop;

And he said: "Little boy, there are some birds that talk,
And some birds that hop, and some birds that walk;

"Use your eyes, little boy; watch closely and see

What little birds hop both feet just like me,
And what little birds walk like the duck and the hen;

And when you know that you'll know more than some men.

"Every bird that can scratch in the dirt can walk;

Every bird that has claws to catch prey with can walk;

One foot at a time—that is why they can walk.

"But most little birds who can sing you a song

Are so small that their legs are not very strong

To scratch with, or wade with, or catch things—that's why

They hop with both feet." Little boy, good-by."—L. J. Bates.

The exceptions to this rule are rare. The rule is generally correct, and so simple as easily to be remembered.

EINSTEIN'S PLEA FOR MOONEY

(Note: The great duties of our country serve their constituencies in two ways—by means of the news department and through the editorial columns. Perhaps the average reader gives more attention to the news than to the editorial discussions. This may be well, for every person should cultivate and develop the power to form his own opinions from a study of the facts in the case. However, in case the editor's ability is outstanding, and his moral judgment reliable, he may do a real service in forming and guiding both private and public opinion.)

Among the duties with which I am familiar, the Washington Evening Star is in a distinctive class because of the unusual wisdom of its editorials. When it speaks editorially on temperance and prohibition, on crime and its punishment, on any of the vital political, social, and industrial questions, its utterances are strong and, usually, convincing. This grows out of the full information and broad-minded spirit possessed by the men who guide the editorial policy.

I am giving here a recent example—its discerning discussion of a letter sent by Professor Einstein to the Governor of California. The reader will note it is not the guilt or the innocence of this much-discussed prisoner that chiefly concerns the editor—though the implication logically is that the case may well be left in the hands of the Governor of California and the courts of that state. The point is that no outside individual—however eminent he may be as an original scientist or moral philosopher or friend of man—is capable of giving an opinion of any great value on a matter on which he is presumably not well informed. But here is the editorial. L. K. L.:

"Albert Einstein, world-renowned German philosopher and scientist, was not well advised when he wrote a letter to the Governor of California appealing for an absolute pardon for Mooney and Billings, now in prison as perpetrators of the San Francisco preparedness parade bombing in 1916. His studies of relatively have given him great fame. His recent visit to the United States won for him the friendship of many Americans. On questions of science in his field he speaks with authority. But he is not qualified in any manner to pass judgment upon the merits of the Mooney-Billings case, which has for fifteen years vexed the State of California, and indeed the American people. He could at best express, as he did in his letter to the Governor, merely an opinion as to righteousness of their conviction. That opinion must have been formed upon the basis and under the influence of only a casual discussion of the matter in the course of his visit to the Golden State. It was hardly in good taste for him to express it, although undoubtedly his motive was kindly.

"The Mooney case has sharply divided the people of this country. Those who believe these men to have been the victims of persecution are unflinching in their efforts to obtain their release, which can be effected only by executive clemency. That action would not of itself necessarily establish their innocence. Their conviction would still stand on the records of the procurement of law, but the grant of a pardon would nevertheless be accepted by their champions as vindication and acquittal. Perhaps Professor Einstein did not take into consideration—possibly he does not know—the history of the case in full. Indeed it is hardly to be believed that he could have learned it in the course of his very brief visit during which he was feted and honored socially and scientifically. His concern for these men must be one of sentiment, and if he is to become sentimental over them there are many others in this country who are equally deserving of his sympathy. He might with as much propriety declare his belief in the innocence of Sacco and Vanzetti, though they are beyond the reach of pardon. His action does credit to his heart if not to his judgment."

A SONG FOR JUNE DAYS

My God, I thank thee, who hast made
The earth so bright,
So full of splendor and of joy,
Beauty and light;
So many glorious things are here,
Noble and right.

I thank thee, too, that thou hast made
Joy to abound,
So many gentle thoughts and deeds
Circling us round,
That in the darkest spot of earth
Some love is found.

I thank thee, Lord, that thou hast kept
The best in store;
We have enough, yet not too much
To long for more.
A yearning for a deeper peace,
Not known before.

I thank thee, Lord, that here our souls,
Though happy blest,
Can never find, although they seek,
A perfect rest;
Nor ever shall, until they find
On Jesus' breast.

—Proctor.

KAGAWA AT WINONA

To the list of renowned speakers already announced for what is popularly known as the World's Greatest Bible conference, at Winona Lake, Indiana, the names of several other notable preachers and religious leaders have been added, the most prominent of which is that of Toyohiko Kagawa, of Japan, who will speak on Sunday afternoon, August 16.

Toyohiko Kagawa is one of the most conspicuous figures in the religious world today. He is a profound scholar, a deep student and recognized authority on social conditions in Japan. His books and general writings are gripping the world. "A Million Souls for Christ" is his campaign slogan. His visit to America will be brief and it was only after four months' negotiation that Winona Lake Bible conference was able to secure his services for one huge meeting in the great "Billy Sunday" to be held seating 8,000 people.

The dates of the Bible conference are Friday, August 14, through Sunday, August 23.

—At Cartersville, Ga., a two-year-old boy fell into a well. His mother, Mrs. Wesley Scott, 18, hastily knotted together a number of ropes, started to descend by the improvised life line. The rope broke and she fell into the water, saving the boy as she found the surface. For three hours she cried for help, until passersby heard, rescued mother and child.—Time.

CLEAN THINKING AND SPEAKING

Modern prudishness, as it prevails especially in England and the United States — our squeamish and shamefaced reluctance to recognize and deal frankly with the facts and problems of sex—is clearly an outgrowth of the mediaeval attitude which looked on sexual impulse as of evil origin and a sign of man's degradation.

Modern psychologists have shown that prudishness is not always an indication of exceptional purity, but rather the reverse. It is often a disguise thrown over repressed sexual interest and sexual preoccupations. It appears to be decreasing among the better educated of the younger generation.

The study of biology, and especially of embryology, is an easy and simple way of disintegrating the "purity complex." "Purity" in the sense of ignorance and suppressed curiosity is a highly dangerous state of mind. And such purity in alliance with prudery and defensive hypocrisy makes any honest discussion of essential readjustment of our institutions and habits extremely difficult.—From J. H. Robinson's The Mind in the Making.

A BLUE REFORMER

I want to let go, but I will not let go.
I'm sick, it is true,
Discouraged and blue,
Worn out through and through;
But I will not let go.

I want to let go, but I will not let go.
I am poor and perplexed,
Discouraged and vexed,
Care not what comes next;
But I will not let go.

I want to let go, but I will not let go.
There are battles to fight,
By day and by night,
For God and the right;
And I will not let go.

I want to let go, but I will not let go.
I never will yield,
What' lie down on the field,
And surrender my shield?
No! I will not let go.

I want to let go, but I will not let go.
Be this ever my song:
"Against legions of wrong,
O God, make me strong,"
That I may not let go.

NINE THOUSAND DOOMED!

Are you one of the 9,000 Americans who must die in automobile accidents within the next three months?

Basing its unpleasant prediction on statistics compiled from ten-year Census Bureau averages for June, July, and August, the American Motorists' association estimates that that number of lives will be taken in motor accidents this summer.

This terrible toll will be taken despite the efforts of automobile associations, state and local authorities, newspapers and others anxious to reduce automobile accidents and resulting fatalities.

Perhaps there would be fewer accidents were each motorist as he backed his car from the garage preparatory to a run through the city or country to ask himself, "Am I one of the 9,000 doomed?" Were he to continue to ask himself that question as he drove along, and never forget it until he was safely back home, there would be less temptation to "step on the gas," to take a chance in passing a swiftly moving car ahead. There might be less passing of cars on hills and around curves, less speeding on wet and slippery streets, more attention paid to pedestrians, to street and road intersections, to railroad crossings and traffic warnings. — Portland Press Herald, Portland, Me.

—North Carolina has lagged in the establishment of roadside markets and is thus overlooking an economical method of disposing of surplus farm products at a profit.

OUR TOBACCO-FIRED FORESTS

A banker in California was so stirred by the destruction of the forests of his state, fired by tobacco smokers, that he issued a leaflet on the subject, in which he says that a picnic party from Los Angeles spent a day in San Gabriel Valley; that one man in the party attempted to light a cigarette, but the head flew off the match and landed in a bunch of dry grass and brush.

Within a few minutes there was a raging fire. It burned for days, in spite of the efforts of hundreds of men to stop it. Aside from the loss in timber, it cost the State of California $270,000 to halt the flames. In addition, because of the denuded mountain sides burned over, water from the later rains rushed unimpeded down the slopes, burying some highways under debris, washing out others, and carried away railroad bridges and trucks.

Beautiful orange groves, valued at thousands of dollars per acre, were ruined—buried under tons of gravel carried down from the hills by the flood, because there were no trees or underbrush to hold the water for absorption, or for the reservoirs, as is usually the case in timbered lands, thus causing additional loss. The banker says impressively in his leaflet:

"AND IT ALL STARTED WHEN A SMOKER TRIED TO LIGHT HIS CIGARETTE"

Destruction and loss of life, due to this cause, are going on all the while. A $1,500,000 fire in Newport, Ark., started from carelessly-tossed cigarette. The terrible theater fire in Montreal, Canada, in January of the present year, in which seventy-eight children were killed, started from a cigarette dropped through a trap door in the forefront of the balcony floor, says Fire Commissioner Quinn.

—Apple growers, particularly in the western part of North Carolina, can build a more profitable business by providing air-cooled storage houses in connection with their orchards.

OBEDIENCE

I sometimes wonder, God,
What Thou must think of me,
Since I so often put self first
And give last place to Thee.

I ask forgiveness, God,
Help me to walk today,
Free from subtle selfishness,
In true humility.

A BLUE MISSIONARY

It was on a morning two years ago. I had risen from my night's rest still weary in body. I had been many months without any vacation, and, somehow, that morning I seemed more tired than ever. I went to my room for my devotions, more, I think, from a sense of duty than anything else.

After a little while I went to my office, where a lot of work was awaiting me. As I sat down at the desk, somehow a feeling of utter helplessness came over me, and I felt that I had reached the end of my strength, and that unless God undertook I could go on no longer.

I went back to my room, closed the door, and falling on my knees I said, "O Lord, put it upon somebody's heart to pray for me, for I am too tired to pray for myself." It was all I could say. But, as I knelt, there came to me the sweet consciousness that God was answering, and that someone, somewhere, was praying for me.

I did not know whether it was someone in India, or whether it was someone in America, but I got up from my knees and went out to my work with new courage and strength, because someone that day had prayed for me—a tired, discouraged missionary, and God heard their prayer. Prayer does change things, even while you pray. —By Edna Bacon.

The Church and the World

The church and world are quite distinct,
Yet both may dwell in your precinct;
But you can tell just which is which
If you will note to what they hie.

Both church and world are climbing vines,
And each around some tree entwines;
Just see on what they each rely,
And you may truly classify.

The world's support is in the earth
To day of death from day of birth;
It prospers with full earthly store
And labors on for more and more.

The church looks up to higher source
And hence pursues a wiser course:
It trusts in God for life and peace,
From carking care finds sweet release.

Varying Estimates

When I was a boy on the farm I was armed with a hoe and put to fighting an ignoble plant called "horse rope." It grew everywhere in the cornfields and was a great nuisance. It had no known uses. But when I went to Michigan I found my old enemy honored as a friend. Planted among ornamental shrubs, it was carefully tended and esteemed for its flowers and foliage, and bore the honorable name of "Trumpet Honeysuckle."

Some of the birds that live in our gardens or fields are variously regarded as friends or enemies and treated accordingly. What a pity it is to be found destroying our friends and what a mistake it is to take our enemies to our bosoms. We ought first to decide what things really are before we decide how we will treat them.

It took a heavenly vision to open the eyes of Peter to the fact that Gentiles are as worthy as Jews. Our false judgments are often due to our prejudices. We impute false characteristics and then judge unfavorably instead of really knowing before we pass judgment.

In some cases there are fundamental differences in our powers of judgment which affect the result. There is the classical example of the two men one of whom said: "If all men judged alike, all would want my wife," to which the other replied: "If all were like me, nobody would want her." It is said that "there is no disputing about tastes." There is relative truth and there is absolute truth. Aesthetic truth is relative. Logical truth is absolute. We err if we do not treat each kind of truth according to its real nature. We cannot take liberties with absolute truth and justify it by the fact of our peculiar individual constitution. Jesus did not answer Pilate's question, "What is truth?" but He came to bear witness to eternal, absolute truth. The revelation He made was not for a day or an age, but for all time. According to some human estimates the religion of Buddha or of Zoroaster may be as good as the religion taught by Jesus Christ, but the true Christian cannot think so. He finds a supreme satisfaction in Christianity that he cannot find in any other system of faith and conduct.

Jesus' Theology

No human treatise on systematic theology can compare in worth with the teachings of Jesus regarding the being and character of God. When Jesus called God "Our Father" he gave us an expression more revealing and more comforting than some whole volumes of human speculations. Jesus did not deal in guesses, but spoke from experience and positive knowledge. He was not a parvenu, a new comer, in the universe. He was present when the foundations of the world were laid. His was an unbeginning Sonship to God. He is our Elder Brother. His feeling toward us is not jealousy, but love. He would not mislead us, but guide us into the most precious truth, the truth in which we may find hope and life. Since God is our Father we are His sons. Since we are His sons, He would not have us perish. To save us from perishing He sent our Elder Brother to rescue us. Our Elder Brother is the only begotten Son of God. He knew the deepest depths of the heart of the Father and He shared with us His profound knowledge. Jesus was pre-eminently The Theologian.

No Herald July 30

"He that fights and runs away
May live to fight another day."

The depressing heat of these summer days reminds us that it is time to lay down the implements of our toil and flee to the mountains or seacoast for a few days. We have fixed upon the week of July 30 as the time for our midsummer vacation. The HERALD will therefore not appear that week. We trust that any announcements that would have been made that week will be sent in time to be printed in the issue of July 23.

—A reader of the HERALD who is afflicted asks prayer that she may be restored to health, if consistent with the divine purpose for her highest good.

A NEW PENTECOST

A MESSAGE TO THE CHURCHES ON EVANGELISM

Adopted at the recent annual conference held at East Northfield, Mass., under the auspices of the Federal Council's Commission on Evangelism.

The secretaries of evangelism and appointed representatives of a majority of the communions making up the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America, at their conference and retreat held at Northfield, adopted the following message as the result of their deliberations and send it with deep solicitude to the constituent churches.

In times of religious stress and crisis the voice of God is heard speaking in unmistakable terms to those who seek to know and do His will. We believe that such a time is now upon us and that His call must not be disregarded. His message to the souls of men transcends in importance all temporary questions of social or political concern. Religion stands in the relation of cause and effect to all social reform and progress. We therefore urge that the church put the first thing first. To His disciples Jesus said, in substance, "Power over all personal and social evil comes only through prayer and self-denial." No human strength is adequate for the world's need. Therefore He said, "Tarry ye in Jerusalem until ye be endued with power." Pentecost was the fulfillment of His promise and the history of the church proved that His words were true.

At a time when the fires are burning low on the altars of many hearts, and some churches seem to have lost the yearning soul and a passionate devotion, a new Pentecost must fall upon the church or we are undone. Judgment must begin at the altars of God. The hearts of those who minister there in holy things must be cleansed and their love renewed and their lips touched with a live coal from off God's altar. We long to hear again the old prophetic cry, "Here am I! Lord, send me!" Questioning and disputation which eventuate in nothing and benumb the soul and chill devotion must be laid aside. Is thy heart as my heart? If it be, give me thy hand. The superlative task of the ministry is to win men and women to the personal experience of Jesus Christ, the Savior of men.

The membership of the Church of God must go out to proclaim the Gospel which they have experienced and to show in their lives the fruit of the Spirit.

Christian education must assert itself in the home and Sunday School with the birth and growth of Christian experience. The church grows by spiritual contagion. How can one maintain his own religious life if he does not win somebody to the same blessed experience with every passing month? There are no vital questions in religion which can not be settled by experience. "If any man will do His will, he shall know of the doctrine." If anyone is not winning others to Christ, let him know that he faces the awful doom of those whom Jesus calls "unbelievers of the ground."

We are interested in all social questions, but we are fully persuaded that we shall never find real solutions of social problems until we have a far more spiritual conception of life. We must make a new appraisal of values and give ourselves with uncalculating devotion to those things which are supreme. Matters of eternal life and death are at issue. The sins which broke the Savior's heart and sent Him to the cross should also break ours. He that would save his life shall lose it, and he that would lose his life for Christ's sake shall save it unto Life Eternal.

TENSE TIMES IN ENGLAND'S PARLIAMENT

Holding no permits to do so, four Scotch lay preachers marched defiantly out upon Glasgow Green not long ago and deliberately preached.

Promptly arrested and sentenced for this crime, they were still in jail last week—and Scotland's eye was on the House of Commons. In its boxlike wooden hall arose a Scotchman from the banks of Clyde, John McGovern. "The sentence on those four lay preachers," cried he, white-lipped, "was cowardly and brutal!" Turning upon William Adamson, Secretary of State for Scotland, Mr. McGovern said: "I demand that the Government act to set these preachers free." Put off with an assurance that the Government was "investigating," Clydesider McGovern would not subside or sit down. "I demand Justice!" he kept shouting.

Sternly Speaker Edward Algernon Fitzroy of the House of Commons demanded that Scot McGovern come to order. But he stood his ground: "It is no crime for those four good men to go out on the green and preach! I demand Justice!"

"Order! Order!" roared Conservatives. "Name! Name!" "I must name the Honorable Member," intoned Mr. Speaker, "for disregarding a ruling of the Chair."

The Honorable Member continued to ask Justice. This in the circumstances, was intolerable. A fellow Scot, the Prime Minister, leaped up and moved John McGovern be suspended. "That's about all you can do nowadays!" jeered Scot McGovern at Scot Ramsay MacDonald. By a count of 315 to 16 the House promptly voted suspension of John McGovern, but John still stood his ground. "Wring his neck!" advised a Conservative M. P.

Mr. Speaker is not empowered to wring necks or have them wrung. It was 20 years last week since any Speaker had anyone thrown out of the House (in 1911 the late Mr. Speaker Gully had some Irish nationalist M. P.'s ejected). Last week, as Mr. Speaker Fitzroy hesitated to make history, John McGovern taunted, "You don't have to tell me to sit down! I sit down when I please."

Intoned Mr. Speaker (for the first time in a generation and for the first time in his life):

"I must ask the Sergeant-at-Arms to remove the Honorable Member."

The last time Sergeant-at-Arms Admiral Sir Colin Keppel had to act in an emergency (an Honorable Member was trying to carry off the Mace—TIME, July 28, 1930,) his old sword caught his old legs and tripped him neatly as he tried to rise from his little wooden pew. But last week Sir Colin Keppel and his six elderly assistants in full evening dress had plenty of time. Stiff and still stood their quarry. Slowly, majestically they made at John McGovern and laid hands upon him.

Suddenly boomed a great Scotch voice: "BE MEN!"

At this rallying cry Scotch M. P.'s of the "Clydesider Group" hurled themselves upon the Sergeant-at-Arms' parliamentary posse. Began a serious fist fight.

Conservative M. P.'s, conscious that DIGNITY is the sine qua non of a true British Parliament, sat owlily upon their benches, silent for the most part, but exclaiming murmuringly from time to time, "Wring his neck. Hear, hear! Wring his neck. Hear, hear, hear!" Mr. Speaker, as a last resort, adjourned the sitting and departed, but still the panting, tugging, shirt-tearing, tie-mussing, hair-tousling tussle went on.

Fighting off Scot McGovern's friends as best they could, Colin Keppel and posse dragged him inch by inch the length of his long bench, dragged him into the aisle and down the aisle, dragged him to a point within the Parliament Building where they could conscientiously say, "We have removed the Honorable Member from the House."

Panting like grampuses, mopping their red faces, Sir Colin and posse then went back to their pews. Mr. Speaker reappeared from his chambers. The House received him standing. He resumed the chair.

In Scotland, where men are men, men recalled last week the last time that John ("I demand Justice") McGovern got into trouble in English London.

A Conservative M. P. had just told the House, "It is idle to raise the school-leaving age. Laboring people do not want their children to remain in school after they are 14 years old."

"That," interrupted Scot McGovern "is a damned lie." He was thereupon suspended for five days last November. Last week Mr. Speaker stated that "the Honorable Member has been automatically suspended for the remainder of the session" (probably about a month).—Time.

FOOD FALLACIES

Not long ago Dr. Walter C. Alvarez, an eminent physician, published an article discussing the subjects of bran and roughage and also paying his respects to the vitamin propaganda. In the opinion of this writer, it is highly necessary that the public have its information concerning such matters on straight. At the present time there is a vast amount of misinformation on these subjects being disseminated throughout the land. Every newspaper and magazine is filled from cover to cover with propaganda heading up every time in the effort to sell products supposed to contain special vitamins that are especially necessary for the further enjoyment of health by any of the people. The radio is even worse. The air every day and night is literally screaming everywhere with talks by so-called nutrition experts, patent medicine exploiters, various representatives of the quack and cult tribe, all leading to the confusion of the people, and every solitary one of them having something to sell, and in ninety-nine per cent. of the cases which the people do not need. If Barnum were living today, he would revise his statement that "a sucker is born every minute" to read that "ten suckers are born every second." It is bound to be the case, or there would not be sufficient income for all these sales artists and propagandists to even pay their advertising bills and radio charges, let alone to enable them to pile up the big dividends most of them accumulate.

The discovery of vitamins and the part they play in health has been an important contribution to scientific knowledge and to the better health of the people. The over-doing of the idea is, however, more than counteracting all of the good that the information concerning vitamins has accomplished. Any normal individual in average health gets a plentiful supply of roughage, bran, and vitamins in the general diet which he has the opportunity to eat three times a day. There is never any necessity for a person purchasing any commercial product purported to contain an excess supply of any vitamin needed for him particularly, unless such a person is sick and has been advised to do so by a competent physician. A diversified diet consumed daily and which comprises such things as fruits, vegetables, eggs, milk, butter and meat, which any normal family has throughout the year, affords all the vitamins necessary for any person or family.

As an editorial writer in the Johnston-Willis Hospital Bulletin recently pointed out, even a horse does not do well if given much bran, and yet this particular item is advertised throughout the world and sold in every grocery store in the land as a specific remedy for constipation. The fact is that a few people troubled with habitual constipation may find the use of a small amount of bran occasionally not harmful, but the majority of people who suffer from the constipation habit do so because of some gastro-intestinal or nervous complication, and in all such cases the use of bran, if continued for any length of time, will undoubtedly prove harmful and exceedingly injurious to such a person.—Health Bulletin.

THE PASSING OF A WORLD FIGURE

Miss Anna Adams Gordon was the worthy successor of Miss Frances E. Willard and Mrs. Lillian M. N. Stevens in the leadership of that great band of devoted and stalwart soldiers in the prohibition ranks, the Woman's Christian Temperance Union. She came to the presidency of the national organization just at the time when the final effort for the adoption of the national prohibition amendment was beginning; and through those crowded, crucial years of struggle and achievement she proved her right to that place of eminence.

Richly endowed with natural talents, high intellectual attainments and keen insight into the many and perplexing problems presented, she brought to her great task a delicate sense of tact and a winsome quality of leadership rarely equalled. She came to the national presidency at a time of crisis. No longer did the temperance movement face the crude insults, the personal ridicule and venomous abuse of the early days of the Woman's Crusade. The far more subtle weapon of insidious, utterly unscrupulous propaganda and vicious misrepresentation was infinitely more difficult to meet and overcome. The national campaign for the adoption and ratification of the Eighteenth Amendment to the federal constitution, to consolidate and hold all the gains of the past forty years' fighting, was just taking form. Under her consummate generalship, the full force of the women's organization was thrown into the battle. And when the victory was won, when the Eighteenth Amendment had been entrenched in the federal constitution, her strategic leadership was devoted to the no less vital problems of law observance and law enforcement.

Her viewpoint and her interest were nation-wide and world-wide. Never was her vision limited by the local and provincial. Her election in 1922 as president of the World's Woman's Christian Temperance Union and her selection as one of the four presidents of the World League Against Alcoholism were simply a recognition of the boundless outreach of her sympathetic undertaking and her deep interest in the world problem of alcoholism. Her message to the Toronto convention of the World League Against Alcoholism in 1922 was a plea for closer co-operation on the part of all temperance organizations everywhere for the great common objective of "the fight for a clear brain."

Her closing appeal to the Toronto convention may well stand as her final message to the temperance forces of all nations:

"Now, thank God, all the dry forces of the world, no matter what national programs they may carry forward, are privileged to co-operate in a policy and program to hold victories already obtained, and to secure world annihilation of the traffic in beverage alcohol. All of us everywhere—men, women, youths, maidens, boys and girls, may pull together toward the goal of a world made wider for women, happier for humanity, safer for little children, a world commercially more prosperous, a world with better health and bigger wealth, a world in which prohibition, purity and peace eventually shall triumph over discord, disease and death. Oh, men and women, co-operate!"—The American Issue.

"BORN ABOVE GROUND"

(Excerpt from a letter written by Charles W. Eliot, President of Harvard University)

(Cambridge, December 9, 1924.)

More than a year ago my physician thought I was going to be sick, put me to bed, and summoned a nurse. She was a registered nurse, but preferred a variety in her employment; so that she had worked in hospitals, in private practices, and also as a district nurse. As she had nothing to do for me as nurse, she told me many stories about her experiences with patients, with physicians, and with hospital authorities. The most interesting of all her stories was the one which follows:

"While working as a district nurse in a small town which contained several large factories served by many different races, she was told to call on a woman said to be very poor who was expecting her fourth baby. The nurse called promptly at the building indicated, but was surprised to find the woman established in a comfortable apartment which was pretty well furnished. The patient informed the nurse that the coming child would be the first one of her children born above the ground, and then explained that since the Volstead act had been enforced in the town her husband no longer came home drunk every evening, and on pay day handed her the money he had earned instead of spending most of it on his way home at the saloon. The nurse found it necessary to visit this prospective patient every day for more than a week. One Sunday morning she came upon the father of the family sitting holding his nine-year-old girl on his lap and twisting her pretty curls around his forefinger. When the nurse looked at him with interest and an inquiring expression, he remarked that he wanted to make his little girl look as nice as possible this morning because he was going to take her to Sunday School for the first time. This was the man who before prohibition had never paid any attention to his children except to scold and curse them and push them roughly out of his way, and whose wife's only way of getting any of the money he earned was to pick his pocket as he lay helpless in an armchair on pay day evening.

"In due time the expected baby was born 'above ground' into a happy family."—Charles W. Eliot.

GOD AND THE GREEN LIGHT

At one of the busiest intersections in one of our large Eastern cities there is a traffic-light with two forms of control.

During most of the day the signal-light is governed automatically. The red and green signals alternate at regularly timed intervals without the touch of any human hand.

But sometimes this mechanical control is not equal to the situation. One day, for instance, a drunken driver with only one arm tried to make a left-hand turn at this particular corner. In this emergency the red and green signals flashed in vain. Personal police authority had to take charge. And during the peak of the traffic, when the automobiles come in long lines and the street cars make right and left turns in either direction, a traffic-officer likewise steps into the control-tower, and switches the light on and off in accord with the demands of the traffic at a given moment. Mechanical law is superseded for the time being by the human intelligence that created it.

The government of all life is like that.

Undoubtedly a large measure of our existence is automatically governed. The seasons are exactly timed. Day and night follow each other with unfailing regularity. A radio announcer a few mornings ago made a mistake when he said, "It is now exactly five seconds past 9 o'clock, by courtesy of the Bulova Watch Company." It was not five seconds past 9 o'clock by courtesy of the watch company, but by courtesy of the solar system. The time, the wind and air currents, the tides of the sea, the procession of the stars, are all under the domain of natural law, which is impersonal and impartial, to the evil and the good, to the just and the unjust.

But that does not rule God out of it. He did not shut Himself out of the universe when He made it. If man can supersede the laws which he devises, God can certainly do the same. Though there is an apparently unvarying control of worlds and stars by nature's impartial, impersonal law, the religious man believes that God is so transcendent that in times of critical congestion in the traffic of human history, and in times of bewilderment in the lives of people in the throng, the Ruler of all life can intervene with a higher form of authority, which is personal rather than mechanical. There is a divine intelligence in the control-tower of the universe, to which all the otherwise right and unadaptable law of life must at times give way.

We have reason, then, for hope and prayer. Life is not inflexible. There is personal attention to our needs. The men and women who have lived with greatest authority and power are those who have recognized the universality of law, but who have at the same time turned to divine help in times of crisis and confusion, and found that God did not fail them.

"After this manner, therefore, pray ye: Our Father, who art in heaven."—Edwin T. Dahlberg in C. E. World.

DR. POLING GIVES THE CALL FOR NEW ADVANCES

(From the Key-note Address)

"To maintain Christian Endeavor at home and abroad, to hold fast this goal, and to advance our flag of fellowship and service, to join our comrades in Italy, in the new nations of Europe, in Africa and Asia, Christian Endeavor in her Golden Anniversary year must bring her gifts of treasure as well as of life. We propose tonight the 'Fiftieth Anniversary Maintenance and Extension Fund, two million dollars'."

"We propose the Crusade with Christ to win a million other youths. Again evangelism is first. To win others to Him, I must myself possess Him. Before I can do, I must be."

"Let us set up a program in terms of loyalty to the local church, loyalty to the denomination or communion, a program in definite service and in systematic giving. One million tithers in the Protestant Church of North America would solve every missionary problem of this decade. Let us crusade for church unity. Christian Endeavor in her fiftieth-anniversary convention offers her resources of youth and spirit, offers herself, to help to bring it to pass."

"An aroused civic conscience, registering itself at the ment." "We launch here a new and greater campaign for polls on election-day, is a first requisite for good government. The Eighteenth Amendment and for liberty with law. Let us enroll in a mighty crusade for the Eighteenth Amendment, personal sobriety and law-observance as many young people as there are members in our societies and unions."

"The Christian Endeavor movement is an adventure in human brotherhood. I commend to you tonight the proposal for a Christian Endeavor disarmament petition. Believing that the coming international disarmament conference presents a major opportunity of the present generation, let us as young citizens respectfully call upon our government to take leadership with a definite program for the reduction of armaments."

"Said Paul, 'I can do all things through Christ.' Centuries ago a scribe came to the Galilean, and said, 'I will follow thee whithersoever thou goest.' Christian Endeavorers of North America, are we ready to say that 'Trusting in the Lord Jesus Christ for strength,' are we ready?"—C. E. World.

SLAVERY EVEN YET

To an appalling extent slavery still curses the human race. The disclosures of terrible conditions in Liberia last December came as a shock to most Americans who had believed that that country, set up by American Negroes under the sponsorship of the United States, was a land where Negro rights were securely and faithfully conserved.

Thanks, however, to Secretary Stimson's courageous dealing with that situation, and thanks also to the co-operation of the League of Nations, that small section of Africa is now in line for the final overthrow of slavery.

But much still remains to be done before slavery and forced labor—as bad or even worse than slavery—will be fully overthrown everywhere. To reach this goal the Christian conscience in civilized lands must be awakened, informed and brought into practical action. Here in the United States our people, even church people, know practically nothing of the situation. We hear occasionally of the interest of the League of Nations in this matter. The papers have reported a general Treaty on Slavery completed after several years of study and finally signed by many nations in Geneva in 1926. It was not, however, until February, 1929, that the Treaty was ratified by the United States Senate. There is little popular interest in this matter. Not one person in ten thousand, or more probably 100,000, ever heard of it.

Active leadership in the anti-slavery campaign is found in England. For many years the Anti-Slavery and Aborigines Protection Society has kept faithful watch of the rights and interests of native populations in all parts of the world. It has been keenly alert to the dangers of the encroachments of invading explorers and exploiters from Europe. Its quarterly magazine, The Anti-Slavery Reporter (Denison House, Vauxhall Bridge Road, London) is a veritable storehouse of information. Nothing seems to escape the keen eye and mind of the editor and Parliamentary Secretary of the Society, John H. Harris.

Among recent revelations is the active slave trade from Abyssinia into Arabia. It has been investigated by the representative of the French newspaper, Le Matin, the report running to twenty-one issues last May and June, "giving the statements of slave dealers in their own words." The slave dealers, it appears, are Arabs. Auction sales have ceased. But slaves are still "conveyed in large caravan parties and embarked secretly on ships for sale in Arabia." The sufferings of the wretched slaves are described in graphic terms.

These reports have recently been confirmed by a German traveler, Herr Gruehl. Slaves, he is reported to have said, fetch a high price. It is estimated that some 2,000 men and women are sold every year and that hundreds of slaves, especially women, are smuggled yearly and sold on the Eastern side of the Red Sea. He gave grim accounts of slaves being forced along in chains through the morass by merciless drivers. The capture of slaves, declares M. Gruehl, is as easy as ever, and raids are organized, although it is more difficult for the slave traders to get their convoys through the Central Provinces of Abyssinia.

Among the important documents issued by the League of Nationas Research Committee is the April issue on "The Suppression of Slavery." This gives a comprehensive view of the situation, devotes several pages to procedures dealing with slavery in Liberia and concludes with the Treaty of 1926 and the Draft Convention on Forced Labor, prepared by the International Labor Organization. This convention was completed in 1930 and is now before the nations for ratification.

It has been estimated that there are today about 5,000,000 slaves in the various lands that still allow slavery. Lovers of humanity believe that the time has come for the civilized nations to take effective steps to put an end to this ancient curse of mankind. Will the Christian conscience of the United States have a part of this program? The new task is to convince enlightened men and women, not that slavery is a monstrous and hideous thing, but that it still prevails over large portions of the earth, and that it can be swept away if the conscience of Christian people in Christian lands can be aroused. The Federal Council of Churches is accordingly now giving careful study to the question as to how the influence of the American church members can be brought to bear on the problem.—Sidney L. Gulick.

A POPULAR PETITION ON DISARMAMENT

City and state councils of churches, denominational peace committees, ministerial associations, local churches, missionary organizations, adult Bible classes, and other church bodies are being invited to co-operate with the Commission on International Justice and Goodwill in securing signatures to the Federal Council's disarmament petition.

The Commission is hopeful that tens of thousands of the Christian people of the Nation will endorse the proposals advocated in this petition. Addressed directly to the President, the petition reads:

"We, Christian citizens of the United States, residing in . . . believe that the renunciation of war as an instrument of national policy and the pledges by our Government and fifty-seven other nations to seek only methods of peace in the solution of controversies have laid sound foundations for the success of the forthcoming World Disarmament Conference.

"We believe, Mr. President, that the success of the Disarmament Conference depends in no small degree on the spirit and policies of the United States at that Conference.

"We therefore respectfully and earnestly petition you to select for that Conference the strongest possible delegation of outstanding civilian leaders (with such technical advisers as may be necessary), who are qualified to take an active and constructive part in promoting the spirit of goodwill and the mutual confidence which are essential to the success of the Conference.

"We respectfully suggest that our national policy at the Conference shall include:

"1. Unceasing emphasis on the moral obligations of the Peace Pact.

"2. Actual reduction of all armaments.

"3. Limitation and progressive reduction of military budgets.

"4. Immediate abolition by all governments of preparations and appropriations for poison-gas and disease-germ warfare.

"5. Establishment of a Permanent Disarmament Commission to supervise the observance of the disarmament agreements."

Copies of these petitions are now available at the Federal Council offices, 105 East 22nd Street, New York.—Federal Council Bulletin.

BE CONSCIOUS OF MENTAL GROWTH

True progress means that you are daily growing stronger, better, and nobler, that you have an increasing desire for truth, justice, liberty, and righteousness. You will be most conscious of mental growth at times of deep meditation, when thoughts of unsuspected richness will come into clear view and urge themselves to be admitted into your active life. Herein, too, is the value of prayer, since in the silent communication with the source of truth, your greatest powers are stimulated and brought into fuller realization. Let no day pass without making it contribute its proper share to your development. Your life should be one of steady, constant, definite advancement in knowledge, culture, and spiritual attainment.—Grenville Kleiser.

THINK DAILY ON SPIRITUAL THINGS

The divine teaching is explicit and emphatic, and he who runs may read: Bear ye one another's burdens, and so fulfil the law of Christ. Present your body a living sacrifice, holy, acceptable unto God, which is your reasonable service. Lay up yourself treasures in heaven, where neither moth nor rust doth corrupt, and where thieves do not break through nor steal: for where your treasure is, there will your heart be also. Be not conformed to this world, but be ye transformed by the renewing of your mind. The world passes away, and the lust thereof; but he that doeth the will of God abideth forever. Blessed is the man that trusteth in the Lord, and whose hope the Lord is. He that overcometh shall inherit all things.—Grenville Kleiser.

THE TARDY GIRL

Her name is Betty Baker, her cheeks are flushed with rose, her eyes are bright as star dust, she has a saucy nose. Her disposition's sunny, she is jolly as can be. Now what can be the matter with such a girl as she?

When plans are made for outings she does her share of the work, and no one ever says of her that she has tried to shirk. With all this in her favor, 'tis dreadful to relate that Betty's only failing is in always being late.

She keeps the breakfast waiting, puts others in a flurry. Although 'tis almost schooltime, she sees no need to hurry. Her schoolmates plan an outing. "Now, Betty, don't be late," but always for Miss Betty the whole crowd has to wait. She never seems to realize the hours her friends must waste because she dilly-dallies and never will make haste.—The Portal.

OPTIMISM

The President's Letter

EVANGELISM

"Thy Kingdom Come"

For the next fifteen days I shall be engaged in an effort to sell High Point College bonds, a good way, I suppose to spend my vacation. We are hoping to place a good number of these bonds among our people, and at the same time an effort will be on among the citizens of High Point for a like purpose. These bonds range in denominations from one hundred to five thousand dollars, and bear six per cent. interest. There should be numbers of our people who will invest in these bonds. This is not an appeal for a gift, but a proposition to make an investment that will pay a guaranteed interest of six per cent. per annum. If we can sell $50,000 or $60,000 of bonds at this time, certain financial pressure will be lifted, and the college will be materially strengthened for the work of next year. I bespeak confidence on the part of our people toward High Point College, and their readiness to help the college through this bond sale. This undertaking, with 30,000 people to help, should not disturb us as to the outcome. The college has done, from its beginning, and is still doing, such splendid work, that surely every one will want to help it on to the larger things that lie ahead.

Sapling Ridge

This church was dedicated last Sunday morning, in the presence of a large congregation. Pastor Burgess was in charge of the program. It was our privilege to preach the dedicatory sermon. Seven other ministers were present. Of these Ashburn, Pike, Holmes and McCulloch (T. F.) were ex-pastors of this church. Brother F. B. Peel, an M. E. minister, and Brother R. R. Gordon, a minister of the Baptist church, honored us with their presence. Brother N. M. Harrison came in for the afternoon service. An unusual and saddening circumstance happened in connection with this occasion. Brother O. H. Johnson, a member of the building committee, died suddenly, and the funeral service was held here in the afternoon, just three hours after he was to have presented the church for dedication. The pastor, Brother Burgess, was assisted in the services by Brothers Ashburn, Holmes, Pike, and McCulloch. The Junior Order had charge at the grave, with the benediction by Brother McCulloch. Brother Johnson was a faithful and beloved member of this church. He will be greatly missed. We extend to the bereaved family and other relatives our sincere sympathy. After dinner had been served on the grounds, and just before the funeral service, the congregation met in the church to hear brief remarks by the ex-pastors who were present, and others. Those speaking were Ashburn, Pike, Harrison, McCulloch, Peel, of the M. E. church, and Gordon of the Baptist church. Brother Holmes was at this church a month earlier, and had expressed to the congregation at that time his interest in them and his appreciation of their new church.

The work on this project was begun a year ago, and is a remodeling job; but so complete is the work that no one could tell but that it is new from the foundation. All of the old building is covered with new work, and the Sunday School rooms in the rear are new from start to finish. The only thing about the contract that is not complete is the pews. The lumber for these is on sticks now, and the new pews will be installed soon. For the present, the pews of the old church are being used. The auditorium is 32x45, with three Sunday School rooms in the rear, so arranged that they may be opened for auditorium purposes on crowded occasions. These rooms are seated with chairs. The ten auditorium windows are of art glass, and all are memorials except one. The interior walls are of sheet rock, with metal overhead ceiling, and all finished in soft colors. The exterior of the building is made of red rough surface brick. There are two side entrances through Sunday School rooms, and a front double door entrance approached through a covered porch supported by brick pillars. An inclosed plot immediately in front of the church adds further attractiveness to the entrance. This improvement cost $3,000 in cash; but this does not represent the total cost, as much free labor was used in the construction of the building. O. H. Johnson, deceased, A. A. Self, J. L. Self, M. H. Woody, and Alfred Ferguson were the building committee. They and the congregation, together with their pastor, are very happy over this achievement, and rightly so. We most heartily congratulate them, and earnestly hope that with the dedication of the church may go the rededication of all those who work and worship there. It was a great pleasure to us to share in the dedication of this beautiful building, and to be assisted by these ex-pastors: Brothers Ashburn, Holmes, Pike, and McCulloch, and of course, Pastor Burgess, who was in charge of all the programs of the day. Pastor Burgess is beloved by his people and the work is prospering under his leadership. We were glad to have Brothers Ashburn and T. F. McCulloch as traveling companions to and from this appointment.

Sympathy

Rev. C. B. Way has just lost by death his oldest brother, Mr. Edwin O. Way, of Burlington. The deceased was a faithful member of our First Burlington church during the seven years that it was my privilege to serve there as pastor, and I am sure that he continued in this good estate to the end. We extend to our brother in the ministry, and to all the other relatives of the deceased, our tenderest sympathy.

—The Rt. Hon. W. E. Gladstone, speaking in the House of Commons, on March 5, 1880, said: "It has been said that greater calamities are inflicted on mankind by intemperance than by the three great historic scourges of war, famine and pestilence combined. That is true for us, and it is the measure of our discredit and disgrace."

OUR STORY PAGE

THE WISE MOTHER PIG

Patricia and Paul were spending a holiday at grandfather's. It was spring and the garden behind the house was all dug up and raked over. Grandfather was making it larger this year and was putting up a high board fence that would be covered with vines and flowers all the way up one side. He had the post holes dug, twenty of them, reaching nearly to the house, and had promised his two small grandchildren that, as soon as he came back from next door with his axe that the neighbor had borrowed and forgotten to return, he would sharpen the ends of the stakes and they could hold them upright while he packed the dirt down closely around them.

"Oh! Oh! Oh!" The two children skipped and sang. They tossed their caps into the air to see which could make theirs go highest. Patricia's red tam soared above Paul's brown cap and came down among the branches of the tall crab-apple tree. There it hung, near the top of a slender, arching branch far above their heads.

"Now!" exclaimed Patricia, meaning they shouldn't have done it. "See what has happened," she added with finality. "How are we ever going to get it down?" She sobered at once. "We can't climb that great high tree; besides, the tam is so far out we couldn't reach it."

"We can try," said Paul hopefully. "Perhaps we can push on the branch and shake it down."

They climbed into the crotch of the tree and up the trunk, but the limb was too far over their heads and a sharp, budded stub had poked up through the red meshes and held the tam too firmly for shaking. So they came back and sat in the crotch, not wanting to call anybody and feeling a little bit foolish because they thought they must.

Around the house came Mother Pig and her ten children. They were only a few weeks old, cute, curious, kinky-tailed little fellows, and now they were nosing inquisitively around the garden trying to find out what it was all about. One little chap discovered a post-hole. "Oof-oof!" he grunted. Up ran his nine brothers and sisters, crowding around him and trying to see too. They crowded too closely and right before their eyes the little pig tumbled into the hole!

"Let's get him out—" Paul was just going to jump down from the tree when Patricia saw the mother pig come running.

"Sh—ssh!" she warned. "Keep still a minute and see what she'll do."

"Ooof—oof!" Mother Pig grunted a warning to her other children, who had wheeled and run away, then scampered up again, to keep away from the hole. They edged back and stared wonderingly. At the bottom of the hole, two feet down and twelve inches wide, which is very dark and deep for a small pig, the tenth pig-child stood with just enough room to turn around in.

His mother knew what had happened without looking. Away to the road gate she ran at a gallop that sent her wide ears flopping. The gate was standing open, too, but as she came to it she stopped suddenly. She hung her head close to the ground for a moment in a study, then swung around and rushed back. You could imagine her saying to herself, "No, it's no use to go for help—not the least. There is nobody near enough, and besides, who pays any attention to a pig? They would never understand what I wanted. I must save my child myself."

She rooted swiftly in the dirt around the hole. Great spurting furrows plowed up when she pushed her disk nose through it, and fell on the poor little pig below. Was she burying him alive? Oh, no, indeed; nothing like that. They understood each other quite well. She grunted directions as she worked and the little fellow in the hole was smart enough to catch on. He shook his back and ears under the raining fall of earth and scrambled on top of the growing pile. In a short time the mother pig had the hole filled nearly full and the little pig clambered over the edge to join the other little pigs, who had stood staring curiously at this unexpected happening and now welcomed him with a frisky skirmish and a chorus of "wee-wees."

"Good for her!" applauded Paul, dropping with a thud to the ground. "I didn't know a pig could be so smart. I always thought they were stupid animals."

"Well, there is nothing stupid about her," admired Patricia. "How quick she was! If we were half as clever we could think of some way to get my tam down. Couldn't we—"

"I know," interrupted Paul. "Remember that long pole with the hook on the end of it that grandfather uses for picking apples? It reaches up to the highest branches and I know where he keeps it—in the woodshed."

Away they raced and soon came back carrying the pole. It was quite long and awkward but, remembering Mrs. Pig, they managed to steady it and poked away until at last the tam dropped down.

Patricia picked it up and pulled it over her black curls. "Hurrah!" she cried. "Mrs. Pig found a way and so did we!"—Greta Gaskin Carroll in North Carolina Christian Advocate.

HANS, THE SHEPHERD BOY

Hans was a little shepherd boy who lived in Germany. One day he was keeping his sheep near a great wood when a hunter rode up to him.

"How far is it to the nearest village, my boy?" asked the hunter.

"It is six miles, sir," said Hans, "but the road is only a sheep track. You might easily miss your way."

"My boy," said the hunter, "if you will show me the way, I will pay you well."

Hans shook his head. "I cannot leave the sheep, sir," he said. "They would stray into the wood and the wolves would kill them."

"But if one or two sheep are eaten by the wolves, I will pay you for them. I will give you more than you earn in a year."

"Sir, I cannot go," said Hans. "These sheep are my master's. If they were lost I should be to blame."

"If you cannot show me the way, will you get me a guide? I will take care of your sheep while you are gone."

"No," said Hans. "I cannot do that. The sheep do not know your voice, and—" Then he stopped.

"Can't you trust me?" asked the hunter.

"No," said Hans—"You have tried to make me break my word to my master. How do I know that you would keep your word?"

The hunter laughed. "You are right," said he. "I wish I could trust my servants as your master can trust you. Show me the path. I will try to go to the village alone."

Just then several men rode out of the wood. They shouted for joy.

"Oh, sir!" cried one, "we thought you were lost."

Then Hans learned to his great surprise that the hunter was a Prince. He was afraid that the great man would be angry with him. But the Prince smiled and spoke in praise of him.

"Hans," said the Prince, "I want you to leave your sheep to come and serve me. I know you are a boy whom I can trust."

Hans was very happy over his good fortune. "If my master can find another boy to take my place, then I will come and serve you."

So Hans went back and tended the sheep until his master found another boy. After that he served the Prince many years.—Translated from the German, "Ethics for Children."

HOW FRUIT GREW IN MARY'S HEART

Baby brother had broken the line on his toy horse. Mary was just ready for school but she had plenty of time.

"Please fix my horse," lisped baby brother.

"Oh, I haven't time," said Mary as she ran out and slammed the door.

Of course baby brother began to cry when sister had been so unkind. Mother had to leave her work to do the little job that Mary could have done.

Mary had to pass a store on the way to school. She had five cents Uncle John had given her the day before. She went in to buy some candy which she ate on the way to school. She did not save any for her schoolmates, but like a selfish little girl she ate everyone. She did not know why she felt so uncomfortable but I can tell you why. When she slammed the door and did not do a kind deed for baby brother a thorn of unkindness had grown in her heart, and then when she ate all her candy a selfish thorn grew up.

When school was called she noticed that Jean had a lovely new work book. Hers was an old one. She wished that she had Jean's lovely book. In her heart grew the thorn of envy.

In the arithmetic class Rose had her work all right and Mary had only one question right. She said, "I hate Rose."

But hate is a terrible thing to get into our hearts, and that thorn grew in Mary's.

At recess one of the little girls was telling a naughty story. Mary did not walk away, but listened to every word. Because she had done that a thorn of uncleanness grew in her heart.

At home that evening baby brother got her good pencil and poked it down the register. She had forgotten to put it on the shelf. She knew that but she was so angry that another thorn grew in her heart and she slapped dear little brother. That night she went to bed with her little black heart so full of thorns that she cried herself to sleep.

On Sunday she went to Sunday School with father, mother and brother. She heard the story about Jesus. She had often heard it before but that lesson was about how Jesus can give us white, happy hearts. When she gave her heart to Jesus and He made it white, and took the unhappy thorns all out.

On Monday morning she asked Jesus to help her keep her heart white. She did as she was told. She was tidy to save mother steps. She was kind to baby brother. She found his lost horsie and made new lines for him. Her heart felt so light and happy because in it had grown the fruit of kind deeds.

On the way to school she shared her candy with Rose and Jean, but she left one piece in the bag for baby brother. Because she was unselfish and did not hate Rose, in her heart had grown the fruit of love.

Rose had all her work right. Mary knew that it was because Rose had worked harder. She decided that she would work harder too. She was glad that Jean had such a nice scribbler, even when she could not have one as nice. Because of these thoughts the fruit of joy had grown in her heart.

At recess when she heard an unclean word from another little girl she walked away. The other little girl felt ashamed and did not say that word again. In Mary's heart had grown the fruit of peace, because she had done what would please Jesus.

She put her books on the shelf when she went home that night, then played with baby brother. He liked the candy so much. Mary was so happy because she had been a good little girl, and in her heart had grown the fruit of goodness.

That night she knelt down to thank Jesus for His love, and she went to bed with a white heart full of happiness because she belonged to Him.—Charlotte Evans in Gospel of Jesus.

YOUR GOSPEL

"You are writing a Gospel,

A chapter each day,

By the deeds that you do,

By the words that you say.

Men read what you write,

Whether faithless or true;

Say, what is the Gospel

According to you?"

WOMAN'S MISSIONARY DEPARTMENT

ALL ABOARD FOR WEAVERVILLE

The Executive Committee of the North Carolina Branch of Woman's Work will meet at Bethel Home, Weaverville, July 29. Plans have been made for the trip up, on Tuesday, 28. The party will again enjoy the hospitality of Rev. and Mrs. Bates who for several years have unstintingly opened the doors of their attractive cottage. In case more go than can be accommodated in the cottage, Mrs. Bates will arrange for rooms. The meetings are always held on the porch or in the log house at Bethel Home. Any one doubting that the latch string is on the outside, or that genuine hospitality does not permeate the entire sessions, and reverberate through the very souls of those whose good fortune it is to attend, should go—even make a sacrifice to go.

This year, Mr. Casto knows the women and many of the patients have learned to know them also. Mr. Altman, "The sunshine patient," looks forward to the annual visit and although confined to his bed, assists in making plans for the pleasure and comfort of the "sisterhood," as he has affectionately named the women. An opportunity, women! Join the party. Advise Miss Velma McCulloch, of Greensboro, if you expect to go.

MRS. W. C. HAMMER, Pres.

A WOMAN'S RELIGION

By MRS. J. W. SHELLE

One of the great facts about a woman's religion is that it is one of the fundamental parts of her being, just as hands, as eyes, as mind. A woman's religion enters into her daily life. If she is a housekeeper her religion becomes a part of the Monday washday task, the Tuesday ironing, the Wednesday mending, the Thursday "off day," whatever her interest may be, the Friday cleaning, the Saturday baking, just as truly as it is a part of her Sabbath day worship and praise. If she is a mother her religion directs her mind, her hands, in the management of her own children; if she is a teacher God rules in her dealing with the plastic lives of the children in her charge. If she spends her day in an office in the congested business section of a city her religion is not left behind her in her room. If she tends a garden she sees God in the sun and wind and rain, in the black odorous soil, in the bursting seeds, in the first leaves of the tiny plants, in flower and in fruit. To womankind God is indeed very real.

And inside every woman there lies the eternal troubled Martha and the quiet, truth-seeking Mary. Woman cannot escape the homely tasks of keeping the machinery of the home well oiled. Though homely, this is one of the divine tasks of womanhood. She must teach others the fine art of living together amicably. But to every woman whose life is hidden if God there is a time of blessed escape, a time of relief, when she can "steal away to Jesus" and give herself over unreservedly to that better part which cannot be taken away from her. And every woman can have her blessed "Mary hour" even though she cannot find a moment when her hands may lie folded in her lap. As her fingers ply the needle, as she weaves her thread in and out, closing the yawning gaps in the heels of the family hose, she may hold sacred communion with the Master.

The sense of the dominating presence of the Master in the lives of Christian women the world over is one of the greatest blessings of the world and one which the world takes as a commonplace thing, one which does not attract attention or comment. And this is as it should be, as women wish it to be. Women do not seek recognition of their religion any more than they seek recognition of the fact that God has blessed them with hands to work, with feet to hasten on their uncounted tasks. Women wish none to say,—"Behold her religion!" Rather, if attention is focused upon her, if comment is made, the Christian woman would have it be,—"Behold her life!" For a woman's religion is her life.

Men have a rare religion born of awe; They talk of God; their words uphold his word.

When multitudes flocked to Him, Jesus saw How readily the thoughts of men were stirred To grasp the new; and men he chose to bear Along the years the standard of his truth. Religion is a reverence men wear To crown their age, to hallow all their youth.

But women, who are not so brave or wise, Must mold religion to the day's demands: It is the tenderness that lights their eyes, The warm brown comfort of their toiling hands, The peace that stirs the trailing garments' hem; Women carry God about with them. Pittsburgh, Pa.

Spiritual Life Department

Recently we wrote the General Secretary of the Spiritual Life Department, Mrs. J. W. Shell, to give us a message for the North Carolina women, so it is with great pleasure we are herewith giving you that message in the following article. Each one of us women has food for thought for days and even for years, when we take greater courage through Mrs. Shell's article and realize that it is indeed true that woman's religion is molded to the day's demands upon her.

Sincerely yours,

MRS. J. M. STONE.

A Tribute to Miss Maye Bain

At the auxiliary meeting of Grace church women, on Monday afternoon, Circle No. 1 of which Mrs. F. R. Brittan is chairman, gave a memorial certificate in memory of our dearly beloved, Miss Maye Bain, whose presence is sorely missed in every phase of the work in Grace church.

Mrs. J. M. Milhkan in presenting this memorial to Mrs. John Bain, said in part: "To know Maye was to love her, and we her friends and fellow workers pause to pay tribute to her memory this afternoon and to recognize anew what her quiet, sincere, loyal friendship mean to us individually, and what a vacancy her going has left in the church; we feel more and more keenly our loss. As our hearts are filled with the fragrance of her memory this afternoon, may we be inspired to higher and nobler and better things and think with the poet that:

"There is no death, the stars go down
To rise upon some other shore
And bright in heaven's jeweled crown,
They shine forever more."

Whether in Sunday school, Christian Endeavor, Ladies' Aid, Missionary societies or church service, Maye was there with her pleasant smile and greetings and did her part; but in the home with her loved ones, there was the test of the splendid character. Her steadfast love and service to her mother and father as long as they lived were evidence of the great heart. No sister could have been more loyal and devoted to her brothers and sisters than Maye. In circle No. 1, we know we have lost a most valued member but that she has just gone on to join that great Inner Circle to await our coming.

"A Member of Circle No. 1."

FROM PASTORS and PEOPLE

Liberty.—A very interesting Children's Day service was rendered at this church Sunday evening, July 12, at 8 o'clock. The pageant, "God's Garden," was presented in a beautiful way. The decorations carried out for this event was very attractive. The children gave their best service to make this a great day of inspiration to young and old, much credit is due Mrs. John W. Curtis, and Mrs. J. B. York who worked so faithfully in preparing this program. Mrs. R. L. Elkin had charge of the music. The offering at this time was $10.40. We were very glad indeed to have such a large congregation present at this hour.

Our Sunday school attendance has been very good for the summer months, still not as large as we would like to have.

Mrs. F. A. Shepard entertained the Philathea class at her home recently. After a business meeting a Bible contest was enjoyed by everyone present. Officers elected were: teachers, Mrs. Tate; assistant teacher, Mrs. W. H. Albright; president, Mrs. J. N. Tseley; vice-president, Mrs. B. F. Reitzel; secretary and treasurer, Mrs. June Cox; assistant secretary and treasurer, Mrs. Wade Harden.

Dr. and Mrs. J. D. Williams and Miss Mabel Williams have been spending some time with their parents, Rev. and Mrs. J. D. Williams. The Sunday school will go to Kimesville lake Monday afternoon on a picnic.

Best wishes to the Herald and its many readers.

MRS. J. N. ISELEY, Reporter.

Concord, Saxapahaw Charge. — Our Daily Vacation Bible school came to a close Friday, July 10. Beginning at 5:30 o'clock Friday afternoon, the children put on their commencement program, which was just given as a demonstration of the work they did at school. Also their hand work was placed on exhibit. Following the children's program was a picnic supper on the church grounds. Then beginning at 8 o'clock, Rev. F. W. Paschall of First M. P. church, Burlington, delivered the address. His splendid address was enjoyed by every one.

This school enrolled 49 pupils, and did a great work. We wish to express our hearty thanks to Miss Kathleen Paschall and Rev. T. J. Whitehead for their splendid work during these two weeks in making this school such a success. We hope and pray that we may be able to give the children another Bible school next year, as they all want one.

On Saturday afternoon following the close of the Bible school Little Miss Helen Grey McBane invited her beginners' department and teacher, Mrs. H. G. Hargrove, to her home to celebrate her fourth birthday. Her mother assisted by Mrs. Hargrove gave the children a nice time.

Our revival meeting begins the fourth Sunday evening in July, lasting over for all-day service and dinner on the ground, the first Sunday in August. Rev. Jabus Braxton will be pulpit help. Our Children's Day program will be given in the morning.

There are several of our members planning on going to the Leadership Training school that is being conducted at Saxapahaw, Union church this week.

Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock Mr. George Cates was laid to rest in this cemetery beside his wife who two years ago preceded him to the grave. Rev. H. L. Isley conducted the funeral, assisted by Rev. J. Clyde Auman. Concord feels the loss of another good member.

BESSIE COBLE, Reporter.

English Street Charge.—We are very glad to report that our Sunday school attendance was again back to normal after the holiday slump. We have greatly missed our Sunday school superintendent, Mr. J. A. Robbins, who has been absent for the past two Sundays.

The C. E. society is planning to have an ice cream supper on Thursday evening, July 16, in the hut. The proceeds will go to finish paying the small debt on the hut and for pastor's salary.

At the evening service our pastor took his text from Mal. 2:17. We were favored with special instrumental music by the Misses Ailene and Edith Vance, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Ralph Vance, all of the First M. P. church. We appreciate this splendid music, and hope that they will return again soon. At the close of the service three new members were taken into the church.

A revival meeting began at Midway church, of this charge on July with Rev. Edw. Suits as pulpit help. Everyone is cordially invited to attend.

Orange Charge.—The revival meeting began at Eland Sunday night, July 5th and closed the following Friday night. Rev. R. S. Troxler came to us for the service Monday night and did all the preaching from then until the meeting closed. Brother Troxler gave us a series of clear and forceful sermons. The church was revived to some extent. One new member was received into the church.

The third quarterly conference will meet at Union Grove church Saturday before the fourth Sunday in July at 2:00 p. m. A full attendance of the official members is desired.

B. M. WILLIAMS.

West Forsyth. — Our revival meeting at Stony Knoll began the first Sunday morning and closed on Friday night. Rev. Robert Short arrived in time for the Sunday night service, and preached at all of the succeeding services. He did some of the best preaching ever heard at Stony Knoll, according to some of the older members. There were six reclamations and conversions. We are hoping that there will be some additions to the membership of the church at the next regular appointment. We were pleased with the fine spirit of cooperation shown on the part of members of Baltimore church, who attended nearly all of the services. We especially appreciate the splendid service rendered by Brother James North, who played the organ for nearly all of the services.

We began our revival meeting at Tabernacle church last Sunday morning. The writer preached at the morning service. Rev. O. C. Loy, of near Burlington, arrived during the afternoon and preached his first sermon Sunday night. He is to preach during the meeting this week, with two services daily. We are hoping for a good meeting. The attendance and interest were good at the services Sunday morning and night.

The pastor has secured Rev. Hubert Gwynn, young Baptist preacher of Yadkin County, to preach at Pleasant Hill church next Sunday morning. The writer will be with Rev. J. P. Pegg, on Flat Rock charge, in a revival meeting beginning next Sunday morning.

C. B. WAY, Pastor.

Midway, Haw River Circuit.—Sunday evening at 8 o'clock the pastor, Rev. J. L. Trolinger, delivered a very impressive sermon on the discipline of the Methodist Protestant church, showing us plainly the vows we took when we joined the church and making us wonder if we have kept those vows at all times.

Our revival began at this place the third Sunday night in June; our pastor did the preaching, and did it well.

Professor T. O. Pender directed the singing. We enjoyed having him with us so much; he did much good, and we hope he will come our way again. The church was greatly revived, there were eight or ten converts, three gave their names for membership and we hope there will be more to join next fourth Sunday when the doors of the church will be opened.

There will be Home-Coming day at this church Sunday, July 26th.

A Children's Day program will be given in the morning. Dinner served on the ground. In the afternoon home-coming service. We hope all who used to be with us will come home that day; all old members and friends are cordially invited to attend. Come!

MRS. G. W. APPLE, Reporter.

Hobbs Chapel.—We were glad to have Brother J. B. Clements of Ebenezer church to preach for us yesterday as our pastor was away. Brother Clements brought us an appropriate and timely message. His subject was "Look." He said as our revival season is drawing nigh we should begin to look for those we want saved, then we should begin to pray now, not wait until the revival begins.

Pastor Hethcox and family are at Creswell for a two-week's vacation. While there he will hold a revival. We are asking God's blessing on him and family and praying for souls to be saved.

Last week, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Barnes and family of La Cross, Va., and the writer spent four days touring the mountains of western Virginia. The weather was fine, the highways good all the way, the people friendly and congenial, and the scenery wonderful. Our good old Plymouth had only one "blow out." Guess he wanted a rest.

Please pray for us and our revival which begins the fourth Sunday in August.

DORA PAIR.

Granville Ct., Rehoboth Church.—The revival has just come to a close. Rev. C. L. Spencer did all of the preaching. Good attendance and singing throughout the entire meeting.

Mrs. Tillotson and Lovd rendered several duets during the week. Their help was much appreciated.

On Friday night the doors of the church were opened and fifteen children were invited to the church.

The meeting was a success, and much credit is due our pastor for his service, also the S. S. teachers. Our Sunday school seems to be moving forward.

We held a joint meeting of the Ladies' Auxiliary at Mrs. Spencer's recently. This we enjoyed. We are progressing. I am glad to say. There seems to be right much interest and more people interested in missionary work. The ladies have a jar to collect birthday money at church and it is beginning to fill up. Pennies dropped in whenever there is a birthday. Mrs. D. T. Perkins put hers in last Sunday. It took her a long time to put hers in. This money goes to Mr. Minnis.

A few gifts were presented our pastor and wife when we held our missionary meeting in their home. Cream and cake were served. It was fine.

We held our district meeting in June. Jasper Hicks brought us a fine message from Washington.

Forward may we move. Help us to live for Him who died for us.

CRYSTAL BOBBITT.

Roberta Station.—Our Sunday school increased some today, July 12. Attendance was 227, offering was only $3.14.

The Senior girls presented to Mr. Cochran, our superintendent, a gold pin, with a wreath and two bars, showing our appreciation of four years of service with us.

The third quarterly meeting will be held at Roberta Inn Friday night of this week, at 8 o'clock.

Mr. Hill, and wife and baby of Philadelphia, Penn., spent Tuesday night with Rev. and Mrs. C. H. Hill.

Mrs. Neighbors, of near Pine Bluff, visited Rev. and Mrs. C. H. Hill Saturday night. She was a welcome visitor in our church Sunday morning.

Mrs. Solon Cochran has returned from the Concord hospital and is doing nicely. She is able to sit up some.

Rev. Hill brought us another inspiring message Sunday morning. His subject, "The Christian's Invitation to the Unbeliever."

The revival meeting will begin at our church the first Sunday of August, Rev. J. B. Trogon on the pulpit help. Pray that many souls will be brought into God's kingdom.

Rev. F. R. Love, of Midland, preached a fine sermon at Roberta M. P. church Sunday night. All present enjoyed it to the fullest extent. MISS ELMA MILLER, Reporter.

First Church, Charlotte.—It has been quite a while since a report went in from this church. Nothing much has been done out of the ordinary. Children's Day was observed; the children did their parts most creditably reflecting credit upon themselves and those who trained them. There are in this Sunday school some of as talented children as you will find any where. The collection was the only small thing about the service.

Last Monday the annual picnic was held at Matthews. Those who were there were evidently glad they went. The children had at least two hours in the swimming pool and one of the most ample picnic dinners.

Charlotte did not show up very well in the Piedmont contest of S. S. attendance. The enthusiasm seemed to have subsided at the conclusion of the contest with Winston, and too, the hottest June in the memory of even the middle aged untwisted the fibres of most of our workers and thus let us down with a jar.

We wrestled again with the interest and insurance on the parsonage debt last week. Most of the insurance was undertaken by the S. S. classes. The Baraca, the Young Men's Baraca, the Every-Ready Philathea, and the Ladies' Auxiliary carried seven thousand, the remaining five thousand was taken by individuals. The interest payment was made and we are hoping that when the next interest and principle payment falls due to be in better morale for the task.

Third quarterly conference will be held Thursday night in conjunction with a dinner to all members over fifteen. The dinner is to be served by the Ladies' Auxiliary and paid for by a few of the men of the church. The object is to secure the attendance and co-operation of some who have not in recent years been affiliating—although they are nominal members.

R. M. ANDREWS, Pastor.

Mt. Carmel, South Lexington Charge.—There will be a Home-Coming day at Mount Carmel the first Sunday in August. Services will be held in both morning and afternoon. At 11 a. m. Dr. S. W. Taylor, conference president will preach the sermon.

All former pastors are especially invited, as well as all friends and former members. We hope to have the new church completed for this occasion.

The revival will begin Sunday night, Rev. D. I. Garner will be the pulpit help.

C. G. ISLEY.

Friendship Church.—The annual revival meeting will begin here Wednesday evening, July 15, 1931, at 8:00 o'clock. Rev. J. D. Williams will assist Rev. J. L. Trollinger, pastor, during the revival. It is our pleasure to have Mr. Williams for two years in succession.

We Friendship members are praying, hoping, and trusting to have a great revival. We also request prayers from our sister churches that our hopes and prayers may in all ways be fulfilled.

MARY LEE WAGONER.

Hawkins Chapel, Littleton Charge.—Our pastor, Rev. P. E. Bingham, brings to us a sermon every first Sunday night and second Sunday at 11 o'clock. Sunday he brought a sermon from first Corinthians 3:9: "For we are laborers together with God." This was a very inspiring message. If we are not laborers together with God whom can we be for?

Our revival begins the second Sunday in August; pulpit help will be Rev. T. M. Johnson, of Whitakers. We are also planning for Children's Day the second Sunday morning if nothing prevents.

Miss Bertha Woodruff, the teacher of the intermediates, gave her pupils a social Saturday night in the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Hawkins. They had plenty of ice cream.

Mr. Leo Pittard attended the training school at High Point. We are very proud of him, just a boy in his teens. He held a splendid prayer service the first Sunday morning.

The C. E. society since my last report had a social in the home of Mr. and Mrs. P. E. Bingham and Misses Temple and Edith Carter as guests.

The Fourth of July the C. E. went to the Roanoke river on a picnic roast.

We are very glad to note Mr. Willie Pepper is getting along nicely after a very sick spell.

Mr. and Mrs. Bingham, Mrs. Garnette Hawkins and daughter and Mrs. Berta Hawkins' father, Mr. Billy Hawkins, were her guests Sunday.

At the preaching service Sunday we had several visitors. Among these visitors were Mrs. J. B. O'Brian, whom we all learned to love when Mr. O'Brian preached for us. I think if we live the life he lived on earth, our names will be on the page white and fair.

Visitors, you are welcome, come again.

MRS. CLAUDE H. HAWKINS, Reporter.

South Lexington, Church.—Our Sunday school continues to grow, there were 419 present last Sunday. We failed to send our average in for last month in our last report. Our average for last month was 274 1/4.

In our Sunday morning service Mr. Rawley Treadway, who is pianist and secretary of the Ham party, was with us and he made a splendid talk to the large audience which was present. At the close of the service the doors of the church were opened, and 49 members were received into the church. This makes a total of 82 new members that have been received in the church in the last three weeks.

On Sunday evening and Sunday night the services at the Ham tabernacle were for men only and there were large crowds present for each service. In the night service there were more than 300 men who responded to the invitation when it was given and practically all of these accepted Christ as their Saviour and were saved.

REPORTER.

Laurel Hill.—Sunday morning our pastor, Rev. J. M. Morgan, delivered us another one of those good sermons. His subject being "Power."

The revival meeting will begin at Laurel Hill the second Sunday in August. There will be all-day services on Sunday. Definite plans as to how the meeting will run during the week haven't been made yet.

We are glad and thankful indeed that our superintendent, Mr. A. A. Sain, who has been confined to his home due to illness, is able to attend church again and perform his duties as superintendent.

The third quarterly conference on Fallston church will be held at Macedonia church on Saturday before the second Sunday in August. It is very essential that each church official attend this meeting.

We are sorry to state that two of our sisters are confined to their home unable to attend church, Messdames Mandy Hull and Elter Swain. We are looking forward to their speedy recovery.

The little primary girls and boys class filled their lunch boxes with good eats and went on a picnic Saturday. They were chaperoned by their assistant teacher, Miss Florence Sain.

We are proud of the fact that eight members from Laurel Hill church attended the training school held at Fallston high school building last week. Those receiving their certificates are Misses Lois Willis, Florence Sain, Irene Bingham, Malvinia Lackey, Mr. A. B. Willis, Messrs. Colson Bingham, Clyde and Paul Blanton. Each one attending reported that they were much benefited by attending this school and that a wonderful school was held and much accomplished.

We wish to ask the prayers of all Christian people that God give us a great revival at Laurel Hill this year, and that the church be revived and the community woke up.

LOIS WILLIS, Reporter.

Lebanon, Spring Church Charge. — One of our members gave us a very interesting report of the Leadership Training school held at High Point college several weeks ago. We feel sure that more interest will be taken in the college and in the training schools since we know more about them.

We gave our regular Children's Day program the second Sunday in July. We had a whole day program, with the children's service in the morning and preaching in the afternoon. We were glad that so many came out to the services and I am sure that the whole church appreciates the work that Mrs. W. W. Grant has done towards making the program possible. The children all enjoyed getting up the program and to show her gratitude for their splendid co-operation Mrs. Grant is going to give the children a lawn party one day this week.

Brother Lowdermilk gave us a very splendid sermon Sunday afternoon with, "Can two walk together except they agree," as a text. In his sermon he answered this question fully.

The third quarterly conference will be held Friday, August 7, at Lebanon.

Our revival services will begin the second Sunday in August with an all day program. The services will probably run for eight or ten days. Everyone is invited to attend.

VIRGINIA GRANT.

Davidson Circuit.—Next Sunday Rev. T. F. McCulloch will fill the pastor's appointments at Chapel Hill at 11 o'clock and Liberty at 3 p.m.

Winston, First Church. — It's hot weather, but that doesn't stop the world from going round and round, why should it suggest to someone's mind to be a shirker and not go to church. The churches are always reasonably comfortable, so why stay at home? A lot of good sermons are being heard in First church, Winston, no matter if it is summer time.

Two weeks ago Dr. S. W. Taylor brought us a wonderful message at the morning worship hour. We are always delighted to have Dr. Taylor in our midst.

Last Sunday Rev. O. C. Loy was with us. He brought us many fine ideas and suggestions on "The Good Soldier." If we're going to be a soldier in Jesus army, why not be a good one. All those who heard Mr. Loy's sermon must have gone away with a determination to be a better soldier and to aid more than ever in saving the souls of men.

Our pastor has been missed so very much since he has been confined at home since the first of July. We regret very much his having to stay in bed for treatment, but trust that when he is up again he will be well and strong and healthy. Mrs. Pritchard worships with us each Sunday morning, we're mighty glad she can do so.

During the next two Sundays there will be no church worship, after that we hope our pastor will be back and everything will be working splendidly again.

We hope that all vacationists will have a joyful and profitable vacation and that new strength and courage may be gained to make a "Better Soldier" on returning to the daily tasks of life and the church.

NIAGARA PLUNGER

One woman and two men, all of them in well-padded containers, have gone over Niagara Falls and come up alive. All of them went over the Horseshoe Falls on the Canadian side. No man ever lived through a ride over the rock bottomed American Falls. Yet last week a stray police dog blundered over the American side and came out to shake himself on the bank.

It was a hot day and the dog was playing alone in the shallow water near Prospect Park above the Falls. Fascinated tourists watched until a patrolman enticed the dog to shore, tethered him away from danger. The dog broke the rope, jumped into the cool river. The rapids caught him, carried him over the edge. He fell 165 feet, happened to land in a deep, quiet pool. One John Cavanaugh, candy concessioner, leaped across the shore rocks, got the amazed dog to safety.—Time.

—Helen Keller received an enthusiastic welcome from the authorities when she arrived in Belgrade, Jugoslavia, for a visit. She called upon the minister of social welfare on his invitation and planned to deliver a series of lectures throughout the country on the education of the blind. On Thursday, King Alexander conferred upon her the Order of St. Sava. Miss Keller's looks have been translated into the Serb language.

—A new five-and-ten-cent store had been opened by a man named Cohen. A woman came in one day and selected a toy for which she handed the proprietor a dime.

"Excuse, lady," said Cohen, "but these toys are fifteen cents."

"But I thought this was a five-and-ten-cent store," protested the customer.

"Well, I leave it to you," came the reply. "How much is five and ten cents?"—Exchange.

THE MEANEST MAN IN THE WORLD

I think I can understand the feelings of a man who commits murder. I suppose most of us have felt that impulse though all of us have not obeyed it—as yet. I can even realize that there are such creatures in the world as those who would burn an orphan asylum or rob a blind man of his pennies. Mental cranks can explain these things, and also why men generally steal and rob and commit all the vile crimes on the calendar.

However, as Henry Ward Beecher said: "I have great hope of a wicked man; but only slender hope of a mean one. A wicked man may be converted and become a saint. A mean man should be converted six or seven times, one right after the other, to give him a fair start and put him on an equality with a bold, wicked man. Even then I have my doubts."

The meanest, most cruel, most heartless, most fiendishly selfish thing, however that crawls on the face of this earth is the man who will make money for himself by running a fake cancer cure establishment.

Compared to him, Attila, Timur and Caligula—with Cagliostro as a moral guide — would be fine fellows to go with on a fishing trip. They at least had illusions of grandeur to justify their butcheries, but the crooked cancer "specialist" has nothing to justify his actions but the desire for petty gain.

He preys upon the ignorant and the poor. He does more than steal their money and murder their living bodies; he wrecks their souls by raising false hopes and sending them to the depths of mad despair when the inevitable comes.

A faking cancer specialist who can look a tormented woman in the face, and, in order to drag from her her last few pitiful dollars will bring into those tired eyes the light of hope and faith born of his falsehood, is so low that all the moralists, theologians and psychiatrists in the world cannot measure his meanness nor analyze it.—M. W. Bingay, in Detroit Free Press.

Man's life means:

Teachable twenties,
Timeless thirties,
Fiery forties,
Forceful fifties,
Serious sixties,

Aching eighties,
Shortening breath,

HE FOUND OUT

Visitors to the White House often wonder why so many idle men put in an appearance when the President is to be greeted. A member of the staff of the Washingtonian found out. He was one of 800 persons standing in line on a recent hot afternoon to greet Mr. Hoover. A kidding companion told him it would be a breach of etiquette to extend a moist hand to the chief executive. So, just before his turn came, he reached in his pocket for a handkerchief. In less time than it takes to tell he was surrounded by secret service men. Pathfinder.

IN HONOR OF THE DEAD

Robinson

Joseph Thomas Robinson passed away at his home, located between Burlington and Liberty, on July 5, 1931, at the ripe age of sixty-one years, one month, and twenty-nine days. His death came as a sudden shock to his friends as he had been in good health until within a few hours of his demise.

Mr. Robinson is survived by his widow, Maggie Robinson, and one son, William H. Robinson, of Burlington, R. F. D. No. 6. Other surviving relatives are Mrs. Will Moser, Durham; and Mrs. Broad H. Holt, Burlington, R. F. D. No. 1, both sisters to the deceased. Two grand children also survive.

Funeral service for Mr. Robinson was conducted from Friendship Methodist Protestant Church, on July 7, at 11:00 o'clock. Rev. J. Elwood Carroll, pastor of the church, was in charge of the service, and was assisted by Rev. D. I. Offman of the Lutheran church.

Mr. Robinson had been a faithful member of the Friendship church for a number of years. We trust that his influence for good may so lead and direct those of his kinship and also his friends that his life may have been for much good among us. We shall miss our brother in Christ, and wish for his widow the sustaining power of grace and love that she might cherish the memory of her departed, loving husband.

J. ELWOOD CARROLL.

Fulk

Oscar Ray Fulk, son of Sidney and Hessie Fulk, was born May 7, 1913, and died June 6, 1931.

He was just blooming into manhood when his life was so suddenly snatched away, being in an automobile wreck which resulted in his death in a very short while after reaching the hospital.

His life on earth was short, being only 18 years and 30 days of age.

Oscar will be sadly missed by his many friends and relatives, as he was especially kind and obliging, ever ready and willing to help in time of need. He was converted and joined the church at Mt. Zion at an early age.

Besides his father and mother, he is survived by three brothers, and four sisters and a host of relatives and friends to mourn their loss.

Funeral services were conducted by the pastor in the presence of a large audience. The remains were laid to rest in Mt. Zion cemetery.

The bereaved have our heartfelt sympathy in these sad hours of sorrow and bereavement.

Lane

John Wesley Lane, born June 3rd, 1862, died June 8, 1931. He was married to Miss Sallie Barrow October, 1889, to this union were born thirteen children, ten of which survive.

He professed religion, and joined the church at Mt. Zion about 18 years ago, and lived a consistent church member until he was transferred to the church triumphant.

I was in his home several times during his sickness, and always found him patient and submissive, expressing himself as being ready and anxious to go.

He will be missed in his home, church and community.

May this bereavement serve to draw all his friends and loved ones nearer the cross.

Funeral services conducted by the writer and the body laid to rest in Mt. Zion cemetery.

Our sympathy goes out to the bereaved.

Rule

Died at Winston Salem, N. C., May 30, 1931, Mrs. Mary Ellen Davis Rule, the beloved wife of the late W. H. Rule who preceded her in death in 1927. She was born in Guilford county, June 22, 1859. She leaves seven sons and two daughters to mourn their loss, D. A., C. H., G. E., W. L., E. W., Jr., and L. B. Rule and Mrs. R. A. Kidd and Mrs. H. R. Mills and one brother, J. M. Davis, also a host of friends.

She lived a beautiful Christian life. She was a consistent member of the church until the day of her death. She was a member of the M. P. church until a few years ago she joined the Wesleyan Methodist church at High Point. She was faithful, trusting in her blessed Saviour. May her children always remember their mother's prayers and when tempted may they ever look to her Saviour for help, who took her home where a crown of righteousness was awaiting her. May the grace of our Heavenly Father whom she loved and served comfort and sustain the broken-hearted children and other grief stricken relatives and friends and may we so emulate her sweet life and live so close to the Lord that some sweet day we will meet her where partings are no more.

Funeral services were held at Mitchell's grove church Sunday, May 31, conducted by her pastor, Rev. Mr. Connor, assisted by Rev. Mr. Jones and Rev. Mr. Loving of High Point, and her remains were interred in the family plot beneath a mound of flowers.

MARTHA PARSONS.

HELP ALONG

Of truth and righteousness.

There is nothing lost

In what you do

To lessen sin and stress:

The love you free

Flows to the sea

You have your part

In the daily task

To ease another's load;

Your share to give

To help one live

Along life's rugged road.

No matter how small

Your place may be

And opportunities few;

The world is in need

Of the kindly deed

That only you can do.

WHERE IRISH POTATOES ARE A LUXURY
Edward Everett Brodie, the American Minister to Finland, imports all his Irish potatoes from Idaho.

In Finland there has never been seen anything like those potatoes. They come in boxes, each potato wrapped separately in tissue paper, fifties and seventies, according to size, fifties being the larger.

Although they make the long journey from the far west to the far north over icy seas not one of them has ever been damaged or the least frost bitten. The packing is done with such infinite care that they arrive in perfect condition.

The first unpacking was a great event in the Minister's home and the potatoes a curiosity to the servants.

Any one of the fifties is large enough to serve three persons.

When Minister Brodie wants to give his Finnish friends a real treat, he sends them several of his huge American potatoes, and the gift is more appreciated than would be a basket of American beauty roses or the rarest of orchids. Accompanying the gift is always a recipe showing how to prepare the potatoes for the table.

"The Minister is most generous with them as his sympathy goes out to the person who has never tasted the lusciousness of an American baked potato split through the center while it is steaming hot and filled with a huge piece of fresh, sweet butter.—Time.

Elizabeth came to school one morning in a state of suppressed excitement. "We've got a new baby at our house," she told the teacher.

"Isn't that nice, dear?"

"Yes," said the child, looking rather puzzled, "but auntie told me the baby is only my half-sister."

"Why, that doesn't make any difference, does it?"

"No, but I can't understand where the other half is!"—Boston Transcript.

—It was little Willie's first ride in a railway train, and the succession of wonders required him to a state of hysterical astonishment. The train rounded a slight bend and, with a shriek of its whistle, plunged into a tunnel. There were gasps of surprise from the corner where little Willie was kneeling. Suddenly the train rushed into broad daylight again, and a small voice was lifted in wonder. "It's tomorrow!" gasped the small boy.—Selected.

MARRIED

Crutchfield-Moore

The Effland Methodist Protestant church was the scene of a beautiful and impressive nuptial service when on Tuesday evening, June 30th, at 8:30, Miss Bertie Doyle Crutchfield became the bride of Gaston Battle Moore, of Whitakers.

A throng of relatives and friends of the popular young couple crowded to its capacity the small chapel. The scene for the first time in its long history of a wedding ceremony. Rev. B. M. Williams, pastor of the bride, officiated, impressively using the ring ceremony.

The bride was escorted and given in marriage by her younger brother, James E. Crutchfield and attended by her only sister, Miss Pattye J. Crutchfield as maid of honor.

The groom was attended by his brother, Mark Moore, as best man. Prior to the wedding ceremony an impressively beautiful program of wedding music was rendered by Miss Ruth Walker, of Graham, violinist. Mrs. E. D. Anderson of Tarboro, soprano, and Miss Lucile Walker of Graham, pianist. As a prelude Miss Lucile Walker played "Traumenia" followed by two violin solos, "Believe Me if All Those Endearing Young Charms," and "The Sweetest Story Ever Told." Just before the entrance of the bridal party Mrs. Anderson sweetly sang "At Dawning" and "I Love You Truly."

For the bridal processional "The Bridal Chorus" from Lohengrin was used, and as the vows were spoken "To a Wild Rose" was softly resounded. The party left the church to the strain of Mendelssohn's Wedding March.

The church had been made a lovely setting for the nuptial service, the altar being flanked with ferns and stately palms with English Ivy trailing over the chancel and altar rail, and as a background myriad tall white tapers burned in floor candelabra. Amid the green stood standard baskets filled with white summer flowers, Queen Anne's lace being predominant. In the foreground the white satin kneeling stool was placed.

The pews for the family and honor guests were marked by sprays of Queen Anne's lace and tied with white tulle bows.

Mr. E. D. Anderson of Tarboro, assisted by Mr. Ivan Moore, of Whitakers, and Mr. M. Ivey Crutchfield, of Effland served as ushers for the occasion.

The approach of the bridal party was heralded by the entrance of the ushers who entered by the center aisle which was carpeted in white and took their places at the altar.

The maid of honor entered next followed by Master Peny Brown, a cousin of the bride, acting as ring bearer. He carried the ring in the heart of a large Madonna lily. Next came dainty Sarah Josephine Nicholson, also a cousin of the bride, as flower girl. From her tiny colonial nosegay of roses, sweetpeas and dilphenium she scattered rose petals in the path of the bride whom she preceded. Then came the bride on the arm of her brother and met the groom and his best man as they approached the altar from the right side. In her bridal attire the bride was very lovely. She carried an exquisite arm bouquet of bride's roses beautifully showered with valley lilies and tied with white tulle.

Just before the bridal party entered a group of young women intimate friends of the bride took their places in a pew especially marked for them. In the group were Misses Louise and Nell Forrest, Margaret Freedland, Myra Webb, Elsie Pratt, Elizabeth Clarke, Georgie Thompson and Mrs. N. C. Harris, of Effland; Misses Ruth, Doris, and Edith Bivens, of Hillsboro; and Miss Evelyn Nicholson, of Durham.

After the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Moore left by motor for a tour of northern cities at the termination of which they will be at home at 724 Rose Street, Rocky Mount, N. C.

Mrs. Moore is the eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George F. Crutchfield, of Effland. She is an honor graduate of Elon college, having won while there the Summerbell scholarship, a much coveted honor. For the past several years she has been teaching in the public schools of this state. She is widely recognized as a young lady of great charm and versatility having been very active in social, religious and educational circles.

Mr. Moore is the son of Mr. and Mrs. R. M. Moore, of Whitakers, N. C. He received his education at Oak Ridge Military academy and the University of North Carolina. He is a very popular young man and is prominently connected.

A CONFESSION OF FAITH FOR YOUNG PEOPLE

I want to be like Jesus
Advancing in wisdom and in stature and in favor with God and man and I take Him to be my Friend and Savior.
I am sorry for my sins.
I believe that He is able to forgive me and to help me to overcome whenever I am tempted.
I will try to honor my Savior by being ready to obey my Parents
To speak the truth
To be kind to every one
To be cruel to no creature
To love my Country
And to stand up for the Right
I will try
To be helpful in my home
To be faithful in my school
To be true and pure in all I do.
I will try
To say such words as Jesus would have me say
To read such books as Jesus would have me read
To do such things as Jesus would have me do.

Praying that I may be given strength day by day to keep this pledge of love to Him I have signed it with my own hand.—Christian Sun.

On Life's Highway

Strange men in car go dashing by
In such wild haste we wonder why:
In mad pursuit they rush along,
And cheer themselves with thrilling song.

Their hopes are high, their aims are sure,
They will the best of all secure;
They think they know just when and where
And how their car to truly steer.

They come to where the way divides
And find no friendly sign that guides;
They choose the road that seems the best
And hurry on with keenest zest.

The night comes on and they've not found
The favored clime for which they're bound.
They wander on in darkness drear
Without a ray to bring them cheer.

They travel on in doubtful minds
With many fears of divers kinds.
The morning shows a shocking scene:
Our travelers dead 'neath wrecked machine.

Their graves nearby bear warning signs
With meaning stressed in these two lines:
"Let him that starts on life's grand ride
Be sure he has a faithful guide!"

"Showers of Blessing"

We have to go back to the Prophet Ezekiel to find this expression in its first occurrence, and Ezekiel takes it from the mouth of the Lord. God promises to His people "showers of blessing." How fine and apt the expression is! It describes both God's manner of giving and the quality of His gifts. He is a gentle giver, a thoughtful giver, a polite giver, a kind giver. He does not overwhelm us with storms of good things. He does not bury us under avalanches of supplies. He does not convey to us by the swift current of the lightning flash the things we need. He does not pelt us with chunks of good. He does not flail us with hailstones of blessing. He sends us "showers of blessing."

And the blessings of God are not only as gentle as the showers, they are as diffusive as the showers. They reach everywhere. They extend over all. They are meant for all.

Have you ever thought of the elaborate provision necessary for the production of a shower of rain? There must be somewhere a great body of water. There must be heat applied to produce evaporation. There must be the atmosphere to buoy up the body of vapor. There must be the wind to drive the cloud of vapor over hills and valleys and mountains. There must be cooler currents of air to condense the vapor and reduce it to water again. There must be the wonderful power of gravitation to produce the downfall which we witness in a shower. It costs God elaborate preparation on a prodigious scale to give to us a shower of rain. It is inconceivable to us what it does cost Him and has cost Him to prepare for us showers of spiritual blessing. It is said "that a thing is worth what it costs to produce it." How great then is the worth of our showers of blessing from God!

But if it costs so much to convey the blessings to us, how much must the blessings themselves have cost! The blessings of God are perfectly adapted to our needs. God does not find them ready-made to His hand: He has to make them. What marvelous ingenuity is necessary to prepare for us what our complex nature requires. But God delights to do it. And He makes only the reasonable requirement of grateful appreciation and faithful obedience.

—First Church, High Point, reaches and passes its HERALD subscription goal this week. We thank all those who have responded to make this possible and especially thank Brother E. L. Douglas and those who have labored with him in securing subscriptions. First Church has always been a good reader of the HERALD, but now it surpasses itself.

—Next week is our summer vacation week and the HERALD will not appear. We hope to greet you again in the issue of August 6.

—We print this week a report of the recent meeting in Chicago to investigate the possibility and propriety of Methodist union. The matter involves so very much that most careful study should be given to it. To unite or not unite is not so important as to be or not be, but it is fundamentally important. Whether union comes or disunion remains, we hope the issue will be justifiable and generally satisfactory. It is a matter for every church member to consider and in due time act upon.

—Too serious attention cannot be given to the revival efforts the churches and pastors make during the summer and autumn months. What a difference between being brought into the Kingdom of Christ and being left in subjection to the Evil One. Pity the unsaved, pray for them, appeal lovingly to them.

—If there are rational beings of a superhuman kind that behold the doings of men on earth, what do you suppose they are saying about our race now?

CONFERENCE ON METHODIST UNION

Representatives of the Commission of Interdenominational Relations of the Methodist Episcopal Church and the Commission on Union of the Methodist Protestant Church met recently in Chicago to continue their considerations of the union of these two branches of Methodism. Those present representing the Methodist Episcopal Church were: Bishops McDowell and Mead; Laymen, James R. Roy, James A. James, Mrs. W. H. C. Goode, W. T. Williamson; Ministers, R. N. Merrill, Robert B. Stansell, F. M. Larkin, F. W. Court, F. W. Mueller, and Harry E. Woolever. The representatives of the Methodist Protestant Church were: President J. C. Broomfield, A. N. Ward, C. R. Bragg, S. W. Taylor, F. W. Lineberry, J. C. Williams, E. M. Christley, and L. B. Smith.

The joint meeting organized with Bishop Mead as chairman. The secretaries elected were Dr. L. B. Smith, president of the Maryland Conference of the Methodist Protestant Church, and Dr. H. E. Woolever, secretary of the Commission on Interdenominational Relations of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

Various joint sub-committees which had been working for months made reports upon questions of property transfers, ministerial relations, the overlapping and the needs of local fields, and the benefits which would result from union. These reports showed that no obstacles were in the way of union, and that there was an insistent demand for union on the part of the laity. When it was found that in a united church the congregational and property rights of both churches could be conserved and put to better use and that the ministerial relations could be adjusted to advantage, the problems of polity were taken up. Much to the surprise of a number of the commissioners, it was found that the changes which time had brought made these churches much the same in polity. One of the leading delegates of the Methodist Protestant Church declared, "Had the General Conference of 1828 granted to our forefathers half of the democratic changes which you have since incorporated in the Methodist Episcopal Church, there never would have been a Methodist Protestant Church."

In 1928 the General Conference was formally petitioned to concede the principle of lay representation in all the conferences of the church. Failure to grant this concession caused the secession. Since then this principle of lay representation has been endorsed by the Methodist Episcopal Church. It was thus found that in doctrine and fundamental principles of polity there seemed no justification for these two groups of Methodists to continue in separate bodies with the consequent waste of resources. However, it was realized that certain traditions, methods of administration, and even the name used by one of the groups since 1828 were factors which required further consideration. A small joint committee was appointed to study these questions in detail and, if possible, to formulate a statement upon each which would be presented for discussion at a later meeting.

The spirit of the meeting was of the finest and after a thorough discussion of the issues concerned, it was felt that marked progress had been made and that there were no insurmountable obstacles to the union of these two bodies. The delegates left in a hopeful attitude believing that they were led by the Holy Spirit and praying that this might be a beginning of that larger union of Methodism, which millions believe would give greater strength and achievement in the conquest of the world for Jesus Christ. —Contributed by Dr. H. E. Woolever.

UNION OF CONGREGATIONALISTS AND CHRISTIANS IS CONSUMMATED

At Seattle, Washington, the union of the Congregational and Christian churches into one organization was happily consummated at a joint meeting of their national bodies, June 25—July 3, 1931.

The name of the new organization is: "The General Council of the Congregational and Christian Churches."

The Seattle meeting is admitted to have been one of the greatest gatherings of the Church. "Other Councils," it has been remarked, "have been Councils of great outlook; this has been a council of a great out-reach."

This is the largest church union project that has ever been consummated. A little less than a million Congregationalists have combined with something more than a hundred thousand Christians to make an organization numbering well beyond the million mark.

However, the size of the resulting union is not the most notable thing about it. The most distinctive, suggestive, and hopeful item is the unanimously agreed-upon declaration which was adopted: that "we base our union upon the acceptance of Christianity as primarily a way of life, and not on uniformity of theological opinion or any uniform practice of the ordinances."

This statement seems destined to become a rallying point for many other Christians who are feeling a magnetic drawing of the uplifted Christ.

Resolutions were passed endorsing President Hoover's Debt Moratorium plan, approving the Federal Council's report on Birth Control, asking the Supreme Court to reconsider the Macintosh case, favoring our entering the World Court and the League of Nations, disapproving compulsory military training except at West Point, and requesting that steps be taken to stop grants of denominational money to competing churches.

THREE GREAT UNIVERSITIES

The greatest universities in America are not Harvard, Yale, Columbia, Princeton, Chicago, or California. These universities stand high in the development of certain faculties. But the graduates from these institutions have been successful because they also graduated from one of three still more famous institutions, namely, the wood box, the dish pan, or the corn field.

Three greatest universities in America are the wood box, the dish pan, and the corn field. These institutions have graduated the men and women who are making America today. Why? Because the wood box, the dish pan, the corn field have taught young men and women to be industrious. —Roger W. Babson.

SUNDAY SCHOOLS IN OTHER LANDS

The employees live in the compound on the factory grounds. They enter the mills very early in the morning, men and their wives and also those children who are old enough to earn their living, which, in China, is when they are still young enough to be engaged in play. Those too young to work are left without guardianship on the factory grounds, and that, as every one knows, is the way to bring up hoodlums. The parents realized this; the owners of the factory also realized that in this assemblage of children growing up there were no future workers in their mill, staid and reliable, unless something was done. So they sent for a secretary of the Young Women's Christian Association.

She opened a little Sunday school, and attracted the children there with picture cards. They were interested. They came again. They learned how to sing the songs that American children sing in Sunday school, with the difference that Chinese children sing on a very high note; it does not lessen the enjoyment if they do not keep together, and neither is there taught to be discord if all sing on different notes. Chinese babies rarely cry, and on the back of almost every Chinese girl there was strapped a baby, a fat little philosopher who enjoyed the performance without any outward evidence that he was other than bored.

The attendance steadily increased. The children filled the tiny room. The Chinese are a clever people. Now in this country such circumstances would have warranted the calling together of a committee of wise men; the engaging of a contractor, and the building of a new Sunday school, nicely ornamented with a mortgage. The Chinese did none of these things; they simply moved the walls farther back. Always in China they make a room larger or smaller by moving the walls, as simple a proceeding as our claim when we were children that this rock is a throne, and that rock is a castle. Just like waving a wand. The attendance has never diminished. The picture card retains its lure; there is joy in singing one's own sweet way though every one else is singing differently. Much good has been done, the conduct of the children improving steadily. That was one way in which an employer of labor in China solved a troublesome problem.

There are 1,055,167 Lutherans in Latvia, 56 per cent. of the population. They belong to the Evangelical Lutheran church, and use the Lettish, German and Esthonian languages. The 295 congregations are served by 193 pastors. Now church work in Latvia is made more difficult than in most countries by the many languages used. The same problem arises in all work with the people. The Y. W. C. A. went into Latvia at the request of the government; the people were of as many antagonisms as tongues, and it was necessary to bring them together in a common interest if peace and prosperity were to be assured and this problem was put up to the association. It introduced the Religious Education week, the speakers being chosen from every denomination. In the beginning, the lectures were confined to the city, but so popular did they become that it was necessary to extend the opportunity into the rural regions.

The people of Latvia are most devout, and the leaders have the broad vision of those who know that with all work there must be some play—some lighter thread woven with the drab, to make the work—and life—interesting. So at the invitation of one of the country pastors, an association secretary appeared at the grim little, cold little country church one Sunday, and after services organized the boys and girls in to clubs. Some educational, some recreational. There was no other day for doing it, since the young people, both sexes, are at work in the fields early and late on a week day.

"If we have accomplished nothing more than bringing the young people of conflicting nationalities together," commented a secretary, "we have done a great deal. And we have done that."

NEEDED! PATRIOTISM WHICH WILL PROTECT THE FOUNDATIONS OF OUR GOVERNMENT

By GERTRUDE ROBERTSON

Read before the Business Women's Council, Washington, D.C.

Flags were unfurled. Workers were throwing down tools and students their books to enlist. Women were knitting, serving food to passing soldier-laden trains and taking up tasks men had left. War gardens were planted, "meatless and wheatless days" observed. Ships laden with soldiers sailed under cover of night with lights out to elude submarines. Soldiers lived in mud-soaked trenches overrun with vermine, faced poison gas and barrage fire, died in battle or languished in prisons or hospitals crippled or blinded for life. Multimillionaires forsook their offices and toiled early and late for their country when a foreign foe threatened to invade our land a few years ago.

All is changed. Apparently peace reigns, but while our citizens slumber unmindful of danger an enemy "within our gates" is trying to overthrow our government!

We need an adequate army and navy for defense in case of attack and also as a safeguard against attack. Our new foe is not using cannon and bombs as yet, but is working "under cover," quietly and stealthily planting dangerous, fallacious ideas in the minds of our children and our college and university students. This enemy has its followers scattered all over our country in many of our institutions of learning, even in our theological seminaries and our public schools.

In some of our leading women's colleges the questionnaires are shockingly immoral and indecent. "Companionate marriage and immorality" are frankly alluded to.

Foes of civilization in our country are trying to break down the sanctity of marriage and the home, and to do away with personal purity, the Sabbath, and religious belief of every kind. No religious sect whatever escapes their hatred and avowed destruction.

In Soviet Russia "Sundays as days of rest and worship long since have passed." Their women have been nationalized, parents are separated and sent into different parts of the country. Children are taken from their parents and brought up in Socialist institutions where instructors teach them communism. Boys and girls mingle freely together and little girls of premature age often become mothers. This is their first line of attack, in their carefully and skillfully planned destruction of every existing government of the world that is not communistic.

Every teacher in our public schools should be compelled to take an oath of allegiance to our flag and all it stands for. While sectarian teaching must be barred, there should be a book of excerpts from the Bible suitable to read in the public schools, and it should be required to be read regularly every school day in accordance with our laws. "By the fear of Jehovah men depart from evil."

The stability of a nation depends upon the reliable, upright character of its citizens.

With theft and burglary made easy by the modern acetylene torch and automobile as a quick get-away, what other causes are there for the increase in crime and for the lowered age of the criminal—even boys in their teens? What has caused lowering of personal standards until greed stops at nothing—however vile, wicked, or inhuman—that will accomplish its ends?

Are our homes and schools responsible for this? Two generations ago there had not been the general deterioration of moral standards. Mothers had not forsaken their homes for the gay life of today filled with its ceaseless round of movies, dances, cards, cigarettes and cocktails, or gone unnecessarily into the business world to the neglect of their children.

The Sabbath had not been robbed of its sanctity. Its hours filled with week-day activities and quest of pleasure with church attendance neglected. The Sabbath had not been commercialized through open theatres, movies, ball games and the sale of children's toys on our streets. The command, "Remember the Sabbath day to keep it holy" had not been discarded. Reverence for God and his holy day still lingered. Man had not been elevated to the divine and Christ torn down and robbed of his Deity, and declared only a superman! It was still remembered that God's voice from Heaven had born him witness saying, "This is my beloved Son, hear ye Him." And He Himself had said "I and my Father are one."

How much obedience to the Golden Rule—"As ye would that men should do to you, do ye also to them likewise," can one expect from those who believe that the one who uttered it was not God but man?

A few years ago our schools and colleges were not the Godless places some of them are today, turning out citizens robbed of their belief in God, the Deity of Christ, and a hereafter. We are reaping what we have sown!

Communists by playing games, telling stories, teaching music, handicraft, dramatics, and athletics in various public places gain the confidence of children of all ages. Then they gather them into clubs, and summer camps and teach thousands of them every year that "There is no God," no hereafter—no future punishment or future happiness—saying to them, "Do whatever you like." They are taught, to hate those who have more of this world's goods than they have, to hate their parents if they are not Communists, and even if they are, to despise and disobey them. They are taught to salute the red flag and to spit and trample on our flag!

They foment strikes and discontent that they may plant their ideas more successfully in the minds of the people and disturb the confidence of the public in banks, often causing serious runs.

It was Lenin who said, years ago, "The capitalists of America will commit suicide for money!" Meaning that they were willing for present gain to loan huge sums of money to Soviet Russia, sell her tractors, farm machinery, and send over our skilled engineers and outstanding men of business ability to teach them how to develop their mines, build bridges, railroads, and factories the most approved ways to compete with us later and undermine our government. A late statement gives the number of skilled American men in Soviet Russia as 18,000.

The Soviet or Communist Government is financing its undertakings with the property stolen in 1917 from the prosperous Russians. Now through forced labor at pitifully low pay and starvation rations—even before the completion of its five year plan—it is able to undersell the nations of the world—and is doing it along certain lines. Soviet Russia plans in this way the financial ruin of all governments that are not Communistic. Lumber, wood-pulp, coal, oil, wheat, manganese dumping have already spread alarm among various nations, where they have been underselling the home market. Russian people are kept on starvation rations, and are destitute of warm clothing.

We need patriotism that will refuse to send our farm implements, electric machinery and our skilled engineers over there to aid them in destroying our country by dumping their vast natural resources and their manufactured goods on the world markets and ruin us by competition. They are even planning to undersell us in our own home markets, leaving our workmen without employment. We are "aiding and abetting" the enemy when we do these things just as much as though the battle with guns and ammunition had begun; for their declared purpose is to overthrow our government.

We need patriotism that will make the manufacturer refuse to buy their cheap raw material, our merchants their cheap manufactured goods and the ultimate consumer refuse to buy Russian goods made by forced, ill-paid labor, with stolen capital, and so increase our unemployment.

We need patriotism that will not for present personal or national greed sell our country to the enemy to despoil. Greed for money in exchange for our glorious freedom, and the finest opportunity for self-development and personal initiative the world has ever known!

We also need patriotism that will not scrap the Constitution for the sake of unlawful self-indulgence, or illegitimate gain.

—It now seems that the powers, political and financial, will enable Germany to overcome her distressing shortage of money and carry on for a while. If she only had refused to enter the World war, how much better would have been her situation today. A war of aggression is a stupendous folly and crime.

TESLA AT 75

On Nikola Tesla's birthday in mid-July, the electrical term which his name has become is regenerated as a tall, meagre, eagle-headed man. Reporters hunt him out of his hotel cubicle for his yearly interview and for a day his long-standing fame flares again. People who all their lives lived by means of the devices he has invented and inspired, people who have forgotten there were an Alessandro Volta, an Andre Marie Ampere, a Georg Simon Ohm, a Charles Augustin de Coulomb, a Luigi Galvani or a James Watt, are reminded that there still is a Nikola Tesla (pronounced Teshlah) who long ago gave them the Tesla induction motor which made alternating currents practical, and the Tesla transformer which steps up oscillating currents to high potentials (15,000,000 volts he avers, with 100,000,000 possible).

Last week was Dr. Tesla's 75th birthday. Interviewers wished they might see him as he used to be seen in his Colorado laboratory a generation ago, strolling or sitting like a calm Mephistopheles amid blazing, thundering cascades of sparks 30 feet long. Tesla currents alternating at such prodigious frequency that they would not harm a kitten. But instead they found him, not without some difficulty, in seclusion on the 20th floor of Manhattan's Hotel Governor Clinton. Pale but healthy, thin to ghostliness but strong and alert as ever, he received his callers in quiet. His hair is slate grey, overhanging eyebrows almost black. His eyes are blue. Only their sparkle and the shrillness of his voice indicate his psychic tension. He wore an ordinary U. S. business suit, a white collar-attached shirt and a commonplace tie.

To Nikola Tesla, all the world's a power house. For 40 years he has been reasoning, calculating and arguing that the earth has a definite electrical resonance. All that men need do to have unlimited power at their command, and that power without the necessity of transmission wires, would be to generate electricity in tune with the earth's. The generators might be at waterfalls, coal mines, anywhere. Only possible drawbacks would be the vast expense of installation and the fact that every power house on earth would be obliged to generate the same kind of current, and anyone could tap the current. There could be no financial control of electricity.

Nonetheless the late John Pierpont Morgan believed in the possibility of such wireless power. That was at the time when Mr. Morgan was creating U. S. Steel Corp. and International Mercantile Marine. He was not averse to world control of power and communications. (The House of Morgan is banker for American Telephone & Telegraph, International Telephone & Telegraph, Western Union, United Corp., and many another electrical utility.) Banker Morgan gave Genius Tesla great amounts of money for experiment. In Colorado in 1899, Tesla built a huge induction coil by which he generated and, he says, sent out wireless waves the same year Marconi established wireless communication between France and England. Tesla claims priority, because he conceived his system six years earlier, in 1893. The theoretical path of Tesla's waves was through the earth, not through the air as Hertzian waves go. On Long Island, Tesla built a steel tower 187 feet high surmounted by a 68-foot bossed dome. The tower was to disseminate wireless power.

Mr. Morgan died in 1913. Dr. Tesla lacked money. He abandoned the tower, let it be destroyed in 1917.

Since then he has been pondering his theories. His annual interview has been a rehash of the same old subject—Broadcasted Power. But last week he made a "rare occasion" of his 75th birthday and talked about something new.

"I am working now upon two things," he said. "First, an explanation based upon pure mathematics of certain things which Professor Einstein has also attempted to explain. My conclusions in certain respects differ from and to that extent tend to disprove the Einstein Theory. . . . My explanations of natural phenomena are not so involved as his. They are simpler, and when I am ready to make a full announcement it will be seen that I have proved my conclusions.

"Secondly, I am working to develop a new source of power. When I say a new source, I mean that I have turned for power to a source which no previous scientist has turned, to the best of my knowledge. The conception, the idea when it first burst upon me was a tremendous shock.

"It will throw light on many puzzling phenomena of the cosmos, and may prove also of great industrial value, particularly in creating a new and virtually unlimited market for steel.

"I can only say at this time it will come from an entirely new and unsuspected source, and will be for all practical purposes constant day and night, and at all times of the year. The apparatus for capturing the energy and transforming it will partake both of mechanical and electrical features, and will be of ideal simplicity.

"At first the cost may be found too high, but this obstacle eventually will be overcome. Moreover, the instalment will be, so to speak, indestructible, and will continue to function for any length of time without additional expenditures.

"Let me say that has nothing to do with releasing so-called atomic energy. There is no such energy in the sense usually meant. With my currents, using pressures as high as 15,000,000 volts, the highest ever used, I have split atoms—but no energy was released. I confess that before I made this experiment I was in some fear. I said to my assistants, 'I do not know what will happen. If the conclusions of certain scientists are right, the release of energy from the splitting of an atom may mean an explosion which would wreck our apparatus and perhaps kill someone. Is that understood?'

"My assistants urged me to perform the experiment and I did so. I shattered atoms again and again. But no appreciable energy was released."

Badgered to reveal his own secret "source of energy," Genius Tesla politely evaded all questions, promised a definite statement "in a few months, or a few years."

Yet he already has conceived "a means that will make it possible for man to transmit energy in large amounts, thousands of horsepower, from one planet to another, absolutely regardless of distance.

"I think that nothing can be more important than interplanetary communication. It will certainly come some day, and the certitude that there are other human beings in the universe, working, suffering, struggling, like ourselves, will produce a magic effect on mankind and will form the foundation of a universal brotherhood that will last as long as humanity itself!"

When?

"I have been leading a secluded life, one of continuous, concentrated thought and deep meditation. Naturally enough I have accumulated a great number of ideas. The question is whether my physical powers will be adequate to working them out and giving them to the world..."

He received birthday greetings from Sir Oliver Lodge, Ernst Frederik Werner Alexanderson, Lee De Forest, John Hays Hammond, Jr., Robert Andrews Millikan, Secretary of Commerce Robert Patterson Lamont, Henry Herman Westinghouse, and many another. Their greetings indicate the hope if not the confidence that "in a few months" or "a few years" the flame of Nikola Tesla's genius will weld one more astounding new device for mankind.

It is improbable that he will ever design such a device on paper, let alone in a machine shop, although before his mind's eye he may see it in every detail, motion, and defect. He is a great visualizer.

His first invention—before he was six and living at his native Smiljan, a Croatian village, in what is now Yugoslavia—was something the like of which he had never actually seen. He pictured it curved, pointed at one end, fastened a string at the other. The child modeled a piece of iron according to his vision and thus had the hook which he needed to catch frogs. Similarly he completely visualized his induction motor, his coils and transformers, all his inventions, before he sketched and constructed them. He has unlimited confidence in his visual inventiveness. He no longer bothers to build, seldom bothers to make notes. He simply reels and celebrates.

Years ago he had a laboratory in Houston Street, Manhattan. It burned down. He lacked money and desire to rebuild. He had an apartment in midtown Manhattan, in West 40th Street opposite the Public Library whose engineering room he still occasionally haunts, and near the Engineers club which he no longer will visit. In that apartment he kept a few terrifying but harmless lightning machines. The swank St. Regis Hotel whither he moved two years ago was no place for such devices. Dr. Tesla contented himself with studying four pet pigeons which nested in his rolltop desk. Maids complained. He moved.

Many such stories about him exist. Once, while walking along icy Fifth Avenue he slipped, threw himself through a flying somersault, landed on his feet, unperturbed kept on walking.

At the Hotel Governor Clinton where he now lives, if someone rings him up on the telephone or knocks at his door and he does not answer, he locks himself in the bathroom, turns the water loudly on. He is very sensitive to sensory stimuli. When he gets excited, blinding lights flash through his mind. He retreats to bed. A lifelong bachelor, habitually he goes to bed at 5:30 a. m., rises at 10:30 a. m. But he does not sleep the whole period. Proudly, yet almost plaintively, he explains: "I roll around and work on my problems."—Time.

"THEY ARE COVERED"

The young often have a clearer understanding of the Gospel than those of riper years. "Out of the mouths of babes and sucklings Thou hast perfected praise."

At the close of a Gospel meeting a young girl, C—— B——, was asked, "Are your sins forgiven?"

"Yes," was the quick reply.

"What has God done with your sins?" was asked.

"They are covered," was the bright answer.

"How has God covered them?" was the next question put.

"With the Blood," was the happy response.

Yes; with this dear young soul the Blood, the precious Blood of Jesus, was everything. God had covered her sins with the Blood, and who could find them?

She had accepted the blessed truth of Psalm 32:1: "Blessed is he whose transgression is forgiven, whose sin is covered."—The Life Line.

VICTORY

If you can smile when things go wrong,
And everybody wears a frown;
If you can hum a little song,
When castles have all fallen down.

If you can smile when friends are few,
Or this world's treasures pass away;
If you can to yourself be true;
And keep on smiling all the day.

If you can smile when death has come,
Snatched some one dear to you away;
If you can keep your lips still dumb,
When others cruel things will say.

If you will sometimes play the clown,
Though aching is your heart the while;
If you can turn temptation down,
And with it always wear a smile.

Then you have fought the battle: won
A conquest greater far than wealth.
What others would—you've really done,
You've won a victory over self.

—Mary J. Theobald.

TOO LONG IN TELLING IT

A missionary in Egypt was telling a woman the story of the love of Jesus, and at the close she said, "It is a wonderful story; do the women in your country believe it?" "Yes!" said the missionary. The woman thought a moment, then she said, "I don't think they can all believe it, or they would not be so long in coming to tell us. Why nobody has ever loved me. When I was born they wept seven days because I was a girl. At nine years of age I was married, but was not loved, and only the other day my own boy spat in my face because I am a woman. Now tell me that a man whom I never saw so loved me that He died for me! Why, I can hardly believe it."—The Foreign Field.

THE SURPRISE THAT WAS A SURPRISE

Johnny's birthday was coming soon. Johnny was Maxine's playmate. Maxine did love surprises, and birthdays always meant surprises—nice surprises.

"What do you suppose your surprise is going to be this year?" she asked Johnny.

He shook his head. He did not have any idea. Maxine said maybe if they asked his mother she would tell them. Not all, of course, but part of it.

"Let's coax her to tell us just a weeny bit," she said.

Johnny was willing. So they went over to his house. At first his mother just laughed and said it was a secret. They begged and begged to know just a little wee bit about it.

Finally his mother said, "It's a Too-Woozer."

"A Too-Woozer!" Johnny exclaimed. "What is a Too-Woozer?"

His mother said they would find out on Johnny's birthday.

"Is it alive?" Maxine asked.

"It runs." His mother looked very mysterious.

"I know! It's a dog!" Johnny clapped his hands.

"It has no hair," his mother answered.

Then it could not be a dog. Maybe it was a little white rat.

"It has no tail," his mother told them.

Then Maxine and Johnny were puzzled. They tried and tried to think of something that could run, yet had no hair nor tail. They could think of no animal without hair or a tail. Birds had feathers instead of fur—but they all had tails. Something that runs! What could it be?

"Runs! I know! A windup top!" cried Maxine.

But his mother said that was not right. It did not need any key to wind it up to make it run.

"Then it must be alive," Johnny insisted. "What do you suppose it can be?"

The day before Johnny's birthday, Maxine had to stay home from school. She saw a big package delivered to Johnny's house. She knew it must be his birthday present. She ran over quick while the boy was waiting for someone to answer the doorbell. The paper around the package was loose. Maxine could see inside.

She gave a gasp of excitement. Indeed it would run! And it certainly had neither hair nor tail! She could hardly wait for Johnny to get home from school to tell him about it.

Their first grade did not get out any earlier than the others. Maxine waited and waited. She kept thinking how she would tell Johnny. Maybe she would pretend she had guessed it. Then wouldn't Johnny think her smart! But that was not fair. She had not guessed.

Suddenly Maxine frowned. Something bothered her. Fair fair—fair, she said the word over and over. Was it fair to tell Johnny before his birthday?

But what fun to tell him! They had been so sure nothing without hair or a tail or a windup key could run. And this surely did! She couldn't wait until tomorrow. She just must tell Johnny. But fair—fair—it was not fair to tell birthday secrets. Maxine shut her lips tightly together.

And wasn't she glad the next morning that she had! For Johnny and his mother called her over before ever Johnny had his surprise. They wanted her to be there to see it the minute Johnny did.

His mother opened a closet door—and out rolled a shining, red tricycle. It did run—oh, how smoothly! and it surely did not have hair on it, or a tail.

"Too-Woozer!" Johnny shouted with delight. Then, pointing to the three wheels, he declared, "I think it's a Three-Woozer!"—Ann Warner in Storytime.

LAUGHING WIND

Laughing Wind her father called her because she was the merriest little daughter a Japanese daddy might find in a long day's journey. Laughing Wind, for the breezy little lady had been born with the breath of the American Rockies in her very being, and "ever and always" part of her.

It is a long ways from the Pacific states to Korea, but one would expect Laughing Wind to revel in travel, as indeed she did. Daddy had known for a long time that he must take his only daughter some day to visit his native land. Of course Laughing Wind wanted to go. Wouldn't you want to see your father's home in California or Louisiana or New England, if you had been born in Japan? And then daddy's brother had asked the travelers from America to come and see them in Korea. And of course they accepted the invitation.

So that is how it happened that Laughing Wind was lost among the Korean hills on this clear autumn evening. It really took a good deal on ordinary occasions to frighten Laughing Wind. Daddy often told her he did wonder what her forebears would say to such a "tomboy." Japanese girls were supposed to be such little ladies. But he always ended by letting Laughing Wind go her own sweet way along the course of wholesome freedom. Perhaps because the little girl's mother had gone away into the Silent Land and he wanted to make up a little for the loss that had meant to his daughter.

No, it wasn't nice to be lost, lost in a strange country where you didn't know the language. And with night coming on. It wasn't a bit nice. Even Laughing Wind was understanding at last that you might go too far in doing as you pleased.

The sun was at the horizon. The cool of nightfall made Laughing Wind realize that this was October. How she wished she had not wandered so far from the home of her friends! But it had been so interesting watching the farmers at their work. In America she had known all the hill paths and feared nothing. Here the country was mostly under cultivation, yet she felt lonely enough. There might be wild animals. And if she met any one of whom she might inquire her way, she was not at all sure that they would understand her few words of broken Korean.

A girl's voice singing. How good it sounded! Laughing Wind suddenly felt her courage returning.

The white garments of the little Korean girl looked whiter than usual in the last light of day. Laughing Wind wondered how they could be kept clean any time at all. She ventured a few broken words of inquiry and was answered with a flood of Japanese.

"You are far from yur friends. You cannot reach them tonight. Come home with me and mother will give you a bowl of hot vegetable stew and another of rice. We have not much, but we like to share."

They were soon at the little home on the outskirts of the village. Removing their shoes, they went in search of "mother," for mother is home to little Korean girls as to little girls in America.

How good the vegetable soup tasted, served hot from the charcoal burner, and how flaky and dry was the rice in the best brass bowl. Of course there was kimchee (a sort of pickle made of Korean cabbage, turnip, and condiments) and Laughing Wind found it delicious as do all travelers in Korea.

"Welcome Daughter, here is the rice for the rice-bag."

How curious the little Japanese girl was as Welcome Daughter carefully deposited a bowl of uncooked rice in a large bag already partly filled with the cereal.

Her hostess saw the question in her eyes.

"Mother always lets me put the rice in the rice-bag," was the explanation. "You see, we are Christians and, being poor, we cannot give much. We thought we were giving all we could. But that wasn't enough. The church would have to give up a part of its work and give less to carry the Good News to others. So somebody invented the rice-bag idea. We put in a handful or a bowlful every day. That doesn't seem much, but when a good many are doing it, it really helps a lot."

"Honorable Father," said Laughing Wind that night, when the jubilee over "a little girl found" had quieted. "Honorable Father, what was it the American gentleman called the people over here who listen to the missionaries?"

"Rice Christians," answered daddy. "He said all the Asiatics wanted of the missionaries was what they could get from them."

"Well, I know some people who are rice Christians, but not the kind he meant."

Then she told the story of the rice-bag.

"I'd like to make him listen to that," said Honorable Father thoughtfully. Then he added, "Suppose we have a rice-bag, too, Laughing Wind. We musn't let our Korean neighbors get ahead of us."—M. Wilma Stubbs in Zion's Herald.

HE WAS A GENTLEMAN

A few days ago I was passing through a pretty, shady street where some boys were playing at baseball. Among their number was a little lame fellow, seemingly about twelve years old—a pale, sickly-looking child, supported on two crutches, who evidently found much difficulty in walking even with such assistance.

The lame boy wished to join the game, for he did not seem to see how his infirmity would be in his way and how much it would hinder the progress of such an active sport as baseball.

His companions very good-naturedly tried to persuade him to stand at one side and let another take his place; and I was glad to notice that none of them hinted that he would be in the way, but they all objected for fear he would hurt himself.

"Why, Jimmy," said one of them at last, "you can't run, you know."

"O, hush," said another, the tallest in the party, "never mind; I'll run for him," and he took his place by Jimmy's side, prepared to act. "If you were like him," he said aside to the other boys, "you wouldn't want to be told of it all the time."

As I passed on I thought to myself: "That boy is a true gentleman."—Publisher Unknown.

HE IS AWAKE

Little folks sometimes see things that are hidden from the eyes of those who are older.

One moonlight night, after the house lights had all been put out, a little four-year-old girl, afraid of the dark, asked her widowed mother:

"Mamma, is the moon God's light?"

"Yes, Ethel," her mother answered, "the moon and the stars are all God's lights."

Then came the next question from the little girl: "Will God blow out His light and go to sleep, too?"

"No, my child," the mother replied, "His lights are always burning."

Then the timid little girl gave utterance to a sentiment that thrilled the mother's heart and led her to a more complete trust in her God: "Well, mamma, while God's awake, I'm not afraid."

The beautiful thought which came to this little girl is one with which we are all familiar, but we need to be reminded of it many times.—Sunbeams.

PERSISTENCE

If you want a thing bad enough to go out and fight for it, work day and night for it, give up your time and your peace and your sleep for it. If life seems all empty and useless without it, and all that you scheme and you dream is about it; if gladly you'll sweat for it, fret for it, plan for it; if you'll simply go after that thing that you want, with all your capacity, strength, and sagacity. If neither sickness nor pain of body or brain can turn you away from the thing that you want, YOU'LL GET IT.—Berton Bracey in Arnold's Commentary.

FROM PASTORS and PEOPLE

Kannapolis Church.—On the Fourth Sunday night in June the children gave a very beautiful Children's Day program to a large congregation, a neat sum was received for missions. The children are due credit for the way they did their parts. On the last evening they practiced the program, Madames C. L. Hampton, J. L. Love, Herman Sides, and D. B. Cartner gave the children a surprise when they were asked over to the parsonage where ice cream and home made pound cake and candy were given them. The children expressed their gratitude by saying, "we will do our best Sunday night." And they did. The Young Men's class taught by Mr. J. G. Lisk was winner in the contest sponsored by our pastor, Rev. J. L. Love, so on last Tuesday night he gave them an ice cream supper; the boys enjoyed it so much. On last Tuesday evening the ladies met at the church and organized a woman's missionary society with Mrs. J. G. Lisk president; Mrs. D. B. Cartner, vice president; Mrs. J. L. Love, secretary and treasurer; Mrs. J. D. Foggart, assistant secretary and treasurer. The society to meet on the second Tuesday of each month. On Wednesday, July 7th, most of the Sunday school members packed pots and pans, loaded their cars with plenty to eat and spent the day on the creek bank. The men caught a nice bunch of fish in nets which the ladies prepared and fried over a camp fire; forty-seven answered to the call for dinner. We enjoyed the outing, had as our guests the Rev. and Mrs. M. L. Kester and family, the new Lutheran pastor. After dinner the children and part of the grown-ups enjoyed a plunge in the water. All came home tired, but so happy for the nice day spent together. On Friday night, July 10th a young man made a call on our pastor and asked him to go to town with him and while they were gone the church members and friends gathered at the parsonage and when the pastor returned he was greeted with the song, "Happy Birthday, dear preacher." A long table was placed in the yard and was loaded with all the good things to eat that any one could wish for. We all bore he may have many more birthdays.

On Friday night the 18th Mrs. D. B. Cartner entertained her class of young ladies at a social at her home. Various games were played and ice cream and pound cake was served. Some of our members have been very sick but all are better at this writing.

REPORTER.

Mt. Moriah, Cleveland Charge.—Our pastor, Rev. C. E. Ridge, last Sunday at 11 o'clock delivered a splendid sermon. His subject, "Being With Jesus." There was a large crowd out to hear him and also for Sunday school. Our S. S. is moving along nicely. We have had good attendance all summer. After the close of the sermon the Lord's Supper was served and a good number were served with the elements which represented the body and blood of our Lord. The preacher and family went home with Mr. J. M. Deviney and family and had dinner and spent the day.

We were glad to see and to have Brother

Jack Self and family from Hurdtsburgh, Ala., with us last Sunday and also many other visitors from other churches. We welcome them and hope they will come again.

Our revival meeting will begin the 2nd Sunday in August at 11 o'clock with Rev. Seth Ivester and Rev. Guss Leadford to be pulpit help. We are inviting everybody to come and to come praying that we may have a great revival and win many souls for the Lord.

Our next quarterly meeting will be held here at this church the 4th Saturday afternoon in July, the 25th. Hoping all officers from all the churches will be present and have a good report. We have changed our meeting from the morning hour until the afternoon hour.

Best wishes to the Herald and its readers.
ETHEL HUNT, Reporter.

Sandy Ridge, Kernersville Charge.—Our revival meeting began Sunday and closed Friday night. Brother Troxler was pulpit help. He surely can preach well and he preaches so plainly that a child can understand. There were three reclamations and one conversion. The church was greatly revived. We hope that Brother Troxler will come our way again some time.

We were glad to have Mr. Q. D. Wood and daughter, Hazel, with us this week to help in the meeting.

The good folks from Smith Gravel Baptist church came and helped us in our meeting and we do appreciate it.

There were 95 present at Sunday school this morning. At this writing I am sending in our report that was made out at the Township Sunday school convention, held at Colfax Sunday, July 12th.

REPORTER.

West Fortsyth. — We closed our revival meeting at Tabernacle church last Friday night. Rev. O. C. Loy, of near Burlington, did all the preaching from Sunday night to the close of the meeting. His sermons were very forcefully delivered and proved effective. There were 22 conversions and reclamations. Three persons united with the church, these being Champ Richardson, Katherine Hutchins, and Sallie May Culler. Others are to join at the next regular appointment. The people enjoyed immensely the splendid preaching of Brother Loy, and the church seemed to be revived.

We will begin our revival meeting at Baltimore church next Sunday morning. Rev. C. G. Isley, of Lexington, is the engaged help.

The writer is engaged in a revival meeting with Rev. J. P. Pegg at Palestine church on Flat Rock charge this week.

C. B. WAY, Pastor.

Sandy Ridge Sunday School.—Officers for 1931 are as follows: Superintendent, Mrs. L. G. Wood; assistant superintendent, Mrs. C. C. Sykes; secretary and treasurer, Ethel Wood; roll call, Wilma Atkins; organist, Ethel Wood; reporter, Mrs. Tom Holt; adult Bible class, Mrs. L. A. Pendry; young men's Bible class, Mr. Clarence Bowman; young ladies' Senior class, Mrs. C. C. Sykes; young ladies' Junior class, Nellie Morgan; boys' Intermediate, Mrs. L. G. Wood; girls' Intermediate, Mrs. Roy Clark, and card class, Hettie Mae Shmields.

We have 185 on roll with an average attendance of 100. We use literature for all classes except one. The Bible is used for this one. From the offerings which are given each Sunday some is used to buy the literature, some devoted to the Children's Home, etc. About 65 per cent. of our Sunday School is made up of children between the ages of two and fourteen years of age. We find that the lessons in the quarterly's assigned for children of that age are rather difficult for them to understand, so to remedy that the teachers strive to put the lessons in a more simple form.

We are not fortunate enough to have separate Sunday school rooms but each class is contained off into a separate apartment, therefore one class does not attract the attention of the other. The attendance for this year so far has greatly improved. We hope it will continue to improve the rest of this year and for years to come.

MRS. T. A. HOLT, Reporter.

Fairview Church, Anderson Circuit. — On Sunday morning, July 19, 144 were present for Sunday school. The largest number we have had this year was 240.

The Quarterly conference was held at Fairview Saturday afternoon, July 18, with the majority of the members present. The reports given prove that much work is being done and everything is running smoothly.

Rev. M. C. Henderson preached a very interesting sermon Sunday morning. He stressed the importance of prayer.

The Ladies' Aid society was organized four months ago and even though it is an infant organization it is working hard. On July 17 it presented "The Old Maids' club" and sold ice cream. Everyone present enjoyed the play greatly and the ice cream was sold quickly, $21.15 was made. This amount along with a nice sum which was already in the treasury will be used for the benefit of the church.

The Christian Endeavor is planning to have a social next Friday evening, July 24, at the home of Mr. T. B. Nalley.

REPORTER.

Elbaville, Mocksville Circuit.—Our Sunday school attendance is very good, and much interest is being shown.

The Junior and Senior Barren classes have opened prayer meeting which they will conduct each Wednesday night at the church.

The "Home-Coming" which was held July 5 was very successful and much enjoyed. The revival which extended from the Home-Coming was very successful but not as much as hoped for. Rev. Glenn Madison, of Thomasville, the pulpit helper, delivered some wonderful and inspiring sermons. They were taken home and still ring in the hearts of the people. We pray God's richest blessing upon him where ever he may be.

Our young people are putting some interesting programs on in the C. E. May God make great lessons out of each member. Mr. Ferree worshiped with the C. E. Sunday night for the first time since he has been on our work.

Mr. Ferree filled his appointment Sunday afternoon. The doors of the church were opened and eleven of the 23 converts made during the revival united with this church.

And others are going to unite with various churches.

May God's richest blessing rest upon each reader of the Herald and former pastor.

STELLA BAILEY, Reporter.

Mizpah, Haw River Circuit.—We have been kept too busy during the past six weeks to report any thing from Mizpah. By way of explanation I've been attending summer school at N. C. C. W.

We held our Children's Day the third Sunday morning in June. The children did exceedingly well. There was a fine spirit of cooperation in preparing the exercises. Collection amounted to $6.00.

Our pastor, Rev. J. L. Trollinger, was with us and made a talk after the program.

Our Sunday school enjoyed a lawn party on the church lawn Saturday afternoon, July 11.

We are looking forward to a Brunswick stew in September.

Our Sunday school is growing in interest and attendance. Just a few weeks ago we had 51 present.

Our outstanding need now is more room to take care of our children.

REPORTER.

Lexington, Mt. Carmel.—Sunday evening at 7 o'clock, our pastor delivered an interesting and impressive sermon. At this service we received Boyce Lee Rowe in the church. He is the oldest son of Mr. and Mrs. John Rowe, Sr., of Lexington.

The new church is being finished up this week. Mr. Joe McCray, of Lexington, completed the plastering last week. The auditorium has a seating capacity of 400 with six nice Sunday school rooms. Sunday, August 2, will be observed as home coming. Sunday school will meet at 10:00 o'clock being followed at 11 with sermon by Dr. S. W. Taylor, our conference president. After dinner has been served on the grounds, the congregation will meet in the church to hear brief remarks by ex-pastors and friends.

All former pastors and friends are invited. The revival meeting will begin at Mt. Carmel the first Sunday night with Rev. D. J. Garner of St. Paul church, Greensboro, to be the pulpit help.

ZULA FRITTS, Reporter.

Pine Grove, Kernersville Charge.—Our revival meeting will begin July 19. Our pastor, Rev. W. D. Reed, has succeeded in getting Rev. J. R. Anderson to help in this meeting. We ask for the prayers of our readers that this revival may be a success.

Another item of interest to our readers may be the fact that the Christian Endeavor society organized a few months ago is doing fine. We owe credit for this organization to Miss Blanche Ingram, the president of our society and the faithful worker among our young people here.

We held our last business meeting at the home of Miss Nelda McGee. At this meeting some new officers were elected and some committees were appointed. After this meeting everyone enjoyed a delightful social period.

At our regular Christian Endeavor meeting, Friday evening, July 5, we had an echo meeting of the Christian Endeavor convention held at Charlotte and of the Leadership Training school at High Point combined. Those attending these conferences told of the program and the work carried on at these conferences. Our purpose was to interest those who did not attend so that they will go next summer. We want more of our young people to attend these conferences because we feel that the spiritual inspiration and training will be of value to them and to our churches.

REPORTER.

Pleasant Grove.—Sunday was a good day for us. The Children's Day program was given at the 11 o'clock hour. The children all rendered their parts well. The offering was $16.00. A large picnic dinner on the grounds and the memorial service in the afternoon. A short service was held in the cemetery, after which the business of the Memorial association was transacted in the church, with special songs furnished by the Thomasville quartet and also the Jones quartet. The passing away of the faithful president, Mr. I. W. Burdett, such a short time before, made this a very sad occasion.

Our revival meeting will begin next Sunday with Rev. W. M. Loy, of Mebane, as pulpit help. We are hoping and praying that much good may be accomplished.

The attendance and interest in the Sunday school and C. E. societies is holding up well during the hot weather.

MRS. RALPH KENNEDY, Reporter.

First Church, High Point.—The pulpit was ably filled Sunday morning by Rev. J. Waldo Woody, a minister of the Friends church, who delivered a practical and forceful sermon from the text found in Colossians 1:18, "That in all things he might have pre-eminence." Rev. Mr. Woody is a son of the late Prof. John W. Woody, of Guilford college and Mrs. May C. Woody, who was founder and first president of the W. C. T. U. in North Carolina from 1884 to 1894. He said in part, "Christ should have pre-eminence in our business life. At a great Layman's convention which I once had the privilege of attending, George Sherwood Eddy seemed to have more spiritual power in speaking than the rest, and I found out the secret was that he had taken God as a partner. Again, we need to give Christ pre-eminence in our political life, and in our home life. I want to stress the great significance of a family altar in every home, and I wish to urge especially all young people who are establishing their first home to set up a family altar and have daily prayers. If we give Jesus Christ pre-eminence in our home life, our children will grow up to become Christian men and women. Early impressions on a child's mind are the most forceful. In an inland town a pastor was called to console a mother, whose youngest son was leaving home to become a sailor as several older brothers had done. He wondered why it had happened, when he saw on the wall of the dining room a beautiful picture of a ship sailing the wide seas, and this was the solution of his problem. Home religion will solve the problems of divorce, disregard of law and order, the drink evil that is menacing our civilization today. Then we must give Jesus Christ pre-eminence in our church life. Some one has made the comparison of the church to a steam engine; some of us like to be the whistle and make a big noise; some would rather be the piston; while others like to be the coal which is the power. Then we need to give God pre-eminence in our heart life, for we are indebted to Him for life and everything that we have. He is the head of the church, and expressly says, "Thou shalt have no other gods before me." The congregation is greatly indebted to Rev. Mr. Woody for this generous kindness in conducting services in the absence of the pastor.

Many friends are extending congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Lawton Hill upon the arrival of a baby daughter on July 10th, at Burlington hospital. Mrs. Hill before her marriage over a year ago, was Miss Della Moore, of Graham, a member of class of 1928, at High Point college, as was her husband also. Mr. Hill is a son of Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Hill of First church, and was a member of the football team that won so many games for High Point college.

Mrs. J. C. Welch, Sr., Miss Elizabeth Welch, and J. A. Welch, Jr., drove to Virginia Beach last Friday, and Mrs. J. C. Welch, Jr., who has been spending two weeks there, returned with them Monday night. They report a pleasant trip and enjoyable weather at the seaside resort.

Mrs. J. H. Pritchard is spending a few days with her mother, Mrs. Henley, near Asheboro.

Mrs. R. G. Garland returned Saturday from a visit to friends in Henderson and to Ocean View, Va.

Rehoboth, Granville Circuit.—A series of inspiring sermons were brought to us by our pastor, Rev. C. L. Spencer, during the revival services beginning the first Sunday in July and closing on Friday of that week. The services were held at 3:30 o'clock in the afternoon and at 8 o'clock in the evening. The attendance was very good, considering the fact there were several other revivals in the community during the same week.

We were glad to receive sixteen new members into our church at the close of the services Friday evening. The Sunday school seems to have taken on new life. The attendance last Sunday was above the average. We appeal to the members to help us make it even better.

The missionary auxiliaries of Mount Carmel, Rehoboth and Union Chapel churches on Granville Circuit met in a joint session with Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Spencer, Friday evening, July 3rd, at 8 o'clock. A very interesting program was given and the auxiliaries surprised Rev. and Mrs. Spencer with a miscellaneous shower.

REPORTER.

Mt. Hermon, Creswell Circuit.—We are still existing and working hard as ever if we don't report each week. Our Sunday school and Auxiliary are doing some splendid work.

Our revival meeting was brought to a close Sunday p. m. by our former pastor, Rev. R. L. Hethcox, of Emporia, Va. The revival was one of the greatest events of the year in our church. Our pastor, Rev. J. C. Russell began the services on Friday p. m., and Mr. Hethcox came Monday and preached Monday p. m. also throughout the week. His sermons were very inspiring and attracted the attention of his throng of hearers. Two new members were added to our church and were heartily welcomed by all its members, which were Mrs. W. E. Nelson and Miss Mildred Day report. We as a whole were sorry to see our former pastor leave us because every one has a great liking for him. He will be here at Rehoboth church conducting a series of sermons before his leave for home. And we wish him a God's blessing to pour out on his hearers at Rehoboth as he did us.

Our Sunday school is planning to give its annual picnic in a short while at a convenient date, for the benefit of our pupils, which we hope to give at some nearby beach for the enjoyment of all.

Best wishes to the Herald and its readers.
IDA S. AMBROSE, Reporter.

Mitchell's Grove Charge.—A very interesting Children's Day program at this church was rendered Sunday, July 12, at 2:30 o'clock. The children gave their best service to make this day a success. Much credit is due Miss Ada Kersy and Miss Bessie Cashatt in preparing this program. Miss Gwenna Jones had charge of the music. We were favored with a quartet number, "I Will Go Where You Want Me to Go," by Miss Gwenna Jones, Mr. and Mrs. Everett Witcher and David Cashatt, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Harrison Jones. Our pastor made a few remarks at the close of the children's service. Collection was $10.00. Our Sunday school attendance has been very good considering the hot weather. The missionary society had its regular meeting the first Sunday in July right after preaching service, Mrs. E. O. Peeler presiding over the meeting. At the close of the service Rev. and Mrs. E. O. Peeler, Miss Edith Lee, and the writer were invited by Miss Agatha Misenheimer to a surprise birthday supper for her mother. There we found a few of her special friends gathered and a splendid supper spread. We all enjoyed being in this home so much with our friends. Someone has said never allow a friend to slip out of our lives if we can help it. True friendship is too rare and sacred to be lost or lightly thrown away. There may be slights given but they should be quickly set aside and forgotten because usually they are not intentional friendships when grow only with careful cultivation and every true friendship is worth the best we can give it. So to have friends and be friends one must have a genuine interest in people. A young girl was telling about her trip across the ocean: "I had a wonderful time; one of our party happened to be a friend of the captain and so we had privileges that we could not otherwise have had. We had such a splendid time that I felt sorry for the other passengers. I never knew before what it means to stand in with the powers at headquarters."

We are all traveling on the sea of life. Jesus is the captain of our lives. Do we stand in with him? Give Jesus a chance to be your friend.

Asheboro. — All the organizations of the church are having regular meetings. During the months of July and August the M. P., M. E. and Presbyterian churches are having a union service on the lawn of the Presbyterian church each Sunday evening at 8 o'clock. These services are well attended and the people enjoy the services in a cool and comfortable place. The pastors of these churches are each at different times. Our pastor, Rev. R. C. Stubbins, was the first speaker; his subject was: "The Parable of the Fig Tree."

There is a song service and a special selection each Sunday evening. Our pastor assisted Rev. Mr. Burgess in a revival meeting at Sapling Ridge church last week and in his absence, Mr. R. T. Floyd preached for him Sunday morning. Subject: "Building a Kingdom." Our people are always glad to have Mr. Lloyd preach to us. The choir sang the anthem, "Closer Walk With God."

Rev. and Mrs. Stubbins have as their guests their daughter, Mrs. S. F. Thacker, Jr., and little son, S. F. Thacker, 3rd, of Kingsport, Tenn.

Two of the young ladies in our church have recently married, Miss Lola Moffitt to Mr. Pearly Freeman and Miss Mary Wade Bulla to Mr. John Farlow of Sophia. Mr. and Mrs. Freeman are at home in Asheboro, while Mr. and Mrs. Farlow will be at home in Sophia.

Mrs. Talton Lowdermilk and Miss Nan Lowdermilk are visiting their sister, Miss Lucile Lowdermilk in Philadelphia, Pa. They will also visit New York and Atlantic City before returning home.

Those attending and receiving certificates of credit at the Young People's Leadership Training school at High Point college were Misses Helen Bulla, Annie Gilbert Ross, Elizabeth Phillips and Allene Lamb. These young ladies made reports to the Sunday school the first Sunday of this month.

District seven, which Asheboro and several churches are in, was awarded the attendance banner.

Mr. R. R. Ross, who has been confined to his bed for awhile has been resting more comfortably for a few days.

Pleasant Hill, Spring Church Charge.—Children's Day exercises were held Sunday night, July 19th. The attendance was encouraging, the children did well their part, and the choir was at its best. The offering was $7.21.

Revival services begin Monday night, July 20th. Pray for us.

E. G. LOWDERMILK.

Thomasville.—Now that the revival is over we are starting anew, and avowing to live a better and more serviceable life. Our churches as well as the individuals have been greatly blessed by the meeting. The people have taken more interest in the church and many have united.

Last Sunday we started having our regular services as follows: preaching Sunday morning at 11 o'clock; C. E. Sunday evening at 7, preaching again at 8; prayer meeting Wednesday evening and choir practice Friday evening. The third quarterly conference will be held Wednesday the 22nd after prayer meeting.

The married people of our church are planning a supper and the Juniors are planning a picnic. It seems as if the old like their quiet and solemn pleasures while the young like their frolics.

We are glad to report that the ill people at our church are recovering.

Lexington, State Street.—Our church and all the churches in town are rejoicing over the great harvest of new members we are reaping as a result of the Ham campaign which has been going on here since the first of June. We received 30 last Sunday morning and five on Monday night when a special meeting was held in all the churches of the town, Monday being rest day for Dr. Ham and his party. Many were received at all the churches at this meeting and many have been received at previous times since the meeting began. The campaign will close with the Sunday night service. Nothing so important and so profitable and withal so delightful has ever come to Lexington. We feel that an impression has been made that will never end, and are so thankful for the fact that the Lord directed Dr. Ham to come to our town.

The young people's meetings of Missionary work and Christian Endeavor are doing fine work and in every way taking on new life.

Mr. Vance B-thea, young son of Rev. and Mrs. N. G. Bertha is visiting friends here. Vance has grown so much since he lived here when his father was our pastor that he was hardly recognizable to some of us. He is quite a grown up young man and good looking.

There has been and still is some sickness among our folks but we hope nothing of a serious nature and that all may soon be well.

Miss Clara Taylor, of Winston-Salem, has been sick in her home here for two weeks but is on the road to recovery.

Our "littlest" band, the cradle roll, is still growing, and they are all the most delightful babies.

Morrah.—Sunday school is doing nicely considering the hot weather and vacation time. The church's services are attended very well. We always know we are to receive a wonderful message because our pastor brings such inspiring sermons every Sunday. Several visitors, from out of town attended Sunday: Mr. Sharpe and Mr. Parrish from Fountain Place, Burlington; Miss Clodfelter and Mr. Swain from Thomasville.

Miss Clodfelter rendered several beautiful solos appreciated so very much as she sang so beautifully. All these people and others are invited to come back to worship with us any time.

The community and church is happy indeed to have Mrs. Robert Sharpe, formerly Miss Marie Vance, of Huntersville, to be with us. We feel we have accomplished much to have her join us.

The C. E. society is doing good work, the young people seem very much interested.

Mt. Pleasant Church.—The Green Township Annual Sunday School convention that met at Mt. Pleasant M. P. church, Liberty, N. C., July 18-19, was well attended by representatives from Smithwood, Christian; Pleasant Union and Mt. Pleasant, M. P.; Low's, Lutheran; and Brick, Reform churches.

The officers of the conference: Terrell M. Shoffner, president; Kendall B. Shoffner, vice-president; Miss Dorothy Humble, secretary and treasurer; and Miss Dorothy Causey, superintendent of Children's Department, are being highly commended for the splendid program rendered.

Saturday evening the conference opened with a fellowship period in charge of Roy Frazier, followed by a group conference which decided "What are Some Vital Problems and Needs in the Sunday School?"

Sunday morning the devotional was in charge of Rev. J. R. Hutton, followed by a devotional poem, "The Prayer of Youth," by Nila Garnette Amick. President Shoffner then gave a brief, but interesting explanation of the aims of the conference, and Kendall B. Shoffner made an earnest ten-minute appeal to the assembly to "Face the Issues Involved in S. S. Conventions." Group discussions followed with E. H. Thompson, Roy Frazier and K. B. Shoffner in charge of the various groups.

Sunday afternoon the devotional was in charge of Rev. M. A. Pollard, followed by an address by Rev. W. R. Shaeffer, of High Point, N. C. In this address Mr. Shaeffer gave eight outstanding aims for the Sunday schools.

Special music was rendered by the Mt. Pleasant Quartette and the Greeson Duet.

The funeral rites for Joseph Willard Causey 16-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Causey, were conducted in our church auditorium, July 3, 1931. Reverends J. R. Hutton, and J. A. Burgess conducting the ceremony, assisted by Rev. T. F. McCulloch.

Although Joe had been afflicted and had spent more than half of his brief sojourn in sickness and suffering, he always found life full of interest and happiness. His noble optimism and Christ-like cheerfulness permeated into the lives of those with whom he came into daily contact. And the aftermath of his remembered life is constantly refreshed and renewed in the memories and hearts of his friends by the repeated words, "Joe was so cheerful."

He attended church and S. S. services at Mt. Pleasant church regularly, when his health would permit, and he was an unusually well informed Bible student. "The Methodist Protestant Herald" probably had no more devoted reader than was this youth, who, in spite of his illness, experienced and imparted to others much of the richness and fullness of life.

First Church, Concord.—We had a splendid Sunday school today, with 439 present. Our people seem deeply interested in our Sabbath school and seem anxious about getting new members to come, and we appreciate the sweet spirit of co-operation very much and hope God will continue to bless our school and make it a blessing.

Our missionary circles held a joint meeting at the church on Monday evening after the first Sunday of this month.

We were delighted with the amount of money each circle had raised during the past three months. Each circle sold candy or made quilts and every one I think was pleased with the results. We hope to turn in a greater amount next time and I'm sure God will greatly bless us.

We regret to report that our pastor is not improving very fast. He was unable to worship with us today and the 11 o'clock service was called off. We surely did miss the wonderful message that he always brings when he meets with us. May God greatly bless him and restore him to health that he might take up his duties once more. Pray for this work that it might be a great lighthouse for God.

First Church, High Point.—Services were held in First church at 11 o'clock Sunday morning, and after listening to a lovely vocal solo by Mrs. John C. Whitesell, "Flee as a Bird to Your Mountain," the congregation was greatly pleased to hear a splendid sermon delivered by Dr. G. I. Humphreys, president of High Point college, who said in the outset that this kind of weather is not conducive to hard thinking, but I want to bring you some simple lessons. He announced his text from II Kings 6:17, "And Elisha prayed and said, Lord, I pray thee, open his eyes that he may see." He said in part: "The eye is the most wonderful organ of the human body. It is the window of the soul. It is a very sad thing when the eye is dead. The heart of the eye is the retina, or inner coat. Men and women may be perfect physical specimens, but the eye be dead. A blind man cannot appreciate beautiful colors, for he has never seen them. A spiritually blind man cannot appreciate spiritual blessings. Most of us are partially blind spiritually. Drink, lust, greed, avarice, love of self, all tend to cripple our spiritual vision. If you have astigmatism, everything you see looks distorted. The result of environment often causes us to see crookedly, and the hideousness of sin is lost to us. Spiritual astigmatism comes from not seeing God as he is and the only cure is faith in Him and His salvation. Then many people have dimness of vision, and think that the only church is my church. They are like the man who prayed, 'God bless me and my wife, my son John and his wife, us four and no more.' Then some people have long vision, they can see things at a distance, but not nearby. They can see sin afar, but not close at hand. We should pray, 'Lord, open thou my eyes that I may see,' and grant us a new revelation of beauty. The result of untrained sight is 'having eyes to see, but see not,' which is the condition of so many of us in this twentieth century. The trouble with the world today is that we have gone mad over material things."

The circles of the Woman's Auxiliary held meetings Monday afternoon at the following homes: No. 4, Mrs. W. W. Cecil, chairman, with Mrs. W. A. Davis on Woodrow avenue; No. 5, Mrs. Ross H. Davis, chairman, with the chairman on Denny Street; No. 6, Mrs. J. A. Gray, chairman, with Mrs. J. C. Welch, Sr., on North Main street; No. 7, Mrs. L. R. Peacock, chairman, with Mrs. A. A. York on Montlieu avenue; No. 8, Mrs. R. H. Shaw, chairman, with Mrs. A. G. Payne on Blaine avenue.

We are much gratified to learn that the condition of Miss Lolah Shepard, who has been quite seriously ill as the result of an operation for appendicitis a week ago in High Point hospital, is much improved, and her large number of young friends will be pleased to know that she is now convalescing in a satisfactory manner.

Mrs. John S. Pickett has gone to Trenton, New Jersey, to spend a month with her mother, Mrs. Sams.

The Senior C. E. society held its weekly meeting Monday evening with Misses Margaret and Lois Snipes on Steele street with Miss Esther Pritchard leader. Members of this society motored to Gray's Chapel, Randolph County last Sunday and organized a new society there. Ralph H. Vance was the leader at this meeting.

A new C. E. society has been organized with Miss Frances Taylor president, and will meet just before the evening service on Sunday.

Mrs. W. C. Hammond, executive secretary, Board of Public Welfare of the city, returned Friday from the Institute of Public Welfare Workers, conducted at Chapel Hill, and is enthusiastic in praise of this meeting. She has attended all these conferences since 1924, and she says this recent one was the best and most practical.

The numerous friends of Dr. A. A. York will regret to learn that he has gone to High Point hospital for treatment. He has the sympathy and best wishes of the congregation for a complete and rapid recovery.

Mr. Earl Teague is able to be out again after an operation for appendicitis at Guilford General hospital, his many friends will be pleased to learn.

Miss Daisy Lee York has returned from Chapel Hill, where she was the guest of her friend, Miss Martha Crawford.

Dr. and Mrs. A. G. Dixon and daughter, Miss Vista, have returned home from a vacation trip to points in Pennsylvania and New York.

The Sunday school enjoyed greatly a delightful picnic at Tar Heel Inn near Greensboro last Thursday afternoon. A large crowd was present and the children were much pleased with the bountiful and delicious supper and the excellent swimming hole.

Mr. and Mrs. James T. Ryan have returned from a pleasant outing of two weeks spent at Waynesville.

Mr. and Mrs. George T. Penny have been away from home for three weeks on a trip to Cleveland, Ohio, and points in Michigan, and will probably continue their journey into Canada.

Quarterly conference was held at Alleghany church, July 11; all the churches were represented, the work seems to be going nicely. We hope all the churches will do their very best on the salary, it seems it is hard to get money, but let us take a glance around and see what a bountiful what crop the Lord has blessed us with. Then how are we going to show our thankfulness?

There will be a Children's Day observed at this church; the date not fixed yet.

We are so sorry to note the serious illness of Mrs. Irvin Bailey; we hope for her a speedy recovery.

The Siloam M. E. and Lineberry M. P. Ladies' Aid societies met in a joint meeting at the home of Mrs. Van Wood Saturday, July 11, for their monthly meeting with 34 members present. The visitors were Mrs. Johnson, and little Vivian Lowe, niece of Mrs. Woods. A delightful social hour was enjoyed. Mrs. Walter Lay won in a contest. During the social hour tomato sandwiches, cake, candy, pickles and lemonade were served.

Mrs. Wood certainly does know how to serve and entertain. It is needless for me to try to tell how much we enjoyed it; the time just was too short.

Miss Kate Frank is to prepare the program for next meeting. The society will meet in August with Mrs. B. E. Lanier. We hope to have all members present next time.

—The Girl Reserves of this and almost 40 other countries will celebrate their fiftieth anniversary in November next. The membership of 293,000 in this country alone is phenomenal, for the reason that every girl's membership automatically ceases when she reaches eighteen. It is a compliment to both the ideals of the group, and the girls themselves, that with such a changing membership, the standards have never been lowered and, the growth has been so rapid.

FALLSTON TRAINING SCHOOL

The Leadership Training school held at Fallston this week, under the direction of the Council of Religious Education of the Methodist Protestant church, came to a close last night. Seventy persons received certificates of credit in the various courses. Ninety-eight persons registered for the work at the beginning of the school last Monday night. This number was augmented nightly by a large number of visitors from the various churches of the community.

The courses offered were: "Church School Administration," "The Principles of Teaching," "A Study of Early Adolescence," "Administration of Vocation Church School," and "The Christian Citizen," the latter being a course for the youth of the early teens.

The six workers who conducted the Fallston school have visited different sections of North Carolina this summer with similar schools. It was said by Dr. N. M. Harrison, the dean of the school, that this was the best school held yet this summer.

The teachers besides Dr. Harrison, who is an instructor in the department of Religious Education at High Point college, and Promotional Secretary of that institution, were Miss Mary Young, Dean of Women of High Point college; Miss Maxine Taylor, Henderson high school faculty; Miss Lucy Nunery, teacher at Whitesides, N. C., and Reverends G. L. Curry, Albermarle and E. A. Bingham, Handy. —Cleveland Star.

WHAT'S THE MATTER WITH THIS?

There are 365 days in the year. Of these 365 days the great majority of us work only eight hours the day. This is one-third of the time or approximately 121 days. There are 52 Sundays in the year and 52 Sundays subtracted from 121 working days leave 69 working days. Then the great mass of us get Saturday afternoons off. This is the equivalent of 26 days throughout the year. Twenty-six days subtracted from 69 working days leave 43 working days. Then there are two weeks' vacation in the year. This is fourteen days and the fourteen vacation days subtracted from the 43 working days leave 29 working days. There are also during a year 12 holidays, and the 12 holidays subtracted from the 29 working days leave 17 working days. We all receive one hour for lunch each day. This is equivalent throughout the year to 13 days. That is, 13 lunch hour days subtracted from the 17 working days leave four working days. Now, one knows that there are four Jewish holidays during the year. Four holidays subtracted from the four working days leave no days!—Selected.

FACTS ABOUT THE OCTOPUS

When Victor Hugo in his "Toilers of the Sea" lucidly described a battle between a man and an octopus and Gustave Dore painted a thrilling picture of the fight, neither of them perhaps had any idea of giving future generations an entirely inaccurate conception of this harmless and even timid creature.

The octopus is not a "devil fish" by any means, with fierce, aggressive disposition; indeed, he is not a fish at all, but a near relative of the squid, the snail, and the oyster, having the soft body of a mollusk and being forced to live in the crevice of rocks for protection.

Only at night does he come forth in search of food, climbing over the rock with his long tentacles, which can seize a crab in an instant and roll it up to his mouth as an elephant does a peanut. But, instead of only one flexible arm, the octopus has eight; and its mouth with its pair of horny jaws, is situated at the center, in easy reach of all arms. Not alone crabs and lobsters, but almost any other ocean inhabitant that is small enough will serve as food for an octopus.

When danger threatens, the octopus throws out a black fluid like the ink of the cuttlefish and escape in the darkness. He swims backwards in a series of quick jerks by drawing in water and squirting it out with sudden force, trailing his folded tentacles behind him. Anyone who has watched a young dragon-fly in the water will understand how this may be done; only the dragon-fly swims forward.

The tentacles of an octopus are covered on the under side with two rows of sucking disks, which enable him to cling to rocks and also to hold his prey. They are shaped a good deal like the rubber disks used by plumbers to unstop sinks, and are very essential to the life and happiness of their owner. The name octopus means eight-footed, referring to the number of the tentacles.

The eggs of an octopus are laid in a cavity in the rocks and guarded with great care by the mother. They are all attached to a stalk like a bunch of grapes and may number half a million. For about seven weeks the anxious parent stays closely by the nest except when she has to hunt for food, turning the eggs with her tentacles and squirting fresh jets of water upon them from time to time until the young escape and learn to shift for themselves, or are devoured in their turn by crabs and lobsters.

The octopus is found chiefly in the West Indies, in parts of the Pacific Ocean and in the Mediterranean Sea. The only kind occurring on the Atlantic coast north of Cape Hatteras is a tiny bluish species with arms scarcely over two inches long.

In the Bahamas, specimens occur with arms five feet in length and weighing two or three hundred pounds, but the majority of these animals are no larger than a man's fist and can be easily kept in aquaria, where they make interesting pets, with their queer eyes and peculiar antics. In many countries they are used for food and even esteemed as a delicacy. —William Alphonso Murrill in Our Dumb Animals.

 Stony Knoll, West Forsythe ..... 2.00
 We are thankful for every offering in the above report. May God richly bless all who have given.

This report covers three weeks. Every week for nearly three years now we have made a report through the Herald. But this time we were away for two weeks, and tried to take our minds absolutely off the work here.

Clothing and Other Gifts

Mr. J. Norman Wills, Greensboro, N. C., 7 pictures.

Mrs. Roy Orndorff, Pleasantville, N. J., 1 pair shoes, 1 hat, 12 pieces of underwear, 1 coat, 9 pair pants and 6 waists for little boys.

Mrs. Boyd Wilson, Eastport, N. Y., for Eastport Auxiliary, 9 pair shoes, 25 waists, 40 pieces of underwear, 45 little dresses, 4 shirts, 3 dozen pair hose, 9 coats and 8 sweaters for girls and 20 pair pants for little boys.

Our gratitude is extended to each of these donors.

We have had some showers and crops are looking a bit better, though rains are still needed in this section.

Canning Season

The next few weeks is the canning season for the farmer women of our church. We know you have us in mind and we appreciate that fact. The produce brought to us from our country circuits each fall is wonderfully helpful. We cannot tell how we would have gotten through last winter without it. We know you are planning to help us out this fall. May God bless His dear ones everywhere.

Yours in His service,
 A. G. DIXON, Supt.

THE METROPOLIS

My windows
 On the nineteenth floor,
 Look down on great
 Manhattan's roar,
 Where midget men
 Rush to and fro,
 Nervous, keen,
 A motley show.

Let proud achievement
 Boast today;
 These men and stones
 Will pass away.

My windows
 On the nineteenth floor,
 Look far aloft,
 To heaven's soar,
 A canopy
 Of beauty rare,
 Reveals a wondrous
 Lesson there.

Proud men and stones
 Will pass away,
 But God's great love
 Will live away.

MARRIED

Monteith-Wilson

On June 14, at 2:30 o'clock, the Asheville Methodist Protestant church was the scene of a beautiful and impressive nuptial ceremony when Miss Flossie Monteith, became the bride of Dr. Rooby Wilson. The Rev. J. B. Grace, pastor of the Calvary Baptist church of the city, officiated.

Miss Ethel Wilson, sister of the groom, was at the piano. After playing appropriate preliminary music she accompanied Miss Mary Fitzgerald, who sang "O Promise Me," and "All For You." The bridal party entered the church as the march from Lohengrin was being played. During the ceremony "To a Wild Rose" was softly rendered and the recessional was Mendelssohn's wedding march.

The bride was given in marriage by her father, Mr. E. L. Monteith of Biltmore. Mrs. Roy Chandler was the matron of honor and Miss Vida Lingerfelt and Mary Lou Stephens were the bride's maids. The ring bearer, Jimmie Mitchell, carried the ring on a white satin cushion. The best man was Mr. J. F. Justice and the other groomsmen were Walter McClure, Harvey Laues and Edwin Wilson.

The church was made very pretty for the occasion. Mountain ivy, palms, ferns, Dorothy Perkins' roses, and regal lilies were artfully arranged in a beautiful background and three white standards bear seven white-cathedral candles each were placed on either side and one to the back. The bride carried a shower bouquet of Ophelia rose and swansons.

Dr. and Mrs. Wilson left by motor during the afternoon for Raleigh where they spent several days. After another year's training at Louisville, Ky., Dr. Wilson expects to practice in Asheville and they will make their home there.

Both the bride and groom graduated from Asheville high school in the class of 1923. After taking a course at Cullowhee Teachers' Training school Mrs. Wilson has been teaching in the Valley Spring school near Asheville.

Dr. Wilson is the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Wilson of West Asheville. He took his A. B. degree at Wake Forest in 1929 and graduated from the medical school of the University of Kentucky this spring.

"There are thousands of them. They are trying to chew me up." He had become temporarily unbalanced and imagined his victims were seeking revenge.

IN HONOR OF THE DEAD

Causey

After an illness of nearly eight years Joseph Willard Causey died July 2, 1931. He had reached the age of sixteen. Funeral services were conducted at Mt. Pleasant Methodist Protestant church by Rev. J. R. Hutton, his pastor, who was assisted by Rev. J. A. Burgess. Both of these ministers were greatly loved by the deceased. Joe is survived by his father and mother, six sisters, and two brothers.

In spite of the fact that Joe had been afflicted for many years he never failed to manifest keen interest in his Sunday school and church. He became a member of Mt. Pleasant church at an early age, and always attended services when health permitted. The work of other churches also interested him. Perhaps the Methodist Protestant Herald had no more eager and constant reader than this boy.

Surely no one ever bore affliction with more patience and sweetness than Joe. His continual optimism and interest in life brought great happiness to those around him. Out of a frail body there flowed a spirit and an intellect that will ever be an inspiration to us who knew him best. God saw fit to transplant him in the prime of youth, and yet the pure joy that Joe found in living and his fullness of life created impressions that will always be precious to us. Indeed, we feel that he constantly heeded that immortal message of William Cullen Bryant which bids us:

"So live, that when thy summons comes to join
The innumerable caravan, which moves
To that mysterious realm, where each shall take
His chamber in the silent halls of death,
Thou go not, like the quarry slave at night,
Scourged to his dungeon, but, sustained
And soothed
By an unfaltering trust, approach thy grave,
Like one who wraps the drapery of his couch
About him, and lies down to pleasant dreams."

JOSIE CAUSEY, His Aunt.

Way

A few days ago Mr. Edwin Way was called to his heavenly home. He had been in failing health for more than a year. His condition had been rather critical for four weeks before his death. However, he seemed unusually well on the day of his death and death came rather suddenly.

Mr. Way was a most patient and cheerful sufferer. At no time did he complain or grumble. Those who visited him and those of his immediate family were deeply impressed with his beautiful spirit. The secret of his patience and cheerfulness was found in his submission to the will of God. He would tell those who visited him that whatever God willed was perfectly all right with him, that he was committing himself entirely to God.

Mr. Way was a faithful member of the First Methodist Protestant church in Burlington. He was always dependable and loyal and during his illness he often expressed a desire to attend his church. He was quiet and unassuming in his living, but oh how beautifully he lived. It can be fittingly said of him, "He was a good man, and full of the Holy Ghost and of faith."

May all those who sorrow because of his going be blessed of God, especially those of his immediate family. May the God of all comfort and peace drive back the clouds of sorrow and heal the broken hearts.

FRED W. PASCHALL.

THE FIGHT FOR SUCCESS

"One of the most important lessons in life is that success must continually be won and is never finally achieved.

"There are those who look upon the supposed fortunate in our social efforts, who achieved places of influence and distinction, as though they had in some way gained a citadel in which they stand secure against every attack. In truth, all they have done is to gain another level of responsibility in which they must make good.

"Every day is one of test. Every day puts at risk all that has been gained. The greater the apparent achievement the greater the risk of loss. The farther you have climbed, the more disastrous the fall.

"As has well been said, it is not worth while to talk of the end of a period, for you are always at the beginning of a new one. You cannot rest content. You have been vigilant, it remains to be yet more vigilant. You have been faithful, but fidelity is an active virtue which demands its daily sacrifice of any counter interest, its daily response in energetic service."—Charles Evans Hughes in Southern News Bulletin.

Before he was to have testified in New York's graft investigations, Traugott F. Keller, chief engineer of the dock department, fell, jumped or was pushed in front of a subway train.

A REFORMED SOCIALIST

It was 30 years ago that The Pathfinder brought on its life a fusillade of criticism because it took pains to expose and denounce socialism as the enemy of the people. Among those who denounced was John Spargo, who came to this country from England, settled here and issued a long series of books, lectures, etc., upholding socialistic ideas and methods.

Now, 30 years after, this same John Spargo, in an address before the Institute of Public Affairs, denounces socialism and all its way, in terms equally as strong as those we ever used. His conclusion is that the United States today is not in danger from red Russia so much as it is from "well-meaning but misguided enthusiasts in our own midst," and that it would be a mistake for us to "embrace discredited socialist principles from which can come nothing except poorer living and servitude."

John Spargo, during the years of his socialism was himself a good example of the "well-meaning but misguided enthusiast" which he now warns us of. He is on that account the better qualified to testify against the socialism which he once hoped and achieved would redeem a suffering world but which he now knows would be a snare and delusion.

Spargo deserted the Socialist party when the United States entered the World war. He held several minor appointive posts under Presidents Wilson and Coolidge and, with the late Samuel Gompers sought to form a labor party. Since his "reformation," Spargo has turned his attention to American history and is now president of the Vermont Historical society and the Brimington Battle Monument association. Pathfinder.

KENTUCKY CONFERENCE

In August, 1925, the writer attended the session of the Kentucky Annual conference which was held in the Little log church known as Little Hurricane because of its location on a little creek by that name, near Hubbardstown in West Virginia on the edge of the Big Sandy Valley which divides West Virginia from Kentucky. At that time the need of a new church was mentioned and urged. It was my great pleasure, recently, to respond to an invitation from Rev. Basil Hodge, a member of our conference, whose home is at Hubbardstown, authorized by the pastor, Rev. Fred Vanhorn, to be present Sunday, June 28, at the dedication of a new Methodist Protestant church located at Hubbardstown and named Bellamy Chapel.

The story of the gift of a suitable lot by Mr. Edward Bellamy and the earnest effort put forth by the friends of the movement, to erect and pay for a new church in that community, is an interesting one and I was glad to be present when the house was presented to President Hewlett, of the Kentucky Annual conference and set apart for the worship and glory of God. I think I never experienced a hotter day, but the folks were there, 500 strong. The house seats about 300 so they were packed into every available space, many of them standing throughout the entire morning service, which was nearly three hours. I never enjoyed preaching the gospel more anywhere and everybody seemed as happy as I was; indeed even while the offering was being received, there were several persons shouting.

This church has a wonderful field; hundreds of people nearby and this is the only church in the immediate community. The saddest thought to me was the fact that the pastor does not live in the community but comes over once a month to preach Saturday night and Sunday. There are many fields like this in the Kentucky conference where a young man, without much family, willing to enter into the life of the people in the spirit of the Master, could have a wonderful experience in rendering a worthwhile and much needed service.

Our Vacation

PROSPECTIVE VIEW

On mountain top or ocean side,
At end of swift and joyous ride,
An all too brief delightful stay
With genial friends both grave and gay.

RETROSPECTIVE VIEW

Confined to home by illness rare
Suggesting caution—not despair
We pass the days in quiet ease
Despite the lack of ocean breeze.

LESSON

The accidents of time and place
Need not forbid you run your race:
If either rest or work you seek,
It may be found this side the creek.

To Be Taken Most Seriously

We mean the appeal for High Point College. See letter of Dr. Broomfield, President of the General Conference, in another column. The first occasion for this appeal was the debt contracted in building. That debt will continually come back to plague the college until it is paid off. Conditions are not favorable now in this period of depression for the payment of this debt, and President Humphreys is not trying to pay it now, but is simply trying to distribute it so it can be borne without being burdensome to any one. He is asking, not for gifts, but for investments drawing six per cent. interest. The security is as good as a first mortgage on real estate.

President Humphreys has been fortunate in securing the co-operation of other conferences and the officers of the General Conference in the effort to float the bonds. He has also been able to secure co-operation from citizens of High Point notwithstanding the large and liberal contributions of that city in the beginning of the career of the college.

This appeal will be read by many who will keenly regret that they have no money they can possibly spare. This magnifies the importance and responsibility of the man who has money he might invest. He may act the part of a good Samaritan toward our college in its dire need. The good Samaritan did not wait until the wounded man was dead and then give him a decent burial, but he saved his life and restored his health.

Help! Help! Help! comes the thrilling call. It is our college. Our church needs it. Will we save it for the great good it can do? O that we may be wise in time!

Then sympathy for President Humphreys should move us. He has undertaken for us a great and difficult task. Let him have our full moral and material support. Let there be none to rock the boat in its perilous voyage. Let there be none to add jeopardy to the man who walks a rope across Niagara Falls.

Our people and High Point people have invested about $400,000 in High Point College. Shall we go three-fourths of a journey and then turn back? Let us be men of fore sight and men of high ideals and men of wise action.

The Reynolds Family

Appleton's Cyclopedia of American Biography published forty years ago lists thirteen distinguished men bearing the name of Reynolds. One was a Roman Catholic bishop, one was a Protestant clergyman, two were scientists, one was an agriculturist, five were soldiers, two were naval officers, and one was governor of Illinois. In 1894 North Carolina elected Mr. C. A. Reynolds as its Lieutenant Governor. He is still living. There are others of prominence in the religious, political, and business worlds. Local members of the Reynolds family recently held a reunion at Tabernacle church in Guilford county. Several interesting addresses were made. One speaker took occasion to warn the people of North Carolina against the danger of the "short ballot." He says that if adopted it will lead us back to the condition that prevailed in the days of the Caesars. — liberty dead, the people enthralled. Another leading address of the day was made by former Lieutenant Governor Reynolds, now nearly 83 years old, but well preserved. He is the man that twice refused to step up into the governor's office. This is much to his credit.

About seventy years ago Mr. Winlock Reynolds moved into the Tabernacle community to serve as miller. He identified himself with Tabernacle church. Now according to a statement by the pastor, Rev. H. L. Isley, more than fifty members of the Reynolds' family are members of that church. In their recent meeting the family adopted Tabernacle church as their regular place of annual meeting.

Several hundred persons, including invited friends, attended the recent meeting and enjoyed every part of a varied and elaborate program. Brother Floyd Reynolds, the chairman, spares no pains to give success to what he undertakes.

AN OPPORTUNITY AND A CHALLENGE

REV. J. C. BROOMFIELD, D.D.

In the annual meeting of the Executive Committee of the General Conference, held in Baltimore, Md., July 21, Dr. Humphreys, President of High Point College, was present by invitation and made an address in which he set forth in detail the situation in the college. He was followed by Rev. N. M. Harrison, promotional secretary of the college, who described the fine record made by the college during the seven years of its existence.

Mrs. W. C. Hannaer, of Asheboro, N. C., and a member of the Executive Committee, spoke in glowing terms of the able and successful way in which Dr. Humphreys was administering the affairs of the college.

It was made plain that no one of our colleges, in its contribution to the life of our church, and in the fineness of its prospect of success, surpasses High Point college.

For the past ten months Dr. Humphreys has been seeking to redim the debt on the college through the sale of sufficient bonds to single corporations that make a business of investing in bonds. The large bonus demanded in each case virtually forced him to devise the following new plan. He desires to sell bonds to the amount of $150,000.00 bearing 6% interest and ranging in size from $100.00 to $1,000.00. $75,000 worth of these bonds are to be sold in the city of High Point and in the North Carolina Annual Conference. The remaining $75,000 are to be sold to our people outside of North Carolina.

The payment of the interest on these bonds, and the payment of the bonds when due is guaranteed by assets aggregating $891,000.00 and by income from various sources.

Dr. Humphreys is not soliciting gifts for the college, but he is appealing to our people to make an investment in the college.

After giving a whole morning to considering the proposed plan, the Executive Committee approved it unanimously, and directed me as president of the General Conference to put the plan into operation.

This I am already doing. A letter has gone out to every Annual Conference president. An appeal to the members of the Woman's Auxiliary will appear in the August Record, and an article similar to this will appear in the Methodist Protestant Recorder.

High Point College is appealing for help, and the unanimous judgment of the Executive Committee is that the whole church ought to help.

This is a fine opportunity to demonstrate the virility of our connectionalism; to make a good investment, and help the cause of Christian education.

$50,000.00 of these bonds must be disposed of by September 1.

I am confident that many times $150,000. is lying idle in the hands of our people, awaiting investment. Bring it out and buy a bond to help this worthy institution.

Never before has the whole church heard the challenge to help one college. We must not fail to accept this challenge. If you desire further information, write Dr. G. I. Humphreys, High Point College, High Point, N. C.

FOUR SOLUTIONS OF A DIFFICULT PROBLEM

By LUTHER K. LONG

Jesus never uttered a truer word than when He said: "In the world ye have tribulation."

In associations with our individual selves, in our involvements with nature around and above us, in our contacts with other people, in toil, and in pain, we are in a world and among people where we are troubled and hurt.

What shall we do about it?

Shall we deny there is any such thing as suffering, and thus live—or pretend to live—in a fool's paradise?

Shall we steel ourselves against pain, ignore it, and become so calloused that we no longer have a sense of feeling?

Shall we school ourselves to become so conscious of an invisible, blessed world that we no longer are conscious of the reality of this present evil world, and go on living as though not living?

All these methods have been used. Occasionally an individual has professed to find satisfaction in one or another of these methods. But unprejudiced and rational observers have, as a rule, failed to be convinced of the values of such ways of living.

Four ways out of the tribulation in which men find themselves entangled in this world are being tried.

Getting Out of the World

For a good many years—especially during and since the World War—an increasing number of persons have sought to solve their problems by ending their own lives; and many others who do not go that length justify the right of others to make their own decision in the matter.

In the past, multitudes of professedly religious people have forsaken the world, refusing to marry and bear children, leaving others to do the work of the world, while they lived on charity. Isn't that going a considerable distance along the suicide road?

During these times of unemployment men have offered to sell themselves for a job. Others have taken their own lives because they could no longer provide for their families—trusting that society would more readily provide for these families with the father out of the way.

Respectable physicians are now advocating the feasibility of ending the lives of certain classes of insane, and other incurables. This, not as a punishment, but as a relief to the sufferers themselves and to society.

Leaving the world, either as the act of the individual or following the authorized decision of society, deals only with extreme cases, and does not touch the vast majority of people who have the problems of their attitude to the tribulations and difficulties of life.

Conforming to the World

"When in Rome, do as the Romans do." Trim your sails and set your steering gear to gain the advantages of the winds on the particular sea over which you are sailing. Follow the prevailing styles, do as the others do.

This is not as bad as some people would have us think. Paul did it in the matter of having Timothy circumcized. He did it also in the matter of eating meat offered in sacrifice to idols. He told how, with a noble purpose, he was working out this principle in his own life: "I am become all things to all men, that I may by all means save some."

From the lowest motives to the highest, this method of getting rid of tribulation by conforming to the world, or by adjusting one's practices to the local situation, can be successful in only a limit-proportion of cases. It does not afford adequate relief.

Transforming the World

Yes, transform the world. Revolutionize. Change conditions. Make things over.

Have we forgotten that George Washington, and the signers of the Declaration of Independence, were revolutionists? Had they not all hung together, each of them would have hung separately—and we should have had neither a fine Capital City nor a great white column commemorating the name and the deeds of the Father of his Country.

Pioneers are transformers. Forests are cleared and prairies are broken up. Wild beasts and savage men are dispossessed. Farms and homes, and villages and cities take the place of wilderness and waste. Missionaries are transformers. They plant a new religion and develop a new civilization.

But, while important changes are made from time to time, the transformation is slow. Generation after generation passes on, and the desired end does not come fully into view.

In the World, But Not of It

In His intercessory prayer, on the night in which He was betrayed, Jesus uttered this petition: "I pray not that Thou shouldst take them out of the world, but that Thou shouldst keep them from the evil." He also said to His disciples on that memorable night: "In the world ye shall have tribulation; but be of good cheer; I have overcome the world."

Christians are in the world. By no sort of valid reasoning could more than an insignificantly small minority be justified in taking themselves out of the world. Conforming, accommodating one's self to the conditions and ways of the world, brings some relief; but this leaves the vast majority of situations unprovided for. Transforming the world, revolutionizing men's ways of thinking and living, making all things new is a fine occupation. Following this occupation we are carrying out the spirit of the Great Commission. But our generation, and many succeeding generations, will have passed away before the work is completed—before men are able to live in a new heaven and a new earth, wherein dwelleth righteousness.

Unjustified by a right interpretation of the teachings of Jesus—but easily enough explained—the belief in the speedy return of our Lord played an important part in the lives and teachings of the early Christians. This explains several attitudes: Selling of property and holding all things in common, that was practiced for a short time; Paul's structures on marriage; and much of the early Christian feeling concerning this present evil world and its unsubstantial character.

It has taken the church nineteen hundred years to clear its mind on this mistaken hope concerning the second coming of Christ—and, in many sections, it is by no means clear today. But, in the main, thoughtful Christians realize that the church has a great program ahead of it requiring much time for its working out.

While Christians live and work they should seek the transformed life. They should be renewed from day to day. They should be in the world, but not of it; in it, but above it, attend to the business of the world, but not be in bondage to it.

OUR MINDS AFFECT OUR LIVES

By GRENVILLE KLEISER

Your mental attitude is a great determining influence in your daily life. Begin the day with an expectant and energetic mental attitude toward your work, plans, and purposes, and it will elevate and enhance all your activities. The spirit in which you regard your fellow men and the world about you will be reflected back to you. When you are in the right mental attitude, many things will seem to conspire and co-operate to advance your work and interests. Primarily it is your mental attitude which makes the day happy and productive, or the contrary. You can demonstrate the truth of this today by resolving to look only for the best, to be intelligently optimistic and to have confidence in the eternal supremacy of good.

In your consciousness you conduct the great commerce of daily thought. Every thought you think and cultivate contributes something to the sum total of your life. Your mind has a certain capacity for thought. To clear your mind of erroneous, useless, destructive thoughts, substitute and diligently cultivate right thoughts. Take one wrong thought at a time and patiently substitute for it the opposite right thought. The divine counsel is to overcome evil with good. This is the supreme command. If the offense comes in the form of injustice, envy, suspicion, selfishness, dishonesty, or revenge, instantly apply the remedy of thinking only good and the seeming miracle will take place. You can demonstrate this truth for yourself.

The significance of your good thoughts may not now be wholly apparent to you, but as such thoughts are multiplied day by day there will come to you a realization of their value in producing greatness of character. Every good thought you think is contributing its share to the ultimate result of your life. Constantly guard your mind, therefore, against destructive ideas, and store it with helpful, progressive, constructive thoughts. The good thought you think is its own reward, since every such thought has an uplifting influence upon your life. Obviously the only remedy for wrong thoughts is the substitution of right thoughts. As your thought becomes spiritualized, you will wish to give more love, loyalty, and service to God.

To cultivate a beautiful garden you must uproot all weeds and other unlovely things. This is best done not by sitting down and studying the origin of such weeds and ascertaining their names and number, but by patient and diligent work in pulling them up by the roots and ridding your garden of them forever. Likewise to cultivate a beautiful mind you must uproot and cast from you all mental weeds and other unlovely thoughts, such as pride, envy, impatience, fear, resentment, and selfishness. Then you must plant and carefully cultivate in your mental garden seeds of kindness, goodness, love, purity, humility, reverence, and righteousness. As you persevere in this work, your mind will gradually unfold into beauty and fragrance, and your life will be blest.

A GOOD-CHEER CHILD

It was a very hot and dusty day. The passengers on the tram were weary and feverish. The time seemed long and the journey cheerless. A lady with a face that carries a benediction to all who see her entered the car with a little girl, also of that type of beauty that comes from within, and with a voice musical, sweet, and sparkling, such as also comes from this source.

The child, when they were seated, had no sooner spoken a few words than she began to enlist the attention of her fellow-passengers. She began playing peek-a-boo with a staid and dignified old gentleman in a seat behind her. He at first looked at her over his spectacles, then lowered his paper a little, then a little more, and a little more. Finally, he dropped it altogether, and, apparently forgetting himself and his surroundings, he became oblivious to everything in the fascinating pleasure he was having with the little girl.

The other passengers soon found themselves following his example. All papers and books were dropped. The younger folks gave way to joyous laughter, and all seemed to vie with each other in laying the honor of receiving a word or a smile from the little one.

The dust, the heat, the tired, cheerless feelings were all forgotten; and when these two left the car, the little girl waving them good-by, instinctively, as one person, all the passengers waved it to her in return, and two otherwise dignified gentlemen, leaving their seats, passed over to the other side, and looked out of the window to see her as long as they could.

Something like an electrical spark seemed to have passed through the car. All were light-hearted and happy now; and the conditions in the car, compared to what they were before these two entered, would rival the work of the stereopticon, so far as completeness of change was concerned. You have seen such faces, and have heard such voices spontaneous as the water from the earth as it bursts forth a natural fountain.

TEACHING RELIGION IN SCHOOL

No, long ago I met one of our great school-masters—a veteran in that high service.

"Where in your time-table do you teach religion?" I asked him.

"We teach it all day long," he answered. "We teach it in arithmetic, by accuracy. We teach it in language, by learning to say what we mean—'yea, yea and nay, nay.' We teach it in history, by humanity. We teach it in geography, by breadth of mind. We teach it in handicraft, by thoroughness. We teach it in astronomy, by reverence. We teach it in the playground, by fair play. We teach it by kindness to animals, by courtesy to servants, by good manners to one another, and by truthfulness in all things. We teach it by showing the children that we, their elders, are their friends and not their enemies."

"But what," I said, "about the different denominations? Have you no trouble with the parents?"

"None at all," he replied; "we have half a dozen denominations. But we treat the children, not as members of this Church or that, but as members of the school, and we show them that, as members of the school, in work and in play, they are members of one another. We teach them to build the Church of Christ out of the actual relations in which they stand to their teachers and their school fellows, because we believe that unless they learn to build it where they are they will not learn to build it afterwards anywhere else."

"Do you talk much to them about religion?" I then asked.

"Not much," he said, "just enough to bring the whole thing to a point now and then."

Finally he added a remark that struck me—"I do not want religion," he said, "brought into this school from the outside. What we have of it we grow ourselves."—L. P. Jacks in Education and Religion.

EDUCATION UP TO SEVENTEEN YEARS

Thus, according to Plato, the important thing for a youth to secure by the time he is seventeen is the admiration of noble deeds, and noble words, and noble character.

The love of good literature is the backbone of this elementary education.

Manual training and nature study, as a means to the appreciation of beautiful works of art and beautiful objects in nature, he would also approve.

On the whole Plato is an advocate of those very reforms which are now being introduced into the elementary and secondary schools in the name of the New Education.

What one loves is of more importance than what one knows; what one wants to do, and is interested in trying to do, is of more consequence at this stage than what one has done.

Early education should be an introduction to the true, the beautiful, and the good in the form of great men, brave deeds, beautiful objects, and beneficent laws.

The development of taste is more than the acquisition of information; the inspiration of literature, history, art, and descriptive science is far more valuable than drill beyond the essentials in grammar, geography, and arithmetic.—William DeWitt Hyde.

BEECHER LIKED CHILDREN

Mrs. Henry Ward Beecher once said that, when they lived in the part of Brooklyn known as the Heights, she could always tell when Mr. Beecher was coming in the evening from the voices and the joyous laughter of the children in the streets.

All the street urchins, as well as the more well-to-do children in the vicinity, knew him, and would often wait for his coming. When they saw him in the distance, they would run and gather around him, get hold of his hands, into those large overcoat pockets for the nuts and the other good things he so often filled them with before starting home, knowing as he did full well what was coming, tug at him to keep him with them as long as they could, he all the time laughing or running as if to get away, never too great a say, rather let us say, great enough—to join them in their sports.—Selected.

Back Again

We have been out of print for a week, owing to the Editor's leave of absence, and our own brief "time out." We trust that the Editor is back at his desk, cool, refreshed. We wish, though, that he might have had more time for a much-needed longer rest. The HERALD printers are entitled to "succeed from toil," too. In fact, everyone needs a rest from the routine of daily living. The loads of earnest life are heavy, and it is necessary that the weight be thrown off occasionally. Jesus said to his disciples, "Come ye apart and rest awhile." We trust that vacation may be a time of pleasant experiences for all, and that we may return to our work with renewed zest for the duties that await us.

Mt. Carmel

We were with this church in the Home-coming occasion, Sunday, August 2. This is one of the two churches that make up the South Lexington charge, and is located about three miles south west of Lexington. The records show that a Reformed church was established here in 1879, but it appears to have been a place of public worship much before that time. In 1907 Methodist Protestants came into possession of the property, and a church was organized at that time, under the leadership of Rev. J. H. Moton. There were 13 charter members. There are now 100 members. Last year the congregation decided to build a new church, and work was begun at once on the project. We worshipped Sunday in the new building. It is 35x52 feet, and is so constructed that half of the old building forms a part of the auditorium of the new. The other part of the old building was enlarged by the addition of ten feet built on to each end. All this will be used for Sunday School class rooms,—seven in all, including two spaces within the auditorium that can be used very well for this purpose. The cost of this project is about $2,500, with painting yet to be done and seats to be installed. At present the pews from the college building at Yadkin college are being used. We are glad that they could be put to this good use. Pastor Isley had prepared a full program for the day. It was our privilege to preach in the morning, and a number of speakers, including the following, were on the afternoon program: Ministers, H. L. Powell, C. B. Way, O. P. Routh. Brother Routh is a superannuated minister of the M. E. church, South. Brother Powell and Brother Way are ex-pastors of this church. Laymen who spoke were Harvey Koontz, Jeff Berrier, Adam Young, Adam Berrier, David Frits, Adam Hedrick, John Leonard. All of these laymen were friends of this church, and some of them, if not all, were reared in the community, and had attended services here in their childhood and early manhood. It was refreshing to hear them speak of the good this church has done, and of the outstanding Christian leaders of the community, some living, others passed on into the great beyond, whose lives were, and still are, towers of strength for God. We were glad to spend the day with this church, and we rejoice with them in their new house of worship, and the better things that we believe await them in their church work. Brother D. I. Garner is with Brother Isley here in a special meeting this week. We trust that the greatest possible good may follow.

At night, our appointment was with the South Lexington church. This church has had an unusual experience in the matter of additions. 150 members having just been received. This is the harvest of the Ham-Ramsay meeting recently held in Lexington. It is an interesting co-incidence that our First Church in Burlington received the same number of members when the Ham-Ramsay meeting was held there a few years ago. The number that Bro. Isley has received will most likely be augmented, for names of other persons who desire membership have been turned over to him. There is much talk here of a new church. The present church building is totally inadequate to accommodate the Sunday School. The attendance is now running up toward 400. We should like to see a new church for our people here, with probably a new location. We hope, however, that they will be cautious, and not build beyond their means. An inadequate church plant is better than a crushing church debt. Brother Isley is doing good work, and it was gratifying to hear his people speak highly of him. We believe that this charge will make a good showing for the year, despite the money panic.

Spiritual Harvests

We call attention again to the fact that we are now in the season when we expect our greatest spiritual harvests. This is particularly true of a large number of our churches. Their revivals are in progress now, or will be soon, and through these meetings will come their spiritual harvests for the year, so far as spiritual harvests can be determined by converts and additions to the church. We should be much in prayer at this season, for apart from this there can be no spiritual harvests. I am urging, therefore, that the entire conference have these special meetings in mind, and that we pray earnestly every day that God may make them occasions of marked spiritual awakenings. There is certainly nothing that we need more, and surely there is nothing that God is more ready to give us. Again I say, LET US PRAY FOR A GREAT SPIRITUAL HARVEST during these days when we are holding our revival meetings.

Funeral

On the 27th of July we were called to Burlington to assist in the funeral of Miss Decie Campbell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Campbell. Miss Decie was a member of our First Burlington church, and a good woman. Her mother said of her, "She has always been good." To be able to feel this way about our loved ones is of untold comfort when we are called upon to give them up. Brother and Sister Campbell, and other loved ones and relatives, have our sympathy and our prayers in this sorrow.

An Order of Conference

The last annual conference passed a recommendation of the Committee on Superannuates, which requires that the president of the conference set apart a period of time during which the special apportionment for superannuates shall be raised. (See Journal, page 78). In obedience to this order, I am designating the month of September for this purpose. All pastors have been notified of this by letter. We urge that announcement of this be given from the pulpit, and that diligent effort be made to carry out this order of the conference. The amount is not large for any one church, and our superannuates are worthy of it all. Let us see to it that no church fails in this offering.

Another Conference Order

The President recommended to the last annual conference "that during the month of October all of our people be urged to tithe, and to give the amount for salary and other local expenses, and for the budgets." This was adopted by the conference. We are, therefore, under obligation to put it forward as one of the items in our conference program for the year. Attention is being called to it now, with the hope that pastors and church officials will begin such preparation as to secure full co-operation on the part of our people in every church. If this can be done, we will hardly know that there is a money stringency abroad in the land, when we make up our final reports for the year. Let's see if that doesn't appear to be true. It is estimated that the average annual income of the people of the United States, including children, is about $300. (I am writing from memory, and without access to an official report; but I am confident that this is sufficiently correct for my purposes here). Calculating from this basis, our people in the North Carolina conference should have an income during the month of October of $750,000. The tithe of this would be $75,000. I have no way of knowing now, of course, how much will be paid on salaries and budgets up to October 1, and how much will still be due at that time. But I am confident that $75,000—the tithe of October—would give us full salaries and full budget receipts. Please, brethren, give this prayerful consideration, and let us begin preparation now for the October tithe.

SALE OF COLLEGE BONDS

It will be gratifying to our people to know that we are having encouraging success in our efforts to sell these bonds. Several have been placed already, and our hope is that we may sell enough within the next 30 or 60 days to relieve the college of immediate financial pressure.

The city of High Point is co-operating with us in this effort. A number of leading citizens are actively engaged in placing bonds, and several have already been sold.

In addition to this, the general church will wage a campaign to place bonds to the amount of $75,000. Dr. Broomfield, the president of the General Conference, is thoroughly back of this effort, and is pushing it. So is Dr. Stephenson, the Executive Secretary of the Board of Education. This church-wide effort was endorsed and authorized at a recent meeting of the Executive Committee of the General Conference. One conference, we understand, has already agreed to take $20,000 as its goal.

The plan is for the North Carolina Conference and the city of High Point to sell bonds to the amount of $75,000. This is to be matched by the general church. If we can do this, the financial problems of the college will be solved for the present. It is up to our people now in North Carolina to show their faith in the college by buying these bonds. They are guaranteed by ample collateral, and bear 6 per cent. interest, payable semi-annually. This is, therefore, an opportunity for a safe investment, and at the same time an opportunity to help a good cause. We are confident that there is enough idle money among our people to easily absorb what we are asked to take of the $150,000.

"BUY A BOND!" LET'S MAKE THAT OUR SLOGAN, AND DO THIS THING.

ABOUT THIS DEPRESSION

The following is what a London editor wrote to the American business men:

"You are depressed. You think you are crippled. You are afraid of the future. You are full of fears.

"You have half the gold of the world and half of the machinery and most of the automobiles and all the skyscrapers.

"You have the greatest home market in the world and the largest corporations that the world has ever seen.

"You are ruled more by ideas and less by tradition than any other people in the world. You have usually done what you thought you could do.

"How can it be possible that a progressive nation of 120,000,000 people can be wrecked by the speculations of a little handful of fools in Wall Street?

"The prices that were too high had to come down. Today all prices are too low.

"There is now a golden opportunity for every man who has eyes to see it.

"Dollars are now being sold for thirty cents. Practically every security in the United States is now being sold at less than its value.

"The way to create a fortune is to buy from pessimists. Pay your money and take the risk.

"Frick started his career by buying coke ovens in the slump of 1873. Carnegie made $300,000,000 by buying steel plants in slumps.

"Hundreds of fortunes have been made by buying from pessimists. Ye Gods! what a chance there is at this moment!

"In five years from now, most American business men will belong to the 'I-Wish-I-Had-Club.'

"Then it will be too late to buy a dollar for thirty cents. The opportunities will be gone.

"When a horse balks, the balk is in his head, not in his legs. He moves when he thinks he will.

"And when an American business man is depressed THE SLUMP IS IN HIS HEAD—there is nothing serious to prevent him from making money if he thinks he will.

"When fear rules the will, nothing can be done, but when a man casts out fear from his mind, the world becomes his oyster.

"To lose a bit of money is nothing, but to lose hope or lose nerve and ambition—that is what makes cripples of men.

"This silly depression has gone on long enough. Get rid of it. It is inside of you.—RISE AND WALK!"

◆◆◆ THE GREATEST QUESTION OF THE DAY

Some may say that it is the tariff. Others may say that it is the 18th amendment, while others may ask if the war debt measures will be adopted. With others, the question will be how to avoid an over-production, while many will ask what to do with an over-production, even while half the world is hungry. Will Germany ever be able to pay her debts will be another question in the minds of many.

The above questions are all important questions, which will require much time, thought and labor to solve, but there are other great problems to solve while the days are going by. The problem of how to have a revival, if it can be done, where it is not expected.

Can a revival be had without prayer, is another question that many need to exercise their minds over while time is passing.

Another great question is, how to reach the hundreds of thousands who never enter the doors of the church, or the many in the church who have never been born again.

How to arouse those who daily neglect the solemn vows that they took when they joined the church is another question to solve.

How shall we escape if we neglect so great salvation? And again, why is the house of God forsaken? But the last question of this article which was asked by the King of kings near two thousand years ago, is still the question of the day, which reads as follows:

"For what shall it profit a man, if he shall gain the whole world, and lose his own soul? Or what shall a man give in exchange for his soul?"

Fleasant Hill, N. C.

RUSSIANS USE PLAYING DECK FOR PROPAGANDA

Playing cards have been enlisted in the cause of atheism in Soviet Russia.

The picture cards, the four aces and the joker, carry an anti-religious lesson. The joker, summarizing the whole idea of this new deck, shows God as an obese capitalist wearing a silk hat, wings sprouting through his dinner jacket. In his hands he holds strings connected with puppets below, who are priests, rabbis and savage wonder workers.

The club suite is devoted to caricatures of Greek Catholic personages.

The king of clubs is a priest in a state of intoxication. His queen is a nun, and the knave a monk, neither in flattering poses.

Diamonds belong to the Hebrews, with the king rabbi seemingly engrossed in a prayer book, but actually interested in the shekels that fall into an outstretched hand. His queen is a Jewish woman blessing the Sabbath candles, and the knave a young Talmudic student.

Roman Catholics drew the heart suit. A portly priest is the king, with scenes of carousing in the background. A handsome but overamorous nun is his queen and a young monk the knave.

Spades are given over to the savages, with shamans, male and female, as the characters.

The four aces consist of pictures contrasting the past and the present, under captions: "How it was" and "How it will be." The past shows churches, religious paraphernalia, inquisition equipment and the like. The future shows machines, sports goods, science.

◆◆◆ A BOY'S CONFIDENCE

A little boy came to his father looking much in earnest, and asked, "Father, is Satan bigger than I am?"

"Yes, my boy," said the father.

"Is he bigger than you, father?"

"Yes, my boy, he is bigger than your father."

The boy looked surprised, but thought again, and a knd, "Is he bigger than Jesus?"

"No, my boy," answered the father. "Jesus is bigger than he is."

The little fellow, as he turned away, said with a smile, "Then I am not afraid of him."—Publisher Unknown.

◆◆◆ THE BIBLE THE WORD OF GOD

The Bible must be the invention either of good men or angels, bad men or devils, or of God.

It could not be the invention of good men or angels, for they neither would nor could not make a book and tell lies all the time they were writing it, saying, "Thus saith the Lord," when it was their own invention.

It could not be the invention of bad men or devils, for they could not make a book that commands all duty, forbids all sin, and condemns their own souls to hell for all eternity.

Therefore, draw the conclusion that the Bible must be given by Divine inspiration.—John Wesley.

TREATING THE WILD FLOWERS FAIRLY

"What?" The wild daisies that Helen held almost fell from her relaxed fingers. "Do you mean to say you object to any one picking the wild flowers? I never heard of such a thing!"

The old farmer pointed to the sign on the fence post. "Sorry," he said. "Guess it seems to you like the wild flowers belong to every one, no matter whose land they are on. But you see we have to protect them lately."

"Protect them?" Helen felt like a parrot, but she could think of nothing else to say. When she had climbed under the fence she had not noticed the sign at all.

"Yes, you see it is this way. Since so many automobiles got to coming out into the country every summer the wild flowers haven't been having a chance at all. Why that field over across there used to be so full of violets you could smell it for miles, and it was just like one big, broad sheet of purple—the prettiest thing you ever saw. Seemed like everybody in the world could have their share of violets, and then there'd be some left over, but last year there were only a few flowers to come out."

"I thought they would all come up again even if they were picked," Helen faltered.

"Well, nature depends on the seeds of most plants for renewal, and when all the flowers are gone where can you get the seeds? And that isn't all either, dozens and then hundreds of people coming in, trample down the plants. Some of them tear the whole plant up by the roots."

Helen looked down guiltily at her bunch of flowers. There had been one stubborn stemmed daisy that had resisted valiantly her effort to pluck it. But if the farmer noted the dangling roots he did not let on.

"Last Sunday 4,000 machines passed along the highway between 10 o'clock in the morning and six at night," he went on. "A newspaper fellow sat right there in the fence corner and counted them. I guess each machine would average about four persons to a car, and if each of them picked a bunch of daisies as big as you have—"

Helen gasped. "I never realized," she began apologetically.

"Of course you didn't. Nobody does. But it wouldn't be so bad if people were even reasonable about picking flowers out of God's garden. But they aren't. The flowers are here, and they are free, and the bunch never seems to be big enough. So they keep on grasping a few more and a few more until they have all they can hold."

Helen nodded. "But even that wouldn't be such a crime if people really wanted the flowers and kept them and treated them decently after they picked. But you go along the path any Sunday where people have been picking wild flowers and see how many are thrown away before even the road is reached. All along the highway you will see them where the people have thrown them out."

"And if you could see into the bottoms of the machines you would see others crushed and mashed under foot," Helen contributed, flushing as she remembered dead blossoms they had brought home from various jaunts. "I never thought of it before, but even when they do reach home not half of the flowers are treated like guests. They are stuck into the washtub or crushed into an old pot or jardiniere and set on the back steps, or it is found they are too wilted to be of any use. And usually there are too many of them, and they don't look well in a bouquet—not nearly as nice as the flowers from our own gardens do. They don't fit in."

"You're a sensible young girl and quick to learn," the farmer said approvingly. "You're dead right, and if other people would only realize that, our wild flowers would be safe. It's fun to pick them, I grant that, but lots of things are fun that aren't square and right."

"I'll pick flowers with my eyes after this," Helen promised. "I never thought before that I might be a robber and thief."

"Well, don't put it so harshly as that. People don't mean to pillage God's garden. They just are thoughtless, that's all. They think the flowers belong to everyone because they are wild, and so they do, but if each fellow grabs more than his share how is the other fellow and all the people yet to come to get their share of even a glimpse of the glories of nature?"

"I guess there's a commandment that applies to that—'Thou shalt not covet,'" Helen said thoughtfully. "We ought to be able to enjoy looking at the beautiful things in nature and taking away the memories of them without having to have them. I like to pick wild flowers, but I will never abuse the privilege again."

"I am sure that you won't. And any time you want to raise some in your own garden you just drop in, and I'll give you some seeds. Seems mighty mean in a way to forbid people to pick wild flowers, but times are changing so, and so many people coming that we have to do it or the next generation won't know what a wild flower looks like."

"I'll do my share," promised Helen.—Faye N. Harriman in Junior Girl.

MAKING HOME PLEASANT

A Washington woman on a visit to a toy shop recently noticed a small girl who was eagerly looking at a mechanical mouse.

"Although we had never been introduced," said the woman, "the child spoke to me. Holding up the mouse, she inquired anxiously, 'Do you think it looks real?'"

"I said I thought it did."

"'It is very expensive,' said the little girl, 'and I've been saving up for two weeks to get it. I want it to look real.'"

"'Why not get a doll?' I suggested."

"'Oh, said she, 'it isn't for me. It's for our cat. We brought him home from the country, and he isn't very happy in an apartment. I thought if he had a mouse that would run, to play with, it might make it seem more like home.'"

"And the dear little soul's pennies went over the counter. I wonder what she had for herself."—Washington Post.

STUDENT LOAN FUND FOR HIGH POINT COLLEGE

Does money contributed to the Student Loan Fund count on the budget? Yes.

What per cent. of the N. C. budget is assigned to the Student Loan Fund? 20%.

Are special gifts to the Student Loan Fund counted on the budget? Yes.

How is a student to get a loan? By applying to the Secretary of Student Loan Fund for High Point college. Blank recommendation and also for application will be sent the student. When these are returned properly signed they will be presented to the Scholarship committee and when all requirements are met if the money is available a note will be drawn up to be signed by the applicant.

The above questions have been asked me at different times, so I am trying to answer them in the Herald.

Applications are already coming in and to help all who apply we must have more funds. Will all auxiliaries try to send in as much as possible for this fund? We were able to help 19 students last year.

The minimum loan for one year is $100.00. Some have had less than that.

If there are any more questions in regard to this work, I will be glad to give the information.

THE MEETING AT WEAVERVILLE

The executive committee, Branch, held a most profitable meeting at Bethel Home, July 29 with 15 members of the committee present and about 15 visitors. The Bates call their place a "shack," but 15 women were entertained in it most royally for two nights.

The women of the Weaverville Auxiliary were there with a hearty welcome and a bounteous supper; and Mr. Altman, though very ill, had sent ice cream. A sumptuous dinner with Mr. Casto at Bethel Home and a most enjoyable picnic supper served by Mr. Casto, Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Williams and Mr. and Mrs. Cowan in the arbor up on the mountain—such is the hospitality of Weaverville and Bethel Home.

The executive committee spent most of Wednesday in session and it is the earnest prayer of everyone present that much material good may come of the meeting. Almost all clerics and secretaries sent reports if they were unable to be present; and from these reports it is evident that the work of the Branch is progressing in spite of depression.

The Children's Home, Mr. Minnis' salary and High Point college were the outstanding considerations. Oregon coupons, Sunday eggs and first Sunday offerings for the Children's Home were stressed. Mr. Bates is offering a prize of $5.00 to the auxiliary sending in the most Oregon coupons during the three months period of September, October and November, provided 25,000 coupons are sent in. If the number is not reached in three months the time will be extended to six months. All women raising chickens are urged to save their Sunday eggs, and those women having no chickens are asked to leave off one luxury of their Sunday dinner and send the price of this to the Home. All Sunday school superintendents are asked to use placards announcing the first Sunday offerings for the Home.

Mr. Minnis is our own missionary from North Carolina; but we have shown our appreciation of him in a very poor way since he returned to India. Every member of every organization of every church is asked to save their pennies during the month of September and send this offering to Miss Verna McCulloch to be used on Mr. Minnis' salary. Each church will receive credit on the New Century service for all money sent in on this fund. Mrs. J. S. Williams volunteered to send the Missionary Record to Mr. Minnis for a year and the record goes to them from the members of the executive committee.

Mrs. Hammer brought a message from the executive committee of the General Conference which met in Baltimore recently. From this meeting Mrs. Hammer brought the matter of refinancing High Point college. She urged that all the women of the church should help in every way possible with the sale of the bonds now being issued by the college. Each auxiliary is asked to be responsible for the sale of at least one bond. The Weaverville auxiliary, through Mr. Casto, had the honor of being the first auxiliary to agree to purchase a bond. All auxiliaries are also urged to pay their assessment to the $1,000 promised High Point college at the last Branch meeting, giving this precedence over everything else till it is paid.

An inspirational meeting for the women of the church to be held during the Annual Conference at Lexington is being planned. It is hoped that many women from all parts of the state may be present at this meeting.

To Mr. Casto, Mr. and Mrs. Bates, the Weaverville auxiliary, Mr. and Mrs. Cowan, Mr. and Mrs. Williams and to everyone who helped to make this "coming together" a success, the executive committee wishes to again say "Thank you, we appreciate everything you did."

NOTICE

"Mother" Dixon says ask those who will be doing errands for the Children's Home this summer and fail to please put up all the cucumber pickles you can. The dry weather is June killed our vines, so we live n't any at all. We have given out all the glass cans we can spare this season. Buy the one-half gallon glass jars, fill them, and bring or send to us, and we will pay for the jars, if need be.

Thank you.

FROM PASTORS and PEOPLE

Spring Hill, North Davidson.—The S. S. is doing very well, although there seems to be a slight decrease in attendance.

The C. E. society met Sunday night. Miss Helen Moore had charge of the program which was very good.

The third quarterly conference was held at Spring Hill the third Saturday with a good number present. At the churches were represented. On Sunday morning following these services, the Children's Day program was given. In the afternoon a song service was enjoyed by all present.

The Ladies' Aid met with Mrs. J. L. Craven this month. Mrs. Craven had charge of the devotional services after which came the business. A good report was given of the work that is being done. Then a social hour was enjoyed by all.

Since our last report the church has lost one of its older members, Mrs. W. A. Craven. She had been sick for some time and her passing was expected. Mrs. Craven lived a beautiful Christian life. She set a high standard of Christian living for those who knew her. She will not only be missed in the home but in the church as well. The funeral services were conducted at Spring Hill by Rev. O. C. Loy, assisted by Rev. H. L. Powell and Rev. D. R. Williams from Pleasant Grove.

Miss Vera Cecil and Mrs. Julia York are able to be out again after being sick for quite a while.

West Forsyth.—The revival meeting at Baltimore church began the fourth Sunday and closed the following Friday night. Rev. C. G. Isley, of Lexington, came on Monday and did all the preaching until the close of the meeting. He did some of the best preaching ever heard at Baltimore church, his sermons being very forceful and convincing. There were about 25 professions, with 34 new members received into the church. The attendance was the largest we have had at Baltimore church during the writer's pastorate, the church being filled to overflowing at most of the night services.

The third quarterly conference for West Forsyth, charge was held at Baltimore church last Saturday. The morning meeting was a departure from the usual preaching service. In place of a sermon, the pastor read and explained portions of the Constitution and Discipline of the Methodist Protestant church, this being one of the duties of the pastor as prescribed in the Discipline. Following this the people assembled on the outside for the dinner which was provided by the people of Baltimore church. This was thoroughly enjoyed by the large crowd present, there being about 75 people present for the morning meeting and the dinner.

At 2 o'clock in the afternoon the conference met in business session, with the pastor presiding and the secretary, J. Henry Spens, in his place. Encouraging reports were made by the pastor and Sunday school superintendents. The pastor reported 138 pastoral visits made during the quarter and $548.94 paid on salary for the year. He also reported that three revival meetings had been held on the charge, with the following visible results: Number of professions, 53; number of new members received, 17. The result of the vote for delegate to the Annual Conference was announced, showing that Luther Poindexter, of Union Hill church, was elected by a majority of three votes. A. R. Long, of Pleasant Hill, was the other nominee in the election.

The revival meeting will begin at Union Hill church next Sunday night at 8 o'clock. We will have as pulpit help in that meeting, Rev. J. O. Fry, pastor of a group of Methodist Episcopal churches, (Northern branch) in Yadkin county. Brother Fry preached the sermon for the second quarterly conference at Union Hill church last April and the people were well pleased with his preaching and agreed to have him with us in our revival meeting.

Our regular service at Tabernacle will be held next Sunday morning at 11 o'clock. At that service we will observe the ordinance of the Lord's Supper and receive new members.

Mrs. W. W. Whitman, faithful member and steward of Tabernacle church, who has been a patient at Shattley Springs, near Jefferson, in Ashe county, for the past three weeks, is reported improving, and we trust that she will be able to return home soon.

C. B. WAY, Pastor.

Shiloh.—Shiloh is still working in the Master's vineyard. Our beloved pastor is still bringing the same powerful gospel messages that he has been bringing for the past six years. His message on Jonah on the third Sunday was forceful and its application to present day conditions timely. O that the people of even this whole nation would heed the warnings of God's messengers! Surely the only cure for this worldwide tribulation is to enthroned Jesus Christ. If we do not, we have not yet reached the worse. We earnestly hope Brother Troxler will be our pastor yet many years.

Quite a large number of Shiloh people attended the Ham revival in Lexington for the past seven weeks. The result of that campaign around Lexington was 2,000 conversions and dedications and already 600 additions to the churches of Lexington. More are expected to join soon.

Our revival meeting begins as usual on the third Sunday in August. Be there if you can, but if you cannot be present, please remember us in your prayers.

Our S. S. roll numbers 332. We had 232 present Sunday.

Yours in His service
MRS. WILEY SHOAF, Reporter.

Lexington.—South Lexington work is going along nicely. We were very glad to have Dr. Ham with us again in an extension service. Dr. Ham made an interesting talk to those who had made a profession during the meeting. At the close of the service we all went to the tabernacle in a body and there was a large crowd who went from the church in spite of the rainy weather.

We had 370 in Sunday school Sunday. In the Sunday school the matter was brought up about some work which was needed on the church and the money was raised to do this work and it is being done this week.

At the preaching service Brother Isley preached a very interesting sermon to the large crowd of people present. At the close of the service the doors of the church were opened and 22 new members were received; this makes a total of 150 new members received in five weeks.

The Ham revival closed Sunday night, there have been over 2,000 persons who accepted Christ during the meeting and over 600 of these have joined the churches of the city. The meeting was one of the most successful ever held here and Lexington received one of the greatest spiritual blessings it has ever witnessed.

REPORTER.

Hebron, Orange.—Rev. B. M. Williams delivered another one of his forceful messages at the 11 o'clock service Sunday. The attendance at this service was fair. Members of this church are no doubt staying at home and missing these messages. Many seats were vacant at this place Sunday that should have been filled by its own members. We are hoping that these places will be filled the next time.

The revival meeting will begin the Second Sunday. All day service will be held on Sunday and the services will be continued during the week.

The Sunday school is progressing in interest and attendance. The annual picnic is being discussed and will be decided later when and where this will be held.

The auxiliary met with Mrs. Lelia Gill July 23, in the afternoon. A very interesting program was rendered, and much business was transacted. After the meeting Mrs. Gill served delicious ice cream and pound cake. This added to the program as it was considerably warm. The next meeting will be held at the church. All members are urged to be present.

May we have the prayers of all the Christian people that our revival may be a success.

Burlington, First Church.—Since our last letter to the Herald, our work has been going forward in a very satisfactory manner. Attendance at both Sunday school and preaching services has been good. Today we had 299 present in the school with offering of $17.39.

Our congregation has been made very sad by the passing of Brother Ed. O. Way from this life to the larger life. The family of this deceased brother has our deepest sympathy in this hour of trial.

The Barren work is going along fine. At the last business meeting officers for the coming six months term were elected. We now have as our leaders for this term Mr. U. S. McAdams, for president; Mr. Geo. C. Smith, teacher; Mr. C. C. Lindley, assistant teacher; and Mr. Arthur Wagoner, secretary. For the past few Sundays, we have been having a visiting teacher for each lesson. The message today was brought very forcefully by Mr. Murray of Gilmore Mills. Next Sunday we are to have Bro. C. E. Wilson, teacher of a large class at Alamance Mill, to teach the class. Mr. Wilson is a very able and consecrated man and we assure that the lesson will be well taught. Mr. Carl Isley, one of our faithful class members and also member of the church, is very ill again and we hope and pray that he will soon be well, if it be the will of our Heavenly Father.

Mr. Paschal brought very helpful messages at both services today. The morning message, "God's Call to the Church," was indeed a splendid sermon and we hope that we may practice the things given us in this discourse.

The third quarterly conference will meet Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock and a large attendance of members and officers is greatly desired.

It was the writer's privilege to visit relatives on the Sapling Ridge work and while there looked over the handsome church building and grounds. The old church structure has been brick veneered and is good as new, it seems, with a number of Sunday school rooms. And one admirable feature is the building debt is fully paid. Hats off to these good people!

The Business Girls' Circle of the First church met with Misses Hallie and Mildred McPherson Tuesday evening, July 21st, at 7 o'clock at their home below Graham with 11 members and four visitors present.

A table was arranged on the porch where a most delicious supper was served, buffet style, by the hostesses. Supper consisted of fried chicken, rolls and pickles, corn on cob, sandwiches, iced tea and coconut macaroons. This was enjoyed immensely.

After the supper the guests were invited into the living room where the meeting was held. The 19th Psalm was read as the scripture by the president, followed by the Lord's Prayer. The secretary and treasurer then made their reports, after which the collection was taken amounting to $11.45.

The circle was divided into halves with a captain for each side. The plan of this was to see which side could make the most money. A list of old members was read out and the active members volunteered to see one of the old members and try to get them started back. A worship plan for the circle was discussed and acted upon. A week-end trip was planned for the near future.

Twenty-eight visits to the sick, flowers sent to five, cards to eight and trays to one were reported for the month of June. The meeting then adjourned.

Spring Church.—On the second Sunday in July, we had only Sunday school, as both pastor and people wanted to be at Lebanon to their children's service. We enjoyed being with them very much. They had a good program and Brother Lowdermilk preached a mighty good sermon, in the afternoon. His text being these words: "Can two walk together except they agree?"

Our Children's Day service was held Sunday. I consider it a great success. The children did fine, and the offering was good. Much credit is due Misses Virginia Massey, Katherine Crew and Inez Massey for training the children so well. We were very much carried away with the solo "My Task," which was sung so well by Mr. Tom Clark, of Roanoke Rapids.

On July 16th our church was the scene of a beautiful wedding, when Miss Elsie Mae Crew became the bride of Mr. T. W. Boyce, of Lumberton, N. C. The church was decorated with pines and cedars, which formed the back ground. In front of these were three large white candelabra set with white cathedral candles. On either side of the pulpit was a large basket of white cluster daisies.

The bride entered with her father, J. W. Crew, who gave her in marriage. The groom entered with his best man, Dr. Martin, of Lumberton, N. C. Miss Katherine Crew, sister of the bride was maid of honor. Messrs. Winfield and Ellis Crew, brothers of the bride, were the ushers.

Mrs. Philip Reid, of Garysburg, accompanied Miss Parker, of Murfreesboro, as she sang, "I Love You." Rev. W. M. Boyce, brother of the groom, performed the ceremony. Mr. Boyce serves the Presbyterian church at Deraville, Georgia.

Mr. and Mrs. Boyce left immediately for a northern trip. They will make their home at Lumberton, N. C.

Mrs. Boyce will be greatly missed in this community and especially in the church. We wish them a long and happy life together.

Gillburg, Vance.—Our pastor brought us a very good message Sunday morning on Loyalty to the church. The service was well attended.

Our revival meeting will begin the third Sunday in August with Rev. Ben Williams, pastor M. E. church, South Henderson, as Mr. Braxton's help.

We will be grateful for the prayers of each one. We hope our revival will be the greatest success ever.

CLARICE BLANKS, Reporter.

Bethesda.—Our revival meeting was not a failure; there were about 20 converted and reclaimed; we are proud of them. Rev. Joel B. Trogdon, helper in the meeting, delivered some very interesting sermons, preached in the old fashion way with the grace of God. On Thursday at 11 o'clock there was a special service which we called a Boquet Service; a large number of roses was landed to each member and visitor. The nature of this service was to take a rose and pin it on the man or the woman who had led them to Christ by their righteous living. A large number took part in the service; it seemed that this service brought people to feel their love towards each other. Many sent up shouts and several prayers were prayed that the church might get back to its love it once had towards each other. This service proved to be one of the best in fifty years. It seemed to reach everyone present and God poured out his richest blessings on his children. Our meeting had to come to a close Friday night as Brother Trogdon had to go home. Our greatest love and prayers go out for him for his wonderful service rendered us while in our midst.

Burlington, First Church.—The Barren class was taught today by Mr. Chas. E. Wilson, from the men's class at Alamance M. E. The message was brought very forcefully and enjoyed by all present. We invite Mr. Wilson back again.

The sermons at both morning and night by the pastor were very helpful and interesting.

The third quarterly conference was held Wednesday evening, July 29th with very good attendance of officers and members. Reports from various departments of the church work were heard and which were encouraging. Reports on votes for delegates to represent us at the Annual Conference were counted by committee at this meeting and this revealed that Mr. W. E. Smith was elected. Many items of business were passed upon at this service and we trust that we may have a splendid report at the close of the conference year.

The church and parsonage have recently been painted, which adds much to the appearance of both.

The Children's Day service is scheduled for next Sunday night and we hope for a full attendance.

The Women's Auxiliary of First church held its regular monthly meeting in the M. P. hut at 8 o'clock Monday evening, July 27th, with a goodly number present.

The devotional was conducted by Mrs. Harlan McPherson. The program was as follows:

"Homes for the Old People," Mrs. Fred Holt; "The Unexpected Guest," Miss Susie Stafford; A Study from the Missionary Secretary, Mrs. C. C. Durham.

After the program the business session followed with Mrs. M. A. Coban, president, presiding. Interesting reports from all six circles were given. Reports from the secretary and local and home treasurers were also heard. Their reports certainly showed that some one had been working. A very important business hour was held during which several important matters were brought up and disposed of.

After adjournment at Circle No. 1 served refreshments, candied cones.

Zoar, Mecklenburg Circuit.—Our revival meeting began on Thursday night, July 16, with R. V. C. B. Ferree, of Mocksville, as pulpit help. He came on Monday night and remained until Friday night. Brother Ferree was at his best, his messages were greatly enjoyed by all who heard him. He made many friends while he was with us. The people at Zoar are grateful to Brother Joyner for supplying a man that was filled and thrilled with the Holy Spirit as Brother Ferree was. We feel much indebted to the brethren and the people for their splendid cooperation and prayers. As a result of the meeting there were 15 converts and four united with the church. We bow in humble submission to Him who is over all for the converts a co-operation of the people who helped to bring results. We wish to express our appreciation for the many helpful sermons that were brought to us by Brother Ferree.

On Thursday, July 22, the Sunday school went on a picnic. Lunch was served at 1 o'clock. The afternoon was greatly enjoyed.

REPORTER.

Bulah, Mecklenburg Circuit.—Our pastor, Rev. Q. L. Joyner, filled his appointment the fourth Sunday in July at 11 o'clock with another good sermon. It seems that his sermons get better each time. We had a very large attendance which we were proud to see. Our Sunday school continues to grow each Sunday with more new members. We are all proud of our Sunday school and hope it will still continue to grow. We are also proud of our independent, Mr. C. E. Craig, Sunday school and other work of the church. We have prayer meeting most every Sunday night. We will be glad to have all that will attend.

Our Ladies' Aid society met at Mrs. C. E. Craig's home on Thursday afternoon, July 29, we were glad to receive four new members. We will have our next program at Mrs. John Phifer's home on Thursday afternoon, August 14. We will be glad to have more members join this aid.

Our revival meetings are all drawing near; our revival at Beulah will begin on the fourth Sunday in August. We are glad to say that we will have the same pupil help that we had last year during our revival, Rev. Earl Cook, of Monroe. We all pray that this may be the best revival that Beulah church has ever had. So let's all try to attend all services throughout the revival, for you certainly will miss some fine sermons if you are not present.

Best regards to the Herald and its readers.

Davidson Charge, Lineberry.—The Lineberry Christian Endeavor society was much pleased to meet with Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Frank, on Saturday evening, August 1, to hold its regular business meeting. On account of the rain we have been deprived of having our last business meeting on two. So everyone was glad to get back again. They came with new zeal, interest, and much pep, so the meeting proved to be very successful. There were around forty present. I can say for the society that everyone really enjoyed both the business and social part of the meeting. The social committee made it possible for us to enjoy an interesting hour; then we went to the dining room. Ice cream was served. My! it was good too, since the weather was so hot. It made us feel fresh and new again.

Rev. E. A. Brigham, our pastor, couldn't go with us to preach Sunday as he was away in a meeting, so Mr. W. E. Hill, one of our local preachers, of Denton, filled his appointment here at Lineberry. Mr. Hill and son, Edward, were with us for Sunday school. Mr. Hill's sermon was very helpful. We invite both back again.

On Sunday evening at 8 o'clock the children gave a program. They did well. This was given instead of Christian Endeavor. Music was furnished by Rev. Robert Short's two sons, Robert and Dexter; and splendid music it was too. Come again!

PRESS COMMITTEE.

Flat Rock Circuit.—We have held in the past month our annual revival meetings at Golden Grove, Bethel and Palestine. At each church we had a fine meeting, there being fifteen conversions, most, if not all, coming with the church. In the Palestine services we were greatly helped by the excellent sermons of Brother C. B. Way. His coming among us was greatly appreciated.

The centennial of Flat Rock church is to be celebrated the Fourth Sunday in August in conjunction with the Dixon Smithers-Williams reunion. An excellent program has been arranged, and will be printed in an early issue of the Herald.

J. P. PEGG, Pastor.

Canaan, Denton Charge.—The work in general is progressing very well. There is considerable interest shown in the Sunday school with the officers and pupils laying a fine spirit of co-operation, although the attendance is a little less than a year ago. The prayer meetings are yet quite active through the leadership of Mr. J. M. Galimore.

A series of revival services will begin Sunday morning, August 8th, at 11 a. m. and 1:30 p. m. in the afternoon. Rev. Robert Short, pastor, will be the speaker with no regular help throughout the week. Mr. Short is an "able", true gospel preacher and the public is urged to attend. Dinner will be served on the grounds.

The Randolph County Sunday school convention will be held at "Providence Friends Church" near Riddleman, N. C., August 13th and 14th. The program has been well prepared and people of this section should make it convenient to attend.

WESLEY SEXTON, Reporter.

Dulin's, Mocksville Charge.—We are still at work. The Sunday school has been very well attended in spite of the hot weather. We are planning to attend the Sunday school convention at Advance Thursday.

Rev. G. B. Ferree filled his appointment yesterday afternoon, to a small but attentive congregation. His sermon was short but truthful. It grieves the hearts of the Christians that no more of our members heard it.

Our Home-coming day was very successful. We were sorry that not any of our former pastors came. We were delighted to have with us that day Rev. William Howard, of Bethel, and also the quartet from Bethel.

The third quarterly conference will be held at Bethel on Saturday before the fourth Sunday in August. All the official members are urged to be here.

The nominees for annual conference are Mr. LeRoy Maness at Bethel and Mr. Lee Walter, of Ellettsville.

Our revival meeting will be held the fourth Sunday in August with Brother Isley as pulpit help. We ask all of our former pastors and ministers who have helped in revivals here and readers of the Herald to join us in prayer for a great revival at this church.

Best wishes to the Herald and its readers.

First Church, High Point.—The congregation was on last Sunday morning highly gratified to welcome their minister back to his pulpit after an absence of a month, spent in a trip to the World's C. E. Convention at San Francisco, and a visit to relatives in different points in Ohio. He delivered an impressive and eloquent discourse from the text in Luke 14:10, "Friend, group higher." He said in part: "This was taken from the parable of the wedding feast, and Jesus taught his hearers great truths as they gathered with him about the dinner table. It is said that the table talk of Martin Luther led to the Reformation, and the famous magazine, Edinburgh Review, was founded by a group of young laymen as they sat around the festive board. In the army the ranking officer is always seated at the head of the table. Instead of taking the chief seat you would better choose a lower one. We must not take anxiety as to the highest places, for he that exalteth himself, shall be abased." Jesus was trying to say, "In honor preferring one another." True courtesy consists in honoring others before ourselves. Jesus was the first true gentleman that the world ever saw. Robert Louis Stevenson refused to put on gloves while playing croquet with young girls who were afflicted with leprosy, lest he make them conscious of their affliction, and so wound their feelings. That prince of gentlemen, Gen. Robert E. Lee was once making a journey in a railway train, when an old lady entered the car. No one offered her a seat, but General Lee with his accustomed Southern chivalry and courtesy arose and gave her his place, when several men recognizing the chieftain, offered him their seats, but he refused them. The trouble is that some people cannot bear promotion. This parable was a rebuke to the self-seekers. The world is growing better. In our long journey across the continent from North Carolina to the Golden Gate, we did not see one man under the influence of whiskey. In Chinatown, San Francisco, we saw no opium smokers. God is asking us to move out to a higher level; He wants us to go out in the world and make it better. Man is not chiefly lands, but heart. If God wants you to go to a higher place, nothing can keep you back."

Rev. Mr. Farmer announced that there will be no Sunday evening services during the month of August, but the usual mid-week prayer services will be held on Wednesday evenings at 8 o'clock.

The two C. E. societies are continuing their meetings, the Senior society assembling each Monday evening in the Philathea room of the church, and the newly-organized society, every Sunday evening just before church services.

The meeting really should have continued another week.

Rheebeth, Creswell Circuit.—I was so glad to read a nice report of our meeting at Mt. Hermon; those people were glad to have their old pastor, Rev. R. L. Hethcox, with them. We at Rehoboth were glad to see him again and have him with us in our revival meeting. He gave us excellent sermons; the congregations were very good considering the extreme heat and thunder storms, though we were able to have services, but many were unable to attend from a distance, in the face of a storm. We had good interest but no accessions to the church.

Brother C. M. White is some better, though still confined to the bed.

Pray for success.

What has become of our Creswell reporter? Let us hear from you.

REPORTER.

Graham.—Graham has been silent recently, due largely, I presume to the fact that Miss Ruth Riley, the reporter, has taken unto herself a husband. Her new name is Mrs. John Loyd. Mrs. Loyd is a very fine young lady, being a very faithful and loyal worker of our church and Sunday school. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Riley, who are also members of our church. Mr. Loyd is a member of a prominent family of Burlington and is highly esteemed. The young couple will make their home in the Alhambra hotel for the present. Mr. and Mrs. Loyd have the very sincere wishes of the church and the pastor.

The Graham church has sustained a great loss in the passing of Brother W. C. Hornaday. He was a great and grand old man and his presence in our congregation was a constant benediction. He lived to a ripe old age and took his departure declaring the love of God which taketh away the sin of the world. Just a few weeks before his death, in reply to a question, he stated that in case he could not hear but one more sermon, he had rather hear one on the "Love of God" in preference to anything else. He shall be greatly missed in our church and community. Our sympathy goes out to those who will miss his presence most keenly.

We are very glad to welcome back to our church and town Brother C. P. Holt and family. During this absence they have spent some time in Florida and Indiana.

The most recent news from the Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Core states that they are living in English Street Church.—For several Sundays our pastor has been conducting revivals at Midway and Shady Grove churches. On the third Sunday Dr. Dixon, from the Children's Home, preached for us. On the fourth Sunday Dr. Kennett, from High Point college, filled the night appointment. We enjoyed having both of these and hope that they will come again. The past Sunday our pastor was able to be back with us. Rev. Edward Suits was the pulpit help at Midway. During the revival our C. E. society attended the meeting in a body. On the past Friday evening the Christian Endeavor organized a society at Shady Grove church.

Dinner was served on the ground in picnic style, after which a large congregation of 350 or more assembled in the church to hear brief talks from former pastors and laymen who were former members of the church. The first on the program was Rev. H. L. Powell, of Thomasville, who served the church for seven years. Rev. C. B. Wray, of Tobaccoville, Mr. H. H. Koontz, Lexington, Mr. C. A. Berrier gave a brief history of the church. Mr. Jeff Berrier, Mr. Adam Young, Mr. C. L. Hedrick, Mr. D. T. Fritts, Mr. John Leonard and Rev. Routh, a re-

IN HONOR OF THE DEAD

Johnson

Osborne Henry Johnson died July 10, 1931, aged 62 years, 7 months and 28 days. He was married to Jennie Anna Hester November 10, 1892. To this union were born four children, three girls and one boy: Mrs. Henry Johnson, Mrs. Chas. Bryan, Mrs. W. H. Perry and E. Lester Johnson, all of whom survive him. He is also survived by his wife and five grandchildren. In early life he joined Sapping Ridge Methodist Protestant church of which he was a consistent member until death. He was a devoted husband, a loving father and a good neighbor. His body was laid to rest in the Sapping Ridge cemetery. The funeral service was conducted by his pastor, assisted by Brothers Ashburn, Holmes and Pike. At the grave the Junior Order, of which he was a member, took charge. In his church he was a leader of conspicuous ability. To every member of his church he was loyal. His going will be greatly felt by his church and community.

In Memory of L. Walter Burton

The Brotherhood of Pleasant Grove Methodist Protestant church met for the June meeting in the home of W. H. Burton. One familiar face was missing, that of L. Walter Burton, Sr., who was the first president of our Brotherhood. When his name was called by the secretary there were more sad faces than had been seen at any time since the Brotherhood was organized. All felt that one of God's servants and a moving figure and loyal member of the Brotherhood had been called to his reward.

Brother Burton had been a member of Pleasant Grove M. P. church the greater part of his life, and at the time of his death was serving on the board of trustees and president of the Memorial association. He had also served as S. S. superintendent for a number of years as well as teacher in the school.

May his life of faithful service to the Brotherhood and all other organizations of the church be an incentive to point us to higher and nobler living. While we mourn his death, we rejoice that we had the privilege of knowing and working with him in the service of the Master for so long a time. We feel that not only the lives of the men of this Brotherhood are stronger and our faith more fixed upon God, but that all who came in contact with him in his daily walk of life, and observed it closely, saw something in it to lead them to the King's highway.

Whereas, God our Father, who doth all things for our good, has taken from our midst one His life-keeping, our friend and brother, who was always so near to us, and

Whereas, we feel that it has been hard to give him up and we will greatly miss his cheerful presence and loyal service, we still have the memory of a life lived for God. He has left a wonderful influence that will live on and on.

Resolved: That we bow to God's will knowing that all things work together for good to them that love and trust Him.

Resolved: That we ever cherish the remembrance of his faithfulness and devotion and may we be inspired to serve better than ever before his Master who was his Friend and Guide.

Resolved: That a copy of this tribute of love be recorded in the minutes of our Brotherhood, and that copies be sent to his bereaved wife and the Methodist Protestant Herald.

Our Friends, the Flowers

They humbly rise from out the sod
And smile on us the smile of God;
They breathe on us their fragrance rare
And sweet perfume fills all the air.

They come arrayed in garbs of grace
And make our world a charming place;
With loving look they linger near
Lest we forget their presence dear.

Our constant friends they prove to be,
Still faithful in adversity.
The flowers, the flowers! High Heaven's gift,
So freely given for our uplift.

Acting the Christ

Anton Lang felt that a great honor had been conferred upon him when he was chosen to take the role of the Christ in the great play of Ober-Ammergau. He realized the importance of his part. He must try to hear it worthily. He must try to be like the Christ in his behavior. His personal appearance must be like that of the Christ as nearly as possible. His spirit and temper must be Christ-like. And he was careful to meet all the requirements successfully.

We are all players in the great passion play of life and we are all given the part that was given to Anton Lang; we are all appointed to show forth the Christ. And we are not to be mere imitators of Christ. If that were all, we would be sorry figures. Christ himself must be in us as He was in Paul and we must be actuated by His spirit. He said, He that is with you shall be in you. Those who are living a real Christian life and not a mere imitation of it realize that they are able to do it only because of constant inward help from Christ. He said, without me ye can do nothing. Paul said, Through Christ strengthening us we can do all things. Our responsibility is far greater than that of Anton Lang. Our success or failure involves far more than his did. We are to develop the spirit of Christ within us. Our inmost being must be Christ-like. In proportion as we become profoundly like Christ can we impress with the spirit and purpose of Christ. Our own characters must be made good news of salvation. Many young people aspire to be actors on the stage. But no theater offers its actors as great a part as is offered to us all on the stage of real life.

Our high calling is not an occasional avocation but a constant vocation. We are to be always employed about this great business. No vacations are to be taken, no days are to be skipped over. There is not too much time for life's great achievement. Leaving behind the things already attained we must press forward daily to the sure acquisition of the great prize. The applause of men received by Anton Lang is a very insignificant reward in comparison with the applause of Christ which will be ours when we succeed in becoming thoroughly like Him. Our daily growth in Christ-likeness gives to life its chief joy and most glorious hope.

Time of Activity

Despite depression and unemployment this is a time of extraordinary activity in several ways. Those ambitious for office are working strenuously to advance themselves in public esteem with a view to a nomination and election next presidential year. Several of these could be named and doubtless there are others. It is also a time of strife of parties. The pros and cons are locking horns. Old issues and new issues are being thrust forward for settlement. The clash of ideas leads to the clash of arms. It is a busy time with the politicians. It is also a busy time for those working for human betterment. The world is wrong in so many ways that it requires the service of many specialists. The ministry of religion is needed with unusual urgency. Its calming influence is needed. Let men see the eternal refuge and feel the everlasting arms. Let men know that there is still balm in Gilead and a Physician there. There are no ills that God cannot cure. Let the messengers of God be more active than the office-seekers are. Let the thoughts of the idle and of the busy be turned to the living God. He alone can bring the world to its true order. He alone can change painful chaos into a pleasing cosmos.

A Point in Church Law

The impression prevails in some minds that the law of our church formerly directed that the property of an extinct isolated church should go to the nearest quarterly conference. Under present law it goes to the Annual Conference. Can any of our readers produce evidence from old copies of the Discipline or other source that the law ever was as first stated, giving the property to the "nearest quarterly conference?"

—Rev. C. W. Bates is assisting Brother Gerniger in a meeting at Hickory Ridge this week. Brother Surratt is taking his place in the mid-week prayer meeting at Calvary.

—Leon McCulloch, of the Westinghouse Manufacturing Co., Pittsburgh, Pa., is spending part of his vacation with relatives in Greensboro.

STIR UP THE GIFT THAT IS IN YOU

A Sermon Outline

By REV. LUTHER K. LONG

TEXT, I Tim. 1:6 Stir up the gift of God, which is in thee through the laying on of my hands.

Paul, as Timothy's spiritual father, was greatly interested in him. Mother Eunice and grandmother Lois were likewise to be credited with powerfully influencing the faith of this young man. The laying on of Paul's hands did not communicate the gift of God; rather, it was in recognition of God's gift, and to point out to those about that this candidate for the ministry was one in whom, and in whose fitness, the Apostle had confidence.

What Are God's Gifts?

They are various, as indicated in the twelfth chapter of I Corinthians. Instead of speaking of these in detail, I prefer to group my thoughts under four heads.

1. The gift of the power to know. History, literature, laws, philosophy, inventions, arts, sciences, religion — all these, and many more spheres of knowledge are open to us, as they are not open to the creatures below us.

2. The gift of the power of love and human fellowship. Men are political, social, and religious beings. We are together in families, schools, churches, business, society, politics — in all the multiplied relations of life, for normal human beings cannot live successfully a solitary life. The power to make the most of love and fellowship in these varied relations is a great gift.

3. The gift of the power to do. We admire the art and skill of the Baltimore oriole in building its nest, the home and the store-house of the squirrel, and the mathematical accuracy of the bee in constructing the cells of its honeycomb; but no creature has developed the variety of occupations to anything like the extent of men; and change and progress would indicate there is no limit to the achievements still ahead of him. Farming, mining, transportation, chemistry, housing, business, the professions, entertainment, and instruction form only a brief section of the list. Taking advantage of water, steam, air, electricity, radio, and the vital forces he has interest and activity without end.

4. The gift of the power to do Christian service. Christianity means growth and service. Religion is not apart from life. It should permeate, and inspire, and uplift the ideals of all life. A good Christian and a poor thinker do not make a desirable combination in the same human body. A good Christian who does not care for fellowship with other humans is scarcely conceivable. A good Christian who does nothing, who wants to sit and sing himself away to everlasting bliss, can really be found no where except in some old-fashioned hymn books.

How Stir Up These Gifts?

1. Reading and study and thinking will cause you to know. School, and society, and business should waken and direct your powers of acquisition.

2. Cultivate the expression of affectional relations. Make the most of the family, the school, the church, and social opportunities. Know each other better. Often I have heard people express regret that they had not known better the person whose funeral they had just attended.

The late Professor D. S. Stephens used to tell his classes that when he was a student in the University of Edinburgh there were also there Henry Drummond, John Watson, and Robert Louis Stevenson. He regretted not having known them better.

3. Make it your business to do more and better work as a farmer, mechanic, teacher, merchant, professional man.

4. We are specially interested in Christian service. This gift should be stirred to a flame. Religion may be defined as intelligence, education, insight, service, touched with emotion. We shall never cease to need some of the effects produced by the old revival. That had with it much evil, even as there is evil in the martial spirit so much in evidence in war time. But there must be from time to time a stirring among the dry bones, an awakening of lively interest, that there may be a distinct forward movement all along the line.

DEMOCRACY AND METHODISM

The world becomes increasingly more democratic. And that is as it should be. The right of self-determination, inherent in the very constitution of every individual, and so of every group, has had a rebirth since the World War. That most famous of Woodrow Wilson's famous Fourteen Points, assuring to every nation or people, however small or large, few or many, the right of choice of its own form of government, and its own leaders, has found a hearty response, and a glad acceptance around the world. New nations have been created in Europe as a result of the reiteration of this truth. Doubtless, the Nationalist movement of India, and the struggle to establish a Republic of China, received inspiration and impetus therefrom.

This desire for self-rule, which is of the essence of democracy, is well-nigh universal. The Christian church, of which Methodism is an active branch, is more responsible than any other organization for this abundant fruitage of its sowing of the truth of the fatherhood of God, and its corollary, the brotherhood of man, and also of the infinite worth of human personality. In holding before the state these great teachings of our Master as an ideal of right social relations within the state, the church has performed well the task of a free church in a free state, namely, the presentation of the highest moral standards for the foundations of the customs and laws of the state.

But it ill behooves the church, having exalted the ideal of democracy until it has become the accepted standard form of government for practically all the nations, to lag behind in the application of the right of self-determination to all social relations within the church itself. Should it not recognize, acknowledge, and apply this great principle of self-rule, which it has so fruitfully taught, to the relations of its ministry and laity? Does democracy obtain here? Is the present form of government of the Methodist Episcopal Church democratic? We think not. Theoretically, it may appear to be so. But after some twenty years of observation and experience of the workings of the denomination's administrative system within the old historic Baltimore Annual Conference, a typically Methodist cross-section of the whole church, I am convinced that, to say the least, the church is far from being democratic.

The nearest analogy to Methodism's present form of government that I can think of is one taken from the Middle Ages, namely, that of the old feudal system. It had a king at the top. Then came the nobility, who held their place and position as retainers and favorites of the king. After them came the great bulk of the citizenship or peasantry, who were bound to the soil. They could not move off the land save at the bidding of nobles or king.

Now, of course this figure will not stand on all fours. But generally speaking it is in some respects representative of the present administrative system obtaining in Methodism. The church has a Board of Bishops. It is made up at present of some forty-one and five-sixths (one not being of full status) bishops, but they always act as one man in all pronouncements to the church. Then come the district superintendents,

Also, there has grown up in the church a favored group who as free-lances may move from Annual Conference to Annual Conference at the pleasure or favor of some general superintendent. To this number might be added a few more who have comparative freedom to accept calls from churches within the bounds of an Annual Conference. Beyond these ministers stand from one half to two-thirds of the membership of an Annual Conference, representing the peasantry, who are bound to the appointive grades, moving only at the will of general or district superintendents and not harkening to calls, manufactured or otherwise. This, I submit, is not in harmony either with the spirit of our age or with the teachings of Christ concerning the brotherhood of man and the infinite worth of every individual.

A change, however, not only ought to come but is coming within the church in the direction of the application of self-choice to the relations between ministry and laity. The last General Conference of the church recognized the need of change in form of government to one more in harmony with the ideal of self-determination. It made possible the ratification this quadrennium of the amendment that will bring laymen into the membership of the Annual Conferences. It granted self-determination to the foreign areas. They were authorized to elect their own general superintendents, fixing the salary and term of office as they pleased.

These measures are in the right direction. I could only wish that the General Conference of 1928 had gone farther, or not so far. For I fail to understand the logic by which the members of that body concluded that the foreign areas were ready for self-government and we in America were not, as, for instance, in the matter of the election of the general superintendents for a term of years. If it is constitutional, or if they are permitted, otherwise, to elect them for eight years, if they choose, why cannot we do so here in America? Have we not had nearly one hundred years of training in democracy within the state, and have we not also had nearly as long a period of public-school preparation for intelligent self-rule, the essential to a successful representative democracy? Surely, the General Conference of 1932 will put us on the same plane in this matter of the right to elect general superintendents for eight years only, if we choose.

And I believe that the church at large is ready to choose to do just that very thing, through its representatives in the General Conference or those in the Annual Conferences, if it is submitted to them—to favor the election of general superintendents for a term of not more than eight years. This will be done in the interest of the gaining of, or the preserving of, the rule of the people.

In the state, men of the highest type count it an honor and a privilege to drop the most successful career to serve the nation for four years as President. Why should we not expect that men of the highest caliber could be found thus to serve the church for a term of eight years as general superintendent? As a matter of record, many of the general superintendents were formerly board secretaries holding office on four-year tenure only. If they were willing to leave the pastorate for a possible only four-year tenure, would not others be willing to accept a general superintendency for an eight-year term? I certainly think so.

And I think so, also, because I have observed that district superintendents do not suffer in pastoral appointments when they return to the pastorate; indeed, to the contrary, they get an equally good or a better appointment. And as a matter of fact, we have the case of one former general superintendent, Fred B. Fisher, who has returned to the pastorate of a large and influential church. The denomination is certainly indebted to him for setting this worthy example. And he has not suffered thereby, but appears to be very happy in his renewed pastorate.

Again, the state in its selection of its President every four years recognizes the necessity of so doing in the interest of the preservation of self-rule. This is based upon a right understanding of human nature. Men cannot be entrusted for long periods in positions of power over their fellow men. For, as J. R. Seeley has well said, "in difficult circumstances few men can wield extraordinary power long without positively committing crime." It is of interest to note in this connection that Fred B. Fisher said, concerning his resignation from the general superintendency, that he had found himself using the power of his office in an arbitrary way and rather than continue thus he decided to give up that office. We could only wish that some others might likewise have sensitive consciences.

For the reasons cited, and other similar ones, I am convinced that this suggested change in the form of administration, along with the companionate one of the election of district superintendents by the ministerial and lay membership of the Annual Conferences, would help to make the Methodist Episcopal church democratic. The latter measure hardly needs argument or explanation concerning its democratic leaning. It should be said, however, that these district superintendents, who to all practical purposes hold economic control over the ministers, with the exceptions noted before, of an Annual Conference, should be responsible to the ministers of the districts they serve, rather than, as they now are, to the general superintendent who appoints them.

In conclusion, just this further word should be said, namely, that the adoption of these measures by the church would not bring democracy fully within it, but they would be kept forward along the road upon which the last General Conference ventured. And let us not forget that in an age that becomes more democratic daily, and with a ministry and laity that are becoming more intelligent constantly, Methodism can have no future apart from democracy within all its social relations. Democracy and Methodism, in a word, it is a case of "United, they will stand; divided, Methodism, not democracy, will fall." But she will not fall; for democracy is coming, as it must come even in Methodism. Only, let us speed its coming. So note it be,—Alvin T. Perkins in Zion's Herald

PATIENCE

All progress depends on patience.

Patience begets thoroughness and development is the outcome, the outgrowth of thoroughness. The universe in which you live represents evolution not simply of millions of years but millions of cycles. There is really no basis for comparison between the age of the universe and your time measurement, the earth year. In all of the operations of nature, in the countless readjustments that are taking place in electrons, atoms and molecules, there is thoroughness. Every change without respect to how seldom or how prolonged it may be is always true to natural law.

During your sojourn in the earth world, the natural changes are few; precisely as there were geological eras in the past, there is a geological era in progress at this time. You are unaware of its existence; it progresses slowly. To you the mighty suns that are visible in the midnight skies, the suns which you call stars occupy unchanging positions. It may be centuries before these heavenly bodies will seem to have changed their positions at all and yet they are traveling thousands of miles every day.

When mortals compare the progress of individuals with the changes in nature, they will be inclined to admit that human progress has remarkable speed. It seems such a short time from early school days of the child to that child's maturity and commercial success. You often may feel impatient because you are not succeeding better; with the passing days, you think that you must hurry, that everything has to be done quickly, if it is to be accomplished at all. This idea is a mistake; there are other things to consider. Of these, patience is the greatest because it brings discernment, it promotes understanding, it makes you thorough in whatever you do. Patience does not mean procrastination. The person who is really patient also is diligent; he makes the best of the opportunities before him without respect to their limitations. Be patient in your work, in your studies and in your thought. Let others roll ahead but have patience of thoroughness with yourself.

There are many flashes of success in life around and about you; there are examples of what seem to be sudden achievement. If you will observe you will find that these seeming examples of success divide themselves into two classes. The larger of these classes consists of temporary achievements, the smaller consists of the culmination of prolonged patient effort that finally has born fruit. The person who suddenly steps into the realm of fortuitous achievements may step out of it just as quickly. He has not learned the reasons that brought him success; therefore he has not learned the conditions that will retain that success.

The impatient person never does things thoroughly and rarely learns why he does them, or else he moves in a disturbed atmosphere, breaking the circuit of spirit assistance. Instead of attracting aid from his guides, he repels them; they try as patiently as ever but the impatient mortal upsets the forces that would bring him assistance.

Patience attracts guidance. It invites impressions and inspiration. Patience is a magnet. If everything went the way you would like to have it go, how much would you learn? You may desire the things that are worse for you; you may pursue ambitions that will bring you nothing but regret if you obtain them.

Let me repeat that patience is not laziness. The indolent man claims that he is patient but patience exists only where there is continuous earnest effort.

God is patient; the spirit world is patient because those in spirit recognize more clearly the purpose and plan of the Creator. All of the evils of the earth world can not be eliminated suddenly. Man can not overcome all his mistakes and ignorance in a hurry. Learn the lesson of patience and be faithful to the teachings of patience every day. Make it a law of your existence. Edward C. Ray in Knickerbocker Press.

"ONCE UPON A TIME"

"Let me tell a few incidents of real life, told to us one evening by my grandfather," writes the author of essay number 35, written for the Annual Church-Wide Prohibition Essay Contest of the Board of Temperance, Prohibition and Public Morals of the Methodist Episcopal church. Then follow the tales told by the grandfather of the high school pupil who writes the essay:

"If people could have seen all that I saw the winter I was night policeman in a small town where saloons were running full blast," remarked Grandfather, "they wouldn't need any arguments to make them teetotalers. Night after night I was called into saloons to take men home who were too drunk to go alone. Such homes! Poverty stricken and generally full of half starved children, who kept out of sight when their father came home drunk.

"A little boy came to me one cold winter night and said that his father came home drunk and drove them all out of the house. I returned with him and found the mother and five children huddled together in a chicken coop to keep from freezing to death.

"Farmers drove to town with their produce, and after disposing of it, entered the saloons where they stayed until every penny was spent; then they were often dumped into their sleighs to be taken home by their faithful horses, minus the groceries expected by the family.

"A team, apparently without a driver, came by me one night and stopped near one of the saloons. Upon investigation, I found a man lying in a drunken stupor, in the bottom of the wagon box. The blankets covering him had caught fire and were slowly burning. With help I got him into the jail to spend the night.

"Never once was that old jail empty, while I was night watchman. Times without number I was asked to take care of teams standing out with no blankets over them.

"Women didn't go into the saloons often, but they got drunk, just the same, on whiskey carried to them and they were participants in drunken fights quite often.

"Liquor was sold to minors. More than one saloon keeper had to pay a fine on such charges—and for every fine paid there were dozens which should have been imposed, and weren't. What could not lawfully be handed out from the door and over the bar, was handed out the back."

Story after story of the "good old days" came from the old night-policeman.

"You ought to see that town now," he concluded. "Everybody has plenty and the farmers are among the best in the state. The homes are kept up and the children taken care of."

And the writer of the essay, who in all probability has not seen a half-dozen intoxicated persons all his life, concludes:

"After Grandfather had finished we all sat silent, trying to get rid of lumps in our throats."

TRIBUTE TO PETER

General Bramwell Booth of the Salvation Army once told a good story of his illustrious father and himself. "The old general," he said, "had a great liking for Peter, but I always thought him a rather wobbly type. On one occasion I said to my father, 'How do you explain the circumstances of Peter's getting out on the water and seeing Jesus, and then with all this to convince him, suddenly losing his faith and sinking?' Well do I remember the old general's reply, 'Bramwell, my boy, you would never have gotten out of the boat.'"—Free Churchman.

DEATH PUTS AWAY SINS

An officer was waiting in his room, and not knowing how to spend the time, he turned over the leaves of a Bible, which lay on the table. Just a trifling action, and one of little moment we would say, but God was in it to the careless, frivolous soldier. The words caught his eye, "The Blood of Jesus Christ His Son cleanseth us from all sin," and they were the means of the salvation of Captain Hedley Vickers. Henceforth he lived as a man should live who has been washed in the precious Blood of Christ, till his name became fragrant mid scenes of war or peace the world over; and through his words and devoted life many became followers of the Lamb.

Did you ever think that the only thing that blots out sin is blood! that is, death and judgment. What a terrible thing sin is, when it needs such a remedy; no tears, nor prayers, nor good feelings can put away our sins, nothing but death. But here comes in the sweet sound of the Gospel; it was Christ Himself that died instead of us, and by faith we see that we died in Him, so that God can now justify us freely through our Lord's death on the Cross.—Faithful Words.

THE DOG THAT KNEW SUNDAY

The missionaries' home and the home of the young French couple stood side by side on a pleasant street in an attractive Brazilian city. One wall divide the houses, and another wall—a high, stone one, with broken bottles on top—divided the yards at the rear.

The missionary family rose early, and opened both back and front doors, not only for the delightful morning breezes to pass through, but to admit the milk and the bread. Their French neighbors were not early risers and had arranged for their milk and bread to come later.

Something else traveled through the missionary home besides that fragrant morning air. And that was the French lady's dog, Achille. He seemed to have an appointment with some of his dog friends between six and seven o'clock every morning, and in some way had discovered an easy way to reach the street. The jagged glass—so formidable to thieves—had no terrors for him. With one bound he was over the wall. Up our back steps he dashed—yes, we were the missionaries—tore over the long veranda, through the house, down the front steps, and landed on the pavement in time to keep his engagement.

It was amusing to watch the handsome creature in his rapid transit, and we thought he was rather clever to have discovered that way of reaching the street.

But Achille soon made a clever discovery. He learned to know Sunday when it came! And this was the way of it:

Every Saturday we bought a double supply of bread and on Sunday we used only canned milk, so that the front door remained closed until time to start for Sabbath school. Madame's dog came over a few times on that morning, gave a puzzled look at the fast-shut door, grumbled some uncomplimentary remark deep down in his throat, and with banging tail retreated the way he came. Six days of the week he made that eager rush for the street, but on the Sabbath he remained upon his own side of the wall; and never again did he seek on that day the short cut he had discovered. His human friends might never know his thoughts on the subject, but—Achille had learned to know Sunday.—Mary Hoge Wardlaw, in The Presbyterian.

HOW THEY CONQUERED

William Bramwell, who to this day stands out as one of the most eminent of Methodist evangelists, spent six hours a day in secret prayer. Few could imitate him now, but how very few even approach him! It is said of David Stoner, that if all the time could be calculated which he spent in prayer, it would amount to no inconsiderable portion of his life. Of "Uncle John Vassar," the Tract Society colporter, successful almost beyond comparison in his dealings with men, his pastor says: "He absolutely prayed day and night—prayed about everything, prayed over everything, prayed for almost everybody he met. He prayed when he went out and prayed when he came in. He prayed before every religious service, and then prayed all the way through it. I have occupied the same room with him night after night, and rarely went to sleep without hearing him at prayer."—Publisher Unknown.

Herald Subscriptions

High Point, First, is standing at the front now. Their allotment of 73 is third from the highest in the conference. They have surpassed all other charges in the number of subscriptions received, having raised their allotment with a plus of 11 1-2. Their goal now is 100, and they will no doubt arrive there shortly. The subscription campaign at this church has been handled by a committee of laymen headed up by Mr. E. L. Douglas. The matter has been enthusiastically pressed, and with results as stated. We wonder if this isn't an illustration of what might be done at other churches?

That BLACK LINE is now above 900. It should go up high during the next three months—these closing months of the conference year. Let's determine to go to conference this year with much the largest subscription list that the HERALD has ever had. This would be a worthy recognition of the value of the paper, and likewise of the 35 years of sacrificing work of the Editor.

Paid in Full

Pastor Suits tells us that Bethel church is out on the A. C. B. So far as we are informed, this church has the distinction of being the first to pay this budget this year. If this is not correct, we shall be glad to have information to that effect. We congratulate Pastor Suits and his people. Bethel is a progressive church. The membership is not large, but interested and active. Sunday School rooms have been added to their church this year. When "the people have a mind to work," much can be accomplished. What is done hinges more on this than on a money panic. One pastor told us a few days ago that he was taking monthly offerings at each of his churches for the budgets. He encouraged us further by a hopeful outlook as to finances for the year. Money is tight; we all know that. But it is not all tight, and more of it can be set free for the purposes of God than, perhaps, we think. A time like this demands great faith and great courage. How God will bring things to pass for his purposes may not always be exactly clear to us. But it is clear to Him, and in the confidence of that fact let us press our work hopefully and joyously.

A Message to the Churches on Evangelism

"In times of religious stress and crisis the voice of God is heard speaking in unmistakable terms to those who seek to know and do His will. We believe that such a time is now upon us and that his call must not be disregarded. His message to the souls of men transcends in importance all temporary questions of social and political concern. Religion stands in the relation of cause and effect to all social reform and progress. We, therefore, urge that the church put first things first.

"At a time when the fires are burning low on the altars of many hearts, and some churches seem to have lost the yearning soul and a passionate devotion, a new Pentecost must fall upon the church or we are undone. Judgment must begin at the altars of God. The hearts of those who minister there in holy things must be cleansed and their love renewed and their lips touched with a live coal from off God's altar. We long to hear again the old prophetic cry, 'Here am I! Lord, send me.' Questioning and disputation which eventuate in nothing and benumb the soul and chill devotion must be laid aside. The superlative task of the ministry is to win men and women to the personal experience of Jesus Christ, the Saviour of men.

"We are interested in social questions, but we are fully persuaded that we shall never find real solutions of social problems until we have a far more spiritual conception of life. We must make a new appraisal of values and give ourselves with uncalculating devotion to those things which are supreme. Matters of eternal life and death are at issue. The sins that broke the Saviour's heart and sent Him to the cross should also break ours."—Federal Council's Commission on Evangelism.

This is a ringing message on the most vital matter of the church, and I am giving this excerpt here with the hope that it may be read with interest and effectiveness by our HERALD readers. And let me urge again that we pray earnestly every day for the rich blessings of God upon the evangelistic meetings that are on now in many of our churches.

Sunday, August 9

We were at home with the family on this date, and worshiped with them at First church, High Point, in the morning and with the Calvary congregation at night. Brother Farmer is back from the San Francisco C. E. convention, and is renewing his work with his accustomed vigor. We found Bro. H. F. Surratt substituting for Brother Bates at Calvary. Brother Bates is with Brother Gerringer this week in a revival meeting on the Forsyth charge. We were glad of the opportunity to worship in each of these services. Brother Surratt has had a year's leave of absence during which time he has studied at Yale Divinity school. He expects to re-enter the work of the conference this fall. We shall be glad to have him back with us in the work.

Children's Home

Dr. Dixon is finding it difficult to get his money and his needs together. For more than a year there has been a marked falling off in monthly contributions to the Home, owing, as every one understands, to the tight money condition that prevails everywhere. But that does not help Dr. Dixon meet his expenses. However, it does show that his shortage is not due to any lack of loyalty on the part of our people to the Home. No other institution in the conference has so large a place in the hearts of our people. Just as soon as money is easier they will demonstrate this by more generous contributions. In the mean time, we urge that every church make a monthly contribution for the support of these 100 children that we are rearing to manhood and womanhood and to places of usefulness in life. If our 232 churches would do this, and make the offering as generous as possible, the shortage in running expenses would greatly be reduced. Pastors and superintendents, please see that the Home is kept before your people.

September and October

The first has been designated as the time in which the special allotment for superannuates is to be raised. The second is tithing month. Both are in accord with the order of the last annual conference. The special allotment for superannuates is listed with the different apportionments in the Journal. The amount is not large for any church. We trust that pastors and church officials will take this up very earnestly and raise the full amount in September.

We called attention last week to what the tithe would amount to on the basis of an average annual income of our people of $300. If we would give our tithe during this one month of October the church would receive $75,000. What a vast difference that would make in the financial reports of the year. Salaries would be paid in full. Budgets would be paid in full. The Board of Church Extension could pay its allotments and a large part of its indebtedness. Instead of paying our superannuates a maximum of $160 we could pay them $500. The maintenance fund for High Point College—$20,000—would be paid in full. This is a conservative estimate, I think, of what we could do if we could only get the tithe of our people during this one month. Surely the effort is worthwhile, and one that should meet the approval of both head and heart. Let's do this thing, brethren. To His glory, let's do it.

ATTENTION PASTORS

I presume that all delegates to the next annual conference have been elected by this time. It is important that I have the list so conference committees can be made up. Just the name on a postal card is sufficient. If pastors will attend to this at once, I shall be grateful.

"YOU CAN'T HURT A CHRISTIAN"

Most every one has his pet sayings or favorite expressions. It is well if these frequent sayings carry some lofty truth. Several years ago there was a Methodist preacher whose frequent remarks in the pulpit and out was, "You can't hurt a Christian." Years afterward, when another preacher served the same charge, on every hand, he would hear the people remark, "As brother — used to say, 'You can't hurt a Christian.'" If that preacher had left no other thought indelibly impressed upon his people except this familiar expression, his ministry would not have been called a failure. The fact is, that brother was giving one of the vital teachings of Christianity. "Fear not," were words often upon our Master's lips. There was only one thing the Master told the people to fear—fear to do wrong.

The true child of God has great immunity from the ills of this world. Not that he escapes sorrow, suffering, pain, or death; but in all of these he is, as Paul says, "more than conqueror." When the early Christians were being persecuted so severely, Peter wrote them to "rejoice, inasmuch as ye are partakers of Christ's sufferings." He told them that "the Spirit of glory and of God" rested upon them when such fiery trials came upon them. And how insignificant are our little trials compared with the trials of the early Christians!

Augustine lived at a time when it cost something to be a follower of Jesus Christ, and in the following words he taught that, "You can't hurt a Christian."

"Having considered and examined into these things closely, now see whether any evil can happen to the good and faithful which ought not to be converted into a blessing for them. . . . They lost all that they had. But did they lose their faith? Did they lose their Godliness? Did they lose the treasures of the heart? This is the wealth of the Christian. . . . Wherefore, our dear friend Paulinus, the Bishop of Nola, a man of the amplest means, who in the fullness of his heart became extremely poor, yet abundantly sanctified, after the barbarians had looted the country, and while he was kept a prisoner in bonds, used to pray in his heart, as I afterwards learned from him—'Lord, let me not be troubled for gold or silver, for where all my treasure is, Thou knowest.'"—Texas Christian Advocate.

MUELLER DEFINES FAITH

What is faith? In the simplest manner in which I am able to express it, I answer: Faith is the assurance that the thing which God has said in His Word is true, and that God will act according to what He has said in His Word. This assurance, this reliance on God's Word, this confidence, is faith.

At first I was able to trust the Lord for ten dollars, then for a hundred dollars, then for a thousand dollars, and now, with the greatest ease, I could trust Him for a million dollars if there were occasion. But first I should carefully, deliberately examine and see whether what I was trusting for was something in accordance with His promises in His written Word.—George Mueller.

BETTY'S COUNTRY FRIENDS

The engine gave a shrill whistle as it neared the depot and the people on the platform of the station gave a sigh of relief for the train was twenty-five minutes late.

"There she is!" exclaimed Grandma Morris, pointing into the crowd which was leaving the train. "That little girl with the red tam."

Grandpa Morris hobbled along on his crutch behind Grandamut Rose and Granduncle Steve.

"Heigh-o, Betty!" called Grandpa.

The little girl in the red tam looked up and two little dimples showed on her two pink cheeks. Yet she looked a little shy.

"How-do-you-do?" she said, skipping up to the old folks.

Such a welcome she got, for she was the only young one in the family and this was her first visit to the country where her father had lived as a boy.

Then they all got into the family car while Grandpa drove slowly and carefully up to his house which was eight miles from the station. Such a pleasant old place it was, shaded by big maples, a smooth green lawn stretching down to the flower beds, beyond which a tall hedge screened it from the road.

Betty had traveled a long way by herself from the big western city in which she lived to this quiet New England farm, but she was not a bit tired. Grandpa and Grandamut Rose insisted on washing her and changing her clothes and they made her lie down in the hammock and drink a glass of warm milk.

"Get out that little set of dishes for Betty to play with," Grandamut said to the young hired girl. "And bring a pair of scissors and some magazines for her to cut out."

"Wouldn't you rather color some pictures?" inquired Grandamut Rose.

"Please," said Betty, "I'd like to walk around. I've been sitting so long on the train."

As she stepped off the porch she heard Grandpa say: "The little lass is going to find it pretty lonely here with just us old folks."

She turned back with her little smile and shook her head, then she went eagerly down the little walk. There was the lawn all around, but no more walks. She looked longingly at the grass. There were no signs with "Keep Off the Grass," but Betty looked doubtful.

"May I walk on the grass?" she asked.

They all laughed at that.

"Why, what's it for if not to walk on?" chuckled Grandpa. "This isn't a public park, my dear, just romp on it, roll on it and do just as you please."

How good the soft grass felt under the feet of the little city girl! Softer than carpet. She ran over to a little brook bounding the lawn at one side. There were rocks in it to step on and after a while she saw skippers and minnows and little trout in the water. Before she knew it, it was time for supper.

"We really ought to get another child here to play with Betty," worried Grandma. "Did you have many friends in the city, dear?"

"Oh, lots and lots," replied Betty, "but please don't think I'm lonely. This is all so different and I can hardly wait till tomorrow to see some more of it and walk on the grass again."

They laughed at that, then Granduncle Steve said:

"We might get her a cat or dog for company, if it wasn't for Carrie (that was Grandma) and Rose. Carrie is afraid of cats and Rose hates dogs."

Betty opened her eyes wide.

"But I don't need a cat or a dog," she said. "I have one of each at home."

"We used to keep a horse and a cow and chickens and a pig when we were running the farm," said Grandpa, "but we're all so old now we've given up farming."

"Please don't mind it on my account," said Betty earnestly. "You are plenty of company for me. I'm so happy because I'm allowed to walk on the grass and wade in the brook. We're not allowed to at home."

Still the old folks did worry. They never had seen a child like Betty. She was so contented. They heard her talking to herself down in the garden and shook their heads.

"Tisn't right," said Grandma.

She didn't know of the hosts of friends Betty had picked up until one day she brought some of them on the porch and introduced them.

"I'd like you to meet Singer and Skipper," she said in her quaint little way. "See?"

Down in the bottom of the preserve jar she carried was a little grass and clover on which sat a bright black cricket and a long green grasshopper.

"Say, 'how-do-do,'" she instructed the creatures.

The cricket lifted its little wings and began ruffling them very fast and soon his cheerful creak filled the air and the grasshopper took a leap and landed on Grandma's wrist.

"Well, well," smiled the old lady. "Pleased to meet you, I'm sure. Perhaps you'd like a bit of tea with us."

Grandpa had just peeled and cut up an apple for Grandma a beautiful pale yellow apple. Grandma lifted a bit from the pretty yellow plate on which it lay and offered some to Skipper. You should have seen the greedy little fellow eat! Betty laughed with delight. Then Singer was taken out of his jar and given some.

"I've got some ants," said Betty, "a whole family down by the brook, and there's Peter, my trout, and Daddy, my old spider at the garage. He likes to throw flies into his web. When you're rested I'd like to take you over and introduce you."

"I'm rested," said Grandma, jumping up and putting her visitors back into their jar. "I'd like to be introduced."

So down into the garden trooped Grandma, Grandpa and Grandamut Rose and Granduncle Steve.

"Was there ever such a child?" they asked them.

"I wish I could stay here forever and ever," Betty was saying. "There's so many wonderful things and such darling playmates. Of course, I miss Daddy and Mother, but I am having such a lovely time!"

"And you're sure you aren't lonely?" asked Grandma anxiously. "Nothing but old folks here."

"Of course I'm not lonely," said Betty a little indignantly. "You are all so nice and I have hundreds of friends."

They had to agree after they had visited all over the garden. Even Slip, the little green garter snake, was not neglected in his cool retreat under a stone. Matilda, named for Betty's best friend in the city, was a lovely frog who liked to have her back scratched, and the family of ants was named the Joneses, after some neighbors of Betty's.

"So you see," said Betty, "how could I be lonely with such nice friends—so many of them—too?"

Grandma squeezed the child to her.

"You'll never be lonely," said she, "you aren't the lonely kind. But there'll be a very lonesome feeling here after you've gone."—Selected.

HOW MARY MADE FRIENDS

Mary was a very fortunate little girl. She lived in a nice home with a lovely lawn all around and plenty of room to play. She had any number of tops, but still she was not quite happy. "I don't see," she said to her Aunt Mary one day, "why all the children will stay over at Jane's and play with her so much more than they will play with me. Her dolls are not half so nice as mine, and she has hardly any toys. Besides, she isn't very pretty and her hair is as straight as a stick. And look how much room we have here."

Now, Aunt Mary loved her little name-sake very much, and she hated to see her unhappy. So she was sorry to have to say what she felt was the real reason that Mary was alone so much of the time. "You know," she said slowly, stroking her little niece's bright curls, "straight hair does not necessarily make one unattractive. Haven't you often heard grandma say that 'pretty is, as pretty does'? Maybe Jane is nicer about letting the other children play with her dolls and her toys than you are. Does Jane ever say 'Don't take that carriage. That's mine'? I don't believe she would ever say to the other children, 'You'll have to play the game that I want, because aren't we playing on my lawn?'"

Then Mary's little head began to hang down a bit. She remembered having said almost exactly those words. And she remembered, too, some things she felt sure Aunt Mary didn't know about, how she had hid candy and just slipped bites of it when the others were around and she thought they weren't looking, and other things like that.

Then she glanced up. "Aunt Mary," she asked slowly, "do you think if I wouldn't be selfish that the other children would like better to play with me?"

"Well," answered her aunt, "I couldn't be sure, but I don't think selfish people have so many friends and they are never as happy as their unselfish friends even if they have ever so many more toys."

"All right," said Mary, "you don't know, and I don't know, but I'm going to find out if being selfish has kept me from having friends."

She was as good as her word and often after that when she wanted to ride her bicycle herself she would remember just in time and say, "Let's take turns riding so we can all have fun." She learned to play the games that her playmates wanted, and she was surprised to find that very often they would make her choose a game. She found, too, that a little bit of candy shared with her friends tasted better than lots more eaten "on the sly."

It was not long until the children all came to Mary's lawn to play, Jane along with the rest. Before Mary was through her lunch, she would hear "Ma-ree," and she never more had to beg her friends to come over and play with her.—The Christian-Evangelist.

VERY LIKELY

When you start to hammer

Some poor soul who's gone astray,

'Twill do no harm to stop and think

You might lose your grip some day.

What's the use to kick a man

When he's just about to fall?

If you do not care to help him,

Why mention him at all?

You will find, if you take notice,

That what I said is true.

While there may be faults in others,

There's a flaw or two in you.

—Clipt from Rays of Sunshine.

THE WORD "FRIEND"

The word "friend" has a double meaning. My friend is a man to whom I can open my heart, also a man who is kind and friendly towards me; the term always implies a certain amount of intimacy. The Jews called the Lord "the friend of sinners," and truly He was so. He called His disciples His friends, because He had communicated to them all that the Father had given Him. Any familiarity with the Lord impresses me painfully, and I consider it carnal even when it is linked with piety. He is not ashamed to call us brethren. In this last sense it is quite improper to imply the word to Jesus, and to call Him our Brother. But if we say, what a wondrous Friend of sinners Jesus was when He gave Himself upon the cross, or, what a Friend of sinners is the Jesus who ever lives to intercede for us, the thought assumes quite another character, but we must avoid a freedom which is not becoming.—J. N. Darby.

HAVING A PLAN

It will be a great help to have special seasons set apart for the study of the Bible, accompanied with such earnest prayer for the sanctifying influences of the Holy Spirit. The Word of God fixes a very high standard of spirituality, and tells us that to "be spiritually-minded is life and peace."

Nothing should be allowed to interfere with our hours of private devotion. It is the habit of some Christians to take in the morning a short portion of Scripture to meditate upon during the day; and amid the pauses of business or as they have opportunity their minds recur to it. This is an excellent plan. It brings the soul into direct contact with God.—Dr. Robert Boyd, in Keswick Calendar.

FROM PASTORS and PEOPLE

Concord, Savanahaw Charge.—Our revival meeting began the fourth Sunday evening in July and ran over until Sunday afternoon, August 2nd.

Much good was done during the week. The Junior choir was organized; they sang some selections at each service. Mrs. H. G. Hargrove being their leader.

Brother Braxton preached two good sermons each day during the week. We believe that his messages will always live in our hearts.

We had our Children's Day service, instead of Sunday school Sunday morning, in order to give Mr. Braxton the pulpit at the 11:00 o'clock hour.

We were glad to have the Junior quartette from Burlington, to sing for us, but were sorry that they could not remain for the day.

At the close of the services we were glad to meet Mrs. R. S. Woody to our church by letter. We give her a cordial welcome, as we know she will make a loyal member.

Best wishes to the Herald and its readers.

BESSIE COBLE, Reporter.

Roberta Station.—The revival meeting closed Sunday night. The result wasn't what we expected. We didn't get the exact number of conversions. There was one addition to the church, that being Mrs. Lloyd Love.

The Township Sunday school convention will be held in our church Sunday, August 16. Bonnie Pitt, who is secretary of our Sunday school, is president of the convention. A program is being prepared.

There will be several speakers present. There will also be good singing. The program will begin about 7:30 p. m. Everybody has an invitation to come that evening.

REPORTER.

West Forsyth.—Services at two churches last Sunday were fairly well attended, considering the extremely warm weather. We were at Tabernacle at 11 a. m. The pastor was pleased to have his nephew, Rev. C. L. West, of Ashboro, with him, who preached to the Tabernacle congregation. The subject of the sermon was "The Son of God." Rev. Mr. West is a young man who is preparing for the ministry in the Baptist church. His father, W. H. West, accompanied him for a visit over the weekend with the pastor and family.

The revival meeting began in Union Hill church Sunday night with a good attendance. According to previous arrangement, Rev. J. O. Fry, of the Methodist Episcopal church, was present and delivered the sermon, discussing the theme, "Service unto the Lord." He will be the preacher during the series of services being held there this week.

Painting of Pleasant Hill church, both inside and outside, also the benches and pulpit furniture, is being completed this week. The work, which has been under the direction of Rufus Myers, a member of the church, and experienced painter, was started about two weeks ago. The painting will be a great improvement, and the church will have a beautiful appearance. This movement had been contemplated for the past two or three years, and the people are pleased with the finished work.

This writer appreciates the kindly assistance of Rev. Hubert Gwynn, a young Baptist preacher, of Yadkin county, who has preached at Union Hill, Pleasant Hill and Stony Knoll churches during the past few weeks, substituting at these churches during the revival season when the pastor was engaged in meetings at other churches.

Members of Pleasant Hill church gathered at the parsonage some time ago and made some needed improvements by building new steps to the front porch and putting new lattice work all around the house. There were 35 of the men, women and children who came, bringing their dinner, which was enjoyed together in the parsonage. Other improvements on the parsonage are contemplated in the near future.

We have received gifts of several things during the past few weeks which have not been reported. We thank the following for gifts: Speas Sprinkle, Mrs. J. F. Hunter, Mrs. C. G. Hunter, Mrs. W. B. Speas, Mrs. A. R. Long, Mr. and Mrs. Pearson Sprinkle, Mrs. W. A. Long and Mrs. J. B. Phillips.

Next Sunday, August 16, will be a big day at Pleasant Hill church. The Long Sprinkle family reunion will be held, and the annual revival meeting will begin. Features of the day will be a sermon at 11 a. m., dinner about 1:00 o'clock, and a musical program in the afternoon. Rev. J. P. Pegg, pastor of Flat Rock charge, will be with us to preach Sunday morning and during the following week. The Thomasville Male chorus will render a program of vocal music during the afternoon. There will be preaching at 8 o'clock Sunday night and twice daily during the week.

C. B. WAY, Pastor.

Rockingham Charge.—The members of the Christian Endeavor are carrying the work right along. They want to see the Sunday school grow, and the members take a more active part. We would like for all the young people to join the Christian Endeavor. It is an organization that strengthens one and makes better church members.

The Christian Endeavor is planning to furnish one of the girls music. In order to get funds for this they are planning to have a trip around the world, Friday evening, July 24.

Our Sunday school attendance has not been as good as we would like to have had this month, nevertheless we hope to have a better attendance next month.

RUBY MARTIN, Reporter.

Harmony, Yarbrough Charge.—The Ladies' Auxiliary held its regular meeting the fourth Saturday afternoon at the home of Mrs. G. B. Taylor.

Our meeting began the fourth Sunday and closed a week later. Our pastor, Rev. D. D. Browne, had for his pulpit help, Rev. N. G. Bethea, former pastor of the church. We feel that much good was accomplished in these services. Mr. Bethea delivered some very helpful and inspiring messages in both morning and evening services. Attendance was unusually good in spite of the hot weather which which so often keeps people from attending church. We believe that both ministers put forth every effort possible to make this meeting a success. Mrs. Bethea was also with us and it was indeed a great pleasure to have them in our town.

The third quarterly conference was held the fourth Sunday afternoon at our church. Mr. W. H. Balentine was elected delegate to the annual conference.

One of our most faithful members, Miss Kate Medlock, has been sick at her home some time. We were very glad, however, to see her able to attend services last week.

EDNA HUGHES, Reporter.

Liberty, Davidson Circuit.—The church work is doing right well at present. We have our Sunday school every Sunday with a right good attendance. On the third Sunday at 2:30 o'clock our former pastor, Rev. T. F. McCulloch, filled the regular appointment at our church, as our pastor was away at that time attending his home church. Mr. McCulloch preached a very interesting sermon. I am quite sure all present enjoyed the sermon. We hope he enjoyed the visit and will come back again.

Davidson charge have agreed to pound the M. P. orphanage home on the 27th and 28th of this month. The manager is to send a truck and collect the goods.

On the fourth Sunday is the Township Sunday school convention to be held at Oak Grove church, all day services.

On the fourth Sunday our pastor begins his revival work at Pine Hill. We wish for them much success.

On the third Sunday in August is the time set to begin the revival meeting at Liberty. We are hoping and praying for a great revival. We hope for a real good attendance, for we need the cooperation and prayers of the church workers, so we invite one and all to come.

ANNIE HILL, Reporter.

Granville Circuit.—We held a union meeting of the Missionary Auxiliaries of this charge at the parsonage. The societies were very well attended, there being about 60 present, and all seemed to have a good time. At the close of the meeting they presented us with a shower or pounding, which was a pleasant surprise to us. We want to thank very much those who had a part in this, and we want to invite you to come again.

On the first Sunday in July we began our meeting at Redoubt church, the pastor did the preaching. Mrs. Tillotson and Mrs. Loyd assisted the choir with the singing, and gave us several duets. We had a good revival here; the church was revived, 15 young people converted, and 15 accessions to the church.

We began our revival at Mt. Carmel on the second Sunday in July, the pastor did the preaching here; we had a splendid meeting here, with one accession to the church. This makes 15 accessions to this church last year and this year together. At the close of the revival here they gave us a pleasant surprise by presenting us with a nice purse as an appreciation of our services.

On the fourth Sunday in July we began our revival at Union Chapel church and closed the first Sunday night in August. The pastor did all of the preaching here; the crowds were very good, and the church revived, there were five conversions and five accessions to the church. After we had closed the services and were almost ready to leave for home, they gave us another pleasant surprise when one of the good women of the church gave us a nice purse that they had made up during the meeting. We want to thank every one that contributed as we did not have the privilege of doing so that night. This ends our revivals on this work. We will be with the pastor of Littleton charge next week, and with Brother Williams on the Orange charge week following the fourth Sunday; after this we will go to western North Carolina for a few days' rest.

C. L. SPENCER, Pastor.

Albemarle.—The third Sunday of July was Children's Day. The beautiful program prepared by our board of missions was most beautifully rendered. Because of our revival and some other special service in the early part of the season it was necessary to have the Children's Day service later in the season than it otherwise would have been observed. This made the service in the extreme weather but in spite of the weather we had a good attendance and every one was well pleased with the occasion. An offering of $14.00 was contributed for missions.

Quite a number of our people are now on vacations and it has caused our congregations to be somewhat depressed.

Our people are very much enthused over the coming anniversary service which is to be celebrated October 11. The church is rounding out its 22nd year and we are anxious to have a great celebration. $2,200.00 is to be laid on the church altar as the birthday gift. President Taylor is to be the principal speaker.

The oldest member of our church, Brother Frank Harkey, is quite sick at this time. We are praying for his restoration. Other of our sick people are convalescent.

PASTOR.

First Church, High Point.—A campaign for the sale of $150,000 worth of bonds on High Point college was launched here last week in an effort to put the institution on a firmer financial footing. $9,000 worth of these obligations have been purchased by local friends at the school. One-half of the issue or $75,000 worth is being offered in High Point and the state, while the general conference of the Methodist Protestant church, through President Broadfield and the Executive Committee will undertake to sell a similar amount outside of North Carolina. The purpose of this bond campaign is to raise funds to pay off obligations incurred in building the college and an accumulated deficit prior to September 1, 1930. Dr. Humphreys says that cancellation of these debts will allow the college to face the future with certainty and assurance. The total bond issue is for $350,000, but only $150,000 is being offered now. These bonds are in denominations of $100, $500, and $1,000 with interest at six per cent., will mature in February, 1935. These bonds are a first mortgage on nearly a million dollars worth of the college property, and the interest is provided for by an appropriation from the National Board of Education.

A delightful communion service was observed Sunday morning with the minister, Rev. R. L. Farmer, leading.

The general monthly meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary was held at the beautiful home of Mrs. Chas. C. Robbins, south of the city on Monday afternoon. It was intended to lay this meeting on the spacious lawn, but a shower of rain interfered with this plan, and it was held inside. The president, Mrs. Paul S. Keener, was in the chair, and several schemes for raising money were discussed, and a request for Octagon soap wrappers from Mrs. Dixon of the Children's Home was read. The plan of buying a $100 bond of High Point college was discussed, the idea being to get 100 women to donate $1.00 each for this purpose, but a definite decision in this matter was not reached. The Auxiliary will meet in different homes for the next few months. After the conclusion of business, members of Circle No. 4, Mrs. Wade W. Cecil, chairman, served punch and wafers.

Dean P. E. Lindley, of the college, will deliver the principal address at the reunion of the Cobles and allied families on Wednesday, August 12th, at Coble's church near Burlington. A large number of family reunions, memorial meetings, and home-comings are usually held in this section about this time of the year, and are a source of great enjoyment to many people who meet and mingle with relatives and old friends, swap yarns and reminisce to say nothing of the beautiful picnic dinners which they enjoy.

Prof. L. R. Johnston, principal of High Point high school, was in Cleveland, Ohio Monday attending the convention of the National Council of the Young Men's Christian association, as delegate from the Eastern district of N. C. President Hoover will address this Cleveland assembly from Washington over radio. Mr. Johnston has been quite active in the local Y. M. C. A. work for the past several years.

Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Gray and son, C. L., Jr., Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Gray and four young sons, Alson, Joe, Gilbert and "Billy" Bruce, Mr. and Mrs. John B. Spencer attended the reunion of the Walker family at the old ancestral home near Mehane, N. C. They had the rare pleasure of visiting the home and scenes of the childhood of the mother of Messrs. Gray and Mrs. Spencer, and sat in the room where their father, the late Mr. Arminius Gray and their mother, who was Miss Emma Walker, were married. A large number of Walkers and allied families were in attendance on this happy and interesting occasion. Several musical numbers were given by the younger members, including solos by C. L. Gray, Jr., a member of our own choir. The dinner served on the lawn under the ancient and wide-spreading oaks was most abundant and satisfactory. This was the first reunion of this family, but it is planned to make it an annual affair.

Dr. and Mrs. A. A. York and daughters, Misses Daisy Lee and Louise, have returned from a week's stay at Wrightsville Beach. Dr. York has been in High Point hospital for treatment, but his numerous friends are pleased to know that he is back in his office for practice.

Mr. and Mrs. R. R. Blackburn and small son, Russell, Jr., accompanied by Mrs. John Ogburn of Summerfield, have returned from Marion, Md., where they visited Mrs. Dorothy Holland Ogburn, young widow of the late Mr. Richard Ogburn, and her baby daughter, Anne Ogburn.

We are much pleased to announce that Miss Leah Shepard, who underwent an operation for appendicitis four weeks ago in High Point hospital, is much improved and has gone to her home.

Miss Helen Johnston, of W. H. S. Ohio, is the guest of her uncle, Rev. R. L. Farmer, at the parsonage, having returned with him from his recent visit to Ohio.

Mrs. John C. Whitesell entertained at a delightful party last Friday morning at her attractive new home on Rotary Drive in compliment to her friend, Miss Bess Thomas of Rouseau, who is to be married at an early date.

Mrs. John S. Pick it has returned home from Trenton, N. J., where she was the guest of her mother, Mrs. Sans, for a month.

Miss Anne Robbins has as her guest at her home, south of High Point, her cousin, Miss Janie Franklin, of Richmond, Va.

Mrs. H. C. Harrox and Miss Clotus Burgess, who has been on a visit here to her sisters, Mrs. C. H. Bass and Miss Blanche Burgess, for a few weeks, has returned to her home in Peekskill, New York.

We are much gratified to learn that Mrs. J. R. Montgomery, who has been ill at her home on N. Hamilton St., is improving.

Dr. G. I. Humphreys went to Asheville last Sunday to make the principal address at the reunion of the Kemps-Wood families.

The refreshing rain and lower temperatures are heartily welcomed here.

Oak Grove, Cleveland.—Now that the revival is over we are starting anew, endeavoring to live a better and more serviceable life. Our churches as well as the individuals have been greatly blessed by the meeting. Rev. J. L. Trollinger did the preaching; his sermons were very inspiring, we enjoyed very much to have Brother Trollinger preach for us; we also enjoyed having him in our homes.

Mr. and Mrs. Van Wood and family from Denton, visited Rev. and Mrs. C. E. Ridge the past week.

Mr. and Mrs. F. B. Sotherland and children of Jonesboro, Tenn., returned home Monday after spending the week end with Mrs. Sotherland's parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. A. White.

We are sorry to note that Mr. John Gold is confined to his room. We hope that he will soon be able to be out again.

Our pastor, Rev. C. E. Ridge, is holding his revival at Mt. Moriah this week. We pray that many souls will be saved during his meetings from place to place.

REPORTER.

First Church, Thomasville.—Considering the hot weather, our Sunday school and preaching services are very well attended. I believe all of us thought it was the hottest weather in church last Sunday that we have noticed this summer.

Last Sunday week we were glad to have Rev. Mr. Bell to preach for us because of the necessary absence of our pastor. He came to us as a surprise, and we enjoyed the sermon very much. On the following Wednesday evening our prayer meeting was led by Mr. I. A. Teague. He made it very interesting, and we all were helped in the Sunday school lesson.

On the following Thursday evening the C. E. society went on a picnic to the High Point Municipal lake. The group consisted of 23 members who were very lively and happy. We were very much pleased with the supper prepared by the young ladies.

Last Sunday evening we were glad to have

Rev. Mr. Poe, a retired minister, to preach for us. He preached on the elements of a Christian manhood. We enjoyed his inspiring sermon and were helped very much.

We were glad to have our visitors with us, and these and others are invited to come back.

REPORTER.

Thomasville, West End.—Our Sunday school seemed to keep improving in every way. Workers' Council meets each first Sunday at 11 o'clock. The plans and problems of the school are discussed. The assistant teacher of each class has charge one Sunday in each month, also the superintendent and secretary.

We are planning our annual picnic for the fourth Saturday afternoon.

Our pastor, Rev. H. W. Bell, is away assisting in a revival near Charlotte. We miss him so much in all our services. Brother James Hill, one of our members, preached for us Sunday. He was given license at our third quarterly conference.

Our Wednesday night prayer services are very interesting and helpful. We are still having two new converts for leaders each week. We have had different ones since our revival in May.

Our Christian Endeavor is coming along just fine. Several of the older people are joining the young people in this work.

REPORTER.

South Lexington, Mt. Carmel.—We began our revival meeting at Mt. Carmel the first Sunday night and continued through Friday night. Rev. D. L. Garner of Greensboro came on Sunday afternoon and did all the preaching during the meeting. The services were held both in the afternoon and night, and were well attended. The preaching of Brother Garner was simple and well received. There were four conversions and five additions to the church. Mr. J. G. Trantham came to us by letter from First Reform church, Lexington. From the large crowds every service, we feel that it was evident that all enjoyed Rev. Garner's messages and hope that he can come back again.

During the meeting we were favored with the boys' quartet from St. Paul church. This was enjoyed very much and we wish to thank the young men.

Our tenderest sympathies are extended to Mr. and Mrs. John Morphies and children in the death of Mr. Morphies' father, who resided at Kernersville.

ZULA FRITTS, Reporter.

Kernersville.—We have held two of our revival meetings on this charge. The second Sunday in July we were at Sandy Ridge with Rev. R. S. Troxler as our help. As usual Brother Troxler did fine work. The church was greatly revived, one addition. Unfortunately, we had to close for another meeting, just when the church got alive. And now they are asking for another meeting the fourth Sunday in September, when we can have all the time needed.

The third Sunday in July found us at Pine Grove with Rev. J. R. Anderson as our help. Brother Anderson was at his best, preaching three times a day. We were hindered much here by wheat threshing in the community, but still we had a fine meeting with six additions to the church. We are to begin a meeting at Ai the second Sunday in September. Rev. Paul Pegg to be the help. Ai church, with increasing congregations and an increased manifest interest, gives hope for this struggling church. It might be interesting to know that this church was the home church of Rev. Hubbard W. Peoples, of sainted memory. The church membership is made up largely of his kinsmen.

W. D. REED.

Midway, Haw River Circuit.—On last fourth Sunday we had our Home-coming and Children's Day. The Children's Day service was held at 11 o'clock. I consider it a great success. The children did fine, and the offering was good, amounting to something over $13.00. Much credit is due Misses Alice May Butler and Marguerite Bartee for training the children so well.

We were glad to have so many from a distance with us that day. On account of a down-pour of rain dinner was served in the school house. In the afternoon Brother Trollinger preached a most wonderful sermon which was enjoyed by all.

The second Sunday in September Prof. A. M. Fentriss will hold his singers' convention at this place; if you like good singing come and enjoy the day with us.

MRS. G. W. APPLE, Reporter.

First Church, Winston.—The Young People's class, better known as the Boosters' class, enjoyed a delightful outing at Crystal Lake on Thursday evening. Swimming and boating were enjoyed and about 9 o'clock ice cream and cake was a very special feature of the occasion. Mrs. S. E. Hauser, the very capable teacher of this group, chaperoned for the evening.

On Sunday morning a very helpful sermon was heard. The theme being "The Church That Grew Dead." Our pastor always brings helpful and interesting sermons, one never notices many sleepers during a sermon from Rev. J. E. Pritchard.

The choir rendered a lovely anthem Sunday morning and Miss Sybil Davis sang a very pretty solo.

During church worship the children were in a meeting in the primary room. Mrs. S. E. Hauser had charge of this meeting. It was on the order of a Junior church. This idea is being pioneered, to see how it possibly might work, at least part of the time. We think it a splendid idea. Mrs. R. H. Shouse is also helping with this group.

The quarterly conference met with Mr. W. H. Weatherman on Northwest Boulevard Monday evening. The meeting was held on the lawn, which was cool and comfortable for a gathering of this type. This was different from the regular indoor meetings.

On Tuesday afternoon at 3 the General Auxiliary will be held at the church. Mrs. H. O. Sapp is president of the auxiliary, and she is most assuredly a good one—a good woman—a good worker, one to whom the others look for guidance and one whom they all love. The auxiliary surely will be a big success this year, it must not go down.

We wish to congratulate Rev. and Mrs. Pritchard on the lovely new home they have just completed in Asheboro. Although very few of us have had the opportunity and pleasure of seeing it, from descriptions picked up here and there we can picture it as being beautiful, practical and modern. We wish the best of luck to both of them and hope when they finally go to live in it that they will get a supreme joy from living within its walls.

A BIRTHDAY CELEBRATION

It is right and proper that the birthdays of men are remembered and celebrated. There are some great men whose birthdays are never forgotten. They even become national holidays. Radio broadcasting stations regularly announce the birth days of certain persons. Our country has a birthday and this day is greatly appreciated. It is just as fitting for a church to have a birthday and to celebrate it as it is for any man or any institution. And it just as pathetic for a church to forget its birthday as for a man to forget when he was born. On the thirteenth of October the Albemarle church will be 22 years old. It has been thought well to celebrate this birthday. We are anxious to celebrate this birthday with propriety. We are anxious to make it a day of good things. We want to have a good program. President Taylor has promised to be with us and we know that his presence and his message will add much. The custom is quite proper to make a birthday gift. We have planned to do this very thing at Albemarle. It has been planned to lay $100.00 on the altar of the church for every year the church is old, $2,200.00 to be applied on church debt would help greatly just now. It is hard times just now, but this $2,200.00 can be found and we are looking for it. And we believe it can be done. "The earth is the Lord's and the fulness thereof." Why not this amount of this world for a struggling church. Any contribution from any friend of the church would be greatly appreciated. Good friends, a contribution here would not only be appreciated but it would be helping a worthy cause. I have never made many appeals for what I thought was a worthy cause that I did not get some help and I believe I will get some here. Help, help, help, we are looking for your help.

Yours very truly,

GEO. L. CURRY.

P. S.—This anniversary service will be conducted on October 11, the nearest Sunday to October 13, G. L. C.

Clothing and Other Gifts

Mr. C. L. Steed, Candor, N. C., 40 bushels of peaches.

Mr. Chas. C. Bennett, Candor, N. C., 50 bushels of peaches.

Mrs. W. L. Kivett, High Point, N. C., 12 bushels of peaches and some string beans.

Mrs. Ed. Williams, High Point, N. C., 4 pounds butter.

We appreciate very much the gifts of money and substance shown in this report. The peaches reported as coming from Candor were given by two dear friends of this Home, who are not members of the Methodist Protestant church—one is a Presbyterian and the other is a Baptist. And those reported last week were given by one who is a member of the M. E. church, South.

Mrs. W. L. Kivett is so good to share fruit and vegetables with us all along through the year.

We greatly appreciate every contribution of money, and you will note some fine offerings this time.

The women of the N. C. Branch always stand by the Home. They are asking some things of all our M. P. women. We trust there will be a general and a generous response.

Rev. C. W. Bates earned $2.50 as per note in Herald last week. He offered to give that amount to the Home provided Calvary's gift to the Home for the month amounted to $20.00. His people responded so nobly that their check to us for first Sunday in August was $22.50 instead of $15.00 as usual.

Mrs. E. S. Welborne, out of the goodness of her heart, sent us check for $50.00 and said, "This is given in honor of my mother, Mrs. Lelia R. Matthews, of Reidsville, whose first thought was always of those in need." God bless this noble daughter of so noble a mother. And may God abundantly bless all the dear ones who are contributing to the support of this Home.

Rejoice with us. Today wife and I started out in search of apples for fall and winter use. We went to the mountains in above Mt. Airy. There we found a big hearted, big man, a former school mate of Oak Ridge Institute. He was out in one of the finest orchards we have ever seen. We had a delightful short visit with him and his brother, and before we left they said, "Come up a little later and we will give you all the apples you need." God bless those two brothers. He is blessing them and He will bless them.

Yours in His blessed service,
A. G. DIXON, Supt.

THE MAN WHO SLAMS THE DOOR

Egotists we frown upon,
Dislike the talking bore,
But we detest the noisy pest—
The man who slams the door!

Nightly we are sore distressed
By loud nocturnal snore,
But when he's late, we simply hate—
The man who slams the door!

Saxaphones and radios
We often must ignore,
But we can't stand the selfish brand—
The man who slams the door!

Many kinds of raucous sounds
We loathe and abhor,
But we could kill the imbecile—
The man who slams the door!
—Grenville Kleiser.

THE LITTLE SQUIRREL'S ADVICE

Once upon a time there was a little gray squirrel who lived high up in an oak tree in a large timber by the riverside. He was bountifully supplied with acorns, walnuts, hickory nuts, and all that his squirrel nature could wish for. All day long he frisked about gathering up his food, and at night he curled up in his little bed which he had made up in the tree.

One bright morning he was out unusually early to gather up his breakfast. Suddenly, and without a moment's warning, a great fox pounced upon him and was about to make a morning's meal of the pretty squirrel.

"Wait, wait!" cried the frightened squirrel, "I was taught that we should say grace or give thanks before meals."

"How is that done?" said the unsuspecting fox.

"Well, let me show you," said the little squirrel. "Fold your hands like this. Now close your eyes."

The fox did so, and, quicker than you can say "Jack Robinson," the nimble squirrel ran up a tree.

"Oh, I forgot to tell you," said the delighted squirrel, "I forgot to tell you that you must watch while you pray." Young Catholic Messenger.

MARRIED

Carter-Pruett

The marriage of Miss Martha Elizabeth Carter, daughter of Mrs. Sue Carter, to Mr. William Henry Pruett took place at the home of the bride Thursday, July 2, at 3:30 o'clock. The Rev. J. S. Williams officiated in the double ring ceremony.

The vows were spoken before an improvised altar of rhododendron. The entire home was decorated with pink larkspur and tall baskets filled with hollyhocks.

Miss Joy Bond read the wedding music and accompanied Mrs. H. J. DeQuik, who sang Schubert's "Serenade" and "Believe Me With All Those Endearing Young Charms."

Miss Pauline Smathers, cousin of the bride, met the guests at the door and others assisting in the reception were Mrs. J. E. Nesbitt, Miss Stella Carter, Miss Pauline Duckett, and Miss Lula Parker.

Mrs. Pruett is a graduate of Duke University and is a teacher in the Asheville city schools. Mr. Pruett is originally from York, S. C., but has resided in Asheville for several years and is well known in the city and county. He is connected with the Liggett and Myers Tobacco company. Last year he was transferred to North Wilkesboro, where he is now located.

J. S. WILLIAMS.

Crawford-Jobe

Mr. Theodore Crawford and Miss Dorothy Virginia Jobe were united in the holy bond of matrimony by Rev. H. L. Isley, a former pastor and special friend of both families on Wednesday evening, August 5, at 6:30, using the ceremony of the Methodist Protestant church.

The bride is the only daughter of Mrs. W. A. Jobe, of near Saxapahaw, and is a most attractive young lady. She is a graduate of Eli Whitney high school, having received her diploma last spring.

Mr. Crawford is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Graham Crawford, of near Swapsboro, who is one of the most successful young farmers of that section of Alamance county. He is a graduate of Alexander Wilson high school and is a young man of most excellent character.

Both of these young people are very prominently connected and are leading members of the Salem Methodist Protestant church, Mr. Crawford being one of the nominees for delegate to our next annual conference from Saxapahaw charge.

Immediately after the ceremony they left for Carolina beach to spend a few days. On their return they will make their home with the groom's parents and Mr. Crawford will engage in farming.

—Little Sister was greatly disappointed when her older sister and friends closed the library door and left her on the outside. She thought a minute and then knocked at the door.

There was no response. She knocked again. Still there was no answer.

She realized that something more was needed, so knocking for the third time, she said in a high voice, "Open the door, Marie, it ain't me, it's mamma."—Michigan Christian Advocate.

SCRIPTURES IN 919 LANGUAGES

The Bible or some part of it has appeared in 919 languages and dialects, according to a statement issued last week by the American Bible Society from its headquarters, Bible House, New York City. This figure, in which no duplication of languages or dialects occurs, represents the publications of the three major Bible societies functioning throughout the world: the American Bible society, the British and Foreign Bible society, the National Bible society of Scotland, as well as some missionary organizations and others.

The figures are as follows:

Complete Bibles—172 languages.

New Testaments—179 languages.

Portions—172 languages.

Complete book of the Bible.

Selections—16 languages.

Less than one book of the Bible.

The latest book from the press is the Gospel of St. Mark in Atcho, a dialect used by one of the tribes on the French Ivory Coast of West Africa. Of the more than 500 languages and dialects spoken in Africa, only about 275 have been published, while a large percentage of the remaining have not yet been reduced to writing. India has the Scriptures printed in only 11 languages, although there are 179 languages and hundreds of dialects spoken in this thickly populated land. That a dearth of Scriptures also obtains in other countries is evidenced by the fact that there are millions of Indians throughout South America who have no Scriptures in their various dialects. The New Testament appears in but three of the many Indian tongues of South America. Of the two New Testaments so far published for the Indians of Central America, the latest to appear is in Cakchiquel, issued recently by the American Bible society for a tribe in Guatemala.

While it is estimated that some part of the Scriptures appears on an average every six weeks, the translations already published must, from time to time, also undergo revision in order to attain a greater faithfulness to the original Hebrew and Greek, thereby laying an additional obligation on the Bible societies. —Zion's Herald.

POPULATION OF THE WORLD'S GREAT CITIES

The census of London, Eng., just completed reveals the fact that the world's metropolis now has more than 8,000,000 inhabitants. New York comes next in the list, and Berlin takes third place. The fourth and fifth cities in the world from the angle of population are Chicago and Paris, respectively. The following table shows the number of inhabitants for each of these great centers:

|                      |           |
|----------------------|-----------|
| Greater London       | 8,202,818 |
| New York City        | 6,981,915 |
| Berlin               | 4,296,000 |
| Chicago              | 3,376,428 |
| Paris (within walls) | 2,871,039 |

BRAVE DOG DECORATED

The Connecticut Humane society recently presented a brass-studded collar to "Zip," a Westport stable dog, for his brave and intelligent work in saving the lives of twenty-one horses, when a fire consumed their stable. "Zip" displayed remarkable sagacity and saved not only the horses but rescuers. His collar bears the following inscription: "Zip," saving 21 horses March 31, 1931."

THE CALIFORNIA CONDOR

It is not a handsome bird, this California condor, with its ugly red head, its great feet, and its humped shoulders, but it is the biggest bird in the land and interesting in its way.

Of all the birds that fly, this great vulture is the most graceful when on the wing. Its power over the air is greater than that of an eagle. It can hang motionless for hours, or circle high up against the blue with not a flutter of the wing apparent to the keenest observer. Yet on the ground it is clumsy and awkward, and, when it has eaten a full meal, it has been easily lassoed by a cowboy on a good horse.

A full meal for a condor is no slight thing. A man who kept one in captivity for a time said that it would eat a whole sheep at a sitting and then look hungry and sad, as if longing for more. This, however, is no doubt something of an exaggeration; for though it is the largest of all American birds, it seldom weighs more than 25 pounds, which is considerably less than the weight of a full-grown sheep.

Fifty years ago, condors were abundant along the coast ranges of southern California. Today, the sight of one is so rare that many a naturalist there has waited years in vain for such a sight. Its almost utter extermination is said to have been due to its eating of poisoned meat which owners of sheep and cattle at one time put out in great abundance to kill coyotes and other predatory animals. The condor is now protected by law and the willful killing of one would be an offense not easily forgiven by the people of the state. It is not likely to ever become common again; and it is scarcely desired that it should, for while its presence would add much to the picturesqueness of the scenery, its enormous appetite and its habit of killing weak or injured animals make it a somewhat undesirable intruder in a stockraising region. Esther E. Reeks in Our Bund Animals.

MY GARDEN

My garden is a pleasant place
In which to work and rest,
Of all our arts that I have known
It seems to suit me best.

Within this sheltered sacred spot
I spend such happy hours;
Among the treasures gathered there
Are quite the choicest flowers.

I owe so much for what I have
That debt I can't repay;
My heart overflows with gratitude
When I would something say.

A better place for me to dwell
Twere difficult to find;
I hold a lease on it for life,
The garden of my mind.
—Grenville Kleiser.

Total prohibition has been ordered on all railways in the Soviet Union.—The Alliance News.

According to President Hoover, there are 30,000,000 men in the regular armies of the world, including reserves, who are equipped and ready for war.

According to the same authority, the United States is spending more today on armaments than any other single nation, approximately $741,000,000 a year.

THE COLLEGE STUDENT

CA speech delivered last May by Mr. John W. Morgan, a sophomore at High Point College, before the Thalean Literary Society of that institution)

In my estimation the college student should be an emblem of leadership. By this I do not mean to cast any reflection on the average boy, for we should remember that it was the orphan who won the Battle of New Orleans, and that it was the rail-splitter who cemented the Union.

The college student enjoys inalienable privileges. He should take advantage of these opportunities and not only make himself a leader on the campus but also prepare himself for the battle of life.

The progress of a student is marked by his professors. It is closely observed by his friends at home. The people expect the college student to develop traits that will mark him as a leader. Sometimes these expectations are not fulfilled, and again it is with joy that some people behold the fall of the flaring youth.

I remember distinctly when I met two outstanding students from High Point college. These young men were none other than J. Elwood Carroll and T. Glenn Madison who were young preachers at that time. Not only were they closely observed by the speaker, but also by other people. These young men stood the test and today they are making good.

The public eye has focused on the students at this college and many times our actions speak louder than words. We should build by our actions the stately mansions of the soul. We should blaze the path while at this institution, that will stand as a monument to the students who really lived and dared.

It is not the breath of kings and the glitter of jewels that makes the man, but it is that steadfast spirit to strive, to seek, to conquer, and not to yield. That is the motto I would like to fulfil.

I have known brilliant students to fail for lack of ambition and will power. The poet fittingly expresses this in the following lines: "He, the young and strong, who cherished Noble longings for the strife,

By the roadside fell and perished
Weary with the march of life."

I hope that it will never be said of a Thalean that he fell discouraged and weary with the march of life, but we should press toward the mark of the high calling which is in Christ the Lord.

THE OIL TRAGEDY

In the "Animal Year Book," in a short article on the "Oil Tragedy," Mr. H. de Vere Staepole calls attention to the fact that the diving sea-birds of the whole world are being destroyed by the heavy fuel oil cast from ships. The penguins of South Africa, the guillemots of the North Atlantic, the divers on the Pacific Coast of America—all are born to risk and maybe to suffer the supremely terrible death by oil. Death by starvation, made more terrible by a sense of degradation, for a bird's plumage is its pride and almost its soul.

—Unemployment in Belgium has increased over 11 times in less than a year according to recent official figures. Such percentages are characteristic of all Europe. The accelerated development of machinery is cutting down the number of jobs.

IN HONOR OF THE DEAD

Johnson

Whereas it has pleased our Heavenly Father in His wise providence to call from the ranks of Sapling Ridge M. P. church and Sunday school teacher of the Men's Bible class, our brother, O. H. Johnson, we the members of said class wish to give expression to our sorrow; therefore be it Resolved, first that we bow in humble submission to the Divine Will.

Second, that we extend to the family of O. H. Johnson our heart felt sympathy in the hour of their bereavement and commend them to Him who is too wise to err and too good to be unjust.

Third, that a copy of these resolutions be set to the bereaved family, a copy be sent to the Herald for publication, also a copy be placed upon the minutes of the class.

M. H. WOODY,

J. L. SELE,

W. F. STERN,

Committee.

Motley

Mrs. Francis Catherine Motley departed this life August 8, 1931, age 76 years, 3 months and 13 days.

She was married to Mr. J. M. Motley about 50 years ago. To this union were born two children: Mr. E. M. Motley and Mrs. L. J. Foster, both of this place. Surviving also are ten grandchildren and one great grandchild.

Mrs. Motley professed religion in early life and joined Rocky Ridge M. E. church, South, of which she remained a member until death claimed her.

A few days ago she told one of her family, "I want you to comb my hair, I am going to heaven." Another one of the family said, "She wasn't like most old folks, peevish, naggy, contentious. She was one of the best women I ever saw."

Funeral services were conducted in Roberts M. P. church Sunday morning at 11 o'clock by Rev. Robert Short, of Denton, assisted by Rev. Mr. Hill. She was laid to final rest in the church cemetery. The beautiful floral designs showed the esteem in which Mrs. Motley was held.

The bereaved ones have our sympathy.

ELMA MILLER.

Smith

Mrs. Susanna Thompson Smith passed away at her home June 25, 1931, aged 82 years, 10 months and 10 days.

She was converted at the age of 14 and united with Flout Hill M. P. church. The name of this church was later changed to Orange Chapel, and to this church she was a true and loyal member until death. She always enjoyed attending her church and was anxious to see it prosper.

She was deeply concerned in the spiritual welfare of her children, relatives and friends. Never failing to speak an encouraging word when she had a chance, and always giving a helping hand when needed.

We think of her not as dead but as just waiting on the other shore, while her Christian influence still lives in the hearts and lives of her loved ones.

In her sickness she appreciated so much the visits of her relatives and friends and never failed to speak a word of appreciation for the interest shown when people would call to see her and help to brighten her days.

She is survived by her husband, R. M. Smith, two daughters, Mrs. Daisy Pickard and Mrs. Maggie Tapp; one son, Mr. A. L. Smith, 15 grand children and 10 great grandchildren.

Funeral services were conducted at Orange Chapel M. P. church June 26 at 11 o'clock. Funeral conducted by her pastor, Rev. T. J. Whitehead.

She is not dead to those who loved her

But only gone before

She lives with us in memory and will for ever more.

God is good, He gives us strength

To bear our heavy cross,

He is the only one who knows

How bitter is our loss.

You left behind some aching hearts

That love'd you most sincere

They never leave and never can forget you,

Mother dear.

MRS. FOUST THOMPSON.

Wall

Laura Eaton Wall, wife of the late John W. A. Wall, died July 16, 1931, aged 72 years, two months and eight days.

She professed faith in Christ at an early age and joined the church, living a consistent and consecrated Christian life until death.

She leaves three sons, three daughters, one brother, one sister, two half sisters and 19 grand children, besides a host of other relatives and friends to mourn their loss.

We have known Sister Wall for a number of years and visited in her home often, always finding her the same, and ready to welcome us with a smile, which we can never forget. Indeed we feel that we have lost a true and tried friend. She was very faithful to her church while her health would permit, and she will be missed there as well as in the home and community where she lived, but we trust we'll meet her again in the sweet by and by.

Funeral services were conducted by the writer, after which interment was made in Mt. Zion cemetery.

Our sympathy is extended to all the bereaved.

A. L. HUNTER.

Hill

Add, Dewey, and Ralph, her father, J. C. Modlin, and two brothers, Henry Modlin, of Jamestown, N. C., and Cicero Modlin, of Spencer, N. C.

She was a faithful wife and mother, and a loyal member of Mitchell's Grove Methodist Protestant church. The funeral services were conducted at Mitchell's Grove church by the writer and assisted by Rev. Charlie Young, of Stephens' Memorial Baptist church, and Rev. Mr. Jones, of High Point, N. C.

Why He Came

No idle errand brought the Son,
He did not come to earth for fun;
He came because the need was great
To do for men what could not wait.

The world was cursed by Satan's rule,
His errors taught in every school;
The reign of wrong must yield to right,
Though this would take heroic fight.

The nations all in darkness sat,
As blind to truth as blindest bat;
New light must shine in every land,
And men must come to understand.

The souls of men were foul with sin
And must be cleansed without, within.
The ways of men were far from right,
Reforms must come with better light.

The hopes of men were fallen low,
For life did feeble prospect show;
The faith of man must be renewed,
Made bright again and many-hued.

In short, the world must be remade
With everything of higher grade;
The model must from Heaven be brought
And all the nations truth be taught.

Stupendous task still faced the Son
When He his labors had begun;
His faith was firm, His hope was strong,
And would not fail though time was long.

He came at length to final hour
When He must meet all hellish power:
The strife was fierce, the foe unfair,
But Satan's reign was broken there.

A victor's crown the Son now wears,
And heartened man dismisses cares;
The world sees life in roseate hue,
Its glory shines in constant view.

Just why He came now we can see,
But better news thrills you and me:
He'll come again to take His own
To be with Him upon His throne!

The Vain Hope of Reaching Irresponsibility

There are men who deliberately set out on life's moral journey with the hope of reaching a state of irresponsibility. They do not relish the thought of being called to account by a Power able to judge righteously and reward fittingly. Their first hope of attaining irresponsibility is by ignoring authority. They will remain in ignorance of moral law and then defy all authority to lay hold upon them. They will prolong childish irresponsibility by prolonging childish ignorance. But responsibility cannot be evaded by such a course. Ignorance of the law excuses no man when he might have known the law.

But this false ground may be abandoned and other ground equally false may be entered upon. It may be said that human conduct is but the expression of inborn tendencies and therefore the Creator and not man is responsible. But this denial of will to man is contrary to what we know by experience. We know that we have freedom of choice and action. The exercise of volition is a matter of consciousness. We find within us not only inborn tendencies, but we also find a moral faculty called Conscience. This faculty distinguishes for us between lawful and unlawful courses and leaves us without excuse if we choose to go the way of wrong. "Be not deceived. God is not mocked. For whatsoever a man soweth that shall he also reap." If anything surer than death! But "after death the judgment." The ostrich vainly tries to hide himself by thrusting his head into the sand. So men vainly try to hide themselves from the judgment of God by their moral delusions.

Rally Day Material

The annual rally day is an important event in the life of a church. It can be made to serve a useful purpose in stimulating and deepening interest in the regular work of the church. This year's program prepared by the Board of Christian Education is unusually full of interesting material for use in our North Carolina churches. Every church in North Carolina should hold rally day service, using part of the abundant material provided by the Board of Education in their collection of songs, speeches, etc. The Board's program may be had free of charge by writing Rev. F. W. Stephenson, 613 W. Diamond Street, N. S., Pittsburgh, Pa.

—The editor of the HERALD thanks the Board of Christian Education for its most generous recognition of service rendered in pioneer work for High Point College. It is a high honor indeed that the Board or its genial Secretary has conferred upon us.

—The advantage of leisure is mainly that we have the power of choosing our own work; not certainly that it confers any privilege of idleness.—Sir John Lubbock.

SOUTH PREPARES FOR ECUMENICAL

MARION T. PLYLER, Editor N. C. Christian Advocate
Greensboro, N. C.

The coming of the sixth Ecumenical Methodist Conference to Atlanta next October makes notable for the South 1931.

The South through all the years has been so far removed from the main axis of our national life that great gatherings of international import have gone elsewhere. Twenty years ago the Ecumenical Conference met in Toronto; twenty years before that it met in Washington; the other three have been held across the water. But now in this good year 1931 Atlanta is favored. Before next October the Methodists of the South and West will be all agog over the coming of delegates from the ends of the earth to attend this world conference.

INTEREST IN THINGS ENGLISH ABIDES

The Georgia setting is most favorable. In this province John Wesley spent two years (1736-37) as a missionary to the Indians before the Wesleyan Revival began in 1739. Let it be kept in mind that all along this Atlantic Seaboard the English planted their colonies. Among this people the first pioneer Methodist preachers did their most effective work. So, the entire background of all this southern section has a Methodism closely identified with John Wesley and all things English.

The American Revolution made a distinct break with the mother country, but the English spirit and the Methodist enthusiasm remained. Even to this day the Methodists of the South cherish a healthy interest in all that belongs to those early pioneer days. It could not well be otherwise. For through all the early years of our national life following the American Revolution the tide of migration from Maryland, from Virginia, from the Carolinas and from Georgia swept on through the forests, across the wide areas to the Mississippi and beyond, until finally the vast empire of Texas and other lands towards the setting sun were made their own. A dominant and vital part of this conquest were the Methodist hosts, true to the spirit and devotion of the pioneer preachers who rode with Francis Asbury. The itinerant Methodist preacher went everywhere.

METHODISM AT HOME HERE

From the first, the men on horseback found a friendly welcome in these southern parallels. The warmth and enthusiasm characteristic of the early settlers on the plantations along the rivers, and in the pioneer cabins among the hills of all this vast undeveloped region made favorable the conditions for a pioneer ministry such as that afforded by the Methodist circuit rider. In the forests, in the cabin homes and on the plantations, these men gathered the people as they sang and preached and plead for a new life of holy living. During the nineteenth century the camp meeting was at its best in this southland. Both white and colored shared in the revival and become a vital part of the Methodist movement in these southern parallels.

Too often the contribution made by the negro to the civilization of this southland is forgotten. This humble people of faith and vision and spiritual sensibility have made no small contribution to this "Bible belt" that holds so tenaciously to the things of the spirit. In this respect Methodism has been much enriched in making potent the things of the spirit. The Quakers, the Episcopalians, the Presbyterians and others have made a fine contribution to the South, but the Methodists and the Baptists remain the great widespread evangelistic agencies among our people. As is well known, the great mass of the negroes are numbered with these two communions.

THE BEST METHODIST TRADITIONS REMAIN

The South has remained free from an European invasion. So the life of the original stock prevails and the ancient Methodist spirit and traditions remain. The circuit rider, the camp meeting glories, the old time revival are more than ancient memories. The spirit and something of the practice is with us still.

The whites and the blacks from the cities and from the cotton fields, from the Mississippi delta and from the Texas prairies will be in Atlanta hoping to see and to hear the notable Methodists from old England, filled with the spirit of Wesley and Whitfield. Would that the program committee might give some old Methodist circuit rider, with saddlebags and hymn book, fresh from the field of victory a chance to hold a service such as the fathers knew.

THE BEST OF THE YEAR

October in Dixie has a charm all its own. The tinge of autumn is in the air. The scarlet and the gold appears in field and forest, and the frost is on the pumpkin. The glory and the pageantry of nature may be seen on every hand. With the return of the harvest season an eager interest stirs in all the land.

One of our Southern poets, John Charles McNeal, sings thus of the autumn time:

"Heavy with sleep is the old farmstead;
The windfall of orchards is mellow;
The green of the gum tree is shot with red,
The poplar is sprinkled with yellow;
Sluggish the snake and leafy the stream;
The field mouse is fat in his burrow;
Sun-up sets millions of dew drops a-gleam
Where the late grass is grown in the furrow.

"Oh, the smell of the fennel is autumn's own breath,
And the sunnec is dyed in her own blood;
The charr of the locust is what her voice saith
And the cricket is one with her mood.
Soft are her arms as soft-seeded grass,
The blue bells at dawn are her eyes,
And slow as slow winds are her feet as they pass
Her bees and her butterflies."

In the language of the plantation, the same poet puts it thus:

"Oh, dip some 'taters down in grease
En fling de dogs a 'tater apiece,
Ram yo' brogans clear er tacks,
It's 'possum time again!"

Certainly, no time of all the year in our southland is so fine for life in the open. Especially alluring does this become with the fine highway system that affords main arteries of travel to every point of the compass. We have every assurance of visitors by the thousands. Two million Methodists are in easy reach of Atlanta by automobile. Cars from Missouri, Oklahoma, Texas and Arkansas may be seen any day on southern roads, while the automobiles from all the northern states crowd the highways. A trip to Atlanta in October will be a delight even for those who are not especially interested in the Ecumenical. What will it be for those who are eager to see and to hear the illustrious speakers from Canada, from England and from the Orient, to say nothing of our own land.

Then, too, Atlanta is enlisted in this conference as no other city has ever been, but that is another story.

THE AUDACITY OF UNBELIEF

Reprinted from the Meady Bible Institute Monthly

By REV. JAMES M. GRAY, D.D., LL.D.

The Rev. Harry Emerson Fosdick, D.D., pastor of the Riverside church, New York, preached a sermon some months ago, entitled, "The Peril of Worshiping Jesus," which was published in his Church Monthly. We are sorry to feel obliged further to advertise it or its author, but unhappily it is being widely referred to.

Moreover, the author is one of the most popular broadcasters over the air at present, as well as one of the most popular magazine writers on religious topics, and he is thus spreading spiritual desolation over the land.

We do not impugn his motive when we say this however, and we are not writing in any vituperative mood, for we recall that there was a time when even Paul thought he "ought to do many things contrary to the name of Jesus of Nazareth" (Acts 26:9); and Peter, when he accused his countrymen of killing "the Prince of life," softened the charge by saying, "I wot that through ignorance ye did it" (Acts 3:17).

NOTHING NEW IN THE SERMON

There is nothing new in Dr. Fosdick's sermon as of course he knows. His objections to the deity of Jesus Christ were presented and answered at the Council of Nice, A.D. 325, where Arius, the first Unitarian, and Athanasius were the chief debaters. The Nicene Creed, as it is known, records the outcome of that council, hence the naïveté of Dr. Fosdick's remark that,

"It is an amazing thing that the historic church has so unanimously worshiped Jesus, and has so seldom stopped to ask what Jesus Himself would think of it."

As a matter of fact, the church thus "stopped" for that purpose some three hundred years after the death and resurrection of its Founder, and as soon as possible after it had emerged from the terrific Diocletian persecution.

The delegates to the Council of Nice came up out of the catacombs. There were 318 of them, it is said, and out of the whole there were not more than "a dozen who had not lost an eye, or a hand, or who did not halt upon a leg shrunk in its sinew by the burning iron of torture."

One wonders if Dr. Fosdick has himself "stopped" to ask the meaning of this. One wonders if he has carefully weighed the evidence that this torture was endured not in witness to the "Jesus" he, is talking about, a creation of his own imagination, but in witness to the true historic Lord Jesus Christ revealed in the four Gospels.

Dr. Fosdick's "Jesus" could hardly command that measure of devotion from men, and such men.

DID JESUS RECEIVE WORSHIP?

Dr. Fosdick says that Jesus did not desire to be worshiped, that He never sought it, and that as a matter of fact He feared it. His interpretation of certain scriptures by which to demonstrate this, is peculiar, but of that later. Meanwhile, he cannot be ignorant of the fact that on several occasions Jesus received worship without rebuking the worshiper.

For example, what does Dr. Fosdick make of the story of the "man that was blind from his birth," and to whom Jesus gave sight? Jesus heard that they had cast the man out of the synagogue, and when He had found him this dialogue took place:

"Dost thou believe on the Son of God?"

"Who is he, Lord, that I might believe on him?"

"Thou hast both seen him, and it is he that talketh with thee."

"Lord, I believe."

"And he worshiped him" (John 9:35-38). It is noteworthy that this is one of the very few occasions on which our Lord called Himself directly, "the Son of God," and one of the only two occasions on which He so unreservedly declared His Messiahship.

What will Dr. Fosdick say to this? Will he with a wave of the hand, dismiss the recital as unauthentic because miraculous? That would be easy, but would it be scholarly? On whom should the burden of proof lie in that case?

Or take again, the confession of Thomas on the eighth day after the resurrection of Jesus.

"My Lord and my God!" (John 21:28).

Here, as Bishop Ryle reminds us, Jesus is "called" God "in the presence of ten witnesses, and accepts it without one word of reproof."

How different in the case of His disciples! Cornelius fell down at Peter's feet, but the apostle corrected him at once: "Stand up; I myself also am a man" (Acts 10:26). The heathen of Lystra would have done sacrifice to Paul and Barnabas, but the latter rebuked them in the strongest terms (Acts 14:14).

Were the disciples greater than their Lord? Dr. Fosdick says that Jesus did not push His ego to the front. But did He not do so here, unless it is true as the Nicene Creed said of Him, that He is "Very God of Very God"?

Dr. Fosdick had a predecessor named Theodorus, who lived many hundreds of years ago, and who raised the point that Thomas was only surprised into using a profane oath when he made that exclamation. Such might have been true of a Roman or a Greek of that period, but not of a strict Jew like Thomas. Jews were not given to the breaking of the third commandment in that way.

CURIOS OF INTERPRETATION

It is interesting to observe the manner in which this preacher interprets texts, for he has a way of using the Bible when it suits his purpose as well as a way of throwing it overboard when he fears it may sink his ship.

One of his curios in this line is a comment on Luke 11:27, where a certain woman out of the multitude lifted up her voice and said unto Jesus, "Blessed is the womb that bare thee, and the paps which thou hast sucked." Here is Dr. Fosdick's comment:

"Jesus came back at her like thunder, 'Yea rather, blessed are they that hear the word of God, and keep it.' It is as though you could hear Him saying to Himself, 'See, they are beginning to worship Me; they are evading what I am driving at by adoring emotions about Me; they will get rid of Me yet, as they have gotten rid of the prophets, by idolizing Me'."

What trifling! to use no harsher word. To think of Jesus thundering, and at a woman!

What He said was, "Yea, that woman is blessed." And in saying so, He confirmed the angelic announcement, and the words of Elizabeth to Mary, as recorded in Luke 1:28, 41 and 42.

But then He added, not gainsaying her utterance, but rectifying it, "There is a greater blessing for that woman and for any other woman. It is found in hearing the Word of God and keeping it."

No ingenuity can cause His words to bear any other meaning. And it is doubtless true, as others have indicated, that He thus spake prophetically against the unscriptural worship of the Virgin Mary which has prevailed in so large a part of Christendom. "It was a greater honor to Mary to have Christ in her heart by faith, than to have been the mother of Jesus and to have nursed him at her bosom."

THE CASE OF THE YOUNG RULER

A second curio of interpretation is that of Matthew 19:16, 17, on which Dr. Fosdick comments thus:

"Or how else will you explain his swift retort to the man who came bowing to him, saying, 'Good Teacher'? Said Jesus, 'Why callest thou me good? None is good save one, even God.' One can fairly read His thoughts as though He said to the man, Beware of worshipful deference to Me—I fear it. Come, stop this bowing and this 'Good Master'; what about your attitude to the kind of living I am standing for, whose springs are in God?"

The Holy Spirit caused the incident of this young ruler, for he was a ruler of the synagogue who thus came to Jesus, to be recorded in each of the Synoptics, Matthew, Mark and Luke, thus showing the consideration He wished given to it. But Dr. Fosdick, from the point of view of Bible learning, gives it no consideration whatever. He has a theory to maintain, and like a bird picking up a bright string on the lawn to weave into its nest, he seizes upon it as supporting his contention.

But it does nothing of the kind. Jesus did not "retort" to this young man. He instructed him. Mark says that "beholding, he loved him," and even Dr. Fosdick under similar circumstances, would not "retort" to a young man he loved. Much less Jesus.

On another occasion Jesus had warned His disciples against the Scribes and Pharisees who loved to be called of men, "Rabbi." And He said:

"But he not ye called Rabbi: for one is your Master, even Christ; and all ye are brethren.

"And call no man your father upon the earth: for one is your Father, which is in heaven.

"Neither be ye called masters: for one is your Master, even Christ.

"But he that is greatest among you shall be your servant.

"And whosoever shall exalt himself shall be abased; and he that shall humble himself shall be exalted" (Matt. 23:8-12).

Did this young ruler recognize Him as one with the Father? Did he perceive Him to be the Christ? And was he (not "bowing," as Dr. Fosdick says, but) actually kneeling to Him in adoration for that reason? Or was he simply offering Him that human worship which Jesus had condemned? As it was put by a predecessor of Dr. Fosdick on the faculty of the Union Theological Seminary in the former days of its orthodoxy, Dr. Philip S. Schaff, "Did this young man have a merely humanitarian view of Christ, or the true theanthropic view?" It was necessary for the young man to be brought to his senses on this point, hence the inquiry, "Why callest thou me good?"

The foregoing from Dr. Schaff is a footnote in Lange's Commentary on Matthew, but Lange himself in commenting on the parallel in Mark, adds this:

"Jesus does not decline the appellation 'good'; He repels it only in the superficial sense of the questioner. The young man deals with 'good,' in its relative meaning. It is in this sense he says 'good,' that is, 'excellent' Master. But Jesus teaches him to apprehend good in its absoluteness. And to that end he must understand the being good which he ascribes to Christ as being founded in God. Thus the answer is not to be explained deistically, but Christologically, 'If thou wouldst call Me good, thou must apprehend My unity with God and My divine nature.'"

How absurd to regard this as proving that Jesus feared to be worshiped!

THE POINT AT ISSUE

Dr. Fosdick used no text at the beginning of his sermon, but his frequent allusions to Matthew 7:21 indicate that His thoughts were revolving around the words of Jesus where he said,

"Not every one that saith unto me, Lord, Lord, shall enter the kingdom of heaven; but he that doeth the will of my Father which is in heaven."

He makes much of the latter half of this text, telling us again and again that Jesus feared being worshiped. "He does not want His ego idolized. He wants His cause supported"—"the divine will done in personal lives and social relationships." The churches of this country, he tells us,

"are full of people who worship Christ, who have no more idea what Christ really means about war, race relationships, the color line, the money standards of the day, the profit motive in industry, than Constantine had about Christ's attitude toward his bloody imperialism."

All of this may be true and much of it doubtless is true. And so far as it is true we are deserving of the tongue-lashing Dr. Fosdick gives us. And more is coming for such false professors, if that is what they are. As Paul says in I Corinthians 3:13, "The day shall declare it, because it shall be revealed by fire." And in II Corinthians 5:10, "For we must all appear before the judgment seat of Christ; that every one may receive the things done in his body, according to that he hath done, whether it be good or bad."

But that is not the point before us. It is not the point of the sermon. It is not the pivot on which its thought revolves. That point or pivot is the far more important and more serious one of the person of Christ. It is not what Jesus wants, but primarily, what Jesus is, "Whom say ye that I am?" (Matt. 16:15).

Dr. Fosdick says, Jesus is a "transcendent character," "supremely great." Divine? "Yes," he says, "if we can come to an understanding about what we mean by divinity. Wherever goodness, beauty, truth, love are—there is the divine." Quoting him further, "We all have some goodness, truth, love, and therefore on that basis the divinity of Jesus differs from ours in degree, but not in kind."

WHAT OUR LORD HIMSELF SAYS

But that is not what Jesus himself says about it, and Dr. Fosdick must know that it is not. And hence, what right in logic has Dr. Fosdick, or any other man, to use certain utterances of Jesus such as those in Luke 11:27 or Matthew 19:16, 17, on which to base an estimate of His person, and then ignore scores of other utterances equally authentic and equally plain, which in comparison would radically change that estimate?

To illustrate: There was an occasion when Jesus' countrymen were about to slay Him for "making himself equal with God." Did Jesus deny that claim? Assuredly not, but on the contrary, He framed a threefold argument to sustain it. And then like a lawyer in court, He produced His witnesses—four of them, to substantiate His argument. All this is revealed in the fifth chapter of John's Gospel, if Dr. Fosdick cares to look at it.

On another occasion Jesus said, "He that hath seen me hath seen the Father" (John 14:9). And again, "I and my Father are one" (John 10:30).

How would Dr. Fosdick interpret these utterances of One whom he confesses to be a "transcendent character" and "supremely great"? Would he charge Him with blasphemy, or, possibly, would he call Him insane?

He recurs to his pet idea by using

ABRAHAM LINCOLN AS AN EXAMPLE

"Take the truth into a realm quite different from religion and consider Abraham Lincoln," he exclaims. "He, if you use the word 'worship' as we are using it this morning, in its general and human sense, comes as near being worshiped as any American. That began when he died. While he lived men tried to crush him by opposition, but he was too strong to be overcome. When he died, however, they began using the other method to dispose of him. They adored him. Nothing too marvelous could be said of him. But in the ten years after he died Congress put into effect a policy towards the South that denied everything Lincoln had stood for and wanted. They praised his name and they scuttled his policies. They flattered his memory and denied his magnanimity.

They alike adored Lincoln and refused to follow him, so that they made the reconstruction era in the South one of the horrors of our history.

"What would Lincoln have said? We know. Stop this evading of my spirit by praising me! What do I care about the idolizing of my ego? I want my cause supported. Of course Lincoln would have said that because he was a large soul, not a little one.

"Can one doubt then, what Jesus' attitude would be?"

We repeat that this has nothing whatever to do with the subject. It is not a question of what Lincoln wanted. It is a question of what Lincoln was. Congress may have "scuttled his policies" and "denied his magnanimity," but did that affect his person? If he came "as near being worshiped as any American," did the failure of Congress to put his policies into effect denude him of that merit?

And may not the same question be put concerning Jesus Christ? Granted that He does not see His teachings understood or His will executed by all His professed followers, does that affect the question, "What think ye of Christ? whose son is he?" (Matt. 22:42)?

Or take the other illustration of Beethoven. We are told that when Beethoven wrote a symphony he did not write it merely to be admired but to be reproduced. Granted. But if not a soul was willing or able to reproduce it, was Beethoven other than Beethoven?

THE DARKNESS OF THE NATURAL MAN

We read over this sermon once or twice, and involuntarily there came into mind an utterance in the Western Recorder (Louisville) some time ago. Said the editor:

"It is a queer thing about human civilization, that its attainments in culture and in the harnessing of natural forces do not give it an ounce of added ability to comprehend the real inner significance of Christianity. No amount of 'progress' enables a man to apprehend it better than an unlettered backwoodsman."

Or as John Ruskin said, "I find numbers, even of the most intelligent and amiable people, not knowing what the word Christianity means. They are always asking how much is true, and how much they like, and never asking first, what was the total meaning of it, whether they like it or not."

That seems to be the case with Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick and his clientele. At one point in his sermon he says, "Divinity is not something supernatural that ever and again invades the natural order with a crashing miracle."

Yes it is, Dr. Fosdick, precisely that. If by divinity you mean deity, as do we, then it is supernatural, and ever and again it does invade "the natural order with a crashing miracle."

Let Jesus Christ Himself be the witness here. There was a day, His earthly ministry half over, when He said to His disciples, "Whom do men say that I the Son of man am? And they said, Some say that thou art John the Baptist; some, Elias; and others, Jeremias, or one of the prophets." That was as far as the natural man could go in his estimate of Jesus. And that is as far as Harry Emerson Fosdick goes. Jesus to him is a prophet, nothing beyond, nothing more, transcendent, great, but a prophet only.

Then said Jesus, "But whom say ye that I am? And Simon Peter answered and said, Thou art the Christ, the Son of the living God."

A CRASHING MIRACLE

Now here comes the "crashing miracle." Here the supernatural invades the natural, for Jesus answered and said unto him, "Blessed art thou, Simon Barjona: for flesh and blood hath not revealed it unto thee, but my Father which is in heaven" (Matt. 16:13-17).

That is your need, Dr. Fosdick, and we say it with all respect. You need the crashing miracle of spiritual illumination. To know Jesus as "the Christ, the Son of the living God," is not the fruit of human teaching, but divine. "The natural man receiveth not the things of the Spirit of God: for they are foolishness unto him: neither can he know them, because they are spiritually discerned" (1 Cor. 2:14). "Except a man be born again, he cannot see the kingdom of God" (John 3:3).

The peril of worshiping Jesus? Yes, if He is only "Jesus," Dr. Fosdick's Jesus.

But what if He be the Jesus of the New Testament? What will be our peril if we neglect then to worship Him? What if He be the Christ, the Son of the living God?

It is that thought that gave the title to this article, the audacity of unbelief. And yet, in such a case that word is weak audacity.

NOT A TIME FOR "ISMS"

No one questions the present period of depression. Yet, it is not a new development in economics. Since history began there have been periods of inflation, followed by those of deflation. In spite of all modern legislation, theories, research and plans, the centuries-old laws of supply and demand continue to exert themselves. A shortage in the supply means higher prices. Higher prices are a stimulus to production. A stimulated production soon meets the shortage. Consumption cannot be increased beyond a certain extent. Soon there is a large surplus—money becomes scarce. A period of depression exists.

All these steps were recently taken. During and after the war, sources of supply in Europe were crippled. A large demand was created for American products. Factories sprang up over night. Wages were doubled and redoubled. Prices soared and practically everyone was endowed with plenty. Then the inevitable. Conditions in Europe were restored to normal. Consumption in this country could not be further increased. There existed a decreasing demand—an increasing supply. As a result, the present depression.

In retrospect it appears surprising that very few during prosperity foresaw the likelihood of a change in conditions or made any preparation for a rainy day. The majority went ahead spending beyond their means, living from day to day, with perfect assurance that such prosperity would continue forever. For them there appeared no tomorrow to be prepared for, but like grasshoppers they sang and frolicked in the sunshine of plenty with no thought of a possible winter.

Many suffer during the present times and the deprivation seems doubly difficult after having experienced a time of comparative ease. Though there is no doubt that the times are hard, it is wondered if the reports are not exaggerated to any extent. It appears forgotten that there has always existed a certain amount of unemployment. There was never a time when there were not some who were more fortunate than others in the possession of worldly goods.

One of the real dangers of the present period is that many will be carried to extremes by present conditions and be brought to accept unsound theories. Certain organizations, representing sinister influences, are taking advantage of conditions to spread their propaganda and make converts to their cause. An example of one that has come within the sphere of such influence is evidenced by a letter recently received in this office. The writer for some time had been conducting an unsuccessful search for employment. He writes of his contemplated return to his home: "I will be passed by large new automobiles driven by men who through greed are in part responsible for my present plight—men who have not been necessary to the production of things of life. I will be in towns that have as officials those whose positions and luxuries are the products of blood money which they have sucked like vampires from the life work of producers. Under such conditions," he continues, "if Bolshevism or any other kind of ism presents itself and offers relief, what would be the natural effect on me? . . . Now allow me to say in the voice of millions of 100 per cent Americans who are hungry, that Russian Bolshevism is not the worst menace we have in our midst but Americans who propagate and sponsor a system that makes millionaires and paupers out of American citizens through the same process of industry.

"Banish the vampires of industry, the gangsters of the stock markets, the blood suckers of our treasury. Give to the producer a more equitable portion of his product. Give him a chance to surround himself with a security that assures him the necessity of life with sufficient leisure and luxuries. Compensate him for his productive ability and Bolshevism will find no place in his life and thinking."

It is not wished to criticize the writer of the letter quoted. He was merely quoting the possible thoughts of a hungry man and stated that he did not yet subscribe to those views. Nor is it very hard to guess the origin of such expressions. Similar propaganda is being poured forth by paid foreign agents throughout the country with but one thought in mind—the disruption of the American Government. They are envious of this, the most fortunate of all nations, and long for the opportunity to exploit its riches. With lurid adjectives they draw distorted pictures of conditions in this country and attempt to excite the use of force to aid their ends by awakening greed and avarice in the minds of men. Do they give logical reasons why conditions would be better under the systems they urge? Can they point to Russia with its bread lines, forced labor and unrest, and truthfully show that the working man there is living in ease and luxury? Can they explain the want and poverty of that country? Is it desirable to be summarily evicted from one's home—to have one's goods taken without any compensation—to live herded together in

The President's Letter

EVANGELISM

"Thy Kingdom Come"

$75,000.00

This is what the OCTOBER TITHES would amount to, based on an annual income of our people of $300. What would this mean to us? Added to what will have been paid up to October first, it would mean pastors paid in full. (During the past two years our pastors have lost in unpaid salaries, $19,159. It would mean college maintenance of $20,000 paid in full; all Church Extension allotments paid, and a neat sum left to apply on the indebtedness of the Board; a maximum of $500 each for our superannuates; and all budgets in full.

I can easily imagine some one saying: "That looks all right on paper; but we'll never get anywhere with it. Our people won't do it." How do you know they won't until we try it? Some won't, of course. But suppose we could get 50 per cent. of our people to do this, think what a vast difference it would make in our conference reports. We are earnestly urging that it be tried in every church. We have confidence in our people, and our faith is that many of them will co-operate in this effort if it is timely and enthusiastically urged in the local church.

College Bonds

Brother Harrison and President Humphreys are prosecuting this work as fast as possible, and I am giving them as much time as I can take from the other work incident to my office. But the task is not an easy one. Many persons must be seen and many miles traveled, all of which requires time and patience. But we are going right on with this effort. These bonds MUST be sold, and we believe that our people will buy them. We will be calling on YOU soon, and don't forget the slogan, "BUY A BOND."

A Year of Plenty

This is a year of unusual abundance. Farms and gardens are producing bountiful harvests, and orchards and vineyards are rich in their yields of luscious fruit. Of course money is scarce, but the bountiful yield of food supplies makes food possible for those who have but little money with which to buy it. Think of what a time of distress we would have if we had a short crop and tight money, too. God knows how to provide for this world, and He would do it bountifully always if we would meet His conditions. He has promised to provide food and raiment and shelter for us if we will put Him first. "Seek ye first the Kingdom of God and his righteousness, and all these things shall be added unto you." This is the teaching of Jesus for a time like this. And His word can not fail. The necessary material things of life will surely follow, if we put Him first. Surely we will not receive from His hands the abundant harvests of this year without acknowledging His goodness and showing gratitude for His mercies.

Chatham Charge

We were with Brother Lindley and his people of this charge on Sunday, August 16. In the morning we attended the Children's Day program at Hickory Grove, and preached in the afternoon. Brother W. M. Pike and his family worship at this church. He informed me that the annual conference was held here fifty years ago. He recalled that Brother R. H. Wills was the president at that time, and a Mr. Wilson the secretary. This church is "beautiful for situation," though its field for growth is limited by the fact that it is in close to a number of other churches. We were pleased to find the church observing Children's Day, and the house full of people to enjoy it. After dinner, which was served on the church grounds, we re-assembled for the afternoon service. The church was again well filled, and we were heard with helpful attention. This was the beginning of the revival meeting here. Brother Shelton was expected on Monday to assist the pastor in the meeting. We shall hope and pray for a good meeting.

The night service was with Hope church at Bonlee. Before going to this appointment we had a pleasant visit with Brother Lindley and his family in their home. Brother J. D. Williams and Miss Mabel joined us there for supper. Brother Williams went with us to his appointment at Siler City, on our trip to Bonlee, and joined us on our return. It was our good fortune to spend the night in his home. We found the Bonlee church much improved in appearance by a coat of paint that was put on the exterior last year. New pulpit chairs add much to the appearance and convenience of the interior. We have a good church building here, and in the membership are some of the most substantial people of the community. We enjoyed being with these two churches, and sharing the fellowship of these ministers and their families and the people of this charge. Brother Lindley is desirous of progress for his charge along all lines, though he is considerably handicapped by the money stringency. We trust that he may have encouraging results for his labors as the year lengthens. We wonder if this charge could be strengthened by merging some of the churches?

The Boundary Committee

Dr. Dixon, the chairman, will no doubt call this committee together before long to consider boundary changes. There is ample time, of course, between now and the coming conference for the meeting of this committee. However, it is time now for thought to be given to some charges where changes may have to be made. We were forced last year to unite some charges because of financial conditions. It seems now that other charges may have to be united this year for the same reason.

It is not good policy to undertake to maintain a work where an adequate support can not be provided for the pastor and the benevolences of the church. No pastor can render his best service who has to be constantly fighting the wolf from the door, and no church can be happy that is overloaded financially. What we must do is to make such combination of charges as to give financial relief, both for pastors and churches. Let us be thinking about this now, and unite our judgment in finding the best combination of charges where changes need to be made.

"Through Christ"

The confidence of the great Apostle must likewise be our confidence. We too, must say, in the full assurance of faith, "I can do all things through Christ who gives me strength." "All things" that he ought to do as a Christian, and as a minister of the gospel. That is what Paul means. And that, he was confident he could do through the strength that Christ would supply to him. And so can we. There isn't anything that he expects of us that we can not do,—no manner of living that we can't measure up to; no hardships that we can't endure; no good works that we can't abound in; no measure of liberality that we can't reach; no temptation that we can't resist; no rejoicings that we may not experience; no faith and courage that we may not have, despite a money panic;—nothing, absolutely nothing, that we can not do, that Christ expects of us. In the confidence of that fact, let us live our lives and do the work that He has given us to do.

TRUE MORAL COURAGE

The Rev. Mr. Fletcher had a wild and profligate nephew in the army who had been dismissed from the Sardinian service for very bad conduct. He had engaged in several duels and had spent his money in vice and folly. The wicked youth waited one day on his eldest uncle, General De Gons, and presenting a loaded pistol, threatened to shoot him, unless he would that moment advance him five hundred crowns. The General, though a brave man, well knew what a desperate fellow he had to deal with and gave a draft for the money, at the same time speaking freely to him of his conduct. The young man departed in high spirits with his ill-gotten money.

In the evening, passing the door of his younger uncle, Mr. Fletcher, he called on him, and began with informing him what General De Gons had done; and as a proof, showed a draft under De Gons' own hand. Mr. Fletcher took the draft from his nephew and looked at him in surprise. Then after some remarks putting it into his pocket, said, "It strikes me, young man, that you have possessed yourself of this note by some wrong method; and, in conscience, I cannot return it but with my brother's knowledge and approbation."

The nephew's pistol was in a moment at his breast. "My life," replied Mr. Fletcher with perfect calmness, "is secure in the protection of an Almighty power, nor will He suffer it to be the forfeiture of my integrity and your rashness." This firmness drew from the nephew the observation "that his uncle De Gons, though an old soldier, was more afraid of death than his brother." "Afraid of death!" rejoined Mr. Fletcher, "do you think I have been twenty-five years a minister of the Lord of life, to be afraid of death. You are a gamester and a cheat, yet you call yourself a gentleman! You are the seducer of female innocence; and still you say you are a gentleman! You are a duelist and for this you style yourself a man of honor! Look there sir," pointing to the Heavens, "the broad eye of Heaven is fixed upon us. Tremble in the presence of your Maker who can in a moment kill your body and for ever punish your soul in hell."

The unhappy young prodigal turned pale and trembled with fear and rage. He still threatened his uncle with instant death. Mr. Fletcher, though thus threatened, gave no alarm, sought for no weapon, and attempted not to escape. He calmly conversed with his profligate relation, and at length, perceiving him to be affected, addressed him in the kindest language till he fairly disarmed and subdued him! He would not return his brother's draft, but engaged to procure for the young man some immediate relief. He then prayed with him, and after fulfilling his promise of assistance, parted with him with much good advice on one side and many fair promises on the other.—The Repairer.

Not a Time for "Isms"

barn-like structures—to have someone else dictate what one may wear, eat or own?

Admitted that in this country during the present depression there are instances where men who are willing and able to work suffer from the lack of employment. But they do not bear the burden alone. The examples are just as many where former employers are in want. Last year there were 1,345 bank failures and 26,355 business failures. Employers lost not only the lack of an opportunity to work but their business, which was often the fruits of years of labor. The employer, usually referred to in uncomplimentary terms by agitators, seldom occupies a "bed of roses." Generally, after the employees' day is over, the employer must lay awake wondering and worrying how bills are to be met and the business kept going. It is the employer of labor rather than the laborer who is most often driven to suicide as a means of escape from worry. It is true that there are those who have amassed fortunes but it was generally by saving while others spent, by denying themselves luxuries and ease, by working while others slept, and by being always ready to take advantage of opportunities.

The solution of this country's problem does not lie by way of revolution. A betterment of conditions will not be attained by the adoption of isms and the radical doctrines of foreign agitators. It is a time when co-operation between labor and capital is needed for the benefit of both. It is a time for peacefully pulling together to bring about the solution of economic problems.—H. in Supreme Council Bulletin.

OUR STORY PAGE

TIM'S GAME

School was out now and Carlton felt that he could do as he pleased all day long. He spent most of his time playing at the barn or down at the pasture branch or out at the fields where the men were at work. He seldom came to the house from morning until dinner time. Then he was always very hungry, and mother always had a good dinner ready for him and his father and little sister Lula. If he had noticed, he would have seen that mother always looked tired when she came to dinner; and if he had thought about it, he would have known that she had to bring in the stove wood and draw and carry several buckets of water from the well, besides many other things that a boy ten years old could do as well as play all the time. But somehow he did not notice, and he did not think. Mother knew that if she waited for Carlton to notice and think she would have to keep on doing everything herself all summer. But she thought about how long he had been going to school and how glad he must be to get out, and she kept on bringing wood and water and doing other things and let him play all day long for a whole week.

Then as Carlton came up to the house one Monday morning, he was surprised to find a notice written in large letters on a piece of white paper pinned to the door, "Boy Wanted Here."

Carlton did not go in just then. After a while his mother heard a knock at the kitchen door, and as she opened it there stood Carlton in overalls and a wide straw hat.

"Morn' lady!" he said, taking the big hat from his head. "My name is Tim. I came here to get a job if you want a boy. I haven't had any breakfast."

"I am glad you came, Tim," said the lady. "I need a boy about your size very much. 'Are you hungry?'"

"No'm, not much," said Tim. "I can begin work right now if you want me to."

"What can you do Tim? And what wages are you willing to work for?"

"I can carry in wood and bring water and cut some wood, too, if the logs are not too big. I can go to the store for you and—and I can set the table and wash dishes and sweep floors; but I don't like to much. I will help you do that kind of work, though sometimes, till your little girl grows up big enough to help you," he said, glancing at Lula, who was standing behind her mother, laughing.

"I think you are just the boy I want, Tim. I should like to engage you right off if we can agree about the wages."

"Oh," said Tim, "never mind that. Wait till next Saturday."

"Very well, you may consider yourself engaged for a week. Would you mind feeding the little chickens while I finish getting breakfast ready? Here is some wheat. You will not have any trouble to find the coops. They are in the back yard."

Away ran the boy in the overalls and big straw hat, and when breakfast was ready he came in with rosy cheeks and hearty appetite. "Tim," was a willing helper about the place all that week. Mother didn't look nearly so tired after he came. And the strangest part about it was that "Tim" seemed to be as happy and have as much fun as Carlton had while playing all the time.

When Saturday evening came, mother said she didn't know how she had ever gotten along without the boy. "What shall I pay you, Tim?" she asked. "I like you better than any helper I ever had."

"Oh, nothing, mamma!" said Carlton, catching his mother around the neck. "I'd be ashamed not to help you; and it's fun to play Tim." —Publisher Unknown.

TIME

ECCLESIASTES 3; REVELATION 10:6

A "time" to live—and a "time" to die.
My! How the days, go swiftly by
Why! At my age, they seem to fly.
This "time" to live—and this "time" to die.

A "time" to work—and a "time" to play
God gives us the "time"—and He gives us the day.
A "time" to laugh—and a "time" to sing,
God gives us a "time" for everything.

But "time" brings sorrow—and "time" brings tears,
And "time" brings suffering—and "time" brings fears,
The "time clock" strikes—and our conscience hears
The solemn warning—of misspent years.

This age of "time"—is an episode
To bring lost sinners—to their God.
For all were lost—through "Adam's sin,"
But through Christ the Lord, are brought back to Him.

So while "time" lasts—'tis a day of "grace,"
For all "who will," shall see His face.
For the dead in Christ, and those who abide,
Shall have a "place," with the glorified.

"Redeem the time"—while it's "still today,"
That all may hear,—of the "Gospel way."
The way of the Cross, where the Saviour died
For it's God's own way—through the "Crucified."

But He rose again. He is glorified,
He has taken "His place," by the Father's side.
And "time" shall cease, but we shall be,
With Him in Glory, eternally.

—T. P. Bower.

—Keep virtue's simple path before your eyes,
Nor think from evil good can ever rise.

—A hundred thanks to First Church, High Point! She has reached her goal of 100 families receiving the HERALD each week. Brother E. L. Douglas and his associates on the committee deserve much credit. We thank them heartily.

FROM PASTORS and PEOPLE

Chase City Charge, Friendship Church.—We held our Sunday school every Sunday at 11 o'clock with an average of about 55 present; we hope to continue with our Sunday school and the average will gain every Sunday.

The revival meeting was held last week starting August 2nd. A sermon preached by Rev. Mr. Hulin, followed by a Bible class held by Pastor Saunders in the afternoon, then preaching at 8 o'clock by Rev. Mr. Hulin, the helper. The services ran during the week, in the morning at 11 o'clock and in the evening at 8 o'clock.

Preacher Hulin preached some good, plain preaching, but very little interest was shown among the congregations with four conversions. The revival closing August 9th. We were very glad to have preacher Hulin with us.

REPORTER.

South Lexington is still pushing ahead with its work. Our Sunday school is still looking good. Our last Sunday we had 364 in Sunday school.

At the evening service we were very glad to have Dr. Taylor preach for us; he preached a very interesting sermon and all present seemed to enjoy it very much.

Our Sunday school today we did not have as large attendance as usual owing to the fact that the weather was extremely hot.

Our morning service Rev. Charlie Grant did the preaching for us and we enjoyed hearing him and having him with us very much. In the evening service Brother Isley preached a very forceful sermon; he also presided the conference and we are making a special effort to raise these. At the close of the service the doors of the church were opened and Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Amman united with us; this makes 152 new members received into our church in the past seven weeks. Our church has grown considerably and now we need the prayers of all.

REPORTER.

Lebanon.—Since we were last heard of through the Herald, we have been going forward in a very satisfactory manner. We have good attendance at both Sunday school and preaching services. We always receive an inspiring and helpful message from our pastor each Sunday at both services. We hope that we may be able to put to practice the things which he tells us in these messages.

We were very glad to have our pastor's mother, mother, brother and sister with us in the services last Sunday.

Our revival meeting will begin next Sunday morning. We will have as pulpit help in the meeting Rev. Roy L. Farmer. Brother Farmer preached for us several times the first of his year and we are glad to have him with us in our revival meeting; also Sunday has been planned as Home-Caring day and we hope that our church pastors, members and friends in this church will be able to attend the services.

Our pastor has just closed a Teacher Training school that has been in session for the last two weeks. It was well attended and we feel sure that much good will come from these classes.

Owing to the fact that our pastor was having these classes Brother S. W. Taylor was with us in the mid-week prayer service of last week.

REPORTER.

Bethesda.—Our pastor, Rev. C. W. Saunders with his help, Rev. Joel B. Trogdon, held the revival meeting beginning with the third Sunday in July. This was one of the best in many years; souls were saved, backsliders reclaimed and many of the saints revived. We feel our people are on higher ground. Brother Trogdon is a man of God, we believe, and think that Christians were caused to see their duties and we know that sinners were made to tremble. We can never express our thanks to God and Brother Saunders for bringing us such able preaching. We hope he will come again real soon. We love our pastor; we take him to be a real preacher. May the Lord ever bless him, is our prayer.

MR. AND MRS. J. R. BOAN.

Orange Charge.—The third quarterly conference was held at Union Grove church Saturday, July 25th. The usual business was transacted. The votes for delegate were counted, and Brother M. P. Effland was declared delegate-elect.

The revival meeting began at Union Grove the first Sunday in August and closed the following Thursday. Rev. T. J. Whitehead came to us on Monday and did all the preaching from then until the meeting closed. He is a good preacher. His sermons were well received. The church was revived.

The revival meeting began at Hebron Sunday, August 9th and closed Friday night, August 14th. Rev. M. P. Chambliss preached for us seven times in this meeting; the writer preached five times. Brother Chambliss brought to us splendid messages, which were well received. It rained practically all the time during the meeting. Congregations were small. The church was somewhat revived. One reclaimed, one converted.

Our next and last revival meeting is scheduled to begin at Chestnut Ridge the fourth Sunday in August. Rev. C. L. Spencer is to preach for us in this meeting.

Sincerely,

B. M. WILLIAMS

Alleghany, Davidson Charge.—Our revival meeting began the second Sunday in August and closed Saturday night. Brother E. A. Bingham, our pastor, doing his own preaching except Mr. Paul Fine preached twice; he is one of our Alleghany boys and did fine. We wish him great success in preaching and that he may be the cause of many being saved. Brother Bingham was at his best and did some great preaching and plod with the sinners to come, but they stayed away and would not come, but we hope that they cannot rest until they are saved. While we didn't have the result that we would like to have had, we believe that the church was greatly revived. We hope that the church will take a new life and try to have all and dwell of the good that we can. There was good attendance all of the time especially at night.

ABIGAIL COGGIN.

Tabernacle Charge.—We have held our revival meetings at both Julian and Tabernacle churches. Rev. H. F. Fogleman was our pulpit help at Julian and Rev. R. S. Trostler at Tabernacle. These brethren did excellent work and the churches seem to be greatly revived; four united with the church at Julian and seven at Tabernacle. At Tabernacle a number were constrained to praise the Lord aloud during the meeting. The attendance was most gratifying at both churches, the large auditorium at Tabernacle being unable to accommodate the folks at a few of the services.

It appears that Julian church has the largest Sunday school in the history of the church. Last Saturday, August 15, the Sunday school held its annual picnic near the home of Brother Grant Coble and all had a delightful time.

We have a special drive on for subscriptions to the Herald. Miss Ola Whitley and Miss Annie Hardin are assisting the pastor and our aim is to reach our goal. Miss Bell Causey, one of the loyal members of Tabernacle church, believes in reading the church paper. Starting with the Central Protestant, the Herald has been coming to her home from the first issue until the present. She recently told the writer that it would be difficult for her to do without the Herald.

A new cement walkway has recently been made from Tabernacle church to the Sunday school building, a distance of about 40 feet, adding much to the appearance and making the walking much better when the ground is soft.

Brother Henry Royal will represent Tabernacle charge in our next annual conference.

The following have remembered the pastor with donations recently: Mr. and Mrs. Purvis Neece, Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Coble, Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Garrett, Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Liberty Hill, Anderson Charge.—The revival meeting at this church closed last night, and we believe it was indeed a revival as there were 30 conversions, ten being taken in under the watchcare of the church until the second Sunday in September when they will be baptized and be received into full membership. Mr. M. C. Henderson did all the preaching. It was given a "free-will" offering of $23.13 which we feel he richly deserved. We were glad to have some of the Fairview people with us.

Mr. Lee Leonard is still in bad health and asks the prayers of the Christians.

MRS. JEWELL HARRISON, Reporter.

Pleasant Hill, West Forsyth Charge.—Our revival meeting began last Sunday morning; the first sermon was delivered by Rev. J. P. Pegg. The sermon was clear, distinct and forceful. Quite a number of members from other churches on the charge were present, to these and all other visitors a hearty welcome was extended by Pastor Way in behalf of the church.

The Long Sprinkle communion was held in the afternoon after a sumptuous dinner served on the church lawn. It was estimated that 200 relatives and friends were present. One very interesting and pleasing feature of the pro-given, was the singing rendered by the Thomasville Male Chorus. It was announced that the reunion will be held again at the same time and place next year.

Mr. and Mrs. Connie Hargrove, of Burlington, were week-end visitors of Rev. and Mrs. C. B. Way, and other friends here. Mrs. Hargrove is Mrs. Way's sister.

The Pleasant Hill church has been recently repainted on the outside, and on the inside, and fitted with new carpet, and now it is one among the prettiest rural churches.

Mrs. M. L. Anderson, of High Point, is visiting relatives and friends in the Foster, and Tobaccoville vicinities.

MRS. ROBERT P. PETREE,
Tobaccoville, N. C., Aug. 17-31.

Spring Church, Spring Church Charge.—Our revival begins on next Sunday at 11 o'clock. There will be two services each day, at 11 and 2 o'clock, through Thursday, after which we will have a night service beginning at 8 o'clock, which will last as long as interest demands. Professor Pender, of Mebane, N. C., will conduct the singing. Rev. Edward Jordan, of Philadelphia, will preach the two sermons on Sunday. We are always glad to have Brother Jordan preach for us as he was raised in this community and was a member of our church until a few years ago.

Our pastor, Rev. E. G. Lowdermilk, will do the preaching on Sunday, unless he sees fit to invite some visiting minister to help him. Help us to pray for our revival.

REPORTER.

Friendship, Shiloh Charge.—Our revival meeting which began the second Sunday in August closed Friday night. Our pastor, Mr. Troxler, did the preaching. He delivered the most wonderful and inspiring sermons we ever heard. Those who heard his messages will never forget them. The meeting was very successful. We had fifteen additions to the church and several conversions.

Our S. S. is getting along just fine. The classes are opening Sunday school. It is very interesting to see just what each class is doing. Our Sunday school roll numbers 216.

The C. E. society met Sunday night with Miss Otte May Cull as leader. We had a good lesson. It was so interesting to study about what nature has about God.

The Ladies' Auxiliary will meet Tuesday night at the church. These meetings are always good.

ADELE PHILLIPS, Reporter.

Acheboro.—Many of our people have been taking vacations, but the congregations have held up very well considering the hot weather. Our pastor has been delivering splendid and helpful sermons. The subject discussed last Sunday morning was "Giving God a Chance." Mr. Suddins has also brought some very fine messages to the evening congregations on the plan of the Presbyterian church.

Mrs. S. F. Thacker, Jr., and little son have returned to their home at Kingsport, Tenn., after a visit with Rev. and Mrs. Suddins.

The annual outing meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary of the church was held at Maple Grove, the home of Mr. and Mrs. Pam Billa, Monday afternoon, August 16th, after the rainy business was transacted; Rev. N. M. Harrison made a talk on the needs and the sub of bonds for High Point college. The auxiliary acted to give a $100 bond with six per cent, semi-annual interest until 1933, when it will mature. The play item, other items, were presented by Miss Annie Grant Ross, Miss Rufus Routh and Mrs. L. F. Ross. A large number were present and enjoyed the picnic supper and watermelon feast.

Miss Jane Page Walker is at home after an appendicitis operation at Duke Hospital, Durham. She is recovering satisfactorily.

The church was happy to have Mr. R. R. Ross back in his pew last Sunday morning, after several weeks of illness.

LOUIE JONES, Reporter.

Oak Grove, Forsyth.—Our Sunday school was off some again last Sunday. It has been up and down this summer. Pastor Geringer and family were with us on last Sunday at 7 o'clock. He preached a wonderful sermon. We had a good attendance.

Our revival meeting begins the second Sunday in October. We pray that many souls will be saved during this revival.

Our prayer meetings on Sunday nights are still holding up well.

Mrs. Gid Smith and 17 of her class went to Rolling Springs near Davidson Saturday p. m. on a picnic trip. Every one seemed to be delighted over their trip.

Mr. A. M. Kiger, who has been on the sick list, has much improved.

Mrs. L. M. Brower has returned from Ohio where she spent three weeks with her children at the Junior orphanage. She reports a grand visit.

We ask the prayers of all you pastors and people for the upbuilding of our church.

Remember our prayer meetings and our revival in your prayers, and everybody is invited to come and take a part.

Best wishes to all the churches, the Herald and its readers.

MRS. R. M. WARREN, Reporter.

St. Paul, Greensboro.—After ten days of vacation with our church people most of them were back in their places of worship Sunday. Quite a number of our people went away; some to Washington, D. C., others to Morehead City, and other places of sight-seeing, while some preferred to stay at home and rest.

Our third quarterly conference has been held and while the reports were not as good as they should have been, we find them as good as last year at this time. So at the end of the year we are expecting to catch up and pay up.

The Ladies' Aid have furnished the kitchen at the luncheon with built-in cabinets, and built-in cook tables, also had three nice tables made, and Mrs. R. C. Lineberry has donated the hot and cold stove and a committee has been appointed to get dishes; then we will be ready to serve suppers.

Our pastor has been away for the past week helping in a meeting at Flag Springs, Why Not change. He had Rev. C. E. Smith, of High Point, to preach in his place yesterday; he preached a splendid sermon. Rev. Smith left with us the need of more prayer in the home. We will be glad to hear him again.

At the night service the Christian Endeavorers from English Street church, High Point, had charge of the service. It was a real treat to have them with us and the program was well carried out. Some good talks were given by the young ladies, also the young men had part in this program. They have visited C. E. society and we hope that they will come to St. Paul again.

Our Sunday school will hold its annual picnic at Camp Herman next Saturday, August 22nd. Buses will be provided for all that do not have a way to go. Come and bring a basket.

Mrs. H. A. Morris has been on the sick list for quite a while, but she may soon be able to be out again.

About 25 of our church ladies made a visit to Schiffman's Jewelry store last Friday afternoon, while we were shown over the store and after a short talk from Mr. Schiffman, we were served refreshments, last but not least we were to receive $5.00 for this visit.

The Ladies' Aid held their August meeting Saturday night with Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Wilson.

Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Wade are leaving next Friday for Covington, Ky., where they will visit their son, Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Wade.

The first Sunday in September in Rally Day at St. Paul. Come and rally with us and we make it a good day.

MRS. J. S. WADE, Reporter.

English Street M. P. Church.—Sunday, August 23, is to be the big day at English Street church. This day has been set aside as Rally Day. Regular Sunday school services at 9:45, followed by preaching at 11 o'clock by Rev. W. M. Pike, a former pastor. Dinner will be spread in picnic fashion. The afternoon service will begin at 2:30. At this service Rev. D. L. Garner, a former pastor, will be the main speaker. The Freeman quartet of Thomasville; Misses Myrtle and Annie Chalmers, and a quartet from St. Paul's church will all be present to furnish plenty of singing, as well as the Junior quartette, or our own church. Other singers may also be present.

Plans for the evening service have not yet been completed. It has not been decided whether this will be a children's program, or one in charge of the C. E. society.

REPORTER.

Winston, First.—After a long absence here I am again. I want to thank all of my friends everywhere for the many letters and cards and flowers, telephone calls and visits during the four weeks that I was in bed. Each ten days spent in bed seemed like a normal month so it seemed that I was in for a period of three months rather than one. On Sunday during my absence President Taylor came up and preached at the morning church service and the people said he surpassed Lincoln. The next Sunday Rev. O. C. Loy came and gave the people a splendid sermon. Our people were certainly delighted with Brother Loy's sermon.

Since the city took away our front porch some weeks ago we have not been able to enter the front door of the church but a new entrance is to be made this week and we hope to use it by next Sunday.

Brother E. N. Routh, one of our most faithful members and a steward of our church, was operated on at the city hospital yesterday morning and stood through the operation splendidly. We are hoping for a complete recovery.

Miss Lulla Barson, our youth reporter, is spending some time at Virginia Beach.

Clothing and Other Gifts

The immediate gift in the Daily Vacation Bible School, Mt. Lebanon circuit, 25 pillow slips.

Mr. L. W. Jones, Oakley Church, Greensboro, 4 bushels tomatoes.

Mr. Sam L. York, R. F. D., High Point, 4 baskets catfishes.

Mr. W. Mayer, Saxton, Denton, 1 pair white socks.

We are thankful to our Heavenly Father, and to His faithful children for these gifts of money and substance we are able to report this week.

Especially do we appreciate the personal gifts of money which doubtless has come in response to our frank statement in the church papers. In connection with these gifts there have come some beautiful expressions which have cheered our hearts. They are too personal to publish.

We quote two expressions which cover pretty well the other letters as well. A poor woman came in, sending five dollars and, "I wish I had the money, you could never be in debt, enclosed please find 45.00. I wish it were a thousand. I would gladly give it."

A syncretistic minister writes: "Dear Brother Dixon: We have just read the article in the paper and here is our answer, $25.00 for the orphans."

It is inspiring and encouraging to know that even those who have but little are so willing to share it with us and our children.

We fully appreciate every bit of help that comes.

God bless all His dear ones.

Yours in His service,

A. G. DIXON.

AND HE DID!

He said he would fail,
A case of the blues,
His business so bad,
He knew he would lose,
And he did!

Despite many warnings
He dabbled in stocks,
But felt that some day
He'd land on the rocks,—
And he did!

He grumbled and fussed
That things were not right,
Obsessed by the fear
He'd worry all night,—
And he did!

The world was so hard
He wanted to cry,
If friends wouldn't help
He might as well die,
And he did!

THE OTHER SIDE!

In times of depression
Unwilling to share,
He had but one aim
To do and to dare,—
And he did!

Though others complained
He advertised more,
He strove how to draw
New trade to his store,—
And he did!

When men were the lures
Of sport and display,
He said he could sink
His own business pay,—
And he did!

He vowed he'd succeed
And never give up,
With labor and zeal
He knew he could win,—
And he did!

—GEO. A. LE KAYSER.

HIS CHIEF CONCERN

Before imprisonment for debt was abolished in England a rumor in a French casino once threw the whole country into excitement. An imprisoned noble was talking through the bars of his window with a street beggar and a soldier who was considerably more than "third sons over."

"If the French effort to liberate our British soil, what will become of our free ties?" cried the imprisoned debtor.

"Yes, and of our property!" echoed the third son beggar.

"Oh, that is an liberty and our property!" affirmed the drunk soldier; "what will become of our religion?"

REV. R. I. FARMER THANKS FRIENDS

Dear Brother Editor:

You may find space in your columns for this personal word for which I shall be grateful. It will thus reach many more to whom I desire to say "Thank you" than it otherwise.

Many readers of the Methodist Protestant Herald gave support last year in the campaign for readers of the Christian Endeavor World. No doubt, each new reader enjoys the paper. Though I did not secure the award of the trip to the World's Christian Endeavor Convention in Berlin, I was awarded the trip to the recent International Golden Jubilee Convention in San Francisco. By motoring the family was enabled to accompany me. It is for this wonderful privilege that I desire to express my gratitude to all who helped make it possible. We were accompanied by Miss Annabel Thompson, of the Greenboro, West End, Methodist Protestant church.

Many echoes from the wonderful youth gathering shall be heard from time to time. The record of the half-century just completed is almost magic certainly the plans for the one just entered are challenging. President Poling's Golden Anniversary goals for the next two years are: (1) Crusade With Christ to win a million other youth—evangelism first; (2) Crusade With Christ for Christ and the church, loyalty to the local church; (3) Crusade With Christ for Christian Citizenship, patriotism; and (4) Crusade With Christ for world peace—Christ in the nations. Much is covered in detail in each goal.

This youth movement grew and grows because it is both Christian and active. These needed ingredients make success. The most recent addition to the large family in more than one hundred countries, dominions, divisions, groups or islands is the ancient Waldensian church in Italy, the oldest Protestant church in the world. This "People of the Labor" though attacked by the official Vatican newspaper, L'Osservatore Romano. The Roman Observer, have formed a federation of young people's societies and began a Christian Endeavor. Recently they met in convention near Rome.

These descendants of ancestors who knew captivity and misery and death for the sake of religion's truth have declared, in their reply to the Vatican attack, their loyalty with their nation others to the motto, "For Christ and the Church." They will not retreat nor retreat. They will move out and are already moving out into new fields despite the violent reaction of the Roman church which is still intolerant where it is in the majority. With American Christian Endeavorers, as well as those from all over the globe, they will sing,

"Faith of our fathers, holy faith,

We will be true to thee till death."

ROY IRWIN FARMER.

A little girl who had been left to watch the soup was presently heard to sing out, "Oh, mother, come quick, the soup is getting bigger than the pot."—Tit-Bits.

Dinner: Waiter, I ordered apple custard.

Waiter: This is apple custard.

Dinner: But where I came from apple custard has no upper crust.

Waiter: That ain't upper crust, Mister—that's dust.—Pathfinder.

IN HONOR OF THE DEAD

Campbell

Miss Decie Ann Campbell was born near Siler City, N. C., April 7th, 1882. She departed this life July 25th, 1931. At the time of her death she was living in Burlington, N. C., which city had been her home for several years.

Miss Campbell had been in ill health for several months, but her condition did not become critical until just a few days prior to her death. No doubt her suffering was intense and she probably suffered more than human eye could detect, but she did not complain. Her spirit of patience was very beautiful and had its roots in her steadfast faith in God.

Miss Campbell was a very loyal member of the First Methodist Protestant Church. She believed in living her religion, not only on certain days in a special observance, but every day. She believed that religion should permeate every relationship of life. She so lived that people were deeply impressed with her goodness, her purity and her faith.

May the loved ones and friends be blessed of God and may His comforting peace be theirs continually.

The funeral was conducted by the writer, assisted by Dr. S. W. Taylor.

SONG OF THE TIMES

Sing a song of dole and woe,
Everyone is blue,
People are so pale,
Don't know what to do,
Business is a mystery,
Things are gone to smash,
Little Sam's big pockets,
Simply burst with cash!

Robbers in the counting house,
Stealing over money,
Idle people looking on,
Thank it very funny,
Stocks and bonds at bargain,
None there to buy,
Dollars dirty squandered,
Drinking on the sly!

Let us stop complaining,
Wasting precious time,
Take a useful lesson,
From this little rhyme,
Everyone get busy,
Work with might and main,
See how very quickly
Good times come again!

—GREENVILLE KLEISER.

"Come right on in, Mose," Terwilliger called. "The dog won't hurt you. You know, a barking dog never bites."

"Sure, Boss. Ah knows dat," replied Mose. "but Ah can't know how soon he's goin' to stop barkin'!"—Rutherford.

A TAXLESS TOWN

By voting and operating its three major utilities—Charlotte, Kann, with a population of 11,000, has retained the enviable record of being the largest taxless town in the country. Lights received from the municipal gas, water, and electric light plants have freed citizens from the payment of taxes and made possible the payment of the city's bonded debt. In an emergency all 17 of the phones can be rung at once and the captain can talk or give orders to all strategic points at the same time.

—Mr. and Mrs. F. R. Brittan and Mr. and Mrs. Carl M. Brittan and small son, Marshall, left yesterday for Cayland, Ga. where they will visit Joseph B. Brittan, brother of F. R. Brittan, and Mr. and Mrs. Harry D. Stenton, who formerly lived here.

God's Better Way

There is a way that seemeth right
To man who has imperfect sight:
God sees it is the way of death
And cries aloud—hear what He saith!

Trust not yourself to choose your way
E'en though you walk in perfect day:
The end ahead you cannot see,
But God sees all eternity.

Ask God to choose for you your way,
He'll gladly do it every day.
In filial spirit look above:
The Father sees whose name is Love.

God Plans for the Spread of Christianity

After God had produced the Christian system of truth through the prodigious efforts of His Son, Jesus Christ, efforts extending through centuries of human history, it is not reasonable to suppose that He would take no interest in the spread of Christianity. The Book of Acts gives evidence of the continued activity of God in the spread of the Gospel and the extension of the Christian religion. The history of the case of Cornelius and Peter is an example. Cornelius probably had prejudice against receiving the teaching of Peter and Peter certainly had prejudice against preaching to Cornelius. God intervened and overcame the prejudice of both; that of Cornelius by the message brought by an angel, that of Peter by the vision from Heaven. Peter and Cornelius were brought together and the result was Cornelius and his family were brought into the Christian fold. By an act of God Philip and the Ethiopian treasurer were brought together and the Ethiopian was baptized into the Christian faith. Similarly Saul and Ananias were brought together and Saul was confirmed as a Christian.

Years pass and we read that the Holy Spirit said to the Christians in Antioch, "Separate unto me Barnabas and Paul for the work unto which I have called them." More years pass and Paul proposes to go into Bithynia but is forbidden by the Spirit of Jesus. Later the man of Macedonia appeals to Paul, "Come over into Macedonia and help us." All the time Jesus is superintending the work and directing the workers. It must have been so during all the Christian centuries and must be so today. Jesus has not lost interest in the world He died to save. The fact that Jesus is at the head of missionary work gives assurance of its success and gives dignity to the task of mission workers. We may well believe that all earnest Christian workers of today are men or women whose hearts have been touched and moved by God.

The divine movement precedes and prepares for the human movement. Progress in the Christianizing of the world seems slow to our impatience, but may be accounted for by the natural slowness of man. The salvation of the world to complete Christianization was and is a stupendous undertaking. Confidence is inspired by the fact that Christ still heads the movement. We should not allow any sort of papacy or other human headship to blind us to Christ's position and claims. Jesus must reign and will reign until He has put all enemies under His feet. The movement to Christianize the world is the liveliest movement in the world because it is animated by the Spirit of Christ. It is the central movement of history. This movement must go on though all other movements have to stop. God planned, God works, God will succeed.

—We hope to hear that the sale of High Point College bonds is going well, as so much depends upon it.

—We should be thankful for this cool weather that August is now favoring us with.

—High Point College opens to students Thursday, September 10th. The prospect for a good opening is said to be bright.

—Flat Rock church had a successful celebration last Sunday despite the rain. We hope to receive for publication the historical sketch prepared and read by Dr. Paul S. Kennett.

—Rev. W. F. Kennett went on Tuesday to his boyhood home place about ten miles south of Greensboro. He also expected to attend service at Bethlehem camp meeting nearby.

—We reprint this week from our general organ an article from The Pittsburgh Christian Advocate. It bears heavily on the question of church union. Our people should inform themselves thoroughly as to the matter before taking any steps. Union is honorable in all men, but should not be entered into lightly or unadvisedly.

"God is light, and in Him is no darkness at all.

If I say, Surely the darkness shall cover me

And the light about me shall be night,

Even the darkness hideth not from Thee,

But the night shineth as the day;

The darkness and the light are both alike to Thee."

—There is not a single state in which either the Jews or the Roman Catholics constitute the majority of the population; but there are nine southern states in which Protestants make up more than half the total. The record, however, is held by Utah where four-fifths of the inhabitants are Mormons."

UNION WITH THE METHODIST PROTESTANTS

Under this caption the Pittsburgh Christian Advocate discusses the question of church union based upon the report which was sent out to all the churches involved in the discussion of church union at the conference on Methodist Union which met recently in Chicago. The report of this conference was published in the Methodist Protestant-Recorder of July 28 on page 4. After reading the report you will be interested in reading what the editor of the Advocate has to say about it in his editorial appearing in the Advocate of July 30.

"The recent meeting at Chicago of the members of the Commissions considering union between the Methodist Protestant Church and the Methodist Episcopal Church was highly encouraging. The report of the meeting, printed on page 15 of this issue, indicates with undisguised satisfaction how readily and happily all supposed differences are being ironed out and how few, if any, are the obstacles to actual union.

"We share heartily in the well grounded hopes and anticipations of an early merging of these two Methodist Churches. It is a great pleasure to note that no obstacles were found in the adjustment of congregational and property rights and ministerial relations.

"The surprise comes, however, when the report says, in regard to polity, that 'it was found that the changes which time had wrought had made these churches much the same in polity.' In explanation the report says, 'In 1828 the General Conference was formally petitioned to concede the principle of lay representation in all the conferences of the Church. Failure to grant this concession caused the secession. Since then this principle of lay representation has been endorsed by the Methodist Episcopal Church.'

"Well, it has in a measure. Lay representation has indeed been granted in the General Conference since the fatal year of 1828, but nowhere else. The annual conference and the judicial conference know nothing of lay representation, even in principle. In the General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, and in all the conferences of the Methodist Protestant Church, lay representation means actual membership in the body without distinction between the ministry and the laity so far as rights and privileges are concerned. There is nothing of that kind in the annual conferences of the Methodist Episcopal Church, and, so far as our observation goes, there is no intention of endorsing that principle. We wish there were.

"Even the pending legislation in the Methodist Episcopal Church, which, curiously enough, some think will bring the laymen as members into the annual conference, has no such purpose and will have no such results, if adopted. Indeed, this legislation, which is supposed to be the most "advanced" the denomination has proposed on this subject for many years, is designed to keep the laymen out of membership in the annual conference, for it creates a lay conference to which the laymen will belong, while it continues the annual conference as a ministerial body. The nearest the layman comes to a common membership with the minister is to be allowed to sit with him in a joint session when the two bodies come together for a brief time to transact a small amount of business of little consequence. If that is 'endorsing the principle of lay representation in all the conferences of the Church,' it is the endorsement of a fiction. No-body should be under any misapprehension about it.

"It is a pity, especially under the circumstances, that this is the case. The Methodist Episcopal Church ought to be as generous toward its laymen as the Methodist Protestant Church has been. And it is to be hoped that in the mutual desire for the merging of the two churches and with the need of making as fine a show of democracy as our sister church, this and all other stumbling blocks to complete accord may be done away.

"The General Conference at Atlantic City ought to refuse to endorse the pending legislation, with its timid dodging on the subject of lay representation in the annual conference, and boldly start such action as will give our laymen equal rights with the ministers in all the councils of the Church."

—The Methodist Protestant-Recorder.

SAMUEL DONNELL

By J. T. BRITTAIN, Esq.

The world has been wild for many centuries by paying great tribute to the warriors and politicians, who have been the instrument of slaying men, and laying fields desolate and leaving thousands of widows and fatherless children. History fails to remember or even mention many of the great citizens, who are leaders in developing civilization, who have lived exemplary lives in the community, and have done much to civilize and Christianize the country. Every community has had such men and every community has had leaders and these are the men who have bettered, civilized and Christianized the entire world by each man operating in his own sphere and letting his character and influence be felt far beyond the borders of the neighborhood.

Every man remembers the leading men in the neighborhood where he was born and reared. In recalling the different ones of my boyhood and their good deeds Samuel Donnell is one of the first who come to my mind. Born in the Center neighborhood in 1797, he grew up on his father's farm in the northern part of Guilford County. When the country needed such families to develop their section of the State, they took an interest in the schools and churches and were considered above the average liver of the time. Samuel was an industrious boy and when grown went to farming for a livelihood. He was fond of horses and usually owned some good ones. Shortly after he was grown he was driving a team of wild young horses, who tried to run away with him. He found he could not control them, but instead of stopping them he laid whip and made them run. A few frolics of this kind broke them from running away.

Young Donnell's love of horses took him to the home of Hezekiah Sanders on the Widow Catherine Brittain's place near Summerfield. This was a meeting place for traders of Southern Virginia as well as this section of North Carolina. On this occasion he saw Priscilla, the twelve-year-old daughter of John Ogborn, who had been killed by lightning several years before. He stated that he wanted to speak to that little girl, and Mr. Saunders brought the two young people together. Samuel afterwards visited her often in the home of her mother, a Mrs. Bowman by re-marriage. When Priscilla was fifteen years old they were married and made their home in the Center neighborhood. At the death of William Ogborn she heired a portion of his land, to which they soon added a tract in the Reedy Fork and Beaver Creek section. Later a portion of land bought from Thomas Sanders became the home site of the Donnells. The Daniel Smith farm on which William Crutchfield now lives and the farm on which J. J. Peoples now lives were bought later. These last two farms made Samuel Donnell the owner of the tract of land from Ai Church to Reedy Fork and Beaver Creek and the old Clemmons Mill across to near the place where John R. Peoples now lives. By this time the Donnells were recognized as substantial and prosperous land owners in the community. He had also bought a few slaves and built a house for them with the exception of those which he kept about his own house for convenience.

Samuel and Priscilla Donnell lived on this land and reared several children. I think there were fourteen, all of whom followed varied careers. Loton owned the W. B. Johnson place, later known as the William Bunch place. William took Calvin Roberts' store, and lived there until his death. Edmond went west. Celia married James Donnell who lived and died near Greensboro. Carolina married Calvin Roberts who lived at Kernersville. Their daughter Eunice, who died at 24, was considered one of the most beautiful girls in that country. Bettie married into the Wilcox family of Virginia. Drewry in 1868 moved to Missouri and later to California. He was a tall, straight young man and has done well.

Samuel Donnell was known as a very kind-hearted Christian man whose influence has lived on after him. Many instances are recalled of his kind and timely help in the days following the war. At the time of the surrender he had a good store of provisions for his slaves. I recall he had two corn cribs and heard the corn rolling down. A man standing to his knees in corn began praying saying that he did not want to be a rogue, but could not bear to see his wife and children starve. Samuel gave the man encouragement and told him he knew he wanted to be honest. The man was carried into the house and Mrs. Donnell gave him some provisions to carry home. Next day he came back to pay for them in work. Donnell's mission to my father's house that night was to tell him about the circumstance and ask him to give the man work until harvest. At harvest he gleaned several wheat fields and thrashed enough to do him until the corn would do to grind. I was a boy at the time and chanced to hear the conversation between my father and Mr. Donnell. I remarked something about it, to which my father replied if I ever repeated it I would be given a severe punishment, a gentle thrashing the method of that day. The man who was in the corner crib was later able to make a living and raised a family of children. It has since been my pleasure to meet one of them, who has lived a long life as a good citizen.

Another instance I recall was of Mr. Donnell's giving help to a needy family. A man who had a wife and child and needed a milch cow had moved near him. On getting up one morning he found Donnell coming in his gate with one which he offered saying,

"Neighbor, you haven't a milch cow, and I have more than I need. I am lending you this one until fall."

The man for whom this favor was done lived to be of assistance to Donnell in his old age and between the two there grew a deep bond of friendship.

When I was a small boy my father often tied a grist on to a horse and sent it to the mill by me. In passing Mr. Donnell's his daughter's large black dog would scare my horse until it almost threw me off. I was able to arrive safely at the mill, but returned home by Ai Church instead of the way I had come. After I had been home some time I heard Uncle Samuel, as we all called him, talking to my father.

"Bettie's dog scared the horse the little boy was riding. I will have her to get rid of it," he said.

My father replied, "No, don't do that, he can go to the mill by Ai Church."

"I will not have a dog which bothers a neighbor and a little boy," affirmed Mr. Donnell.

After that I noticed the dog was missing, but I do not know what became of her. He was more considerate of other people than any person I have ever known and always looked out for their welfare. Once I was at his house with my father at a wheat threshing, when a storm came up and blew some small limbs into the road. After the storm was over Mr. Donnell insisted that the limbs should be taken away before the men went back to work. He was afraid that someone might be passing by and get hurt. He often went out of way and cost himself untold trouble looking for ways to help other people.

Uncle Samuel was considered just and pious, and because of their high regard for him boys could not be persuaded to whistle jigs or songs, that were not chaste in his presence. His slaves were always at church quietly and orderly occupying the apartment set aside for colored people. When the war was over his negroes cried as they left him.

The bulletins of instructions, issued during the Civil War, were obeyed to the letter by Mr. Donnell and his family. Excepting on one occasion when instructions came to use one-half bushel of salt for a thousand pounds of pork. Authority of this was given on the basis that commercial pork packing houses used this amount. Mr. Donnell tried it and it might have been sufficient, but later when he was away from home Mrs. Donnell found more salt was needed. She called one of the neighbors and they added the salt necessary to save the pork. Nothing was said about it until the war was over when Mrs. Donnell told her husband. He remarked that he did not want to violate the law and even though he was afraid he would lose the meat he felt as if he should obey the law.

His example was good at all times and everywhere his Christian character was shown. Once at an "experience meeting" at the church, one of the men in the neighborhood stated, "I am ready to die and go to Heaven right now. There is nothing in my way." After he was through Uncle Samuel rose and said, "My friend, I have been a member of the church for many years, and though I have had rich experience of Grace, I cannot say I have ever wanted to die, but I do hope that when death comes I may have dying Grace." His neighbors loved him and the members of the church to which he belonged were his true friends.

While Mr. Donnell was not a rich man he was considered well-to-do before the war. After he had lost his slaves he met with a misfortune which ordinarily would not have been foreseen. Mr. Donnell administered on the estate of John Rhodes, and had paid over to the distributees of the estate without taking a refunding bond. John Rhodes had been guardian for certain infants named Witty. In consequence of the complications arising from the guardianship, Mr. Donnell had to pay a large sum of money unjustly. This coming soon after the Civil War crippled him financially. (This case will be found recorded in 65 N. C., page 227. The incident is brought to my mind because of some surveying which was done, at which time Uncle Samuel Donnell borrowed my hatchet to mark lines with).

Many and varied are the instances of Samuel Donnell's goodness and kindness. He never had a neighbor who did not go to see him. He always did more for the church than any other man of equal means. During a protracted meeting he fed more people at his home than anyone else in the community. Even strangers found a place to stay at his home. His influence has lived until now, fifty years after his death, when frequently his good deeds are spoken of. "When a good man dies for years, beyond his ken, the light he leaves behind him shines upon the path of other men."

When Mr. Donnell moved into the neighborhood Joel Sanders had just built the Sanders Mill. This mill was then one of the few merchants mills in Guilford County. The old Dillon schoolhouse at Ai had just been torn down and the neighborhood, through the instrumentality of James Clemmons, John Blackwell, Joel Sanders and Jesse Sanders, had just moved across the road and built a log schoolhouse. This house was then considered one of the good schoolhouses of the county. This was the main inducement for young Donnell to move from the Center section of Guilford County to the lands that he was buying in this neighborhood in order that he could have a place to educate his children and have church facilities.

At this time Ai Church was going down as a Methodist Episcopal church, and the larger number of people in the neighborhood breaking off from this church were Methodist Protestants. There was no church service in this church for several years. Finally Mr. Donnell and several others asked Rev. Alson Gray to preach for them, which he did and revived the church and organized the Methodist Protestant church in this place. Mr. Donnell following the Methodist Protestant church where he had formerly been a member of the Methodist Episcopal. This church being organized so close to him that he joined and lived in this church as long as he lived. He died in October, 1872.

He had led a very useful life. He was a good farmer and introduced many new modes of farming that the people in the neighborhood later learned and practiced. It was a great benefit to the neighborhood, people learning by his example. He was a strong supporter of the new school building at Ai and most of his children received their primary education there. He was a man that could be depended on to raise the teacher's salary when he had to have it. The first teacher in the new school building was a relative of Mrs. Donnell. I think his name was Ogburn. When there arose an agitation in the neighborhood for a better school building than the building at Dillon schoolhouse Mr. Donnell was one of the first men to subscribe. There was a controversy as to where the new school should be. Mr. Donnell ordered them to enlarge the building at Ai. He had with him Dr. John Sanders, Joel Sanders, Israel Stanley and Thomas Thompson and other good men of the neighborhood.

There was a strong spirit to build Oak Ridge where it now stands. This was backed by W. O. Donnell, Thomas Benbow and Thomas Graham and several others. There was a compromise proposed to build this building on the hill between Sanders Mill and Oak Ridge and this compromise had some following. Finally this committee decided to build it at the present place. Samuel gave $50.00 towards building it, and was a strong supporter of the institution as long as he lived, and some of the children received their education there.

Sometime after this and within a few years there was a proposition to build the Methodist Protestant college at Jamestown. He entered into this heartedly and gave of his substance towards building it. His daughter Eunice went to school to this college and came back and taught school at the old Ai building. This was soon after the Civil War. But just before the war or in time of the war the Jamestown college was burned, leaving a debt on it for the church to pay. Mr. Donnell by this time had been crippled in his fortune by the loss of his slaves and paying security debts. But still he came forward and paid his part of the Jamestown college debt.

He was a man that never shrunk from a duty, and was always able to respond when duty called him to the same.

But only great as he was good."

WHEN MOODY'S BROTHER DIED

When a brother of D. L. Moody died, representative men from New York City came to say great words at his funeral. Moody, leaning on his elbow on the coffin, with his face bathed in tears, said, "Friends and neighbors, I thank God that He gave me a brother. I thank Him also that He permitted me to lead him to Christ. I thank God that I can now look down into his face and know that I shall see him again! Then he stood for a moment with hands uplifted and eyes looking into the eternities until suddenly he shouted in such triumphant tones that the multitude around could not fail to hear him: "'O death, where is thy sting? O grave, where is thy victory!'"—J. Wilbur Chapman.

Meeting Place of the Conference Changed

The meeting place of the conference has been changed from State Street, Lexington, to First Church, High Point. The reason, and only reason for this change, is the inadequate church room at State Street. As the year lengthened and we began thinking of conference sessions and programs, and the large crowds that we often have on these occasions, it became more and more apparent to us that the auditorium of State Street church was not adequate in seating capacity and seating arrangement to accommodate the conference. The matter was taken up with Brother Hendry, and he in turn discussed it with his people. By vote of the congregation it was decided, for the reasons given above, to abandon the idea of holding the conference there. The congregation of the First Church, High Point, then invited the conference to meet with them. This invitation has been unanimously accepted by the Standing District Committee. The meeting place of the conference is, thereby, officially changed from Lexington to High Point.

We fully appreciate the interest shown by State Street in desiring to have the conference held there. It would have been a pleasure to meet with them. We are likewise grateful to High Point for their readiness to take the conference, and we are looking forward with happy anticipations to the coming session.

That Black Line

It's going up. A few "warm-ups" like First Church, High Point, and it would rise high. It is now one-third of the way on its rise to the top—nearly one-third. In these last weeks of the conference year it should show marked gains. We urge pastors and committees to push subscriptions, and to leave no stone unturned to bring this BLACK LINE to the 3,000 dot.

That List of Delegates

Only a few have come on. We are asking pastors again to let us have this list. We can not make up the conference committees until we have a list of delegates. Of course there is still time enough for this, but we do not want to put off our conference work until the rush of the last few days before we meet. Just the name on a post card will be sufficient. We trust that pastors will attend to this promptly. Thank you.

Rally Day

This is one of the "Special" days designated by our general conference. The program provided by the Board of Christian Education, "Our Youth in and for the Kingdom," is ready for distribution. The familiar face of Dr. Humphreys graces the outside cover page, and just on the inside, and occupying half of the first page, is the still more familiar face of Dr. J. F. McCulloch. The program carries also a good likeness of Drs. Andrews, and Lindley, and Rev. N. M. Harrison. The back cover page is devoted to pictures of ministerial students, and to Prof. Stinson and his choir, that was given such an enthusiastic reception at the great Washington Convention. In fact there are so many pictures in the program, with a High Point College setting, that one all but wonders if it isn't our own get up, rather than a general church production. We feel more than grateful to the Board of Christian Education for this generous recognition of High Point College.

Now let's give the program in our churches. If pastors and superintendents have not received copies, all that is necessary is to send a post card to Rev. Frank W. Stephenson, D.D., 613 West Diamond Street, N. S., Pittsburgh, Pa. Please do this at once, and begin preparation for a real Rally Day. The offering goes to Christian Education, and counts on the N. C. S. budget of the local church.

Sunday, August 23

This day was spent in three services. In the morning it was my privilege to preach in Grace church, Greensboro. Despite the rain, the attendance was good, and it was a pleasure to worship with them. For many years this church has filled a large place in conference activities, both through its ministers and its members. In the matter of finance it has been an honor roll church, but local obligations, incurred in the erection of their new church building, together with the money panic, has made it impossible for them to live up to this good record. However, they have a heart to do it, and when local pressure is sufficiently lifted they will be back again with the honor roll churches. Dr. S. K. Spahr, pastor emeritus of this church, was present and assisted us in the service. Brother Tamblin, the pastor, will be back from his vacation this week, and will be in charge of the services next Sunday. We hope and pray for this church the very best possible ending of the year's work.

In the afternoon, it was my pleasure to attend the Centennial celebration of Flat Rock church, and the Dixon-Williams-Smothers family reunion. It is not the custom of these families to hold their reunion on Sunday, but as so many of them are vitally connected one way and another with this church, they deemed it most fitting to meet at this time and share in the Centennial celebration. These are large and influential families, and they have shared largely and vitally for many years in the work and progress of our church. Brother A. G. Dixon and Brother J. S. Williams, both belonging to this clan, are honored ministers in our conference. It was my privilege to preach in this closing service of the day. The house was filled with attentive worshippers, and a helpful spirit pervaded the place. This is a historic church. Dr. Alson Gray was its founder. The membership has never been large, but it has always been representative of the leading people of the community. The church site was deeded to the congregation by E. W. Ogburn, as a gift, in 1847. This family, along with other leading families of the community, has always given strong support to this church. For some reason this deed was not recorded until a few days ago. It was written in a beautiful spencerian hand by Rev. R. R. Michaux, and was on exhibition at the church Sunday. In the course of a hundred years ten ministers of our conference received their early religious training at this church and held their membership here. They are Revs. J. L. Michaux, W. J. Ogburn, R. R. Michaux, T. J. Ogburn, D. A. Highfill, Z. T. Harrison, S. Simpson, A. R. Morgan, J. S. Williams, P. S. Kennett. Rev. W. F. Kennett probably has the longest record of pastoral supply here, having served in that capacity at different times for seventeen years. The present church building, a beautiful stone structure, is the fourth to be erected on this site. The present building is new, and is a credit, both to the community and to the denomination whose name it bears. We were glad to be present on this important occasion and to share in the Centennial Celebration of this old and influential church. We should have greatly enjoyed the rich morning program if circumstances had made it possible to be there. The reporter of the church will no doubt give this in full to the HERALD readers. As the work of a new century begins, we most earnestly pray the rich blessings of God upon his people here. May time add to their strength and joy in God's service. We express the hope also that peace and prosperity may abound toward these three families whose reunion made a pleasant and important contribution to the Centennial program. Brother J. P. Pegg is the pastor of this church, and is faithful in his pastorate. Now that we are drawing near the close of the conference year, he will press the work with renewed vigor in order that the best possible reports may be made to the coming conference.

TEACHINGS OF JESUS FOR A TIME LIKE THIS

By REV. S. W. TAYLOR, D.D.

Lay not up for yourselves treasures upon earth, where moth and rust doth corrupt, and where thieves break through and steal. But lay up for yourselves treasures in heaven, where neither moth nor rust doth corrupt, and where thieves do not break through nor steal; for where your treasure is there will your heart be also. * * * No man can serve two masters; for either he will love the one and hate the other, or else he will hold to the one and despise the other. Ye cannot serve God and mammon.

Therefore, I say unto you, Take no thought for your life, what ye shall eat, or what ye shall drink; nor yet for your body, what ye shall put on. Is not the life more than meat, and the body than raiment? Behold the fowls of the air: for they sow not, neither do they reap, nor gather into barns; yet your heavenly Father feedeth them. Are you not much better than they?

Which of you, by taking thought, can add one cubit unto his stature? And why take ye thought for raiment? Consider the lilies of the field, how they grow: they toil not, neither do they spin; and yet I say unto you that even Solomon, in all his glory, was not arrayed like one of these. Wherefore, if God so clothe the grass of the field, which today is, and tomorrow is cast into the oven, shall he not much more clothe you, O ye of little faith?

Therefore, take no thought saying, What shall we eat? or What shall we drink? or Wherewithal shall we be clothed? * * * for your Heavenly Father knoweth that ye have need of all these things.

"But seek ye first the Kingdom of God and his righteousness, and all these things shall be added unto you."—Gospel of Matthew.

The word of God shall stand forever.—Isaiah 40:8.

Heaven and earth shall pass away: but my word shall not pass away.—Mark 13:31.

And what is His word?

This: Food, Raiment, Shelter — all necessary material things of life—shall be ours, if we put His Kingdom first.

WHAT MORE COULD WE ASK FOR A TIME LIKE THIS?

MAN'S ATTITUDE TOWARDS MONEY

So large a place does money occupy in human life, so important a part does it play in the formation of character, that Christ gave to it a greater amount of attention than to any other subject. "One verse in every three of the Synoptic Gospels deals with this topic, and one verse in every four when the Gospel by John is included."

No sin is so widespread in its reach, so insidious in its approach, so blinding and binding in its effects, as the love of money. It is a cancer that eats out all that is good and ennobling in the human heart, and leaves a gaping, running sore that demoralizes the whole of man's life.

Money is truly the acid test of man's love and devotion to God. Man's attitude toward money is a universal indicator, in all walks of life, that determines his value to the weal or woe of God's cause as well as to himself. If man is to make a success as a Christian steward he must certainly have a clear-cut and correct view of his responsibility to God in the handling of his money. Money is the symbol of material power and is the devil's greatest ally in sin. The love of God is pitted against the love of money. The almighty dollar is the idol god of money lovers. The almighty God is the One who receives homage from the true Christians.

Money is the acid test,

Of man's faith in God;

Money lovers have no rest,

As rest comes from God.

OUR STORY PAGE

THE HEALER OF BROKEN WINGS

The boy tramp saw her first sitting beneath a beech, binding splints to the wing of a bird. He noted approvingly that her hands were quick and sure as those of the trained surgeon that had set his leg when it had been hurt at Stone's Quarry.

She was a tiny, white-haired, white-clad old lady, with clear blue eyes and a face as serene and sweet as the evening sky behind her old gabled house. In the orchard the boy had been helping himself to her early apples, but irresistibly he was drawn closer to the picket fence. "A sort of bird doctor," he said aloud in his lonely tramp way.

The little old lady heard, hovered the bird in her hands, turned and looked the boy straight in the eyes. Suddenly she smiled in a way that made the boy think regretfully of his forgotten prayers. "No, son," she said brightly, "not exactly, but I suppose you might call me a sort of healer. It is my desire, you see, to help rather than hurt wherever I may. Splints and enforced quiet help in cases like this, but it is my peculiar fancy that healing of any kind has to be done mostly through love."

She smoothed the bird tenderly. "This little rascal will be all right soon and I shall be looking for other patients. Suppose you open the gate now, come into the kitchen and let me give you some jam-bread and a glass of buttermilk right out of the churn.

The ragged boy hesitated, but his mouth watered for the good food, so he opened the gate, followed her up the walk and into the kitchen. She placed the bird in a cage and set food on the table for the hungry boy. Then she sat beside the window, rocked, sewed, watched the boy eat and looked as if she might be trying to contrive a way of keeping him near for awhile, so she might have a try at mending his hurts.

The boy had fearless eyes, rough, dark hair, a naturally nice mouth which he had allowed to sag a little. The little old lady wondered about him, but she was too wise in the ways of wild creatures to ask questions.

The boy ate the last crumb of the home-baked bread, drank the last drop of milk, stood up. "Thank you, Ma'am."

The old lady smiled, took another stitch in her work. "Have a-plenty, son?"

The boy twirled his cap uneasily. "Yes, Ma'am. Apples may be all right between meals, but it takes good bread and milk to satisfy a hungry fellow. I ate some of your apples in the orchard a while ago."

The old lady's blue eyes clouded, but she smiled. "You are welcome to the apples, but you should have asked for them, else it might be called stealing."

The boy looked at the floor.

The old lady allowed him a moment of shamed reflection, then asked, "You'll ask next time, of course! Suppose you sit here while I do some baking for supper. You can see the hills and the woods from this window."

She moved about the kitchen in a business-like way. The boy hesitated, then sat down in the old rocker. He looked at the woods and the hills and thought about what she had said about stealing. He was sorry, he had never had anyone talk to him that way before. He looked back at the old lady finally, "I guess I was wrong to take your apples without asking, even if I hadn't had any breakfast. They tempted me though, blushing up there."

The old lady smiled. "You'll be blind to their blushes next time. Even the saints are tempted at times, sin comes in yielding when you know it is wrong, my boy."

The boy seemed to bury that thought in his mind. After a while he fell asleep. When the old lady heard him snoring, she studied him much as an expert physician studies a sick patient. When she turned back to her work she was smiling.

A half-hour later while the boy still slept and the old lady turned smoking cakes out of a pan, another came to the kitchen door, "Hi, old woman," he snarled, "hand over some cash to a needy fellow."

The old lady surveyed him calmly. "I have no money for you. I'll give you some food if you are hungry, even if you are a most disrespectful speaking person."

The mean-looking man made a violent gesture. "I don't want your food and fine talk. I want money and I'm going to have it." He strode into the kitchen threateningly.

The boy opened his eyes, sprang up, grasped a stick of wood out of the box behind the stove and chased the tramp out of the kitchen, the yard and on down the road, howling threats after him.

The tramp stopped finally and called back, "Chase yourself awhile, you humbug! I'll git you yet."

As a final gesture of defiance, the boy threw a rock at the tramp and returned to the kitchen, his face aglow over having protected the old lady from a thief who might have hurt her.

Looking shaken over the experience, the old lady pushed the boy's hair back, kissed him on the forehead, "Thank you, son, I believe that was a bad man."

The boy grinned sheepishly and sat down on the doorstep. "I know he was, Ma'am. He had a mean eye. Guess I better sit here and watch out awhile. He might take a notion to come back."

The old lady nodded and handed him a cake. "Sample that, son, and I'll get us some supper."

The boy devoured the cake and looked as if for more.

The little lady shook her head, "Spoil your supper, son. We'll have some more with fresh fruit for dessert."

The boy sighed, set his chin in his hand and watched for the return of the tramp. The old lady rattled dishes as she set the table for two and suddenly the lonely boy knew the first heart-surge of home-peace, home-content he had ever felt in his neglected young life. He had a step-mother and a father in an adjoining state, but his stepmother hated him and since he was seven he had been forced to shift for himself.

When the boy and the old lady had eaten supper and washed the dishes, she sat and looked at the sunset a moment, then smiled straight into the boy's eyes. "Now, son, I'd like to know your name, if you don't mind telling me."

"Tom Miller, Ma'am."

She nodded. "Thank you. It is a nice, substantial name. I had to know who the brave boy was that protected me from that tramp. My name is Hetty Holmes, but almost everybody calls me Aunt Hetty. I've lived here all my life."

"I'll always think of you as the Healer of Broken Wings," the boy said shyly.

Aunt Hetty smiled. "I shall be glad for you to think of me that way, Tom, even if I am merely an instrument in the hands of the real Healer. 'They serve God best who serve His creatures,' you know."

Tom considered this. Then she told him how she lived all alone there at Cloverdale, except for three months during the summer when her granddaughter, Hetty, came. "You see, Tom, I love the country and cannot bear to go to the city to live with my son."

Tom frowned. "But it isn't safe for you to live out here alone, Ma'am. Lots of tramps have ugly dispositions. Others are—er—just unfortunate. I'm a tramp when I can't get work because I have to be. Lately I've been working at Stone's River Quarry, but I got my leg hurt and before it was well the quarry shut down. Tramps in general won't do though." He smiled slowly, stood up, added, "Guess I better be going now."

Aunt Hetty put out a detaining hand. "Please, Tom, as a special favor to me, stay all night. I feel a—little uneasy about the tramp returning after dark."

It gave Tom a thrill that she trusted him. He was glad he had done nothing wrong in his life except take a few apples to eat when he was hungry. He sat down again, "That tramp might come back sure 'nuff. Things seem pretty quiet, though."

Aunt Hetty laughed, "A fox never barks, my boy, when he means to pounce on the lamb."

Tom liked her quaint way of putting things. It made him remember them.

The tramp did not come back and Tom Miller slept soundly in a cool, clean little room off the end of a back gallery. The next morning at Aunt Hetty's suggestion, he had a bath in the creek below the spring house and when he came up to breakfast, she nodded approvingly, "I am glad you like soap and water, Tom. Somebody said once, 'From the body's purity the mind draws sympathetic aid.'"

Tom stowed that thought away in his mind also. They had a delicious breakfast of fried chicken, gravy, muffins and apple butter. When Tom again suggested moving on, Aunt Hetty said, "You can't go, Tom, I need your help with another bird. I found it down in the orchard this morning. It has a hurt leg."

Tom dropped his cap, helped set the broken leg and bind it with old linen and splints. "You have a wonderful way with birds, my boy," Aunt Hetty remarked.

Tom looked pleased and hovered the bird in his hands as he had seen Aunt Hetty hover them. The bird chirped softly.

Aunt Hetty laughed, "He is saying thank you Tom."

Tom's eyes glowed, as if he liked the idea. He placed the new bird in the cage with the other one and tried to reassure him about his new home. Then he hung the cage on a branch of the big beech, above Aunt Hetty's bench, and all at once he loved the little old lady a great deal for being so good to hurt little birds and homeless boys.

The next time he suggested moving on, Aunt Hetty coaxed sweetly, "Why not stay, Tom? I need my protector. You need a home. The birds need us both. I think we might make a happy family and learn to love each other very much."

Tom twirled his cap, looked into the kind blue eyes, then up at the hurt birds. He listened to the soft rustle of the leaves overhead and forced back some tears that tried to push up from his hungry heart. He wished he could tell Aunt Hetty how he longed to have a real home and be loved by somebody. He wanted her to know that he had been chased with dogs when asking for food and how there had always been in his life a strange hunger and hurt not altogether physical.

Watching his face, Aunt Hetty sensed some of the things he felt and laughing softly, she hung his cap up on the bird cage. At once both birds began to sing.

Tom looked at them in wonder and his voice was not clear when he said, "I—I guess I better stay until the birds get well, anyway."

So it happened, without his making any further promises, that Tom Miller stayed on at Cloverdale and Aunt Hetty kept the splints on the hurt birds a great deal longer than necessary. She devised other ways, too, of keeping the homeless boy busy and happy. In this way and without Tom suspecting it the wise old lady set herself to healing his hurts. When she wrote her son about Tom she said, "Teach a boy to love nature and you have solved most of his problems. Tom Miller knows birds and trees now by name and old Cloverdale has taken on a new and friendly meaning to him. His body is growing strong, too, his mind clear, his heart pure. He was a poor, undernourished, unhappy, confused young thing when he came here. So you see your old mother is still able to do some good in the world."

The birds grew so tame they would sit on Tom's finger and sing. Tom could leave the cage open and the birds would hop out and all about, then go back into the cage of their own accord. Every now and then Tom or Aunt Hetty would find a new bird to treat. Everywhere Tom watched for hurt birds, loved them and looked forward eagerly to each new day. At Cloverdale he was finding his first taste of real home life and under its influence he was learning to whistle and sing, to look for the smiling light of welcome in the windows at evening to shout a glad reply to Aunt Hetty's cheery call in the morning.

One afternoon when Tom and Aunt Hetty sat under the beech, watching the birds hop in and out of the cage, Tom said, "I think I would like to be a real bird doctor."

Aunt Hetty shook her head. "Somehow that seems sort of a woman and boy job. I'd like for you to be a real surgeon and help suffering humanity. You have a steady hand and the way you have taken to bird doctering makes me think you are meant for a flesh and blood mender."

Tom stared. Aunt Hetty talked on happily. "I promise you, son, if you will stay on here with me I'll see that you get the chance."

Tom sat dumb, staring at Aunt Hetty as if he had never seen her before. She saw that he liked the idea though, so she hurried into the house and brought out some books on medicine and surgery. "Read these, Tom, and see how interesting it all is. The books belonged to my dear young brother who died the year he was to have received his M.D. Somehow your eyes remind me of him."

Tom took the books reverently, feeling that she hoped he would take the beloved brother's place in the world of good works. He examined the books, said hesitatingly, "They do look interesting, but I am afraid I'll never learn it all."

Aunt Hetty smiled, her blue eyes sweet and trusting. "You can try, Tom. I'll help you. I have studied these books myself and practiced their teachings on the birds."

Tom stared at her with new appreciation and longed to accomplish something worthwhile so as not to disappoint her. She smiled as she added, "What's more, Tom, by the way of preparing you for your career, I will send you to school in town this fall. If the crops are good I'll even buy you a little car so you can drive back and forth and be at home at night to protect me."

Tom thought it was wonderful that she should be willing to do all this for him. At the same time his instincts toward honesty made him feel a little ashamed that he did not deserve it. "I'd love to stay, of course," he said slowly. "I've always hoped for a home some day, like a real fellow, and somebody to care about me and let me care about them, but I'm afraid I can never justify your faith in me."

Tom flushed and thought about that first day at Cloverdale. Aunt Hetty studied his face tenderly. "Anyway, Tom, I love you a great deal already. My heart and home would be desolate without you."

Tom blinked and continued to stare at the bird, as if he felt that a bird might again prove the pivot upon which his fortune would turn. He promised finally, "Well, Aunt Hetty, I'll stay a little longer and if I find myself slipping, not growing more worthy of your love and trust, then I'll just get out."

Aunt Hetty patted his knee, "All right, Tom, but remember, I don't believe you ever will do that. You were meant for me and the birds or else you never would have been directed to us that day."

Tom swallowed an unmanly lump and again he stayed and took an added interest in things about the place. He helped to pick the early apples and peel them for apple butter. He helped the men cut and stack the early hay and learned a lot about machinery and the proper soil for certain seed. He grew hard, brown, healthy, felt happy when he did things well and told Aunt Hetty about it. Once in awhile though, in the most unexpected places, he realized that the old wandering Tom was not all conquered. The old restlessness to be tramping off to a new place overtook him sometimes and he would stop, look far away and long for the open road before him and the free unhampered feeling of marching he knew not where, the wind in his face.

Then, as suddenly, he would remember Aunt Hetty's sweet blue eyes and the birds and he would go back to work and whip himself mentally. Again almost before he knew it, old Cloverdale was his haven of hope, his refuge from hurts, hunger and a cruelly indifferent world.

One morning when the sun was up and the birds were hopping about happily, Aunt Hetty asked Tom to take the hay money in to the bank and then go on to the station to meet her granddaughter, Hetty, who was coming for her summer stay.

Thrilling at the thought of how Aunt Hetty trusted him, Tom hurried to hitch up the horse and went up to his room whistling. Suddenly his high spirits dropped. He stood still and frowned at his new suit and decided he would not like having the strange girl around. All of a sudden he felt a little jealous of her and resentful of all the loving preparations Aunt Hetty was making for her coming. Suddenly he started for town. On the way he fell to thinking about the money entrusted to him to bank—over five hundred dollars. He had seen the man that bought the hay count it out to Aunt Hetty that very morning. He had never seen so much money before. It made his heart come right up, queerly. He stopped the horse, took the bills out of his pocket and stared at them.

Close to Tom a voice said, "Why not hook the coin, kid, and light out with me to see the world?"

Tom gave a start and looked into the evil eyes of the tramp he had chased out of Aunt Hetty's kitchen that first day. For a moment Tom felt intrigued, not unlike a poor mouse fascinated by the snake that waits to strike a death blow. Then hot anger flashed through the boy. He thrust the money back into his pocket, jumped over the wheel and stood before the tramp defiantly, "Why should I do a dirty trick like that? I have a home and somebody that cares about me for the first time in my life."

The tramp sneered, "What does that amount to? That money could buy a lot of fun. Why not leave the nag and buggy here, hit it off down the road, grab a freight at the culvert and let me show you what real life is?"

Tom began to wonder what he could see and buy. Then all at once a bird began to sing in a tree nearby. Tom thought about the birds at Cloverdale, the look of trust in Aunt Hetty's eyes and how the shadow of the big beech lay tenderly on the old white house. He remembered how Aunt Hetty was giving him an education and a chance to be a helpful citizen, like the surgeon who had healed his leg at Stone's Quarry. He grew excited, clenched his fists and shouted, "You must be crazy! I have a wonderful chance at Cloverdale. Besides that would be stealing—stealing and wouldn't be worth the hurt it would put in Aunt Hetty's eyes."

Realizing that he had lost that round, the tramp argued, "I'll just hook the coin then, bud, and enjoy myself." He caught Tom's arm.

Tom wrenched free, ducked, danced, circled, shot a leg out, tripped the tramp, jumped into the buggy, whipped the old horse and sped away. Hurrying frantically, hoping the tramp would not return to Cloverdale and harm Aunt Hetty, Tom drove straight to the bank, deposited the money, had it written down in Aunt Hetty's book, then hurried on to the station to meet the girl.

He found young Hetty to be pretty, blue-eyed. He liked her right off. They talked as they drove home and when they entered the house and found Aunt Hetty safe and smiling,

Tom heaved a sigh of relief. He put an arm around Aunt Hetty and squeezed her tight, sniffed the good dinner cooking in the kitchen and realized what a haven of hope and happiness the old place was.

That evening when Tom Miller sat on the doorstep looking up at the moon, listening to the birds twitter and the two Hetty's talking, he discovered that all the old restless, spirit-hungry feeling had forsaken him. He was at peace with the world, happy, hopeful, healed—for that day he had proved himself worthy of Aunt Hetty's faith.—Clyde Burke Billspaugh in The Uplift.

CHICKEN DINNERS

Philip Fox ate a good chicken dinner and then lay down under the bush that hid the entrance to his home in the side of a hill. No other animal was in sight. In fact, all the dwellers in Hoppywood kept as far away from Philip Fox as they could. Even brave Major Muskrat never ventured anywhere near the woodland home of sly old Philip Fox. "When he is hungry," said Major Muskrat to the other animals, "there is no telling what he will do."

"That's right," piped up Rufus Jack Rabbit, "I saw some chicken feathers sticking to his whiskers yesterday."

"You better keep away from Philip Fox and his chicken feathers," advised Major Muskrat.

"Well, but I am a fast runner," boasted Rufus Jack Rabbit.

"So is Mr. Philip Fox," answered Major Muskrat.

"I am not afraid of Philip Fox," said Peter Porcupine. "I would just as soon ask him where he gets so many chicken dinners. If he threatens me, I will stick out my prickly tail just like this—" But the animals did not wait to see how Peter Porcupine would stick out his prickly tail. They had already felt the bristles in that particular tail and did not doubt his ability to protect himself against Philip Fox.

So Peter Porcupine braved sly old Philip Fox right at the entrance of his den.

"How do you happen to be feasting on chickens so much lately?" he asked, after a polite greeting.

Philip Fox looked up toward the sky. "It may be," he said, watching a hawk soaring by, "it may be that a hawk steals them from a barnyard and drops them down to me."

"It may be," agreed Peter Porcupine, "but it is not very likely." Failing to get any other information from Philip Fox, he departed homeward.

The next day, the animals all assembled on the bank of a stream to get a drink of water, and incidentally discuss Philip Fox and his chicken dinners.

"He is stealing chickens without doubt," said Major Muskrat. "Let us watch him and see where he gets them." So Sammy Squirrel and Rufus Rabbit were appointed to watch Philip Fox and follow him wherever he went.

They started out early the next morning, but Philip Fox was already on his way. They saw him in the distance, galloping toward Mr. Farmer's big country place at the edge of Hoppywood. Rufus Rabbit and Sammy Squirrel followed, but when they got in sight of the farm, Philip Fox was nowhere to be seen. There was the big barnyard, and chickens, ducks, and geese were peaceably picking up their morning meal of bugs and worms.

Rufus Rabbit and Sammy Squirrel hid in the edge of the woods and watched the barnyard very carefully. Just across the road from the barnyard was a pile of stones. Rufus Rabbit's eyes were attracted to these stones. They were just big brown boulders, but one of them he watched very intently. All of a sudden, it sprang to life, dashed across the road, caught a chicken, and disappeared into the woods. Sammy Squirrel and Rufus Rabbit followed as fast as they could, and as Rufus Jack Rabbit is noted for being a fast runner, they made pretty good time. When they reached the brook in Hoppywood, there were Major Muskrat and all the animals gathered.

"Philip Fox stole another chicken," shouted Rufus Rabbit, breathlessly, "and he is probably at home eating it right now!"

Then Sammy Squarrel related how Philip Fox had curled up into a ball with his bushy tail wound tight around him until he looked like a brown rock. When a chicken came near enough, he dashed out and caught it. That was his sly way of getting his dinner every day without much work.

Major Muskrat shook his head. Then he sat very still and thought—and thought—and thought.

The next morning, when Philip Fox took his place among the brown boulders and wound his tail tight around him until he looked like a brown stone, he did not notice that there was another gray stone not far away in the pile, one that didn't belong there any more than he did.

The second stone was none other than Peter Porcupine. And just before Philip Fox pounced upon his chicken, Peter Porcupine pounced upon him and filled his fur with bristles. Philip Fox gave one startled leap into the air and disappeared into the woods on a mad run—and for all we know he is running yet. But anyway, he never returned to that barnyard after his chicken — and that was the end of Philip Fox's chicken dinners.—Carrie Belle Boyden in Zion's Herald.

DO IT

That task a dozen times postponed

Till there's good cause to rue it:

You'll start it soon, you've often owned.

Don't talk about it. Do it!

Who puts a task off, day to day,

Toils twice, if he but knew it;

Once in the dreading and delay,

And once when he must do it.

Don't wait to see another sun.

Come! Roll your sleeves. Go to it!

All tasks are easy, once they're done.

Don't talk about it. Do it!

WOMAN'S MISSIONARY DEPARTMENT

STUDENT LOAN FUND FOR HIGH POINT COLLEGE

This article is to remind the auxiliaries that the college is opening September 10th, and that there are applications in, made by students who need these loans for their expenses. If you have any money in your treasury, please send it to Miss Velma McCulloch at once so that she can apportion to us our percent, and make available to us as much as possible.

If there are those who have it in their mind to make any special gifts for this fund, please send that in also if possible, whether it be an auxiliary or an individual.

We helped sixteen people last year. Not any of these, perhaps, can begin to pay back their loans this year, so we are anxious to get all we can through the auxiliaries so as not to disappoint these students. Some of the applicants are seniors and it would be a tragedy not to be able to help them complete their course.

Pray for the success of this department of our work and pray for the students who are helped by this fund that they may be splendid Christian citizens who go out in the world to serve. May they be strong in the Lord.

To those who have been helped and are out in the work earning, I wish to remind you, that you should try to pay back your loan as rapidly as possible so that other worthy students may be helped through this Loan Fund.

Very sincerely,

MRS. CLIFTON L. WHITAKER,

Secretary Student Loan Fund,

High Point College.

CELEBRATION AT FLAT ROCK CHURCH

Prof. P. S. Kennett delivered the main address at the celebration of the 100th anniversary of the founding of Flat Rock Methodist Protestant church last Sunday.

The commemoration exercises were attended by former pastors and members as well as the present congregation of the church, founded by Rev. Alson Gray in 1831.

Other High Point speakers who participated in the program included Rev. A. G. Dixon, D.D., superintendent of the Methodist Protestant Children's Home, and C. L. Gray.

Rev. J. P. Pegg, present pastor of the church, presided at the home-coming celebration. C. L. Gray, Jr., of this city, great-grandson of the founder of the church, rendered a solo during the exercises. The devotional period was conducted by Rev. J. S. Williams, pastor of the Mission of the Good Samaritan, of Asheville, and a former pastor of Flat Rock church.

Prof. Kennett's address was concerned with many of the vital events in the 100 years existence of Flat Rock church and he related many incidents connected with its long history of service. Miss Frances Thomas, a member of the church's choir, sang an effective solo and a quartet of vocalists from Center church also sang. Mrs. Fannie Kirkpatrick, of Greensboro, read a paper in which a number of the church's activities were emphasized.

Other short talks were made by Rev. W. F. Kennett, John S. Michaux, Dr. Joy Harris Glascock and Dr. Herbert H. Ogburn, of Greensboro; Bryant Smith, of Austin, Texas; Dwight Wilson, of Flat Rock, and N. W. Ogburn, of Summerfield.

A deed from E. W. Ogburn in which four acres of land were conveyed to the trustees of the church as the site for the building and cemetery, was displayed at the celebration along with the photographs of the present modern church building and one of a previous structure. The deed of Mr. Ogburn has been in the possession of Mrs. J. B. Ogburn, secretary of the centennial and home-coming organization for several years. The late J. B. Ogburn was a grandson of E. W. Ogburn. Mrs. E. W. Ogburn, incidentally, organized the first Sunday school at the church.

A picnic dinner was spread on the church grounds at noon.

The annual reunion of the Williams, Dixon and Smith families was held at the church in conjunction with the centennial celebration. Rev. S. W. Taylor, D. D., president of the North Carolina Conference of the Methodist Protestant church, delivered the principal address at the reunion and Rev. A. G. Dixon also spoke. Special music was furnished by a quartet of singers from Center church.—H. P. Enterprise.

Clothing and Other Gifts

Mr. J. W. Dixon, Summerfield, 15 watermelons.

Mrs. Roby E. Day, Long Island, N. Y., 5 suits of underwear, 4 dresses, 1 coat, 4 shirts, 9 waists and 2 scarfs. Also a number of picture cards and Octagon coupons.

Tacoma Park, Md., 7 dresses, 1 pair shoes, 2 hats, 1 coat, 1 summer suit for a boy, 1 shirt, and 2 slips.

We sincerely appreciate all the gifts presented in this report. A friend sent $25.00 and did not even give post office so we could say "Thank you." Another friend sent $10.00 and asked that the name be not published. We are able to report another payment of $100.00 on the Ludford Estate.

You will note that a number of our friends outside this state have been remembering us during the last two or three weeks. We are so thankful for this, and if our North Carolina friends and Sunday schools and missionary societies will just remember us in a liberal way during September and October we will be able to make a pretty fair report to conference.

Harvest Home Donations

Many of you are planning already to bring to us splendid donations of produce from the orchards, gardens and farms this fall. Wheat, corn, potatoes, chickens, canned goods and all such things as are useful in any ordinary home will help here. God has blessed you with abundance, and you will be glad to share with His little ones here.

School will soon be opening now, and then we must buy shoes and clothing and school supplies.

FROM PASTORS and PEOPLE

Reidsville.—The fact that the Herald has not been burdened with news from Reidsville does not argue that we are dead or inactive. We may not be as much alive as we ought to be, few churches are, but we are able to take a little nourishment now and then and do a fairly good day's work occasionally. As proof read the following:

Interesting services were held on Children's Day. The women having the service in charge gave all the children participating in the service a picnic at the county play-grounds the following week.

The Philathea class has painted and beautified their class room. They derived so much pleasure from it that they decided to add additional pleasure to what they had by painting and decorating two other class rooms and the hall down stairs—at their expense. Fine work this class is doing.

The Christian Endeavor society and the members of the church were the guests at a picnic roast and watermelon feast at the home of Mr. Charles J. Roberts recently. The society elected new officers and added a number of new members to its roll.

Mrs. Luther Griffith entertained the Philathea class and the members of the Sunday school at her home on Tuesday evening of last week. She served delicious Brunswick stew and luscious watermelons. Her guests did the rest.

We are all delighted to know that Mr. J. D. McCollum, one of the official members of our church, and the most prominent grocer in Reidsville, who has been sick for a number of weeks is now able to be up and to enjoy an occasional ride about the city. His many friends are praying that he may be soon restored to his normal health.

In spite of the excessively hot weather, the pastor has missed but one Sunday this summer. This time was taken off in order that he and his wife might accompany their son, George, Jr., on a trip to Westminster, Md.

And now, Brethren, in conclusion, let me say that our Woman's Auxiliary is very much alive. I hardly see how this church could get along without this organization. Their last meeting was held on the lawn at the home of Mrs. J. H. Allen in Courtland Place. The attendance was fine and the program was interesting.

GEO. R. BROWN.

Corinth, Littleton Circuit.—The first Sunday in September we will have a Home Coming day. The event will mark the beginning of our revival at this church. An all-day service will be held with dinner on the grounds. We extend to all our ex-pastors a special invitation to come and be with us.

Rev. B. M. Williams will be our pulpit help during the revival. We are sorry that he can not be with us for the Sunday service.

The third quarterly conference was held at Littleton church on August 28th.

P. E. Hawkins, L. T. King and B. F. Morris were nominees to annual conference.

Mrs. A. S. Glasgow from Winston-Salem has been visiting in our community. We are always glad to have her at this church. She will always be remembered as Miss Fannie Barnes.

Henry Morris is spending the week sight-seeing in Washington, D. C.

Miss Virginia Infoco is getting on nicely since undergoing an operation at Richmond, Va., hospital last week.

Choir practice, each Friday night. Be there on time.

MRS. B. F. MORRIS, Reporter.

August 23, 1931.

Union Grove Church.—Since our last report the church conditions are very good. The roll is small but faithful and that is what counts.

We have just closed a successful revival meeting which lasted five days. There were twelve confessions and five additions to the church. I think everybody was revived. I am satisfied that the revival was enjoyed by everyone that attended. I must say that I enjoyed it more than any revival I have ever attended. Rev. H. L. Powell delivered some wonderful sermons which touched the hearts of many people. We thank him for his faithfulness.

The young people feel the need of a young people's organization. We hope to have one organized before the next report is sent in. We ask the prayers of all Christian people that it will be a success and used for God's glory only. I am sure He will guide us in everything we do. Without God's help we can do nothing that will accomplish anything.

We thank you for the prayers of all you Christian people.

REPORTER.

First Church, Thomasville.—A church cannot stand still. It is either like a rowboat with members filled with vim and vigor, going upstream, or it is like one with lifeless members drifting downstream. Our church is one which is going upstream and striving for higher ideals and better service for God.

Our Sunday morning services have been changed around. We now have preaching first, and then we refer to our classes for the Sunday school lesson. This gives us plenty of time for preaching and more time for the Sunday school lesson. We hope this will arouse interest and make the attendance still better than it has been. Our Christian Endeavor society is also growing. The members have become more interested and have gained many new members. We have been having good and well planned programs. Last Sunday evening we had 39 present which is a large gain over the past Sunday's attendance. Everyone is invited to attend our society.

We are looking forward to our revival meeting which will begin on the first Sunday in September.

We were glad to see Mrs. Lloyd, who has recovered from illness, back to the church last Sunday.

REPORTER.

Concord, Saxapahaw Charge.—Our attendance has been off some for Sunday school during this month, due to the revivals on this charge.

There will be a young people's social at Saxapahaw church, on August 29 in behalf of all the churches on this charge. It is for the out-reach of the C. E. society.

On the following Sunday at the same place there will be a missionary institute for this charge. It will be an all-day program. Rev. J. Clyde Ammon will deliver the missionary sermon at the 11 o'clock hour. In the afternoon there will be various conferences held for missionary work.

Last Saturday evening the young people's class met at the home of their teacher, Mrs. L. E. Guthrie, and enjoyed the evening.

After missing several programs, our C. E. society has decided to go to work again. We hope to make this time successful.

BESSIE COBLE, Reporter.

Concord.—Brother S. C. Cass is the delegate to the annual conference, which will convene November 4. Our Sunday school is doing fine under the leadership of Brother Ralph Waddell, superintendent, and his helpers. Last Sunday being a rainy day here till noon the Sunday school was off some. We have the largest Sunday school in Concord. The Baraca class is more than twice as large as any other Baraca class in the city. The enrollment of our Sunday school is double that of the membership of the church.

The preaching is fairly well attended.

Brother W. J. Widenhouse, the teacher of the big Baraca class, preaches for us at the right appointments, as I have been unable for two months to preach at both hours.

At this time our finances are very much behind. We hope to do better before conference.

Having been unable to do any visiting for more than two months we could not do what we had planned to do. There is a great opportunity here for some active pastor. Like most churches, Concord, N. C. church has some good men and women worthy of a place in any church. They are very kind to us, which we appreciate very much. This church has its difficulties which are being gradually overcome.

May the dear Lord bless them in their efforts while the days are going by, which will be days of struggle, but we believe days of victory as well to the glory of God.

C. F. MILLAWAY.

Hope, Chatham Charge.—Our revival meeting began the second Sunday in August. On Sunday night we were favored by having the "Thomas family" sing for us. Then on Monday Rev. W. M. Loy came and did the preaching until the meeting closed on Friday night. He did some splendid preaching although he was somewhat handicapped by not being physically well, however this did not seem to affect his work, for he labored with much earnestness and the meeting resulted in nine additions to the church. We all enjoyed having Brother Loy with us so much; for he made many friends when he was with us four years ago. We hope he does not wait so long to come again.

We were glad to have Rev. C. G. Isley and his mother with us at two services. We are always glad to have them visit us, and wish they would come more often, for many were the friendships formed while they were on this charge.

On the third Sunday night President S. W. Taylor was with us and preached a fine sermon, after the sermon he gave a brief account of the conference program, giving our apportionments on this charge for this year, and also statistics for last year. He especially stresses "tithing" for the month of October. We were sorry that more people were not present to hear him, but owing to circumstances in the community, many were kept away.

At our last quarterly conference Mr. C. C. Routh of Boone was elected delegate to annual conference. It is only a short while now until conference and so much yet to be done. Perhaps if we would only do as Dr. Taylor suggests, "put God first," everything would come our right.

KARA ANDREW, Reporter.

Pleasant Hill, West Forsyth.—Mrs. B. A. Sprinkle was hostess to the Woman's auxiliary Thursday night, August 13. The devotional exercise was conducted by Martha Louise Speas. A song, "I Need Thee Every Hour," was sung softly and "The Shepherd's Psalm" recited in unison. Prayer was then offered.

Mrs. W. B. Speas, president, presided over the business part of the meeting. The "market basket" contents were then sold and the offering taken. The secretary read the minutes of the previous meeting and called the roll. The president then appointed three secretaries: Secretary of Children's Home, Mrs. J. F. Hunter; secretary of Bethel Home, Lola Long; secretary of Loan Fund, Lena Hunter.

Juanita Hunter had charge of the program: Talk, "Play Life in Other Lands—India, China and Japan"—Lola Lang. Reading — Mrs. W. B. Speas.

The Question Box was conducted by Jennie Speas.

The hostess, assisted by Mrs. R. J. Whitman, served delicious refreshments.

The revival meeting which began last Sunday came to a close Friday night. Rev. J. P. Pegg of Stoke Dale, was secured to help our pastor in this meeting. He delivered some splendid sermons each afternoon at 2:30 and 7:45 at night. Although there was no ingathering of souls, we do not feel that the meeting was a failure. But all that attended these services were uplifted and benefited.

The Young People's Missionary society met with Misses Mildred and Louise Way, Saturday afternoon, August 22. Mrs. J. F. Hunter, leader of the organization, presided over the meeting. A very interesting program was rendered. Frances Whitman and Edna Long won prizes for their skill in the social part of the program, after which delicious refreshments were served.

A lawn party will be given at the church Saturday evening, August 29th for the benefit of the church improvement. We extend a warm welcome to all.

Rev. S. W. Taylor, president of the annual conference, will deliver a sermon here Sunday night, September 6th, at 7:30. We hope to have a large crowd present at this service.

RUTH LONG, Reporter.

Laurel Hill.—The revival meeting was held the second week in August. The meeting began on Sunday morning and continued throughout the next Sunday night. During this time much was done for the advancement of God's Kingdom. There were 25 or more conversions. Several were added to the church.

Our own good pastor, Rev. J. M. Morgan, did the preaching which did our own souls good.

Our Sunday school is getting along nicely.

Our attendance is very good. We are very glad and thankful that our superintendent, Mr. A. A. Sain, who has been sick is able to be with us every Sunday again.

We were very glad to have so many visitors with us during our revival. We want you to come every time you can. At the close of our special meeting begin to pray for the one next year, and ever be on our job. As we know the harvest is ripe and the reapers are few.

REPORTER.

West Forsyth.—We had a good attendance at Harmony Grove last Sunday despite the rainy weather and muddy roads. The ordinance of the Lord's Supper was administered after the sermon by the pastor. The Sunday school was well attended. The Christian Endeavor society was scheduled to meet at 7 o'clock Sunday evening. This is a comparatively new organization for Harmony Grove church, having been organized a few months ago. Miss Mittie Todd is president of the society.

After the service at Harmony Grove last Sunday the pastor and family went to the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Vogler, having had a previous invitation to visit the home. We enjoyed the splendid dinner provided and a very pleasant visit with those good people.

The writer and family attended preaching services at East Fourth Street Baptist church in Winston-Salem last Sunday night and heard a ten-year-old boy deliver a splendid sermon on the theme, "Modern Conversion." The boy preacher's name is Douglas Winn, of Danville, Va. He is wonderful and remarkable for his ability to explain the Scriptures, and in the opinion of this writer the boy excels many preachers of mature age and experience. The young boy delivered his sermon without manuscript and his manner of delivery was equal to the experienced preacher. The sermon was not a recitation but an argumentation. The spacious auditorium of the church was filled to overflowing with interested hearers.

Two of our revival meetings have been held since our last report to the Herald. The meeting at Union Hill began on the second Sunday night in August and came to a close the following Saturday night. There were several conversions but no new members have been received. They will be given an opportunity to unite with the church at the next regular appointment. Rev. J. O. Fry, of the Methodist Episcopal church, (Northern branch) did all the preaching except one sermon by the pastor, and Brother Fry's sermons were very helpful and impressive.

We began our meeting at Pleasant Hill church the third Sunday morning and closed on Friday night. Rev. J. P. Pegg, pastor of Flat Rock church, did all the preaching from the beginning of the meeting. His sermons were especially edifying to the Christians and convincing to the sinners. His preaching was very favorably spoken of by the people. We had many visitors in the services, coming from other churches and communities and from a distance. People from High Point, Winston-Salem, King, Yadkin County, Richmond, Va., and Indianapolis, Ind., attended one or more services. On Sunday afternoon the Long-Sprinkle reunion was held in the church. The Thomasville Male chorus with

D. R. Connell as leader, was present and rendered a musical program.

We appreciate gifts by Brother C. G. Hunter, Mrs. J. F. Hunter, Mrs. A. R. Long, Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Sprinkle, of the Baptist church, Mrs. Adlia Long and Brother W. P. Vogler. These gifts having been made since our last report.

Relatives and friends of Mrs. W. W. Whitman, valuable member of Tabernacle church, will be glad to learn that she has returned from Shatley Springs, near West Jefferson, where she spent six weeks in the interest of her health.

The pastor has no appointment on his charge next Sunday. The day will be spent with relatives in Burlington.

Dr. S. W. Taylor, president of the Annual Conference, will make his official visit to West Forsyth church the first Sunday in September. He will preach at Baltimore church at 11 a. m., at Stony Knoll church at 3 p. m., and Pleasant Hill church at 7:30 p. m. He and the pastor and family will be guests in the homes of Mrs. Ella Doub and Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Hunter during the day.

C. B. WAY, Pastor.

Mt. Moriah, Cleveland Charge.—Our revival meeting closed on Friday night, August 14. Brother Seth Ivester was pulpit help. He surely can preach well and he preaches so plainly that a child can understand. There were five reclamations and two conversions. Five persons united with the church. Three united to the church by letters. The church was greatly revived. We hope Brother Ivester will help us again. We were glad to have Rev. Gus Ledford and family from West Virginia, and also Rev. J. W. Morris from Fallston charge. Brother Ledford preached three inspiring sermons. Think everyone enjoyed Brother Ledford's being with us again.

Our Sunday school work is moving along nicely, hoping to have good attendance the rest of the year.

We are sorry to write that one of our beloved members, Brother Davie Sisk is very ill in the Shelby hospital. We are praying and hoping if the Lord will for him to recover.

MRS. ETHEL HUNT, Reporter.

First Church, Burlington.—Attendance at Sunday school today registered 246 and offering amounted to $14.68. Mr. Robert Wagoner, president of the Senior Christian Endeavor society, presided at the Sunday school exercises, as the society was responsible for the opening and closing of the school today. At the close of the service, Brother Wagoner made a brief, but pointed talk regarding the principles of Christian Endeavor Work, and urged the young people of the church to enlist in this good work.

The Bible class was taught by the regular teacher, Mr. Geo. C. Smith, in a splendid way. A special offering was taken in the class for a fifteen-year-old boy attending the school today without any shoes, as he said he had none. The offering to go as a means of getting him a pair of shoes and a cap.

Our pastor, Dr. Paschall, will be away this week conducting a revival in Halifax, near Whitakers, N. C. We hope for him a successful meeting there. In the absence of the pastor, the mid week prayer meeting will be in charge of this writer.

Last report from Mr. L. L. Wilson, of Olsen, N. C., was that he is getting along slowly but fairly well, it seems. We hope he will be restored rapidly to normal health and happiness.

Brother James Rogers and family, of Florida, were recent visitors with his father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Rogers. Glad to have them with us anytime.

The Woman's Auxiliary met on the lawn at Mr. C. C. Linley's home Monday evening, August 17th, with a good number present. As the program called for an outdoor meeting Mrs. Linley kindly consented to have the auxiliary meet upon her lawn. The guests were received at the side entrance and invited into the house where awaited a long receiving line. Then they were directed out on the lawn which was beautifully arranged. Rustic chairs, tables, etc., were placed around among the shrubbery, the fish pool, bird bath, etc. This arrangement, so carefully planned, made everyone feel that they were really close to nature's garden.

Circle No. 5 had change of the program with Mrs. C. C. Linley leading. The meeting opened with song, "I Need Thee Every Hour." The 23rd Psalm was repeated in concert, followed with prayer led by Mrs. M. A. Coble. Readings were as follows: "Chinese Children at Play," Mrs. J. B. Cheek; "Play Life in Japan," Mrs. Glenn Huffman; and "Play Life in India," Mrs. M. A. Coble.

After the readings the auxiliary sang, "Love Lifted Me." The meeting was then turned over to the president, Mrs. M. A. Coble. Minutes of the last meeting were read by the secretary. The president asked that all circles turn in $5.00 each to take care of the High Point College fund. Mr. T. T. Stafford made a report about how the men of the church accepted the loan from the auxiliary. They decided to put on a drive and see how much money could be collected between now and October, and at the end of that time accept the loan from the Woman's Auxiliary.

A note of thanks was read by the secretary. As the fall season is approaching, the president urged all circles to take on new life. Mrs. Moser reported on money collected from inactive members. Elizabeth Rogers, secretary of Christian Education, and Mrs. F. W. Insehall, secretary of Young People's Work, were appointed to report at the next meeting and tell what they were doing in their work. President announced that Circle No. 1 would have change of the program and entertain at the next meeting in September.

After the benediction Circle No. 5 served ice cold watermelon upon the lawn. Everyone enjoyed fellowship with new and old acquaintances. This was one of the best meetings of the year.

Mrs. M. A. Coble was hostess to the Business Girls' Circle of the First church, August 18th, at her home, at which time she served a very palatable dinner, which was thoroughly enjoyed by everyone present.

After the meal the girls assembled in the drawing room for their program. Miss Elizabeth Rogers sang a solo. Miss Arthur Cheek read the Scripture, which was followed by the Lord's Prayer in concert. The following gave readings on Missionary Education: Misses Arthur Cheek, Betty Thompson, Elizabeth Rogers, Hattie McPherson, Iola Williams, Eula Wheeler, Mary Miller and Jackabelle Coble.

There were seven visits to the sick, twelve cards and two pots of flowers sent to the sick reported for the month of July. The collection amounted to $8.90. One new member was added to the circle at this meeting. It was decided to use Rainy Day Bags and Holiday Dimes for increasing treasury until Christmas.

The Circle voted to meet at the delicatessen for the next meeting. The meeting then adjourned.

First Church, High Point. — Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Vuncannon celebrated their golden wedding anniversary last Sunday at their home 823 W. Green St. More than 50 children, grandchildren, relatives and friends assembled to congratulate this worthy, highly-esteemed couple on the fifty years of happy married life together. A delicious lunch was served to the large number present, after which Rev. R. I. Farmer, minister of First church, delivered a happy and appropriate address, abounding in wit and humor. It fell to the lot of comparatively few couples to walk in double harness to the half-century milestone, and this occasion was very unique and unusually interesting and enjoyable.

Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Gray and son, C. I. Gray, Jr., Mr. J. A. Gray, and Mr. and Mrs. John B. Spencer went to Flat Rock church, near Summerfield last Sunday to attend the Centennial Anniversary and Home-Coming exercises. Rev. Paul S. Kennett, of the history department of High Point college, delivered an interesting and entertaining address in the morning, giving many historical facts in regard to the church and its founders. C. L. Gray, Jr., of our choir, a great-grandson of Rev. Alson Gray, founder and first pastor of Flat Rock, sang two beautiful solos, "My Task" and "His Eye Is On the Sparrow." In the afternoon, Dr. S. W. Taylor, president of N. C. conference, delivered an address in connection with the reunion of the Dixon, Williams, and Smothers families. Rev. A. G. Dixon and Mr. C. L. Gray, Sr., also made entertaining speeches.

Many friends and classmates in High Point were greatly interested to learn of the marriage at Randleman, N. C., Thursday morning, August 20th of Mr. Joseph W. Holmes, of Burlington, and Miss Dorothy Lamb, attractive and popular daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John J. Lamb. The ceremony was impressively performed in the presence of relatives and a few close friends of the young couple by Rev. Paul S. Kennett, of High Point, a cousin of the bride, assisted by the father of the groom, Rev. G. W. Holmes and honored member of N. C. conference. Mrs. Holmes attended High Point college, where she was popular among the student body and Mr. Holmes was graduated with the class of 1928, having been president of the class. He is a person connected with Ivey Tire Co., of Burlington. After the wedding ceremony the happy pair left at once by motor to trip through the Shenandoah Valley of Virginia and to no other cities. Upon their return they will be at home on North Main street, Burlington. Congratulations and best wishes are extended to this popular and highly esteemed young couple by a host of cheering friends and relatives.

Rev. R. I. Farmer, accompanied by his wife, Miss Helen Johnston, of Dennison, Ohio, who has been a guest at the parsonage since July 30th, left Tuesday morning for Wellsville, Ohio, by motor. Mr. Farmer will bring home Saturday Mrs. Farmer and the children, who have been spending the month of August at Wellsville and other points as the guests of relatives.

Mrs. S. S. Coe, who is president of the Parent-Teacher Council of the city, is entertaining the Executive Board at her residence on Hillcrest Drive this afternoon at 3:30 o'clock.

Mrs. R. T. Pickens, accompanied by her son, Wyatt, who is visiting her and her daughter, Annette, went to Concord Sunday to spend the day with her sister, Mrs. Frank Armfield and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Hutchison of Charlotte, who have been guests of their daughter, Mrs. June Gray on Lindsay Street, have returned home and Mrs. Gray's nephew, Reed Surratt, Jr., of Charlotte, is now visiting the family.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Younts and daughters, Misses Dezzie and Polly, have returned from a visit to Paradise Point on the N. C. coast.

Mrs. J. M. McAdams and daughters, Misses Ina and Dennyce, and Miss Selma Clapp are at home again after a stay at Wrightsville Beach.

Mrs. John C. Whitesell and baby daughter, who have been guests for a week of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. A. Moffitt at Ramseur, have returned to their home on Rotary Drive.

Mrs. Maggie Holton has been spending a few days with Misses Horney and Mrs. John Holton at Jamestown since the death of their sister, Miss Emily Horney on August 19th.

Miss Geraldine Farrar of Littletown, Penn., who is a niece of the famous singer of that name and Anne Rauligh, of Dover, Del., have returned to their homes after spending a week with Miss Dorothy Rankin. These girls are schoolmates of Miss Rankin at Western Maryland college, Westminster, Md.

Circle No. 7 of the Woman's Auxiliary, Mrs. Lester Penceck, chairman, cleared the sum of $35.00 from the sale of tickets to "Huckleberry Finn" at the Paramount Theatre on Monday and Tuesday of this week.

Randolph Charge.—The third quarterly conference met at Shiloh on Saturday before the second Sunday in August. The attendance was very good. All of the churches were represented and the reports were fairly good. Steward's report revealed that finances were behind considerably. But there was a spirit of hopefulness and all seemed to think we would be able to make a good report at the close of the year. Brother John Julian was declared elected delegate for this charge.

The second Sunday our special meeting began at Shiloh. The pastor preached twice on Sunday to a large congregation. Rev. J. D. Williams came on Monday and did all the preaching from then until the close of the meeting. Everyone seemed to enjoy the preaching of Dr. Williams. And I am sure great good was accomplished, though the visible results were not what we had hoped for. The rain interfered with the attendance some. During the meeting the pastor and family received many substantial tokens of kindness. We wish we could name each one who remembered us so kindly but space will not permit.

The third Sunday we began our meeting at Bethel. The pastor had no pulpit help for this meeting. The meeting was attended by large crowds. There was a general revival in the church, and 15 conversions and reclamations. During this meeting the pastor was treated to an old fashioned pounding. His car was loaded twice during the week. Everything given was useful and the pastor and family greatly appreciate these tokens of kindness from these churches. We have always found good people where we have served as pastor but we do not believe we have ever served better people than we are serving now. May the Lord bless them and may the pastor be able to lead them out into larger fields of usefulness.

The meetings at Bethany and Gray's Chapel are to be held yet. We will begin at Bethany the first Sunday in September. We are expecting Brother Towler to help us in the meeting. The fourth Sunday in September we will begin at Gray's Chapel. Brother Bates will be our help at this place. We are expecting good meetings at these churches.

EDW. SUITS.

Bethesda.—We were very much surprised on account of weather condition, an out of fresh water and bridges out, roads under construction, to have our pastor, Brother C. W. Sanders with us Sunday, August 23rd. It has been said by several that he brought us the best and one of the most interesting sermons since he has been with us. Our hearts are full of love and gratitude for a man that will drive more than a hundred miles over rough roads and even through water to bring a message to us, to try to warn the lost and dying world of the wrath to come. We have learned to love Brother Sanders and we are always so glad to have him in our midst. We are expecting to have a Rally Day program at Bethesda the second Sunday or the 13th of September. Sunday school at 9 o'clock and afterward the program. We are expecting some good speakers and our pastor with us on that date. Come and bring some one with you. Think we can use you time with us in a very pleasing way if you will come with an open heart ready to receive some food for the soul.

JNO. GULLEDGE.

North Davidson Charge.—To date we have held three of our revivals at three churches on the charge.

On fourth Sunday in July we commenced at Canaan. Rev. O. C. Loy occupied the pulpit at 11 o'clock and did all the preaching from start to finish. The pastor kept the chairs pushed up.

A fine spirit of cooperation from the beginning. Denominational lines were torn down. Bethel Reformed church, M. E.'s, Baptists and Holiness all joined in as servants of one Master, even Christ Jesus, the Lord. Our Father sent His holy spirit and He did a great work. The people of God greatly rejoiced and praised Him as in the days of the fathers. I have heard Reforms and M. P.'s say, we experience something that I never had before. It was a great revival and is still going on. Several conversions. I hear, in Sunday school and prayer meetings since. Brother Loy did good preaching and was enjoyed by all who heard him. He greatly endeared himself with the people of all religious sects. Large congregations greeted us at 3 o'clock and at 7:45. The Sunday school room were opened and filled with anxious listeners.

Results: Thirty or more conversions and reclamations. 11 joined Canaan with others to follow—some were heads of families, some joined other churches—a great meeting. To God be all the glory.

On the second Sunday in August we commenced at Bethesda. Rev. O. C. Loy was my help again and did all the preaching, except one sermon preached by the pastor while Brother Loy was visiting his mother, a patient in the hospital at Durham. We trust Sister Loy will soon be entirely restored to health.

Here Brother Loy did good preaching to large and attentive congregations, greatly endeavoring himself to the people. This church is an exception in that they keep all the children worked up from year to year, a finer membership and people not be found anywhere. Not many unsaved people attended services. Results—a great revival. Some 14 conversions and reclamations, nine additions to the church. Three joined by certificate.

Brother Loy left us warm in the hearts of the people.

On the third Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock we commenced our meeting at Union Grove, preaching at 3 and 7:45 p. m. and each night thereafter until Thursday night. We closed truly a great meeting. This membership is small and they requested pastor to do all the preaching. The members say the greatest revival Union Grove has had in many years and largest attendance. Some fifteen conversions and renewals, five joined the church. We had eight conversions on Tuesday night. This faithful little band was greatly strengthened. To date we have had twenty-six additions to the church and about sixty conversions and renewals.

Our next will begin at Mt. Pleasant on the fourth Sunday in September. Rev. A. D. Shelton will do the preaching. On the third Sunday in October at Spring Hill Rev. O. C. Loy will be my help again.

Our circuit picnic will meet at Spring Hill on Thursday, August 27. A program at 10 o'clock by the young people and children selected by each church. A picnic dinner. We are looking for and hoping for a good time—five Sunday schools and all the membership of churches present. Get acquainted Christians, get together, know each other. It will do us good and promote fellowship.

May God bless the Herald family.

H. L. POWELL, Pastor.

Judge Sample, of Michigan, was called on to pass sentence on three men who had robbed, killed and fired the bodies of two young men and two young women in an automobile. He said: "I feel like I am in the presence of fiends." He gave them the full penalty of the law, life imprisonment, though he said it was not severe enough. Michigan abolished the death penalty in 1845, and in a recent vote the majority voted to continue as before.

The Goal of Your Life

Not what you seek but what you find
Is life's true goal to keep in mind:
The end you seek may flash and lure,
The things you find delusions cure.

You may pursue a glittering prize,
Some high reward that charms your eyes:
You may in time the prize possess
And realize its worthlessness.

If you'd make choice both safe and sound,
You must e'er choose what can be found,
And also choose what's worth the cost,
Or else your time and strength are lost.

Lest you might err and go astray,
You'd better leave to God the way:
He has for you a chosen place,
Reserved for you at end of race.

A Thoroughly Bad Man

Paul to Elymas the sorcerer: "O full of all guile and all villany, thou son of the devil, thou enemy of all righteousness, wilt thou not cease to pervert the right ways of the Lord? And now, behold, the hand of the Lord is upon thee, and thou shalt be blind, not seeing the sun for a season."

The blindness came according to Paul's word, but still grace was shown to Elymas in that the blindness was only temporary, and we may trust that he was saved from his deep sinfulness. We hear no more about him. Simon the sorcerer rebuked by Peter in Samaria is said to have become an enemy to Peter and to have followed him from place to place to oppose him until he finally came to a tragic end.

An Astonishing Animal

Many animals surprise us by their achievements, but the beaver astonishes us. His engineering feats are remarkable. He plans and builds dams across running streams. The plan varies according to the nature of the stream. If the stream is constantly slow-moving he builds straight across. If the stream is subject to freshets and great variation in velocity he builds a dam with convexity up stream. He cuts down large trees and cuts them into sections for building material. He chinks with grass and mud and generally makes the dam water-tight. He works under water when necessary. He builds dams only when they are needed to raise the water high enough to cover the entrance to his home on the bank beside the stream. He sometimes builds a secondary dam to protect the first. His tools are his teeth and his tail. With his chisel-shaped teeth he cuts down large trees and cuts them into sections. He uses his flat tail as a trowel to spread the mud plaster. When a tree is about to fall he slaps his tail on the ground to warn other beavers of their danger. He rolls and floats the tree sections to their place in the dam. He builds according to plan without any blue print. How does he do it? With only the beaver's tools could man surpass the beaver as an engineer! The beaver astonishes by his building feats.

When a Sparrow Falls

Jesus said that not a sparrow falls without our Father. What did he mean? He must have meant that God sees the sparrow's fall, knows all about it. He must have meant also that God is interested in the sparrow's fall: the event changes God's world and God is concerned to know whether compensating changes are required. The sparrow had a place to fill in God's world of living creatures. The balance must be kept up. The falling of the sparrow presents a new problem to God. God is ever alert to meet the demands of the universe He is maintaining. His position requires that He consider the full import of the sparrow's fall.

But Jesus meant more than that, much more. He meant for us human creatures to see the implication of God's knowledge of and interest in the sparrow's fall. Ye are of more value than many sparrows. If God cares for them, will He not care for you? Nothing is more certain than that He will. He may not prevent your fall, but He will observe it, and He will do what the event requires of Him. Our fall in death is written firmly in the program of God and we cannot escape it; but when it comes, whether by disease or accidental injury, God will be fully aware of it and will be prepared to do what the occasion requires. The dreaded hour of your fall may be made less dreadful by the reflection that our Father will be on hand. Death cannot separate us from the presence and loving care of God.

—We print this week an article written by a Methodist Episcopal minister on the office of bishop. Such an article published a hundred years ago would have brought to its author severe reprimand if not expulsion from the church. Times have changed; still the young minister will probably find himself in the minority when he undertakes to make practical changes in the episcopacy. There are two parties in the M. E. Church as there were a century ago: the reformers and the conservatives. The latter are so strong that radical reform is difficult if not impossible. The editor of Zion's Herald proposes that the next General Conference (1932) appoint a commission of ministers and laymen to consider what to do with the episcopacy and report in 1936.

MESSAGE AND PURPOSE OF THE YOUNG MEN'S CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATIONS OF THE U. S. A.

1. The Young Men's Christian Association is a fellowship whose primary purpose is to win boys and men to Jesus Christ, to associate them in Christian living, and to help them to discover and to accept the full meaning of Christian discipleship for their own lives and for society.

A Developing Movement

2. Like all living fellowships, our Association has been responsive to changing situations and to new factors in its environment. This development appears:

3. In range of fellowship. Beginning as an Association of young men to work for young men, our movement now includes in its fellowship boys and men of all ages, races, occupations and conditions, who are interested in Christian ideals of self-realization and of human service.

4. In extension of program. Concerned at first almost exclusively with prayer, Bible study, and personal evangelism, the Association early discovered additional fields where its ministry was needed, and from time to time has added to its program a wide range of activities which now touch every major interest of men and boys.

5. In liberty of thought and practice. This enlarging program has brought into our fellowship men and boys of diverse heritage, opportunity, and outlook. In the freedom made possible through the autonomy of local Associations, individuals and groups find large liberty of thought and practice. Thus it has become possible for our Association, in loyalty to its central purpose, to adapt its work to changing conditions, to be hospitable to new methods, and to encourage experimentation in the field of its interest.

6. In church and community relations. Born of the Christian Church, our Association is distinguished from the church in that it is a fellowship of laymen—interdenominational in character—who have associated themselves for the purpose of expressing their loyalty to Jesus Christ through those forms of practical helpfulness which enrich the life of the members and may be of service to humanity. In this special field it serves as an agency through which the religious forces of the community may find common expression. Expanding activities and enlarging interests have brought our Movement into increasingly close co-operation also with other agencies of social welfare and community life.

7. In world-wide brotherhood. From its beginning our Association has been in fellowship with Young Men's Christian Associations in other lands. Like these Associations, it has been animated by the missionary spirit and has entered into fellowship with men and boys throughout the world, sharing with them its best and receiving much from them in return. This enlarging brotherhood, extending now to over fifty countries, has greatly enriched the life of our Movement and holds immeasurable promise for the future.

A Christian Movement

8. Through all changes we are a Christian Association, seeking to discover what Jesus Christ means for us as men and boys, and to commit ourselves to God through him. Through Jesus Christ—his life, his death, his resurrection—we find ourselves brought face to face with God, whose creative good will and redemptive love summon us to self-discipline and heroic adventure.

9. We would seek to make all our activities expressive of our Christian purpose. Group life, personal relations, the management of our Associations and the larger meetings of the Movement afford opportunities for the discovery and fulfillment of personal needs, the sharing of aspirations and purpose, and the realization of our allegiance to Jesus. We would join in Bible study and prayer as means to the fuller understanding of Jesus and the sharing of the divine purpose, and would seek to make our activities and contacts the means and occasions of an effective Christian evangelism.

10. With the development of modern science and in view of the increasingly complicated relationships of modern life, our understanding of what it means to live as Jesus would have us live has widened. We recognize our responsibility for changing the conditions which produce sin and suffering, as well as for dealing with their consequences. In the growing humanitarian spirit which is producing a more sensitive conscience toward the problems of industry and race, in the deepening conviction that war is an intolerable evil, in the increasing recognition that all men everywhere are brothers, we see evidence of the workings of the Spirit of God whom Jesus reveals.

11. Wherever men are working to help one another in the spirit of good will, we recognize brothers with whom we desire to co-operate. We value the sincere faith of men of other names and creeds. We should be untrue to ourselves to them, and to the spirit of truth which is the life-breath of the modern world, if we did not share the help and strength which have come to us through our Christian faith. We are persuaded that the sure way to brotherhood is not through suppressing differences but through sharing our distinctive experiences and convictions. As followers of Jesus we bear witness to the resources which have opened to us in fellowship with God through him.

A Creative Movement

12. As a Young Men's Christian Association, we are challenged to adventurous thinking and to creative action. We live in a world where new issues continually arise, new problems emerge, and new resources are discovered. We are concerned with youth, which brings to life fresh vision and hope, and in whose hands lies the making of tomorrow.

13. We seek to develop concern among our members for the achievement of the full significance of the Christian spirit in the social and institutional life of our times, and to discover appropriate and effective forms of action. We are concerned with the strengthening of the possibilities of American home life; with the wholesome and fruitful use of leisure time; with provision for ampler opportunities for education; with the fostering of private and public health; with active participation in the duties of citizenship; with the destruction of the liquor traffic; with fair dealing and brotherly behavior between the races; with the abolition of war—with all that promotes justice and brotherhood throughout the whole of our social, industrial, economic, and political life.

14. We seek to bring the spirit of Jesus Christ to bear upon the whole range and art of living and upon all the conditions and problems of our time. We desire through him to enter into partnership with God's purpose, as this has been and may be discovered. We regard worship as an indispensable aid to such creative living.

15. We undertake to secure as our lay and professional leaders persons who possess skill and resourcefulness and who convincingly embody Christ's spirit of service and sacrifice.

16. In this time of moral confusion and religious uncertainty, we reaffirm our conviction that Jesus Christ is the Saviour we would trust, the Leader we would follow, and the Master we would serve. In dependence upon God whom he reveals, in devotion to the brotherhood for which he gave his life, in hope of the future to which he points, we rededicate ourselves to him and to the service of our age and of the world.

◆◆◆ DISTINGUISHED SPEAKERS WILL ADDRESS ECUMENICAL

While a committee of a hundred Atlantans make preparations for the coming of some ten thousand visitors to the Ecumenical Conference of Methodism in October, other committees in Great Britain and America are reporting progress in building up a strong program of world character. Over two hundred speakers will participate in the general and sectional meetings of the Conference.

Among the distinguished statesmen who are expected are the Hon. Charles Curtis, vice-president of the United States; Premier R. B. Bennett of the Dominion of Canada; Governor Richard P. Russell, Jr., of the State of Georgia; and, if official duties will permit, Secretary of Foreign Affairs, the Hon. Arthur Henderson of Great Britain, who is one of the most effective local preachers in British Methodism as well as one of the world's most able statesmen.

There will be a number of bishops present representing all the episcopal branches of Methodism, both white and colored, and they will come from various parts of the globe. Among the distinguished speakers and delegates to the Conference will be Dr. Edwin H. Oliver, Moderator of the United Church of Canada. Before the union of the churches of Canada, Moderator Oliver was a Presbyterian but he now presides over a Church the majority of whose members were formerly Methodists and the United Church of Canada desires to be continued as a constituent part of world Methodism. It has had delegations of strong and recognized leaders who have been present and participated in all the committee meetings called for building up the program of the Conference.

Word has come that some of the delegates from New Zealand, Japan, and Malaysia are already on their way. From all corners of the earth will come representatives and visitors who will assure a most interesting cross section of Methodism in Atlanta, Georgia, from October 16 to 25, while trains and automobiles will bring large numbers of American Methodists who will avail themselves of the opportunity offered in the discussions and atmosphere of this world-wide conference. All Methodists will be welcomed, laymen and ministers alike, and Atlanta is making special arrangements for their entertainment.

NO BISHOPS

Some Severe Strictures on our Present Episcopal System and the Suggestion of a Drastic Remedy

To suggest doing without bishops causes most Methodists to laugh and others to become angered at the impertinence. However, the ministry of Methodism expects this generation to alter the denomination's method of administration. By the end of this century it is likely that Methodism will have either many bishops, who will be diocesan in selection and authority, with no further need for district superintendents; or no bishops, with better selection and increased authority for district superintendents. Which shall it be? No bishops, say we here.

On this question we are in the position that Herbert Hoover and Ramsay MacDonald were in when they informally met to talk about their great hope of promoting permanent peace. Like them, we too are pioneering in the matter at hand, knowing whither we want to go, but not yet engaged in a detailed discussion of how to get there. So far as discarding the episcopal system in Methodism is concerned, we are but quietly gazing into an open camp-fire and weaving our dreams as fancy and intelligence dictate.

Such a spot is no place for the draughtsman's table or the mechanic's scrolls. Blue-prints of how the future is to look will come later; just now we are in the early stages of this peace parley, feeling our ground and talking about our hopes.

No detailed explanations are presented of how to assemble the new shay, or respectfully dispose of the old one. When we have made up our minds that we really want to abolish bishops, then we shall do as MacDonald and Hoover on the Peace Parley, call in the mechanics and technicians and let them rear a structure upon the foundations of our clear-cut hopes and dreams.

As to the practical side of this question, constitutionally the denomination must have some general superintendents. Therefore let us have them, but as few as we can. Selection of foreign bishops is already out of our hands. Here at home we can get along with four bishops—one in the East, one in the South, one in the central West, and one in the far West. When the phrase "abolition of episcopacy" is used, practical abolition is meant. Constitutionally we might keep these four, and let them be genial and powerless itinerant visitors, going about from General Conference to General Conference, acting as the church's fraternal delegates, representing the church in matters of denominational union, making a speech at Annual Conference sessions if they feel like it, and heading up a great many of the church's special committees.

The historic pinnacle given bishops is only a state of mind, almost the nervous hysteria that characterizes old maids. The bishop came into being as a prominent pastor, a pastor who became magnified by his geographical location and by the issues of history and the accidents of economics. He was set apart in his local environment by necessity, for intensely practical reasons of contact and administration — not for show, pomp, theory, or tradition. The reasons that in the course of church history called into being the benign but burdensome bishops no longer exist. The tadpole has now outgrown its tail; the growing acorn may cast off its shell.

Now as to reasons for the proposed abolition of bishops. There is but one big reason, that of church efficiency.

1. First in consequence and value—bishops are not needed for the spiritual work of the church. They are not a requisite or a great aid at consecrations of corner-stones or basket-balls. They are not needed for confirmation, since Methodist polity is blessed by the omission of that onus. They are not needed for ordinations: elders can and do ordain, even as did John Wesley, and when the bishop in the Methodist Episcopal Church ordains, he does so as an elder—the highest ordination Methodism has.

We never believed that it was necessary to have ordination at all in order to secure God's blessing upon the preaching of the gospel. From the practical standpoint, our ease of travel and frequency of reading no longer make the visit of a bishop, or his sermon, such an outstanding spiritual uplift as it was fifty years ago. The episcopal questions actually faced by the church are of expediency, or administrative efficiency. Let us not make bishops smaller—as some want—by increasing their number in order that they may visit churches oftener to dispense the holy water of their episcopal presence.

For the last twenty years at least, the bishops have been chosen dominantly for administrative purposes, so that the question before us now becomes: as a form of business administration, is the episcopal system the best one we can devise?

2. The duties are too diverse. The Jack of all trades is usually the master of none. As presiding officers at Annual Conferences, the bishops are either bored or exasperated; at General Conference lucky is that bishop who can preside all day and not need to call for a season of prayer in order to untangle the mess. As one of the greatest personal directors in America, a Methodist bishop may have direct control over one thousand men and yet be unable to converse personally with one twentieth of them about their particular jobs. It isn't his fault; he can't—there are too many to watch.

The bishop's duty of uniting church memberships becomes complicated in many of the few times he ties churches together. As supreme educator of the ministry, he and his colleagues determine the course of study for pastors. As executive, he does almost anything and everything, and yet must be rated a high spiritual leader, an evangelist and inspirer. His duties are too diverse for efficiency.

3. A friend suggested that the only listing necessary in order to give the reasons for abolishing bishops would be to name them. No one seriously can be as hard as that. The bishops are good men, talented, consecrated, and, in the main, intensely sacrificial in their service. I admire and respect and extol them personally. But we work them too hard, and we wear them out too soon.

4. That the majority of the leading pastors sought for the episcopacy decline needs no elaboration. Most of our ministers believe a worthy pastorate a higher calling than being bishop, honorable though that is, and each General Conference finds it increasingly hard to secure men worthy of the position. Many pastors and laymen are better leaders than their bishops.

5. They are too old. One might venture the guess that the older bishops proved the reason for Stanley Jones's resignation from the episcopacy, for we have heard before that the younger bishops feel cramped by the older ones.

Before the Civil War, the bishops averaged forty-three years of age at time of election. From then on, the average jumped to over fifty years, and never since has any General Conference elected a set of bishops whose ages averaged less than fifty years. Before the Civil War we had elected only four bishops over fifty. Since the Civil War we have had nine who were more than sixty years of age at election. It is hard, increasingly hard in this generation, for men of over fifty years to adjust themselves to a new physical, mental, or spiritual life. Habitually, we select bishops who are too old.

6. They are incompetent to perform their most responsible function, the appointment of ministers to charges. They need to rely on district superintendents, and usually do so unless some special brother has a grievance, or a church committee deals directly with the lord bishop, or he gratifies his personal whims and fondness. Too many appointments come at one time. No other business house of the magnitude of Methodism shifts its staff all at once. So long as appointments are made annually as now, the chief effect of the bishop will be to muss up the pre-Conference plans of the district superintendents and to throw a monkey-wrench into the works of an already harassed group of well-meaning men of God. The appointing power is too great a responsibility for one man.

7. They are not needed to preside at Annual Conferences. Every Annual Conference can satisfactorily choose its own presiding officer. Bishop Francis J. McConnell a few years ago attended an Annual Conference in Mexico where by law he was restricted from performing his episcopal duties because he was a foreign ecclesiastic. He sat all week and kept quiet, except when called upon by the local chairman to conduct devotions, and reported to us that it was remarkable how well Methodist ministers could conduct Conference without a bishop to preside.

Several of our own Conference members are very well fitted to preside, and they know the local feelings and the provincial attitudes of the section and its contiguous geography. It is a waste of time and money for a good bishop to sit and preside over the routine business of an Annual Conference.

8. Having no bishops will be an aid to church unity, which we younger preachers want. If negotiations with our Presbyterian brethren can be advanced by scrapping our big battleships, those of the episcopacy, let us rejoice at the opportunity to sacrifice them on the altar of church union. In any negotiations with other sects, giving up bishops is one of the first concessions we can make. No denomination that doesn't have them wants them.

9. We shall save money. Bishops are an expensive luxury, and have been so for some time. Last year they cost us $391,470. This money is not useful enough. It would do more good if given to World Service, or almost any other place where $400,000 is needed. With this money, eight hundred Conference claimants who receive only one-half of their claim could be paid the other half, or four thousand underpaid could be paid an additional and helpful one hundred dollars per annum. This year the bishops are requiring an appropriation nearly fifty per cent. greater than last year, close to $600,000.

10. Bishops will be less needed in the future and become more ornamental than useful, according to my guess, which is all any one can do in this type of prophecy. Our tendency is away from the itinerant bishop to a diocesan executive, from a floating chief pastor to one settled where he can grow more fruit. The board secretaries can amply take care of the denominational business, and more and more must be relied on to do so to the exclusion of the bishops.

11. The bishop should disappear because he is not controllable. Only once in four years can he be called on the carpet for discipline or for official advice, instruction, education, or relocation. A republican form of organization demands nearer reins on its bosses.

So, summing up, we do not need bishops for ordaining. Elders can do it. We do not need bishops to run the great denominational enterprises—the secretaries and staffs do it anyway. We do not need bishops to make appointments. The big men and big churches do it without the bishop's interfering, and district superintendents can handle the rest. We do not need bishops to draw salaries. The money could at least be used to pay for specialists who would advise, not command, and be primarily servers, not controllers.

In the meaning that bishops had when Methodism was formed, we have no episcopacy, no bishops now; and in the modern meaning of the phrase we do not need them. The conviction is growing that bishops are unnecessary, and that the episcopal system is not the most feasible or workable system for the modern enterprises of church administration. The superior and best action will be the abolition of the episcopacy as soon as it can be effected. The polite proposal to limit the tenure of bishops to an eight-year period is but a shiftless evasion of the deeper issue. Let us abolish the episcopacy for the sake of Christian efficiency.—James V. Claypool in Zion's Herald, Methodist Episcopal.

KENTUCKY ANNUAL CONFERENCE

August 13 the Kentucky Annual Conference met at Sunshine Church near Fullerton, Kentucky. D. A. Hewlett, president, A. C. Watkins, secretary and Henry Sturgill treasurer, were re-elected.

This was the most hopeful and progressive session of this conference I have attended in thirteen years. Perhaps the best item to be reported is the fact that three ministers with ordination papers from other denominations applied for membership and were received and given full time pastorates. Rev. William Grow of West Virginia, Rev. Mr. Reed and Rev. Mr. Paige of Kentucky. These brethren seemed very much interested in the work of the conference and if their enthusiasm continues we predict for them a great year's work. G. W. Simms of West Virginia, was also received as a probationary member of the conference and entered upon the course of study.

The General Conference Budget was discussed quite thoroughly, and there was a very definite interest manifested by ministers and laymen. Surely the financial showing of this conference will be greatly improved in the coming year.

A definite three years' course of study was adopted and the committee on Itineracy and Orders was appointed this year to serve at the next session so that preparation can be made for more thorough examination of candidates. This item of the report that was adopted also shows progress—"No person shall be permitted to enter upon our course of study who has not completed the eighth grade."

Representatives to the General Conference, Rev. A. H. Miller and Thomas Murphy; alternates, T. R. Woodford and W. O. Suiter.

The spirit of frankness and brotherly love was in evidence throughout the session and the people of the community entertained us in the good old-fashioned way—furnishing three meals a day.

Any one who has a copy of one or more of the following books to spare and will send them to me at Pine Ridge, Wolfe County, Ky., I can place them in the hands of men who are unable to buy and they will be greatly benefited:

RUSSELL H. CONWELL

One of the most beautiful and worthy of the many memorials erected in Massachusetts during the state's tercentenary year was that to the memory of Russell H. Conwell, at his birthplace, in the old village of South Worthington, on September 7, 1930.

A great boulder, brought from a neighboring hill of the Berkshires, with a handsome bronze plate imbedded in its side, was unveiled on the lovely, sloping green lawn of the little farmhouse where the town's most famous son was born. The bronze plate bears the wording: "Birthplace of Russell Herman Conwell, February 15, 1843. Minister of the Gospel, Founder of Temple University, Patriot, Orator, Author, Educator."

No railroads reach South Worthington, for this tiny village, in the Hampshire Highlands of the Berkshire Hills, is miles away from the smoke and roar of locomotives; but, on September 7, 1930, all the automobile roads of this section led to Russell Conwell's birthplace, and a great concourse of people gathered to do honor to the memory of the great minister and educator who went from this obscure hamlet to become one of America's noted and famous figures.

Another feature of South Worthington's tercentenary program was the placing of a bronze tablet on the front of the beautiful old church, a short distance from the Conwell home, to the memory of its founders, one of whom was Russell Conwell's father. In this dignified old structure, with its tall white spire, "rising like a far-distant sail," Russell Conwell attended services when a boy, and in later years, when he had become one of the country's greatest ministers, he would come back each year for a vacation among his native hills, and always there was an all-day service in the old white church when Doctor Conwell would deliver a morning and afternoon sermon, with lunch served in the woods back of the building, according to custom.

For many years after the death of his parents the little farm and farmhouse, known as the "Eagle's Nest," was the property of strangers, but as soon as he was able, Doctor Conwell bought the place, and it was there he went for rest and recuperation from his strenuous duties. What a joy it was to him to be able to restore the home of his boyhood, to install modern improvements, to replace the rocks and sparse grass with a beautiful lawn, dotted with shrubs and flowers, to add to the building, and convert the little stony brook in front of the house into a beautiful lake.

All through the busy years he looked forward with delight to the few weeks he would be permitted to spend amid the scenes of his youth. "Often I have gone back to the old home and found solace and strength and hope returning; and I have sallied forth after a few days fresh for further effort," he once wrote to a friend.

The life-story of Russell H. Conwell is a unique and interesting one, and should be an inspiration to every poor youth of America. He was born to poverty in the little farmhouse, perched on the side of one of the Berkshire hills; but he was fortunate in the possession of splendid parents, who, in spite of the toil which was their daily lot, found time to read to their children such books as made a lasting impression for good on their young, receptive minds.

At fifteen, with an older brother, he entered Wilbraham Academy, near Springfield, where, by dint of the strictest economy and doing odd chores for the nearby farmers, he managed to complete the course. Then he determined to go to Yale. The same grinding poverty made up his days there, for money for tuition and living had to be earned at the same time, and the sensitive youth no doubt often contrasted his own case with that of other students, whose every want was supplied and their only responsibility to keep pace with their studies.

Then came the Civil War, and Russell Conwell promptly enlisted. Once he was left for dead on the battlefield, but finally recovered, and at the close of the war held the rank of captain in the Union Army. In camp, between marches, he kept up the study of law, and later returned to Yale to finish the course.

Following a few years as a lawyer in Minnesota, he went to Germany as State Emigration Agent, and then became a newspaper correspondent for New York and Boston papers, this work taking him on a trip around the world. In Boston, where he practiced law for some years, he became popular as a lecturer and author, and with all these experiences as a background, Russell Conwell, in 1879, was ordained as a minister, and three years later entered upon his great work in Philadelphia as pastor of Grace Baptist Church. Under his direction this organization became one of the largest in America, and in 1891 the Baptist Temple on Broad Street was built.

Aside from his pastoral duties, he found time to deliver his famous lecture, "Acres of Diamonds," to audiences in every state in the Union and several foreign countries as well, the proceeds of which he turned over to poor boys who were trying to work their way through college. Then, in 1888, he founded Temple University, which eventually became one of the leading educational institutions of the United States and a blessing to thousands.

Doctor Conwell was often called the "penniless millionaire," for his earnings of several million dollars were given to causes and persons less fortunate and able than himself, for out of another bitter experience of his youthful days, when he was alone, friendless, and poor in a foreign hospital, came two great institutions of healing.

When Doctor Conwell's heroic career ended, in 1925, America lost one of her most useful and versatile citizens.—By Maude Gardner.

ELEGANT LADIES!

The current Vanity Fair has an article on the "Sabine women"—otherwise the ladies of the Anti-Prohibition society headed by Mrs. Sabin. These ladies (all young and beautiful, according to the article) are working havoc with the dry convictions of congressmen in Washington, by making use of the methods so well exemplified in the movies! They are in strong contrast to the ladies of the W.C.T.U., who are just of a plain, garden variety of American womanhood, while the Sabine women are "swellegant." They know just exactly what finger to cock and at what angle, while they are elegantly smoking cigarettes, and they deplore the effort of "common" women to participate in government!

We have known a good many ladies in our time, who were real aristocrats in brains and manner and social prestige. We never yet knew one who had to carry on her back a sign "I am a lady."

In addition to the splendid women of the W.C.T.U., we might offer for the consideration of Vanity Fair, certainly not fewer than four-fifths of all the membership of the Daughters of the American Revolution and nearly all of the membership of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, which is on record in favor of prohibition. Vanity Fair, if it sends a young man to inspect these ladies, will not find them boasting of their positions in society, will not find them trying to "vamp" congressmen, will not find them reflecting upon any other group of women anywhere. It will find them just a simple, unaffected modest product of the cultural influences of America, and it will find nearly all of them dry. As for the "Sabine" women, perhaps they should not be held responsible for the blatant vulgarities of fool friends.—Clipp Sheet.

—During the year 1930 the American Bible society distributed more than 12,000,000 copies of the Bible, Testaments and portions of the Bible. This is the largest distribution of the Scriptures which has been made by the society in any year of its history. This was the sixth year in succession in which the distribution has surpassed that of the preceding year. The work of the society in translation, publications and distribution requires it to deal with 285 languages and dialects.

Mecklenburg

August 29-30.—These two days, Saturday and Sunday were given to Mecklenburg charge. On Saturday night we presided at the third quarterly conference, which was held at Zoar church. Sixteen officials were present, and each of the five churches was represented. The vote for delegate was counted and Brother A. B. Garmon was found to be elected. He will not be a stranger in our conference, as he has several times represented his charge in our annual sessions. This charge has two licensed preachers, Brother Earl Cook and Brother A. B. Craig. They were present in the conference and gave reports of their activities on the charge. They are each preparing for admission to the conference through the conference course. The pastor reported the work in good condition, with the exception of finances. He reported $347.75 paid on salary and $8.50 on budgets. The crop prospects seem very good, and we are confident that the people will do their best in meeting their financial obligations as the year closes. The total obligation for the charge is not large, being only $1,420. This is a membership apportionment of $2.75. Last year the charge paid an average of $2.00 per member for all purposes. Each church on the charge has a Sunday School, and reports indicate that all are functioning well. Beulah and Stallings gave an Easter program; Zoar and Beulah observed Children's Day, and are planning to observe Rally Day. Beulah has paid the allotment to the Sunday School for the maintenance of the Conference Council of Religious Education. New Hope church has a thriving C. E. society, and Stallings and Beulah each have an active Aid society. The revival meeting was on at Beulah, with Brother Earl Cook assisting the pastor. Meetings have been held in all of the other churches. This charge has a field for service, and we hope to see the work grow. Brother Joyner, the pastor, is faithful, and will do all that he can to promote progress, and to close the year with the best possible results along all lines. We were glad to meet Pastor Joyner's father. He is a member of our Atlanta church, and is on a visit to his son and other relatives. Brother H. B. Furr and Brother A. B. Craig, and their families, have our grateful thanks for entertainment in their homes. While in the Craig home, we had the privilege of baptizing two of the children—Paul Harden and Nina Janet. May they be constantly in the keeping of him who said, "Suffer the little children to come unto me, and forbid them not." We enjoyed our visit to this charge.

Kannapolis

We had no appointment with this church at this time, but stopped there on our way home Sunday night, and attended the service. We found that they were just beginning a revival meeting with Brother Henderson assisting the pastor. There is a vast difference in the appearance of their work now and at its beginning. They have grown in numbers and in equipment until they have the appearance of a promising church. They must have had more than a hundred in the service Sunday night, and most of them were adults. Several members have been added this year, and the prospects appear good for the addition of a number of others. Their indebtedness is being gradually reduced also. With favorable industrial conditions, they could soon be out of debt. Brother Love, the pastor, is working faithfully and will give his full time to the work for the remainder of the year. He has not been able to do this all of the year, owing to the small salary that the church is able to pay now. The matter of adequate pastoral support is one of the problems of the charge that we shall have to try to work out with them for another year. But the work is growing, and with proper care, we believe that it will ultimately develop into a useful church.

We stopped in Concord to see Brother and Sister Milloway, but found that they were in Charlotte for medical treatment for Brother Milloway. We regret that Brother Milloway is not so well. He will have our prayers. We hope for his early restoration to health. Brother W. J. Widenhouse, teacher of the Baraca class, was holding service for him Sunday night.

While in Concord, Brother P. H. Scarboro gave us a picture of the Concord church Baraca class. It looks like it might be the picture of an annual conference, judging by the size of the group. There are over 300 persons in the picture. This is much the largest Baraca class in the conference. Brother Scarboro is the president, and is an enthusiastic worker.

Pastor's Federations

The chairmen of these Federations are planning for the fall meetings. Dr. Johnson, the chairman of the Eastern Federation, is calling a meeting to be held in Littleton, Monday morning, September 14. Dr. Andrews, chairman of the Western Federation, has announced a meeting to be held in the Albemarle church, Monday morning, September 28. Bro. Maier, chairman of the Central Federation, is making plans for meeting, and will give notice of time and place at an early date. These meetings are important always, but especially so now, coming as they do in the closing period of the conference year. We trust that every pastor in these different Federations will attend without fail.

Much Yet to be Done

A great deal of our conference work is yet to be done, despite the fact that we have left only two months of the conference year. This is true particularly of our finances. Much on salaries is yet to be paid, and the major part, by far, of our budgets is yet to be raised. Of course a great deal can be done in 60 days. But where there is so much to be done, there is danger in putting it off too long. It often happens that small balances are provided for in the last few days; but when the balance is large, the time to raise it is not sufficient if it has been put off to closing days. NOW is the time to work earnestly on these financial obligations.

If we begin now, and press collections, for these remaining months, our showing will not be poor when the counts are all in, despite a money panic. And as we go about this work, let this be remembered: The church belongs to God; we belong to Him; "the earth is His, and everything in it." We can certainly trust Him to take care of His own. But He will do it through us; and just as we are faithful to Him, He will put His blessings upon our labors, and provide both for our personal needs and the needs of His church. He is able to do for us "exceeding abundantly above all that we ask or think." In that hope and that confidence, let us go to the task of these closing weeks.

THE LATE C. E. CONVENTION

By REV. R. I. FARMER

Echoes from the International Golden Jubilee Convention of Christian Endeavor continue to reverberate. They will do so for some time in the souls of all who were privileged to be present. Because of new opportunities awaiting, President Poling, in his recommendations to the trustees of the International Society, recommended the inauguration of a campaign to gather a Fiftieth-Anniversary Maintenance and Extension Fund. The aim of the movement has been and ever will be a conservative financial program. Its success has been through a few salaried leaders and the volunteer work of thousands of youth who learn to do by doing. But "in at least nineteen countries," said Dr. Poling, "there are imperative needs that can be met only on the missionary basis."

In a recent article I referred to the addition of the ancient Waldensian church in Italy to Christian Endeavor ranks. In Europe the Endeavorers are calling for headquarters in Geneva. In their last national convention Hungarian youth plead earnestly for this. South America awaits—but why enumerate places? It is a world movement and American youth and money and leaders must assist.

The Oakland Tribune of July 12th carried the news of a most significant angle of the youth movement. It is in line with the inevitable larger movement in Christian unity. The article read: "A move to consolidate the International Society of Christian Endeavor with the Epworth League, Methodist Junior Organization, may be brought a step nearer completion at the thirty-third international convention of the former organization. . . . A strong favorable attitude exists on both sides, according to Fred D. Parr, a Methodist, and associate chairman of the convention committee. His opinion is corroborated by that of Dr. Daniel A. Poling, D.D., LL.D., S.T.D., international president of Christian Endeavor; Rev. E. A. Lowther, pastor of the Temple Methodist Church, and other prominent executives at the meeting. The move, if it is taken, will probably be in the form of a resolution introduced, asking an opinion on the question from the Methodist Board of Control, it was said. Similarity in the ideals of the two societies and the probability of a greater work to be done co-operatively, was given as the cause behind the proposed consolidation. The Epworth League is the smaller of the two organizations, and for this reason leaders believe that the initiative should come from that side. The Christian Endeavor Society is interdenominational among the Protestant churches, whereas the Epworth League is purely Methodist in character. There are, however, many Christian Endeavor societies in Methodist churches." Dr. Fred B. Fisher, of Ann Arbor, Mich., former Bishop of the Methodist Episcopal church, was elected a trustee of the International society.

Is it generally known that the branch of the church which has most Christian Endeavor societies in it is Methodism, with its various branches? While I was living in Connecticut the state president was a Methodist Episcopal minister who had a Christian Endeavor society in his church. With his wife he is now in India as a Christian Endeavor missionary—I refer to Rev. and Mrs. Vere Abbey. Christ prayer, "That they may all be one"—and Christian Endeavor I verily believe to be playing no small part in bringing together for larger service the denominations of the church. Let us thank God for the movement with such a spirit and genius.

COLORS PUT AWAY BY NATURE

One of the densest jungles on earth today lies along the Motago river in Guatemala. Should nature, by the process of the coal age, transform that jungle into a coal seam, it would be only a few inches thick. What a forest of tree life it must have been to produce the seams of coal which we mine today. One of the thickest on record is 66 feet. While nature was storing away the sun heat captured by the prehistoric jungles, nature also put away the color of that tropical world. Within the last 50 years chemists have discovered vats of every imaginable color concealed in gummy black coal tar. Modern styles for women's clothing quickly took possession of these color "mines," so our avenues are brilliant with the hues of luxuriant herbage which we may imagine beautified our earth, millions and millions of years ago.—National Geographic Society Magazine.

OUR STORY PAGE

CHARLIE'S RUNAWAY TEMPER

"Stop that! Stop that; you can't have my cart!" shouted Charlie, as he made a dash at Willie Arnold, tearing his sweater and chasing him out of the gate.

"Did you let your horse run away?" asked Uncle George, as Charlie came slowly up the walk.

"My horse! I haven't any horse, Uncle George," said Charlie, raising his little flushed face questioning.

"Did you see Mr. Brown's horse when it was running away, yesterday?"

"Yes," said Charlie, "and I saw the telephone pole that it ran into when it smashed the wagon, and the horse's leg was all hurt and bleeding when Mr. Brown led him home."

"It was a pretty bad accident. Do you know how it happened?" asked Uncle George.

"Mr. Brown said that something about the harness broke and he could not hold old Dobbin."

"Yes," said Uncle George, "something is sure to happen when we cannot hold our horses; and it is just the same way when we cannot hold or control our tempers. I just saw a little boy get his sweater torn because another little boy let his temper run away with him."

Charlie hung his head and looked ashamed.

"Do you know what the Bible says about controlling ourselves?"

"No," said Charlie; "is that in the Bible, Uncle George?"

"Yes, run and get your Bible and read Proverbs 16:32."

Charlie soon returned and read aloud:

"He that is slow to anger is better than the mighty; and he that ruleth his spirit than he that taketh a city."

"What do you think that means, Charlie?" asked Uncle George.

Charlie sat in deep thought for a while, and then he told Uncle George that he thought it meant that it was a pretty good thing for a fellow not to let himself get mad; but if he did get mad, it was great to be able to hold on to himself tight, like a horse, and not allow himself to say or do anything he would be sorry for afterwards.

"I guess that is about it, old man," said Uncle George.

Charlie got up to put his Bible away, and said he guessed he would get his cart and go and find Willie.—The Christian Guardian.

HOW LITTLE RUTH BECAME A MISSIONARY

Shall I tell you about a little girl who lived in London many years ago? She was very fond of her name, Ruth, and often read the story of her namesake in the Bible, as well as other stories there. But though she had good and loving parents, who taught her all that Jesus wanted her to do, she was often very naughty; told lies, and stole plums and sweets out of the cupboard, and got in a temper when mother or sisters scolded or punished her. She would often cry to God to forgive her, being afraid to go to sleep at night lest she should wake up in hell!

One night, before Ruth was nine years old, she was going to bed alone, and when kneeling down as usual, the text her dear mother had taught her came vividly to her mind: "Come unto Me, all ye that labour and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest"; and Ruth thought, "I have been disobedient to Jesus all my life and haven't come, though He has been calling me." So, still kneeling, she said, "Lord Jesus, You have called me again, I come now to Thee with all my sins"; and then another verse already learned came by God's Spirit to her heart, "The Blood of Jesus Christ His Son cleanseth us from all sin." At once all the burden rolled away, and Ruth thanked the dear Lord Jesus for suffering so many blows, and for being nailed to that cruel Cross for her, and there dying to take away all her sins.

She lay down and slept till morning, then dressed quickly and ran to her mother's room and said, "Mamma,

'I've found the precious Christ of God,

My heart doth sing for joy'," and together they knelt down and thanked the Lord Jesus for His saving grace.

That little girl had many tumbles and fights before she learned that Christ could not only cleanse from all sin, but give the victory too, as she committed herself wholly to Him day by day.

When she grew old enough, the Lord said to her, "I have got a lot of lost sheep and little lambs in India. I want you to come with Me there, and seek them and bring them to Me. So away she went with the Good Shepherd; and He has often said: "Rejoice with Me; for I have found My sheep which was lost" (Luke 15:6).

Now, dear little friends, come to Jesus with your sins today; then tell all your playmates about Him; pray, too, for all His little lambs, black and white, and one day He will let you lead some to Himself.—R. L., in Our Children.

THERE IS A VAST DIFFERENCE

Between being sorry for sin, and sorry because your sin is found out;

Between confessing your sins, and confessing some other person's sins;

Between seeing your own faults, and seeing some other person's faults;

Between conversion of the head and conversion of the heart;

Between being led by the Holy Ghost and being led by your own imagination;

Between the spirit of meekness and the spirit of indifference;

Between suffering for Jesus' sake and suffering for your own ungodly work;

Between persecution for Christ's sake and persecution for your own hypocrisy;

Between contending for the faith, and striving for your own opinions;

Between the shout of victory, and the yell of triumph;

Between preaching "the Word of God"; and preaching some man's opinions.

Between being hid away with Christ in God, and being caught in the devil's fly-trap.—Author Unknown.

WOMAN'S MISSIONARY DEPARTMENT

MISSIONARY EDUCATION

As secretary of Missionary Education I am asked to keep before our auxiliaries this part of our work during September. Miss Esther Ross was elected secretary of this department at last branch meeting, but for various reasons didn't feel she could serve. I have been asked to serve. I am sure I do not know just what is expected of me, but I shall endeavor to do my best. First, I think every missionary woman should have the Herald and Missionary Record. If you read these and keep up with the work then you of course will be more interested. Information along missionary lines is what we need and it is given you in both the Herald and Record.

Mrs. George R. Brown, of Reidsville, prepares the Question Box for the Record. If you will do nothing more than look up the answers to these you will have learned much and kept up to date about most of the work.

Missionary secretaries, if you will prepare a question box for your auxiliary or circle meeting, asking the names of the different secretaries in your auxiliary you will be surprised how few of them you really know. This will help impress the secretaries and help them get to work on their job.

This then might be carried on through the state officers, etc., thus acquainting us with all our workers.

Then take the missionaries both at home and in foreign lands. After learning them by name they seem more real to us.

Learn the names of our colleges and their presidents and location. When we have done this we have a foundation for missionary interest in the Methodist Protestant church and we will progress more rapidly.

The pastor can do much to help the missionary inspiration to spread. Rev. T. J. Whitehead put on a missionary institute for his circuit at Saxapahaw church last Sunday. This I think is a real helpful thing to do. The conference periods with five classes was conducted by missionary leaders that have made a study of the work. I am quite sure good will result from this effort. I commend it to other pastors and hope a number will try it out.

MRS. H. C. NICHOLSON, Sec.

ATTENTION, SECRETARIES OF LITERATURE

Along with the program material for September, to save postage, I have mailed you a free yearbook for 1931-32, also a new prayer calendar, and Missionary Record blank. The supply was limited and what few did not get this material will receive it soon. Each auxiliary is entitled to one new yearbook free. Look it over, then order the number you want for your auxiliary. The price of each yearbook is five cents.

In the September Record will be published a list of literature. Some revision and additions have been made. You will note the new study books are also listed. This and various other information appear in the Missionary Record, which make it indispensable to an active society. Please work long and hard on your membership for subscriptions to the Record. The blank I enclosed is for this purpose. More blanks are available. Remember the Herald carries much information also.

At the executive meeting in July it was decided to send free one copy of the monthly leaflets to each auxiliary, as has been done. Those that want more than this one free copy are asked to pay the exact cost—which is 2c a leaflet.

The secretary of literature should have available the yearbooks of programs and leaflets from the department of Women's Work. When the period arrives for study classes in Home Missions, Foreign Missions, Stewardship, or any other subject the Secretary of Literature should be able to explain the proposed courses, and should co-operate with the proper officials in organizing the study groups or classes.

An especial task of the Secretary of Literature is to put on an annual canvass for subscribers to the missionary magazine. It is essential in carrying out the yearbook program. Placing the Record in homes now counts in the efficiency standard. The goal for each auxiliary to attain is set down in ten rules called the "Efficiency Standard for Auxiliaries." These can be had upon request.

Another desirable work for the Secretary of Literature is to foster a collection of books, magazines, and pamphlets. Two or three volumes added each year would prove invaluable. A small contingent fund; a small monthly allowance, and many other ways, if followed consistently would assure a local auxiliary of a small library. The Branch has several books that can be loaned to anybody that is willing to pay the postage.

The duties of the Secretary of Literature are heavy but very important. Let us be up and doing. See that your auxiliary is a Standard Auxiliary.

MRS. D. S. COLTRANE,

Sec. of Literature, N. C. Branch.

P. S.—In writing please state the church you represent.

ALWAYS READY WITH A SPEECH

The best story Charles M. Schwab told at the recent meeting of newspaper publishers in New York was on himself. He was explaining how easy he finds when anyone asks him to make a public speech, and illustrated the point by telling of a farmer neighbor who wanted to sell him a cow: "I've got a cow I want to sell to you, Charlie," the neighbor said. "Yes, would she fit into my Guernsey herd?" "No, I bought as she would." "Does she give lots of milk?" "No, I can't say as she gives lots of milk, but Charlie, I can tell you this: She's a kind, gentle, good dispositioned old cow and if she's got any milk she'll give it to you."

A CARD OF THANKS

We wish to thank our neighbors and friends for the many kindnesses shown us during the illness in our home.

C. C. LINEBERRY AND FAMILY.

—At Decatur, Ala., Lewis J. Sandlin, 15, angered a mule. The mule lunged at the boy, caught a leg with his teeth, would not let go. In desperation, the boy's father cut the mule's throat, could not open the dead jaws until he smashed them. Time.

OUR SUMMER OUTING

An Appreciation

You doubtless remember that a group of our children select themselves each year for an outing during the summer: 1. They pass their school work. 2. They do acceptable work in and about the Home. 3. Their conduct both at the Home and in school is good.

This year there were 32 of us to go on that trip counting the workers who must go to take care of the children.

We wrote to Mr. C. E. McCulloch, Wilmington, N. C., to know if he would rent us his cottage at Wrightsville Beach for three days at a rate we could afford to pay for this outing. Imagine our delight when he replied saying, "If you can divide your group, so we can handle them, we will shelter and feed them while here." Arrangements were made and 17 of us went down on August 18th and stayed until August 21st, and then a group of 15 went on August 25th and came back August 28th. Mr. and Mrs. McCulloch and their daughter, Annie, and their son, Calvin, not only gave us lodging and fed us abundantly, but they gave themselves to us unstintingly to give us a good time. The children and all of us, appreciate this outing more than we have words to express.

It was one of the biggest things any individual family has ever done for us in the way of an outing. Churches and larger groups have co-operated to do such things for us. But this time one family did it.

It was a wonderful trip, and our children who were permitted to take it will ever remember the great kindness of these good people. May God continue his rich blessings upon them.

The only cost to the Home was to get the children down there and back, which was about $1 per person.

We are so thankful for big-hearted friends.
Yours in His service,

A. G. DIXON.

FROM PASTORS and PEOPLE

Rehoboth, Creswell Circuit.—The summer is most over, how very hot it has been till this cold wave! Wraps sure are in order. Our regular services observed at Rehoboth, good sermon, attendance small, so many that would have worshipped with us went to the Holiness meeting, which has been going on in this county since May; they vary from Piney Grove (Pea Ridge) to Roper.

We have had many of our former residents to be with us in their regular places at church this summer: Deever Tarkington and Lillie Holsey, his wife, Fannie Holsey.

At last services we were delighted to have Ethel Norman Cobb; she spent several days in this community visiting old friends, how she cherishes the scenes and friends of her childhood days; she visited the graveyards at different places and talked of "those gone on before." She was specially grieved over Callie Tarkington Totten's death, visiting her grave first thing after getting on the church ground. She says she is still a member of Rehoboth church.

Brother C. V. White, who has been so ill, is now able to sit up some each day.

Mary Biggs while cleaning in the graveyard of Mrs. G. L. Davenport sustained painful injuries to her left arm, one of the bones fell. She tried to hold it in her arms, it was too heavy, it carried her down, pinned her wrist underneath. Her wrist and small bones were terribly mangled and cut, fortunately the large bone was not broken. She is now out of danger; will be several days before she can use her arm.

Mrs. Hetheox and children called in to see us while down. Mr. Hetheox will soon go to Charleston, S. C., to visit G. J. Cherry for a rest and vacation.

Brother Russell, our pastor, is to organize a Bible study class at Rehoboth which will be such a help to those who want to learn more about the Bible. He is a splendid teacher.

West Forsyth.—Mr. and Mrs. Ira M. Petree, accompanied by their two sons and daughter, of Richmond, Va., have returned to their home after spending some days with Mr. Petree's father and mother, and other relatives and friends in North Carolina.

On last Saturday night, the family reunion was held in the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Smith, on Westdale avenue, Winston-Salem. Mrs. Smith is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. P. Petree, and sister of Ira M. Petree.

This was the first reunion ever held by the families when all were reasonably well, and able to enjoy the occasion fully. Four generations were present, and slept and ate one roof for the first time in their history.

The revival meeting at Pleasant Hill church has closed, we trust much good has been done. Rev. J. P. Pegg was pulpit help, and did earnest, faithful preaching, and was well received among the people.

Rev. C. B. Way and family spent the last week-end in Burlington with relatives, and friends. Mrs. Way is like a joyous sunbeam in her home, and wherever she goes; Pastor Way is not only a good pastor, but a good preacher also; and we, the West Forsyth charge, are confidently expecting to have them remain with us another year. May we invite President Taylor to help us attain our hearts' desire in this matter.

MRS. ROBERT P. PETREE.

Orange Charge.—The revival meeting began at Chestnut Ridge church the fourth Sunday in August and closed the following Friday.

Rev. C. L. Spencer came to us for the services Monday and did all the preaching from then until the meeting closed. He preached a splendid series of sermons which were well received. The church was revived; four were converted and two reclaimed. We believe the four converted will join the church at the next appointment.

Both pastor and people will be glad to have Brother Spencer come our way again.

B. M. WILLIAMS.

Weavers Chapel, Littleton Charge.—Our revival meeting began the third Sunday in August with Children's Day services. It closed Friday night. Rev. P. E. Bingham with the help of Rev. Mr. Spencer held the revival meeting evening and night.

I think the meeting was enjoyed by all who attended it. There were nine converted; they were baptized and received in full membership. We were glad to have some of our close relatives from Richmond with us.

Our Sunday school has been very successful. The superintendent, Mr. F. D. Wilson, has offered prizes for the best attendance.

Best wishes to all the Herald readers.

REPORTER.

West Forsyth.—Dr. S. W. Taylor, president of our Annual Conference, will make his official visit to West Forsyth charge next Sunday. He will preach at three churches during his visit, as follows: Baltimore at 11 a. m., Stony Knoll at 3 p. m., and Pleasant Hill at 7:30 p. m. We will observe the ordinance of the Lord's Supper at Baltimore and Stony Knoll churches. We hope to have a good attendance at each of the three services.

The writer had the privilege of attending Sunday school and preaching services at the First Church, Burlington, last Sunday morning. We had anticipated hearing the Sunday school lesson taught by Brother George Smith, teacher of the Barren class, but was persuaded to teach a class of young men after declining to teach an adult class. In the preaching service we had the privilege of hearing Rev. O. C. Loy, of near Burlington, preach. He occupied the pulpit in the absence of the pastor, Dr. Paschall, and delivered an inspiring and helpful sermon on the theme, "Christ, the Wonderful Saviour."

C. B. WAY, Pastor.

Pine Bluff, Midland Charge.—Our revival meeting has been in progress for the past week and will close Sunday night. Rev. D. I. Garner came down from Greensboro on last Monday and preached till Friday night. Since that time the meeting has been conducted by our pastor, Rev. F. R. Love. Although there was not the visible results that we had hoped for, we are sure that much and lasting good has been accomplished in this series of meetings. Mr. Garner was at his best and gave us the gospel in a very forceful way. All seemed to greatly enjoy his messages and hope to have the opportunity of sitting under his voice again. The attendance was splendid in spite of the rainy beginning. Large crowds filled the church every night, with fair attendance each afternoon.

Our church voted on the delegate to conference Sunday morning. The nominees are Brother Walter Little, of Love's Grove church, and Brother Charlie Vancannon, of Pine Bluff church. We are not ready for conference yet, as much is yet to be done in the next eight weeks in order for us to make a fair show at the year's end.

Brother L. E. Mabry is planning to move to High Point in a few days, where he expects to finish his college work at High Point college.

The Ladies' Aid society is working very hard to help the church in a financial way. We hope they will succeed in all their undertakings.

Our pastor and his wife were away part of last week attending the funeral of the latter's brother, who lived near Asheville.

REPORTER.

Belmont Church, Mt. Hermon Charge.—Our Sunday school is still increasing with about 194 on roll last Sunday.

Our revival meeting closed last Friday night. Rev. J. C. Madison, pastor of Lebanon church, was the pulpit help. Each evening he delivered a splendid sermon, which inspired each person present to go and do a good work for God. Thanks for the music that was furnished on Tuesday night by the junior girls' quartet of Burlington. Their singing was enjoyed by all, and they are welcome to come back any time in the future.

The road from the highway into the church has been improved by adding a layer of topsoil. Thanks to all those who were willing to render their service for this good cause.

Mr. Tobey York, of this community, is seriously ill in Ridley Hospital, from the results of an automobile wreck.

Our pastor, Rev. J. E. Carroll, went to Greensboro last Saturday to have his tonsils removed.

Miss Marie Hargis and Miss Alma Mae Hargis are in the hospital at Durham. We are hoping that they have a rapid recovery.

REPORTER.

Pinnacle and Mt. Zion.—We have held three of our special meetings. We began at Shoals the second Sunday in July, with Brother Anderson as help. He did all of the preaching and did it well, every one seemed to be pleased. The attendance was good at all services.

We received eight members into the church. We began at Mt. Zion the third Sunday in July with R. A. Hunter for our help here; the people were well pleased with his work, and I am sure he enjoyed spending some time again with old friends of his childhood days. We received eleven members here.

We began at Pilot the first Sunday in August. Brother Glenn Madison helped us here; his preaching was greatly enjoyed by those who attended. Twelve names were added to the church book here—rather unusual for this place.

The pastor greatly enjoyed the preaching of all these brethren and appreciated their help.

Our third quarterly conference was held with Shoals church Saturday before the third Sunday in August. Brother T. J. Westmoreland was declared delegate to the annual conference.

Our next and last special meeting will begin at Pinnacle the fourth Sunday in September beginning with our annual Homecoming service; Dr. A. G. Dixon will preach for us at 11 o'clock, and we hope to secure other speakers for the day. All old friends of Pinnacle are especially invited to attend. We will be glad to see their faces again, and have some remarks from any who feel disposed to help us out. We'll have all day service with dinner on the grounds, and want every one to feel welcome without any further invitation.

Brother Bethea will be on hand for the evening services, and be with us for the remainder of the week. Pray for us that we may have a good meeting and a great revival in our church.

We are glad to state that Brother and Sister T. O. Mickey, who were hurt in an automobile wreck about a month ago, are slowly improving. We hope they will soon be out again.

A. L. HUNTER.

Fairview, Anderson Circuit.—On August 30 at 11 o'clock Rev. M. C. Henderson, the pastor, preached an interesting and instructive sermon on "The Christian's Road Map." The evening service was called off since Mr. Henderson had an appointment at Knapolis where he is in a meeting this week.

Our revival meeting was a success. Mr. Henderson did all the preaching and the sermons were excellent. Each service was well attended and at several of the evening services the church was overflowing. There were 29 professions and reclamations. The following joined the church: Mr. and Mrs. Henry Watson, Lucile Watson, Bertie Mae Foster and Helen Smith.

Mr. T. B. Nalley of this church has been elected to represent this charge at annual conference which meets in High Point this year.

In the spring Liberty Hill and Fairview entered a contest. It was decided that the church having the larger attendance at Sunday school during the summer months would be entertained with a picnic by the losing church. We were declared the winner and are looking forward to the picnic with pleasure because we so seldom come in contact with the people at Liberty Hill on account of the distance between the two churches.

REPORTER.

Asheboro.—Our reporter, Miss Lollie Jones, has been so complete in her reports that the pastor has left it all to her. One thing she has not reported, that she was elected delegate to the annual conference.

At this writing a number of our members are indisposed: Mrs. M. C. Spoon is in a hospital at Albemarle as a result of an automobile accident, which also caused the death of her daughter, Mrs. Robert Cochran of Charlotte. Mrs. Cochran was once a member of our church in Asheboro. Mrs. Amos Wingham has been ill for some time and has been ordered to remain in bed for some weeks longer.

We were delighted to see Mr. R. R. Ross back in his accustomed pew last Sunday. He looks better than he has in many months.

Mrs. N. M. Harrison is convalescing from a tooth operation.

The writer recently conducted the funeral of Miss Mary Ann Moffit, a sixteen-year-old sister of one of our members, Mrs. Pearly Freeman. Miss Moffit was a beautiful girl of noble character. She had lived a long time in the short years she was with us.

We have lately been called upon to conduct funeral services for Mr. J. Milton Brown, father of Mr. C. W. Brown and Mrs. Arthur Way of our church. Mr. Brown was 74 years of age and a Christian from childhood.

The Woman's Auxiliary is to sponsor a gas demonstration cooking school in the kitchen of our church, October 7-8-9.

Mrs. Harriette Hammer Walker, director of our choir is off for a month's vacation in the big state of Texas.

A district Christian Endeavor convention is to be held in our Asheboro church the afternoon and night of the first Sunday in October.

Not much use to report our finances as there is nothing exciting to report. We recall that Dr. Geo. R. Brown said at the last annual conference that "there is plenty of money in the country." We wonder if he has discovered its hiding place.

R. C. STUBBINS.

Oak Grove, Forsyth.—Our Sunday school was a very good last Sunday. Our attendance was better than usual. We had Mr. and Mrs. Ollie Warren from Walnut Cove to visit our Sunday school Sunday; we were glad to have them with us.

We had a wonderful prayer meeting Sunday night; the church was two-thirds full. Mrs. Clyde Lewis read the fourteenth chapter of Romans after which Brother D. G. McGee made a splendid talk on the lesson. We also had the pleasure of having with us Mr. Merritt from Bethel M. E. church and his good singers; they sang several special songs after which Mr. Merritt made an interesting talk. We are always glad to have people from other churches to come worship with us.

Remember the second Sunday in October—the time set for our revival meeting. Our pastor, Brother G. Tringer, will do the preaching for us. We always receive an inspiring and helpful message from our pastor. We hope to see lots of you readers at Oak Grove on that day and during the week also.

Good wishes to everybody.

MRS. R. M. WARREN, Reporter.

Moriah.—Sunday school and church services are going along nicely.

The fourth Sunday a series of meetings began, which closed Friday night. On Sunday morning our pastor brought us a wonderful sermon.

The afternoon services were conducted by Rev. H. F. Surratt which was very impressive. On Monday evening and through the week, Rev. J. L. Trollinger, of Brown Summit, brought us such wonderful and inspiring messages, which was a great blessing to each of us. We feel that these services have brought us in closer touch with God. We enjoyed having Mr. Trollinger and his daughter, Ruby, with us.

We were also glad to have the following preachers with us: Mr. Millard, Mr. Surratt, Mr. L. W. Geringer, Mr. T. F. McCulloch, and Mr. Ashburn.

We also welcomed all the visitors that worshipped with us, and all are cordially invited to be with us any time.

REPORTER.

Hollister, Halifax Charge.—We are still going forward with the Lord's work here. We are having a splendid Sunday school now. The attendance last Sunday was nearly double what it was the Sunday before.

On the second Sunday evening in August, our pastor met with a number of young people at the church and organized a Christian Endeavor society. We hold our meetings every Sunday evening at 7 o'clock. The attendance has been very good so far. We hope to increase the attendance every Sunday.

Our revival meeting began on the fourth Sunday morning in August; the first two sermons were delivered by our pastor, Rev. H. F. Fogelman. They were excellent sermons. On Monday afternoon Dr. Fred W. Paschall came to us and preached to us each afternoon and evening until Friday evening at which time these services were closed. Dr. Paschall delivered some wonderful sermons. The sermons were clear and inspiring. Those who heard these messages will never forget them. We had five additions to the church. There are others whom we are expecting to receive in the church at our next regular appointment.

Through the kindness of Mr. I. A. Crawley, we have Deleo lights installed in the church. They are certainly a great help to the church.

KATHLEEN SHEARIN, Reporter.

Salem, Saxapahaw Charge.—Our Sunday school is progressing nicely, although there has been a decline in attendance for the past few Sundays on account of services at other churches in the community.

Our revival meeting began the second Sunday in August with Rev. N. G. Bethea as pulpit help. He was with us at the 11 o'clock service, bringing one of his helpful sermons at this time, and continued to preach throughout the week, but on account of the bad weather the attendance was not so large. We feel that much and lasting good was accomplished by having Mr. Bethea with us for he gave us some wonderful messages. There were eight reclamations and one conversion.

Our C. E. society is still moving along nicely. We have only a few members, but when they are on program, each tries to do his or her part and we are hoping for a larger enrollment in the near future.

The memorial association of Salem will hold its annual meeting on Sunday, September 6th. This is to be an all day service with dinner on the grounds. Everybody is invited to attend.

The people of this community were grieved when they learned of the death of Mrs. Bettie Jane Crutchfield on August 20, 1931. She had reached the age of 70 years. Funeral services were conducted by her pastor, Rev. T. J. Whitehead, assisted by Rev. G. W. Holmes, Rev. T. A. Williams, and Rev. H. L. Isley, all former pastors. She is survived by seven children, 36 grandchildren, five great grandchildren and a host of friends and relatives.

Her body was placed beside that of her husband who preceded her to the grave several years ago. The floral tributes were many and beautiful.

Mrs. Crutchfield, or Aunt Bet as she was better known had the misfortune to fall several months ago and break her hip and was not able to walk after this. She never failed to manifest great interest in the work of her church. She had been a member of Salem church since early girlhood and was always present at every service when health permitted. Surely no one bore affliction with more patience and sweetness than did this good woman, and we feel that she constantly headed the immortal message of Bryant, which bids us:

"So live that when thy summons comes to join the innumerable caravan, which moves to that mysterious realm, where each shall take his chamber in the silent hall of death.

"Thou go not, like the quarry-slave at night, scourged to his dungeon, but, sustained and soothed by an unfaltering trust, approach thy grave like one who wraps the drapery of his couch about him and lies down to pleasant dreams."

HELENE THOMPSON, Reporter.

First Church, Concord.—Our Sunday school attendance has not been so good now for several Sundays, although we had our 300 today; we are anxious to get these back who have not been coming.

David said, "I was glad when they said unto me let us go into the house of the Lord."

I think that is a fine place to be and when we miss church I'm sure we miss a great blessing.

I'm glad to report that our pastor is improving and he was able to be with us at the 11 o'clock service and brought a wonderful message taken from the tenth chapter of Hebrews. God was in our midst and made the service a blessing to all.

The missionary circles are doing a splendid work and going forward in a fine way. They made it possible for a beautiful new stove to be placed in the parsonage and I'm sure our pastor's wife appreciates it very much.

We desire your prayers for the work here.

REPORTER.

Charlotte, First Church.—Our Sunday school and church activities are moving along as usual. The attendance has been off considerably this summer; with vacations over and schools opening we hope there will be an increase in all services.

Dr. Andrews and daughters, Misses Rosalie and Dorothea and son, Robert, attended the Andrews' reunion at Bethel church near Chapel Hill last Sunday. Mrs. Andrews was sick with a cold and could not attend. Miss Alma Andrews remained home with her mother.

We are sorry to lose from our congregation Misses Rosalie and Alma Andrews, who have worked in various departments, teaching and helping where needed. Miss Alma was church pianist during summer. They both go back to High Point; Miss Rosalie to teach in the city schools again this year and Miss Alma to High Point college on the 14th.

Mrs. Love, Cradle Roll superintendent, presents certificates each last Sunday of month to babies received during the month. Last Sunday she presented certificates to the following: Herbert Gaston Garrison, Jr., John Black Riley, and John William Warren. Mildred and Loma Staggall sang, "Welcome, Precious Baby."

Rev. and Mrs. N. M. Harrison and son, Nat Mason, Jr., were in Charlotte for a few days. Mrs. Harrison had a tonsil operation at the Charlotte eye, ear and throat hospital the 20th of July. We were glad to have Mr. Harrison worship with us Sunday morning.

Mrs. Lettie Burton is the elected delegate to the Annual Conference.

We will observe a rally service the 4th Sunday in September. It is hoped a full attendance of members and friends will be present. Dr. Taylor, president of the Annual Conference, will be here.

REPORTER.

Chestnut Ridge, Orange Charge.—Our revival meeting began August 23rd, closed the following Friday evening. Rev. C. L. Spencer was our pulpit help. Mr. Spencer came in time for the morning services Monday morning and did all the preaching for us then and the close of the meeting. His sermons were helpful and inspiring. He preached plainly and that is just what was needed. We feel much good was accomplished, and the church greatly revived. Four professions, three reclaimed, no additions just yet to the church, but the second Sunday in September, our regular preaching day, Mr. Williams is going to open the doors of the church so if anyone would like to join this church, be there and he will receive you.

Mr. Spencer's sermons were earnestly and faithfully delivered and well-received. He will long be remembered by the Chestnut Ridge people.

We were glad to have Rev. T. A. Williams and family with us for a short stay.

As the Editor has asked for short reports I will bring this to a close with best wishes to the Herald.

ANNIE C. SQUIRES, Reporter.

First Church, Winston.—September! What does that remind us of? Fall, also school days are here again—some children are glad and some don't care so much about school and its drudgery of studies.

Sometime ago the street on which our church is located was widened. This took off the main entrance. A new entrance has been completed and looks very nice. Something new being added to the front makes a difference and somewhat nicer appearance.

We regret very much to say that we lost one of our members during the past week. Mr. Holder received serious injury in a train wreck several days ago and was carried to a hospital at Mooresville. A limb was amputated Tuesday and the following morning he passed away. Rev. J. E. Pritchard and Dr. J. D. Williams preached the funeral and interment was in Memorial cemetery. Our deepest sympathy goes out to those loved ones: a wife, a daughter, and a son.

One of the members of the Bible class, Mr. Routh, has been ill for sometime and in a local hospital. We wish him speedy recovery, and that he will soon be back with us to worship.

The Baraca class enjoyed a delightful watermelon picnic on Friday evening at the home of Mr. L. P. Burns on Broad street. They were very big-hearted; they extended the invitation to the entire Sunday school.

Mr. Pritchard, it seems, is always having special things for us, something different and interesting and also helpful. His sermons are always splendid and everything else he plans is helpful and fine. He has something planned for next Sunday that is very special. Rev. and Mrs. H. Fred Surratt are to be with us next Sunday. Mr. Surratt is to deliver both the morning and evening sermons. The entire congregation is looking forward to seeing both of them again. It has been approximately one year since they have been in our midst. We bid them a hearty welcome.

NOTICE TO PASTORS AND SUPERINTENDENTS

Quite a number of people have asked why I did not send a copy of the pre-conference news last year to their local papers, in the small towns as well as certain county papers.

The answer has always been that I did not know the name of the paper, nor place of publication. This year, I am prepared to send a copy of this pre-conference news to every county paper in the state, as well as to the papers in the smaller towns. Now, brother pastor and brother superintendent, if you will send me the name and address of your local paper, whether it be a city paper, or a weekly county paper, I will send a copy of the news in the same mail that it goes to the larger and more important state papers. These smaller papers are supposed to copy important news from other papers, but do not always do it. Send me the name of the paper, and place of publication, and with the news for that pre-conference story I will tell the editor that this news is coming to him at the request of certain subscribers, and members of our church who read his paper, and I think that he will give the article the necessary location and set up in his paper.

Do this right now. A postal card will carry all you need to write, and BE SURE AND WRITE PLAINLY—PLEASE.

Thank you,

J. L. TROLLINGER,
Conference Reporter.

HIGH POINT COLLEGE BONDS

I have read with interest the statements in the recent issues of the Herald concerning the High Point College bonds which are now offered for sale to our people. I am familiar with the collateral on which these bonds are based, which totals nearly a million dollars. This is more than sufficient to make them a safe investment. These bonds have been underwritten by the denomination which makes them more than doubly secured.

The proposition of buying High Point College bonds is one that no Methodist Protestant can turn down, in that it is an investment and not a donation.

I feel very confident that President Humphreys and Drs. Taylor and Harrison will have the whole-hearted support of our people as they are enrolling on the people in the statewide campaign to sell $150,000.00 of these bonds.

Yours very truly,

C. C. ROBBINS.

Clothing and Other Gifts

Mr. J. W. Dixon, Summerfield, N. C., 15 watermelons.

Mrs. Robt. F. Day, Inwood, L. I., a box of good clothing.

Tacoma Park, Md., no name given, a box of good clothing.

Mr. D. T. Smith, Greensboro, R. 6, 30 watermelons.

The Baraca class, First Church, Thomasville, came over last Thursday evening with a truck load of watermelons and gave us all as much as we could hold and left eight large ones for the little tots.

Mrs. Doubt, Baltimore church, W. Forsyth, 12 half gallon and 4 quart jars of pickles, vegetables and fruit.

Mrs. Julia Hayes, High Point, 1 box of good clothing.

We are profoundly grateful for all these gifts of money, clothing and produce.

Our Farm

Our workers on the farm are beginning to reap the full harvest this week. They will be exceedingly busy for the next six weeks. The hay crop and the corn crop are both good, and the yield will be heavy.

Harvest Home Donations

Let us keep thinking of and planning for our Harvest Home donations for the Children's Home. A bit of concerted action on many of our circuits will be the means of good truck loads being delivered at our doors. One pastor wrote the other day saying, "Write and others of the women of our church have victory on 125 cans of peaches." This, too, comes from a station instead of a circuit. Another widow lady, as above, sent us 28 quarts of goods this week.

If somebody in each community will just take an interest in working up these donations it will be very helpful. We do our very best to grow all the foodstuff we can, but we haven't land enough to produce enough for our big family. We know we have your prayers and your cooperation, and we thank you.

A. G. DIXON, Superintendent.

We are looking for a splendid report in the next few weeks, because we are all saving our pennies for this fund. I know we will raise a large amount this way, because a few of the members of Calvary church, Greensboro, saved their pennies for three weeks last May, and that amounted to $30.00. Just see what it will mean for 50,000 Methodist Protestants to save their pennies for a month. Be sure the money is sent to Miss Velma McCulloch. When you send it tell her it is for the Minnis Fund, and remember we will get credit on your General Conference Budget for the amount.

This one thing I do,

Leaving all else behind;

I press toward the prize

Of infinite mind.

Though rugged the way,

I know but one aim;

To walk in Christ's steps

And serve in His name.

I yield all to Him,

I live in full faith,

POLES ARE PLANNING MEMORIAL TO WILSON

Poles of Blossburg, Pa., are planning to build the largest mound of earth in the world as a memorial to Woodrow Wilson.

Soil from every province of Poland, which owes her independence to the war President and from every Polish community in the United States will go into the memorial, which will be 160 feet in diameter and 90 feet high, with a monument bringing the height to 110 feet. It will have 14 elevations or steps, because of Wilson's 14 years.

Blossburg, one of the first Polish settlements in the United States, has given a site containing 36,000 square feet for the mound.

It will be consecrated September 23.

Mistress: "Now, Matilda, I want you to show us what you can do tonight. We have a few very special friends coming for a musical evening."

Maid: "Well, ma'am, I ain't done no singing to speak of for years, but if you all insists upon it, you can put me down for 'The Holy City!'—Pardner.

GRAHAM AND THE MISSIONARY INSTITUTE

At the third quarterly conference which convened two weeks ago Brother J. L. Amick was elected delegate to the Annual Conference.

In spite of conditions which are making the financial side of the work here difficult the Treasurer's report shows that we are this year about where church was financially this time last year. At least in this way we are holding our own.

Recently Miss Gladys Amick's class has bought two dozen new chairs for their class room.

Last Sunday in the absence of the writer from his pulpit Rev. T. J. Whitehead, the pastor of the Saxapahaw circuit, preached. In reality the writer exchanged pulpits with Bro. Whitehead at Saxapahaw. I was invited there by Brother Whitehead on the occasion of a Missionary Institute held in behalf of the missionary interests of his charge. He sought to bring to the attention of his people, in an all day service the whole subject of Christian Missions, in all its phases. A number of our ardent missionary women were there to lend a hand, in the names of Dr. Joybelle Glasscock, Miss Velma McCulloch, Miss Fannie Kirkpatrick, Mrs. H. A. Garrett, chairman of the district, Mrs. Henry Nicholson, Mrs. J. J. Crawford, and others. Miss Keek of the Mt. Hermon church led the devotionals in the afternoon.

In the afternoon the congregation was divided into different groups according to their own choosing. Some of the leaders present brought to the different groups suggestions how to organize, maintain and to successfully carry on mission through the adopted plan of the auxiliary. Rev. N. G. Bethea was there to discuss with a group the subject of Christian Stewardship.

A lovely dinner was served by the members of the charge, and if this is an expression of their interest in Christian Missions then Jesus has got a chance on Saxapahaw charge to widen out the boundary of his Kingdom enterprise.

It always makes one feel good to go back and meet with old friends. After all the best thing in life is the fellowship which we have with like spirits. With a friendly slap on the shoulder, an old-time welcome will make any one happy at least for the moment.

The idea of the institute from all evidences was original with Brother Whitehead and I think quite a new adventure in the field of missionary education. What he has sought to do on this charge ought to be duplicated elsewhere.

J. CLYDE AUMAN.

"To be a satisfactory President of the United States," says Granville Kleiser, "a man must possess many qualifications." He lists the following as vital:

The patience of a Job.
The perspicacity of a Plato.
The strength of a Hercules.
The wit of a Rabelais.
The courage of a lion.
The eloquence of a Demosthenes.
The wisdom of a Solomon.
The gentleness of a dove.
The silence (at times) of the Sphinx.
The universality of a Shakespeare.

REDISTRICTING FOR CONGRESS

The present year has seen many fights in state legislatures over redistricting for the House under the reapportionment act based on the 1930 census. There will be for the 1932 election a change of 27 members—21 states losing that number and 11 states gaining them. Seven states have not yet acted on redistricting measures. These are Virginia, South Carolina, Kentucky, Mississippi, Oklahoma, Rhode Island and New Jersey. They still have time, however. Two states—New York and Minnesota—have wound up in a court dispute as to whether the legislature can handle the matter without consulting the governor. In Missouri there is a deadlock, the Democratic legislature having passed a bill which the Republican governor vetoed. Those states which have not settled the redistricting problem in time for the 1932 elections will have to elect the whole congressional delegation at large—which means that all candidates will have to canvass the entire state, and all members will be of the same party. William Tyler Page, clerk of the House, who keeps tab on the question, stated that the highest legal opinion is that legislatures alone are responsible for the redistricting. Pathfinder.

STICK TO IT!

If you have a job to do,
Stick to it!
Difficult and irksome, too,
Stick to it!
Put your shoulder to the wheel,
Act the way you'd like to feel,
Work ahead with honest zeal—
Stick to it!

If your sure a cause is right,
Stick to it!
Don't desert a worthy fight,
Stick to it!
To achieve be strong of heart,
Eager to fulfil your part,
If you fail, make a new start—
Stick to it!

Do you long for real success?
Stick to it!
Do your best and nothing less,
Stick to it!
Persevere today be wise—
Know that if you wish to rise
Bulldog pluck will win the prize
Stick to it!

—Grenville Kleiser.

WATERMELON SEEDS

Near Monticello, Fla., is where the greater share of watermelon seed comes from. In fact, the annual local output is some 17 tons which is sold to seed companies. When the season is over and the price of melons does not justify their shipment is when the seed harvest begins. The remaining melons in the field are gathered and the blossom end cut off as the seed at that part are not always fully developed. The melon is then cut open and the seeds gathered and dropped into a tub of water. The sound seeds sink and the unsound float. The good seeds are spread out to dry, then put into canvas bags for shipment. Some $35,000 per annum for seed from overripe melons, after the season is over is something worth considering.

SOAP VS. GERMS

A Frenchman, Maurice Renaud, last November published a report that soapy water was an efficient cleanser of pussy abscesses and ulcerated surfaces. The diluted soap not only washed germs away mechanically. It killed germs and seemed to neutralize their toxins.

The Renaud report inspired Dr. John Edward Walker to summarize what is known about soap's germ killing powers. Textbooks on surgery and bacteriology say very little on the subject. Dr. Walker, 39, one time army major, one time bacteriology instructor at Johns Hopkins and the Army Medical school, one time investigator of infectious diseases for E. R. Squibb & Sons, now practicing at Opelika, Ala., last week summarized:

Any soap is practically as good as carbolic acid, iodine, mercurochrome or new-fangled synthesized chemicals in killing infectious germs. Soap will not kill staphylococci or typhoid bacilli, which are unusually resistant to germicides. But soap will kill pneumococci meningococci, streptococci, gonococci, diphtheria bacilli, influenza bacilli and Spirochaeta pallida very easily, very quickly. The hotter the water the better the killing properties of the soap. One kind of soap is virtually as efficacious as another.—Time.

—Young people at a birthday party in New York decided to play a "guillotine" game and Miss Alfschild Iverson, 21, was marked for the first "victim." An ax was procured and the girl placed her head down ready for the "blow." As Harold Finn, 21, the "executioner," raised the ax and swung it mockingly the head of the ax flew off and struck the girl at the base of the skull, causing her death.—Time.

—Elsie: "My grandpa has reached the age of ninety-six. Isn't it wonderful?"

Bobby: "Wonderful nothin'! Look at all the time it's taken him to do it."—Michigan Christian Advocate.

SAVE YOUR EYES

By Dr. John T. Campbell, Sec. N. C. State Board of Examiners in Optometry

"Left-Handed Children"

The study of the influence of heredity upon the physical condition of any individual is interesting. Much more important, however, is a collection of such facts from a large group of individuals from which helpful conclusions may be drawn.

We find, for instance, unexpected relationship between the eyes and the so called master hand. Many children develop cross-eyes in their early years, that is, one of the eyes turns inward or outward and does not join with the other eye in seeing. It is interesting to note that when the eye which turns is on the side opposite to the master hand, in the majority of cases the correction of the defect is simplified somewhat.

In some individuals it has been found that persons who were naturally left handed but have been diverted by some unwise parent or teacher into the use of the right hand as the master hand have also developed crossed eyes. It has been observed that about 90% of stammering and speech difficulties are cases where the master hand and the dominant eye are not on the same side of the body.

Left handed persons should be encouraged to use their left hand; no influence should be brought to bear upon them to do otherwise. The child should be allowed to develop naturally in this respect and by so doing the coordination of the eyes, the ability to estimate size, distance, proportion and position will be greatly benefited. These are all essential in the safe driving of motor vehicles.

The remedy to economic depression is not waste, but the creation and distribution of wealth.—President Hoover.

Songs of the Night

When all man's noise has passed away
At close of his tempestuous day,
Go forth beneath the starry dome
Where nature's songsters have their home.

Attune your ear to every sound
That comes to you from tree or ground:
Orchestral music fills the air
And charms and thrills you standing there.

Ten thousand singers sound their parts,
All well equipped by nature's arts;
It takes all parts to make the whole,
But all combine to stir your soul.

"The night brings out the stars." 'tis said;
The music too to souls not dead.
Hear all God's songsters of the night,
For they will bring you keen delight.

Starting a Balky Horse

Some of the suggestions for overcoming the present economic standstill remind one of the measures proposed for starting a balking horse. When a horse stops in the street and remains standing in spite of all the driver's efforts to make him go, a crowd of men quickly gathers. Not one of them has any idea as to why the horse stopped, but nearly everyone of them presumes to tell how to make him go on. "Give him a sharp cut with the whip!" says one. "Jerk the lines sharply," says another. "Just crack the whip over his head," says a third. "Pour water into his ear," commands a fourth. "Twist his tail," directs a fifth. "Build a fire under him," urges a sixth. Another man steps forward, saying, "I think the harness needs some readjustment: If you will permit me to reset a buckle or two the horse may go." The changes are made and the animal moves on cheerfully at a good gait.

What is the matter with the horse that moves the wheels of industry? How can he be induced to go forward? One man has seriously proposed that the manufacture of beer be legalized to give men employment. Another man, high in official position, has advised farmers to plough under every third row in their cotton fields. Others urge that surplus grain be used for fuel. How absurd to think that destroying wealth or changing it into a less valuable form of wealth will benefit the world. Near four thousand years ago Joseph was prudent enough to preserve surplus grain for use in the coming years of famine. Future years may bring famine to us. Indeed it has already come to us in sections of our country. Then our surplus is needed in China and other parts of the world. Let there be no absurd destruction of wealth to start the wheels of industry to produce more wealth.

The remedy for the world's condition must be logically adapted to that condition. Correct diagnosis must precede prescription of remedy. The world is suffering from a variety of ailments, a complication of diseases. The treatment needed is not simple. Ten years ago conditions were bad and President Harding predicted an early return to normalcy. Times improved and men became recklessly extravagant or recklessly criminal. They sowed the wind and are now reaping the whirlwind. Causes are having their natural effects. God has not changed His mode of administration: He is enforcing His laws as He has always enforced them. He is just, but always disposed to be merciful. The great curative powers of nature are still in operation. God is ready to say, I am the Lord that healeth thee. He would lead the world into a more abundant life by leading into the ways of righteousness. The world may find the way out of its trouble and perplexity by seeking God. Our trouble is deeper than economic: it is moral.

—Without High Point College our equipment for the education of our young people would be poorer than that enjoyed by the negroes of North Carolina. There are three colleges for negro youth in Greensboro alone and other schools of high grade for the colored people in other parts of the state. When the editor of the HERALD began pleading for better educational facilities for our young people we as a church were conducting a college in Japan where hundreds of Japanese youth were trained, while perhaps a half dozen of our young people in North Carolina were in college. Did we not need a college? Are we not indebted to those who have put hundreds of thousands of dollars into High Point College that the educational needs of our young people might be met? And do we not owe it to ourselves as a church to go on and complete what has been so well begun? But people that have money must meet the responsibility. Those that have neither silver or gold can help with their influence and their prayers, which we trust they will do.

—High Point College opens today. We hope to hear that it has a good opening. Lack of money will keep some away in these times of economic depression, but on the other hand the stoppage of industries will give some leisure to go to college who in ordinary times would go into business.

—Let our people who are in a position to help High Point College financially realize the situation and help when help is most needed. Buy a bond and further this great enterprise of our church and conference.

"I'LL TAKE HOLD AND YOU TAKE HOLD"By JAMES L. ELDERDICE*

"Let me carry your pail, my dear, Brimming over with water;"
 "No, I'll take hold and you take hold,"
 Answered the farmer's daughter.

And the poem goes on telling of plighted love, of wedding bells, of living, helpful companionship, and of burdens borne that were lightened by being divided. There would be more happy people in the world if the answer of the farmer's daughter to her rural lover were made the motto of every household.

There is the burden of the care and training of the children, a responsibility that one might suppose, judging from the tone of most writers, and the condition of many a home, devolved entirely upon the mother. Who has not heard, over and over, of mother's influence, instruction, sacrifice and responsibility? But seldom is anything said about the father in the family. There is a radical defect where father and mother do not together "take hold" of the obligations which God has laid upon them both, where they do not co-operate for the attainment of the same end, equal in authority and influence. Equal, and yet different.

Mother's training can never take the place of that which father should give; nor can father impart that kind of instruction, or produce that sort of impression upon character and conduct which can come only from mother. "Male and female created He them" that their offspring might receive the impress of both manly and womanly influence and instruction. "Two cannot walk together except they be agreed" upon this point. There can be no domestic happiness where there is no unity, where the godly wife or husband is unequally yoked with an unbeliever. Blessed are those children who can rise up and call father as well as mother, blessed, and whose boast is that they are descendants of parents "passed into the skies."

Business life has its cares and anxieties, and domestic life its annoyances. The world is the field of man, and the home the field of the woman, it is said. But he needs the wife to help him bear the load of business cares, and she needs the aid of manly cheer to keep her from sinking under the weight of home duties. How much greater the incentive to industry, how much lighter the toil when the husband knows that a fond wife is interested in his business, sympathizes with him in all his aspirations, and rejoices in his successes. How comforting to the weary wife the knowledge that John will not grumble if dinner is late, that he will gladly lend a helping hand about the house, that she has the assurance that it is in her power to make home the pleasantest place on earth, and her husband the happiest of men.

Disappointments, reverses of fortune, and failures also come and financial embarrassments almost paralyze hope and energy. Not so if both "take hold," if no reproaches are uttered, no complaints made, no word of discouragement or despondency. What sacrifices are to be made, let them be made cheerfully; whatever hopes are blighted, let them be buried out of sight; whatever deprivations are endured, let them not be mentioned, but, with mutual words of cheer and encouragement let them set their faces toward the dawning of a brighter day.

There is too much separation of interests, too little sympathy between husbands and wives, too much stress laid upon "let every man bear his own burden," and too little given to "Bear ye one another's burdens." When both take hold the burden is only half as heavy as when borne alone. And the best way to lighten our own burden is by helping bear the burden of another.

After all it is not the mere fact of burden bearing that makes us careworn and weary, but that we so often bear it alone. Solitariness is more unendurable than suffering. It is not care and anxiety, so much as loneliness and isolation that cause sad faces and heavy hearts.

After a while there will be an end of burden bearing, a terminus to the path in which "they twain" have been for so long time walking, a time when the song may thus close for all who have been faithful to each other "until death."

"And now they're at the end of life,

While the western sky grows brighter.

For she took hold, and he took hold,

And it made the burden lighter."

Oxford, Maryland.

HEARTENING A DISCOURAGED WORLDBy WILLIAM T. ELLIS*

Things look dark for the world. What with revolutions all around the earth; with financial disaster threatening the oldest and steadiest nations; with unemployment and distress universal, and with discontent everywhere, the present seems to be a period of more general gloom than living men have ever before known.

Every day produces new discussions of the subject, and suggested remedies. This is one hopeful aspect of the case. More and better brains are dealing with the present depression than ever before considered a kindred calamity.

Strangely little is being said or done, however, in the realm of sustaining people's spirits through a hard time. All of our concern seems to be for their bodies.

Clearly, though, an earlier need, and a continuing need, is for putting heart into a fearful and discouraged generation. To make strong and hopeful the spirits of the people is the first of all steps toward a successful emergence from a perilous period. The state of public ideals is more important than the condition of the banks.

Here we come to the unique mission of the Christian church, with her message of courage, comfort and peace. In this emergency, only the church's good news can lift up the hearts that are cast down.

If people are to be inspired by considerations that outweigh material calamities, the church must inspire them.

If society is to be held steadfast to the old integrities of character, the church must hold them.

If men are to be kept from despair and destructiveness, the church has the word that will keep them.

If the social order is to progress toward a more brotherly and more equitable operation, instead of plunging into accentuated class strife, the church must enunciate the principles of brotherhood and justice.

Without entering at all into a discussion of the vast and pressing problems that squarely confront the whole world, I wish merely to suggest that this is obviously the opportunity of the Christian church to speak, clearly and constantly, her Master's word of counsel and comfort. Week by week, every pulpit in the land should find place for some message that will put courage and confidence into hearers who are bearing unusual burdens.

All sorts of anti-Christian and anti-social agencies are showing themselves quick and resourceful in utilizing the world-wide depression for their propaganda purposes. Shall the church be less efficient?

She may not cry "Peace! Peace! when there is no peace;" but she may, and should, bring to bear all her mighty resources to stabilize panicky thinking; to discover a Divine design in this upheaval; and to help men and women to stand fast by the qualities of character which should survive all changes of condition.

The church has the word for the hour. If she speaks it, bruised and baffled hearts will throng to her temples, to learn life's deeper lessons in the light of eternity.

"Comfort ye! comfort ye My people."

A GOLD-COAST INVESTMENT

The investor was an elevator operator in one of the towering apartment buildings of the Gold Coast district in Chicago. When leisure permitted he gave attention to the reading of a book which seemed to hold his interest in an unusual way. He was a student of the Moody Bible Institute, Chicago. The book was the Bible.

One evening a young man drifted into the corridor, seeming in no hurry to leave after visiting a friend in the building. A cozy corridor is to be preferred to a storm-swept pavement.

A conversation was soon thriving between the young men. However it started, it led soon to the question of the student operator, "Friend, are you a Christian?"

"No, I never went in for that business," was the response. "Dad says Christians are narrow-minded, and for me to be decent without becoming a fanatic."

"Don't your parents ever go to church, or read the Bible?"

"No, dad says all church folks are hypocrites, and that the Bible is mostly fables and legends."

The student then drew from his pocket a small Testament, and asked the young man to read II Timothy 3:16 ("All scripture is given by inspiration of God") and I Corinthians 2:14 ("The natural man receiveth not the things of the spirit"). He became interested and began turning the pages, reading portions here and there.

Happily, when he left a few minutes later, he had accepted the gift of a Testament, and had signed his name to a Pocket Testament League pledge, promising to carry the Testament with him, and to read at least one chapter each day.

Weeks passed; the incident had been quite forgotten. One evening, in walked the young man again, smiling and affable.

Greetings were exchanged, and the operator, eager to know if the pledge had been regarded, asked,

"Well, have you been reading the Testament?"

"Indeed I have, and have read it through five times!" was the surprising answer.

With a prayer in his heart, the student then advanced a vital inquiry,

"That's fine! Have you signed your name over there within the back cover, declaring your acceptance of the Lord Jesus as your personal Saviour?"

"Not yet, but I am ready to do so, and I came over here tonight so you could see me do it."

Not all Gold Coast investments have turned out so well!

What Would You Do?

His wife and two children were sick; one of the children was in the hospital.

And yet this is not a "hard-luck story." But for the facts stated certain valuable lessons might never have been learned.

A married student at the Moody Bible Institute, Chicago, was confessing that he had not known how to "rest in the Lord, and wait patiently for him." He did not know the meaning of praying with assurance.

"We had been fortunate in our family for a number of years," he said, "in escaping sickness and other disabilities requiring the service of a physician. For this reason, and because of our limited income, we budgeted but a small sum to our health account.

"Living as carefully as possible, there yet was barely enough to meet necessary expenses from month to month. How could a formidable medical and hospital bill be met?"

"Satan made capital of our concern," he testifies, "and before long we were in the slough of despond. No extra work was available, and no source of added income appeared. Praying continued for several days, but these prayers were too sadly faltering and lacking in confidence. Nevertheless, victory was ahead.

"One morning God gave us a spirit of assurance that all our needs would be met. From that hour we had perfect rest and confidence."

Four days later a letter came to hand, bearing the date of the day of blessed assurance, written by a young man whom the student had some years before influenced in a Sunday School class of which he was teacher. This distant friend indicated that he seemed led of the Lord to forward a check to his former teacher, though he knew nothing of the great need. The enclosed check was for a sum sufficient to cover all the expenses chargeable to sickness.

Philippians 4:19 glows with a new radiance for this family.

—Dr. and Mrs. W. A. Harper were visitors for two or three days at the college the past week, but left the last of the week for New York, whence they sail for a trip abroad for several months. ### Now Is the Time

To push that BLACK MARK up. Many subscriptions expire about this time of year, and many subscribers make a practice of renewing through their pastor. A little added alertness on the part of pastors during the next few weeks will be rewarded with good results. It is a fact, we fear, that many of our people subscribe to a daily or a weekly paper who do not take their church paper. We commend them for reading their state and county papers; by doing this they keep informed on current news, a very worthwhile thing for all of us. But along with these papers should certainly go the church paper. It is just as important for church people to know the news of their church as it is to be intelligent on the general news of the world. The church newspaper is the dispenser of church news, and we can not be intelligently informed as to what is going on in our church without it. And besides, it is a means of spiritual stimulus and growth. The church paper should certainly be a weekly visitor to every church family. It is encouraging to see that a number of charges are reported right close up to their goals. Enfield lacks only 2 3-4; Haw River, 10 1-2; Kannapolis, 2 1-2; Liberty-Siler, 5; Reidsville, 3 1-2; Tabernacle 10 1-2; Yarbrough 5 1-2. We shall hope to see these charges listed in capitals within the next few weeks. It is noticeable, also, that many large and able charges have not made much progress toward their goals. This is no doubt explained by the fact that the "habit" of taking the HERALD has not become so well established on these charges as it is with other churches. But these last weeks will no doubt reveal a marked change upward with all charges. Let us push the campaign with all vigor right up to our 3,000 goal.

Kernersville Charge

We were with this charge September 5, in the third quarterly conference, which was held at Ai church. Only seven officials were present, though each church was represented except one. Reports indicated that there is a Sunday School in each church on the charge except one; two churches have Aid Societies; and a flourishing C. E. Society has been organized at one church during the year. The pastor reported that a choir platform had just been built at Sandy Ridge and a piano placed in the church. These improvements have been made by the Aid Society at that place. The organization there has about 30 members and is functioning well. This church has a Sunday School enrollment of 185, and an average attendance of 100. Children's Day was observed at this place. This seems to be much the largest and most progressive Sunday School on the charge. The school at Pine Grove is good, though not so large. The C. E. Society here is large and seems to be doing good work under the leadership of Miss Blanch Ingram. The election returns were compared, and Mrs. Eugene Gray, of Sandy Ridge church, was found to be elected delegate to represent the charge in the coming annual conference. The pastor reported $278.79 paid on salary, and $10 on budgets. The finances of the charge are very much in arrears, but a great deal can be done, and will be done, we are confident, to change this during the coming weeks. The pastor recommended that the A. C. B. be raised during the month of September. He recommended, also, that a committee be appointed at each church to solicit subscriptions to the HERALD. The allotment to the charge is 32. This would seem to be a very reasonable expectation for a charge of 323 members. The pastor will press the work, and we trust that the best possible ending may crown the year.

West Forsyth

Sunday, September 6 was given to this charge, in three appointments. We were at Baltimore at 11 A. M., and had the privilege of preaching to a large and an attentive congregation. We found the Sunday School in session upon our arrival there. Several large classes made up the school, composed of both children and adults. The interest appeared good. Brother John W. Doub is the superintendent. He has given a long life of service to this church. Mrs. T. S. Speas, district chairman, and Mrs. Whitman, of the Pleasant Hill church, met the women at the close of the preaching service and reorganized the Auxiliary. The church has capable women, and we see no reason why the organization should not thrive. We trust that they may find satisfaction and happiness in promoting this phase of their church work.

The afternoon service was at Flint Ridge. The attendance here was not so large, but a goodly number were present, and we enjoyed the service with them. Here, and at Baltimore, the communion service was observed. Both of these churches are in Yadkin county. They number in their membership the substantial citizens of the community, and each church is making valuable contributions to the religious life of the people.

The night service was at Pleasant Hill church. "Beautiful for situation" is Pleasant Hill, and more beauty has recently been added by painting the church within and without, and by laying new and attractive carpet in the aisle-ways and on the pulpit platform. I do not know when I have seen a rural church that presents a more pleasing appearance. In fact, this is now one of the most attractive rural churches in the entire conference. Here, too, the membership is drawn from the substantial citizenship of the community. This church has a well established and progressive Auxiliary. Much of the improvements that have been made on the church building is due to the zeal and efforts of the women. A progressive Sunday School is also maintained, with Prof. W. B. Speas, we believe, as superintendent. The attendance at this service was large, and the spirit of interest and worship pleasing and helpful.

At each of these churches an offering was taken to be applied to the A. C. B. Baltimore contributed, $5.20; Stony Knoll $6.89; and Pleasant Hill $3.10. Due credit will be given to each of these churches for this amount. The finances of the charge are much in arrears, particularly the budgets. Some more has been paid on salary than was paid last year.

up to the corresponding date. But that is as it should be, for the salary is $200 more than it was last year. This is one of the few charges that raised the salary last year. We expect, of course, that the salary will be paid in full, and a great deal more will be paid on budgets, we trust. The allotment for this charge is not large, $2.82 per member being sufficient to pay it in full. The budget, including everything, is only $1,720. This does not seem to be a heavy obligation for a charge possessing the wealth that this charge has. We trust that the people may see it in this light, and resolve to send their pastor and delegate to conference with an honor roll record. A larger circulation of the HERALD would prove a great blessing to the charge. A subscription list of 25 seems hardly adequate for a membership of 610.

We were much pleased with the well-kept condition of the church buildings and church grounds. We sensed also a condition of harmony, hopefulness, and progress that was pleasing. Pastor Way is working hard, and he has the confidence and the co-operation of his people. We expect the year to end with good results, both spiritually and materially.

We were entertained at dinner with Brother and Sister Way, in the home of Mrs. Ella Doub and Rev. J. W. Doub. For supper we were with Brother J. F. Hunter and his family. We acknowledge our indebtedness to these homes for this kindness. We are also indebted to Brother and Sister Way for conveying us to these churches, and for their kindness to us during the day. We enjoyed our visit to this charge.

These Things Now

1. Plan for a Rally Day. There is merit in it. And let it include the entire church program.

2. Pastors plan to attend the Federation meetings. Much good is possible from the discussions that will take place there. And much help should come out of these meetings for the closing work of the conference year.

3. Give all possible support to the sale of College Bonds. The college is opening this week for another year's work. Let's make it a prosperous year by buying these bonds. Get this: "High Point College has made more progress than any other college we know of for the short time that it has been in existence." The comment of prominent educators not connected with our church.

4. Faith, courage, co-operation, and prayer for the work of these closing weeks. "The Lord of hosts is with us," and in that confidence let us press the work that He has given us to do. We have the assurance that our "labor is not in vain in the Lord."

OUR STORY PAGE

OUR LORD'S RETURN

DEAR BOYS AND GIRLS:

Suppose the Lord Jesus Christ were to come and stay at your house, like He did long ago at the house of Martha and Mary; I wonder what sort of welcome you would give Him? I was at St. Leonard's-on-Sea when the Prince of Wales came to visit that town. What a welcome he was given! Flags were flying from all the windows; gorgeous banners with the words "Welcome" were suspended across the street; in fact there were flags and people waving them everywhere. All the town joined in the welcome. The Mayor, the Corporation, the policemen, soldiers, sailors, and all the townspeople. They lined the streets, boys and girls waved their caps and handkerchiefs or flags, bands played, and they hurrahed him. All was happiness. Oh, I do hope the Lord Jesus would get a welcome like that from you.

Do you know the Lord Jesus is coming back again—the same Lord Jesus that touched the leper, and healed the sick; that raised Jairus' daughter from the dead; that walked the streets of Jerusalem; and called the little children to Him; our Lord Jesus? The first thing our Lord told His disciples, when He had risen from the dead, was that they were to rejoice, for He was coming again. One day He is coming to reign on this earth for a thousand years. What a wonderfully happy time that will be! All wrong will be put right. Our Lord Jesus is coming again to be King over the whole world. No one has ever reigned on this earth with world-wide dominion; but the Lord Jesus is going to be King of the whole earth.

There was a little boy whose father went to Canada when he was quite a baby, so he could not remember him at all; but the father had often written to him. One day there came a very exciting letter which said his father was coming to England, and would arrive by a certain ship, and proceed at once to the city where they lived. The little boy was terribly excited. The day before his daddy was expected, he begged his mother to get him ready to meet him, and at last she did so; but this daddy did not come that day, though he watched the road eagerly till bed-time. Very early the next morning the little boy was begging to be dressed. At last he was ready and out watching, while his mother was tidying up the house. Suddenly down the road came a tall figure striding along. "Are you my daddy?" cried the little boy, as he rushed up to the kindly-looking man. "What is your name?" asked the man, and on hearing the little boy's name he caught him up in his arms. Oh, the joy of seeing his own dear daddy at last! But where was mother? Tearing himself away from his father, he rushed into the house, shouting, "He's come, mummy, he's come." Then mummy came running out to meet her loved one. "I did not expect you so early," she said, and how sorry she felt that she had not been watching instead of troubling about the look of the house so much!

Our dear Lord Jesus has told us He is coming, and He has told us to watch for Him, so that we shall be ready for Him when He comes. First, He will take those who are watching for Him to be safe with Him while God's wrath is poured out on those who do not and will not love Him. Then He is coming in power and great glory to reign over the earth. The first thing He will do will be to take away all the wrong things that offend, and Satan, our great enemy He will put into the bottomless pit for a thousand years. All fear will be taken out of the earth, and even the animals will love each other. We are told (in Isaiah 11) that the wolf and lamb will live together, and the leopard will be friends with the young goats instead of killing them as he does now, if he gets half a chance. The calf and the lion, and the cow and the bear will eat together, and even the snakes will do no harm.

Won't it be lovely when King Jesus comes? He is going to bring with Him all the boys and girls and grown-up people who have died trusting in Him; so we will be like one big family. What a glorious time it will be. If you have a little brother or sister or anyone else you love who loved Jesus and has died, He is going to bring them with Him. What a wonderful time it will be to see our dear Lord Jesus and all our dear ones who have "gone before," alive again; and we shall all live together for a thousand years. Then when the thousand years are ended we shall all go to live in another world, that the Lord Jesus has got all ready for us. You can read about that other world in Revelation 21 and 22. It is so beautifully described there. It will be a better and a much more lovely world than this one, for sin has so spoilt this one.

I heard of a little girl who heard her mother say that the Lord Jesus might be back at any time now. Soon after this she was missed suddenly, and after some search she was found in the top attic looking out of the window. She has washed herself and put on a clean dress; and when asked what she was doing up there, she replied, "I heard you say the Lord Jesus was coming back soon and I did want to be the first to welcome Him. We all want to be clean and ready for Him when He comes, don't we, boys and girls? How can we be ready? Well, you remember David prayed, "Wash me, and I shall be whiter than snow." If you send up that prayer to the Lord Jesus, He will wash your heart in His precious Blood, and you will be whiter than snow in God's sight. Let me tell you a story of a little girl who was washed whiter than snow. She came to a service and before the service and before the meeting began, the pastor came down the aisle of the church; and as he passed her he said, "Have you come to the Lord yet, Mary?" "No, but I want to," said Mary. What do you think the pastor said? Nothing. But in his opening prayer he prayed for a little girl in the congregation who wants to come to the Lord Jesus. A lady sitting next to Mary heard her whisper, "Please, Jesus, that's me." So Mary's heart was washed that day.

If you have never had your heart washed, won't you ask Him to do it now, boys and girls, and then you will be ready for Him whenever He comes? Some of us, who have studied our Bible very carefully, feel quite sure that He must be coming very, very soon, and we do want to be ready to welcome Him, don't we? It is for this we pray when we say, "Thy Kingdom come" in the prayer that the Lord Jesus taught His disciples. I wonder if you know this chorus.

Coming suddenly, coming soon,
Coming certainly, night or noon;
And keep me till that day when Thou shalt come.
Jesus I humbly pray, wash all my sin away,

Do ask Him to wash you and make you clean, and He will, for He has promised to receive and make everybody ready who will come to Him. Jesus said: "Him that cometh to Me I will in no wise cast out." How wonderful! So just come now!—Edith Gorcham.

HOW RALPH PAID THE DOCTOR

There was a dreadful time when Ralph broke his arm so badly, and the doctor came every day for more than a month, and bent and straightened it to save him from having a stiff joint. Ralph helped him bravely by obeying all his directions, though he could not help crying with pain. Nobody thought anything about the expenses at first until the arm was well again, and only needed to be "worked" every day by some one of the family to keep it from stiffening, and the doctor only came every few days to see how it was getting on. He had not sent his bill, and mamma began to worry.

"I wish we could pay Dr. Loring. He has been so kind and patient, and has come so often. I am sure we owe him at least fifty dollars or more, and he will not send his bill! And if he did, I don't see how we could pay it now! That was an expensive game of ball, son."

Ralph felt very badly to think they owed the kind doctor so much money, and by his means, though not exactly by his fault, for no one breaks an arm on purpose. He worried a good deal over how he could make some money to pay the bill for himself, and the next time the doctor came, he asked him how much it was.

The doctor laughed. "Why, I can't tell exactly, Ralph, because I've not made out my accounts lately, and it takes a good deal of figuring. You tell your mother not to worry; I haven't got around to her bill yet. Plenty of time."

Ralph was not satisfied, but he went on putting pennies and nickels into his bank, and felt that he was getting on. One day he was playing on the side walk, when Dr. Loring drove up in his big car, and went into the house on the other side of the street, where a little girl had measles. Presently a young man came down the street, whistling carelessly. He looked around to see if any one was near, and not noticing the small boy quietly playing marbles across the way, he stepped up to the car, examined it a moment with an air of ownership, then prepared to get in.

Ralph had been watching him, and now came across. "That's the doctor's car; he's in that house," he said.

"That's all right, kid! I'm a friend of the doctor's, and he said I could use his car a little while this morning. I'll take good care of it. Move out of the way, now!"

That didn't sound right to Ralph. Why should the doctor lend his car and leave himself afoot, with his rounds to make? Ralph had never known him to do such a thing before. "I don't believe it," he said to himself. "I'll just call the doctor."

But mother didn't want him to go in the house for fear of getting the measles, and besides, if he did, the young man would drive off at once. He was only a little boy, and he hardly knew what to do, but he stood his ground, right in front of the car so that it could not move without running over him. The young man looked as if he would not much mind doing it, he was so angry, but then he realized that there were windows on all sides, and no telling how many eyes might be watching the scene, so he decided not to risk a struggle; he tried persuasion. "See here, sonny, don't you like ice cream? Jump in and we'll go and get some, and be back before the doctor is ready for his car."

Now, Ralph was sure there was something wrong, for mother had warned him never to accept an invitation to ride with a stranger.

"No, thank you," he said politely. "I'll just wait for the doctor—oh, there he is now!" with a joyful shout as the doctor stepped out into the porch.

The young man jumped out very quickly on the other side. "Well, so long, kid, give my respects to the doc, and tell him I couldn't wait."

And he hurried away on the other side of the street.

Ralph told his story. "Was he really a friend of yours?" he asked anxiously. "Maybe I oughtn't to have stopped him."

The doctor had looked very grave, but now he laughed. "A friend of mine? Indeed, no, my boy; it is you who have proved yourself a staunch little friend. He wanted to steal my car, just as you thought, and but for you I should be several hundred dollars poorer this minute, for there were valuable instruments and medicines in there, besides the value of the car itself. So we'll set that against your bill, my son, and you may tell your mother that as you have saved me many times the amount she owed me, I'll consider it square, and send her a receipt for payment in full."—J. L. Glover in Northwestern Christian Advocate.

"I'VE HAULED THE FLAG DOWN!"

The army chaplain sat in his hut planning his work for the day. He was in North Russia. The temperature outside was 40 degrees below freezing point; and it was none too warm inside.

There came a hesitating tap at the door, and in answer to a cheery "Come in!" there entered a man looking the very picture of misery.

"Hello, Smith, what's the matter?" cried the chaplain.

"I've hauled the flag down, sir."

"Hauled the flag down? Whatever do you mean?"

The man who stood before the Padre was his righthand man in all his work. He was the one to "beat up" the boys for services and meetings. He could always be relied upon. He was the man with the wonderful voice who so often had sung sacred solos at the evening services.

The man looked shame-facedly at the floor, and, hanging his head miserably, said—

"The boys got hold of me last night, sir, and made me drink, and I went back to my quarters, drunk! Yes sir—I'm that ashamed of myself; but I'm done for now. I've hauled the flag down!"

"But come, Smith, even if you have hauled the flag down, you know enough about Jesus Christ and His love and His power to haul it up again?"

"Well, yes sir. I've done that—in a way. I've confessed my sin to God and I know He's forgiven me. We have His promise, sir, haven't we? If we confess our sins, He will forgive us our sins and cleanse us from all unrighteousness. You can't guess, sir, what a comfort that is to me. I'm forgiven by God, I know. But I can't ever face the boys again. I can't help you any more. I've hauled the flag down before them all and I'll sit in the back seat all the rest of my time here."

"Listen to me, Smith. We're going to kneel down right here and we'll both consecrate ourselves afresh to God. Then, tomorrow night, I'm holding a service in the hut, and I want you to sing a solo. Don't answer me now. Think it over and pray about it. But don't fail to turn up tomorrow night."

The chaplain waited. The time of the service was at hand. The boys were there in full force, but Smith wasn't. As the opening hymn was sung the door was swung open, and Smith entered awkwardly. Yes, he would sing.

When the Padre announced that Private Smith would now sing a solo, the amazement of the boys knew no bounds. Some smiled. Others looked knowingly at each other. "Didn't the Padre know?" "Hadh't he heard?" "What an old hypocrite Smith was!"

So they thought.

Meanwhile Smith had come to the front and was standing nervously before their piercing gaze. His face was like a huge tomato! At least, it was red enough.

"Boys," began Smith, "you know all about it—and the chaplain knows, too. He's good enough to trust me. God is trusting me, too. I know I hauled the flag down two nights ago—but I've hauled it up again."

Then he told them of his quiet time of confession to God, of the certainty of God's forgiveness, and of his new resolutions. He touched on the wondrous love of Jesus Christ to give him a second chance.

And as he spoke, few eyes were dry. He was confessing his sin and his suffering and his Saviour before the men who had dragged him down. No indeed! Smith was no hypocrite!

"Boys," he cried, in conclusion, "you know all about it. Will you let me sing to you again? Will you?"

"Yes, mate!" cried a muffled murmur.

And Smith sang. The words rang out clearly—

"When I fear my faith will fail,
Christ will hold me fast;
When the tempter would prevail,
He can hold me fast.
He will hold me fast;
He will hold me fast;
For my Saviour loves me so,
He will hold me fast."

Tears coursed down the faces of some of the men, and smothered sobs were heard from different parts of the hut. That song was a more powerful sermon than any the chaplain ever preached.

Those brave men are back in the homeland today, but as long as life lasts no man who heard the solo will ever forget it.

"He will hold me fast."

These words will ring in their ears till the music of Heaven is heard.

The following day the chaplain was just leaving his hut when one of the finest men in the regiment stopped him.

"Pardon me, sir, but may I speak to you? Do you know, sir, I was one of the brutes that made Smith drunk three nights ago? We thought it was a joke. But I tell you, sir, when I heard Smith singing last night I called upon God to forgive me and save me, and He's done it, sir. I've been a bad lot, sir, God knows. But that's a thing of the past. I'm now going to live for God."

And he's doing it.—A. E. Richardson in Glad Tidings.

CARE THOU FOR ME!

Care Thou for me! Let me not care!
Too weak am I, dear Lord, to bear
The heavy burdens of the day;
And oft I walk with craven feet
Upon life's rough and toilsome way;
How sweet to feel, how passing sweet,
Thy watchful presence everywhere!
Care Thou for me! Let me not care!

Care Thou for me! Why should I care,
And looks of gloomy sadness wear,
And fret because I cannot see
(Thy wisdom doth ordain it so)
The path Thou hast marked out for me?
My Father's plan is best, I know,
It will be light, sometime—somewhere—
Care Thou for me! Why should I care?

Care Thou for me! Let me not care!
This, each new day, shall be my prayer;
Thou, who canst read my inmost heart,
Dost know I am exceeding frail;
Both just and merciful Thou art,
Whose loving kindness ne'er shall fail;
My human nature Thou wilt spare;
Care Thou for me! I will not care!

A LITTLE STORY FROM REAL LIFE

A Colporteur of the American Bible Society found a man past forty years of age living alone in a miserable little shack near the railroad tracks in a mid-Western city who said to him: "Clear out if all you've got to do is peddle Bibles. I never saw one and I don't need one."

"By the looks of things you haven't gotten very far without the Bible," said the colporteur. "Why not give it a try?" This friendly and completely disarming answer permitted the colporteur to tell him about God and to read from the New Testament. Finally he said: "Mister, that there Book sure sounds good to me. I'll take back what I said and and if your price ain't too high I'll buy it." When told it could be had for five cents he insisted on paying ten.

Two weeks later the colporteur decided to make another call on this man and was gladly received. They sat and talked about the teachings of Jesus, for the man had faithfully read his Testamnet. He told the colporteur that he had made up his mind "to get a steady job, cut out the booze and live like a human ort to live." He thanked the colporteur for calling and said that in twenty years no one had taken any interest in helping him to be a better man.—The Way of Faith.

FAITH ILLUSTRATED

The patter of little feet on my office floor, and a glad voice exclaiming, "Papa, I'se come to 'scort 'ou home!" made known to me the presence of my six-year-old darling, who often came at that hour "to take me home," as she said. Soon we were going hand-in-hand on the homeward way.

"Now, papa, let's play I was a poor little blind girl and you must let me hold your hand tight and you lead me along and tell me where to step and how to go."

So the merry blue eyes were shut tight and we began. "Now, step up, now down," and so on till we safely arrived and the darling was nestling in my arms, saying gleefully, "Wasn't it nice, papa, I never peeped once."

"But," said mamma, "didn't you feel afraid you'd fall, dear?"

"Oh, no, mamma! I had a tight hold on papa's hand, and I knew he would take me safely over the hard places."—Publisher Unknown.

PUTTING GOD FIRST

My occupation is that of a farmer. I became a tithing steward January 1, 1889, and have consistently followed the practice of putting God first with one-tenth of my income ever since.

Two things were the main factors in my becoming a tither: a Thank Offering, suggested by my pastor, after I had been close to death's door, and restored to health, led me to give God due credit for His part in my health restoration, and also to give Him a place in the plan of my life. The challenge, coming after I had received a challenge (and accepted it) to solicit funds for a certain theological seminary, that was financially near death's door, led me to be a consistent giver. I asked myself if I could conscientiously request others to contribute for Kingdom work, if I was not a consistent contributor, and if I could be a consistent contributor, if I only gave for Kingdom work out of whatever balance remained, after I had first satisfied my own selfish desires. I answered by saying, "I'll practice what I preach," and began putting God first and paying the tithe.

Now as never before God's Word became the plan for my life, and was read and studied. Matt. 6:33, Seek ye first His Kingdom and His righteousness, and all these things shall be added unto you; Prov. 3:6, "In all thy ways acknowledge Him, and He will direct thy paths"; Rom. 8:28, "All things work together for good to those who love God and are called according to His purpose"; and Prov. 3:9, "Honor the Lord with thy substance and with the first fruits of all thine increase." These passages especially were almost daily reminders and became a source of peace and joy, and worries and anxiety ceased.

I lived and farmed with a new motive. Putting God first made it comparatively easy to deny self. To me it does not seem possible for any one to farm a farm or to manage a business of any kind whatsoever, giving God's interests preferences over his own selfish interests, without becoming richer spiritually. As one studies and follows God's plan for his life, he comes more and more to find God's promises true and to trust Him, and life has a new meaning and new joys.—Hon. Horace Ankeney, Xenia, Ohio.

POISON IN CIGARETTES

Dr. J. J. Kellogg says: "A few months ago I had all the nicotine removed from a cigarette, making a solution of it. I injected half the quantity into a frog, with the effect that the frog died almost instantly. The rest was administered to another frog with like effect. Both frogs were full grown, and of average size. The conclusion is evident that a single cigarette contains poison enough to kill two frogs. A boy who smokes twenty cigarettes a day has inhaled enough poison to kill forty frogs. Why does the poison not kill the boy? It does kill him. If not immediately, he will die sooner or later of a weak heart, Bright's disease, or some other malady which scientific physicians everywhere now recognize as a natural result of chronic nicotine poisoning."

A chemist, not long ago, took the tobacco used in an average cigarette and soaked it in several teaspoonfuls of water and then injected a portion of it under the skin of a cat. The cat almost immediately went into convulsions, and died in fifteen minutes. Dogs have been killed with a single drop of nicotine.—Publisher Unknown.

JOSEPH COOK'S HOROLOGUE

Near the close of his long and eventful career as a scholar and lecturer, Dr. Joseph Cook of Boston wrote the following summary of life. It recognizes the solemn fact that life at last brings us to stand before God to give account. Happy shall we be with Him then.

"Man's life means
Tender teens,
Teachable twenties,
Tireless thirties,
Fiery forties,
Forceful fifties,
Serious sixties,
Sacred seventies,
Aching eighties,
Shortening breath,
Death,
The sod,
God."

FROM PASTORS and PEOPLE

Piney Grove.—Our revival meeting began the fourth Sunday in August and closed the fifth Sunday night with about a dozen conversions. May God's richest blessings rest upon these converts and may they ever strive to do the will of our Heavenly Father.

Rev. Robert Short did some earnest preaching of the Gospel. Rev. C. H. Hill and wife of Roberta attended a few days of the meeting, as it is their home church. He preached two or three sermons, and Rev. B. W. Nance preached one afternoon, and Rev. Mr. Brown, of Thomasville, preached Sunday at 11 o'clock, as Bro. Short had to fill another appointment. We welcome all these brethren. We also had other visitors: Some of Rev. Mr. Trogdon's children who helped out in the singing; also the Mt. Tabor and Canaan members. We extend an invitation to all to come back and be with us in our services.

Mr. J. A. Morgan returned home from High Point Hospital Sunday. Hope he will have a speedy recovery and be back at church.

The children had their program on Tuesday night as it rained them out on Sunday. They did well and we are thankful for the one that trained these children, Mrs. J. C. Delk.
MRS. J. A. GARNER, Reporter.

West Forsyth.—Dr. S. W. Taylor, president of our Annual Conference, was with us at three churches last Sunday. He preached good sermons at Baltimore, Stony Knoll and Pleasant Hill. We had good attendance at all services and the people were delighted with Dr. Taylor's visit.

Next Sunday will be a full day for the pastor. We will preach at Tabernacle at 11 a. m., conduct a baptismal service at the Yadin River at 3 p. m., and preach at Union Hill at 7:30 p. m. We will observe the ordinance of the Lord's Supper at Union Hill church.

C. B. WAY, Pastor.

Albemarle Tidings.—Vacation days are over and we are getting back to work. The first Sunday of September being our regular communion day, this service was beautifully observed. The music rendered by the choir always adds greatly to these services.

Our people are now looking forward to two special services which are to be observed in the near future. The first is Rally Day service which is to be observed on the fourth Sunday in September. This service is now being prepared under the direction of Mrs. D. J. Hatley and Mrs. Allen Wagner. Nothing but a fine service is to be expected. Promotion services are to be held in conjunction with the Rally Day.

The second special service we are looking forward to is the Anniversary Service to be observed the second Sunday of October. This is the 22nd anniversary of the organization of the church. The birthday gift is to be $2200, to be placed on the altar of the church to be applied to the church debt. Whoever would like a part in this birthday gift will certainly be given a place with thanks. As a part in this anniversary service, home-coming will be observed. While everybody is invited, those who have at any time been in any way connected with the church as pastor, pastor's family, member, or in any way, are given special invitations. There will be an all-day service. Dinner will be served on the ground. We are expecting outstanding speakers for every service. We want our friends to enjoy the good things of this good day. Come and be with us.

Bro. D. Frank Harkey, the oldest member of our church, has been sick, but he has sufficiently improved that he has returned to his accustomed place in the services. Bro. J. W. Hornbuckle, who has recently undergone a serious operation, is in the Charlotte Sanatorium. His friends are glad to learn that he is rapidly improving.

GEO. L. CURRY.

North Davidson Charge.—When I reported the revival meeting at Bethesda I overlooked one very important item. Rev. George L. Curry and wife were present for several services and spent one night with relatives and old friends in the community. Bro. Curry was asked to preach but declined; however, he made two short talks: presented to the members a brief history of Bethesda, a church and community that have made for themselves an honorable record in Kingdom service. Bro. Curry compiled the facts in a neatly bound volume. For this act of love and esteem of the old home church we, the pastor and members, are profoundly grateful. May the Lord greatly bless him.

The glorious effect of our revival is still going on. Souls are still being born unto God and interest along all lines increased. To God be all the glory.

H. L. POWELL, Pastor.

Lexington, State Street.—Pastor Hendry reports a pleasurable and profitable visit to Jacksonville, Fla. Mr. Hendry and his brothers and sisters meet once a year in their childhood home with their aged father and mother. This occasion is one of much interest and pleasure to all the family.

The morning service is always one of much interest and help and is well attended and has been all summer, even during the extreme hot weather. The evening services have been held in the tabernacle erected here for the revival conducted by Dr. Ham since the close of the meeting the last of July. This arrangement is a most delightful one as it is a union service, and the various ministers of the town preach and all congregations attend. There is nothing more beautiful than Christian fellowship.

Last Tuesday night a Men's Brotherhood was organized among the men of the church. Dr. Taylor was present and special music was enjoyed and a general good and helpful coming-together of the men of the church was reported. Officers for the organization will be elected at the Tuesday night meeting of this week.

The Senior C. E. Society is growing better and doing more efficient work all the time. Mrs. H. S. Lanier has charge of the society and receives much merited praise.

Mrs. H. C. Rodgers and Mrs. Hendry and Mrs. Rodgers' son, Earl, and Mrs. Hendry's daughter, Louise, spent a short while in Burlington last week. They report a very enjoyable visit with only one thing regretted—that they could not stay longer.

Mrs. F. J. Cox accompanied her husband on his travels week before last and says the trip was fine—all it should have been in every respect. Mr. Cox is salesman for the Lexington Candy Company.

Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Johnson, niece and nephew of Mrs. Hendry, have moved to High Point, where Mr. Johnson has taken up his duties with the Gate City Insurance Company.

The many friends of Cecil Evans, young son of Mrs. A. H. Evans, are glad to know he is recovering from his recent illness.

One of the boys of the church and Sunday school, Basil Hoffman, was slightly hurt in an automobile wreck Sunday. We are glad to note that he is recovering.

Mr. Theodore Koonts had the misfortune to lose his car and garage by fire last Saturday night. We are sorry to hear of this loss coming to Mr. Koonts.
REPORTER.

Whitakers Church.—Early Sunday morning our town was shocked at the sad intelligence of the sudden passing of our electrician at his post of duty. Evidently something was wrong at the plant of the sub-station, and his life was the forfeit. Sad indeed for the young wife, baby, and all dear ones concerned. He was much admired for his efficiency and personality.

Our District Rally met with us. All the speakers on the program were present and contributed their share to the success of the occasion. I am sorry to say that, from various causes, our local church was not as well represented as we wished it to be.

We held our third quarterly conference Thursday night, September 3rd. Other important duties kept some of our members away. Mrs. J. M. Cutchin, Jr., was elected delegate to Annual Conference. Our special services begin the third Sunday in September, and we hope they will mean much to our church and town. We ask the prayers of those interested in Kingdom work for the success of the meeting.

Best wishes to the Herald and its readers.
REPORTER.

Saxapahaw Charge.—On Saturday night, August 29, some of the young people came together for a social at Saxapahaw. There were not as many of the young people present as we had hoped, but all who were present seemed to enjoy the fellowship.

On Sunday, August 30, the people gathered for the Missionary Institute at Saxapahaw. At the 11 o'clock service Rev. J. Clyde Auman preached a missionary sermon. The people of this charge were glad to hear Bro. Auman preach again. In the afternoon we had a very interesting program. Miss Effie Keek, from Mt. Hermon church, led the worship service. Following this we had five conference groups. Mrs. H. A. Garrett led the group discussing the topic, "Plans for President, Vice-Presidents, and Secretaries of Ladies' Auxiliaries." Mrs. H. C. Nicholson led the discussion group that considered "Methods of Money-Raising." Rev. J. C. Auman and his group took up the subject, "Program Materials and Methods." The writer met with the young people's group, which discussed the topic, "Missionary Methods for Young People." There was a large number of people who were interested in hearing Rev. N. G. Bethea discuss "Stewardship." Following this conference period, the groups met together for the final part of the program. A number of interesting talks were made by those present who were interested in the missionary work of the church. Dr. Joy Glascock made a strong plea for the support of our "Home Mission Posts." Miss Velma McCulloch urged that the Auxiliaries support the work by getting behind our financial program. We trust that the missionary spirit will take new life after the good start we got in this missionary institute.

On Sunday, September 6, the first annual meeting of the Salem Memorial Association was held at Salem church. A very good crowd was present for this program. The speakers Sunday morning were Prof. E. P. Dixon, Judge P. J. Walker and Mr. McBride Holt. They brought us some very good thoughts. In the afternoon Dr. Paul S. Kennett preached the sermon, which all present seemed to enjoy.

On last Sunday evening at 7:30 "The Blind Artists" from Burlington gave a splendid program at Concord. The music which they used was of a spiritual type. The writer would suggest that if any church wishes to have a good musical program they should communicate with Mr. Henry Easley, Burlington, N. C.

I am busy this week getting "Harvest Offering" for our Children's Home. The people are making splendid donations.

As we continue our work, some are always passing to their reward. There has been an account of some of the deaths sent to the Herald by reporters of the various churches. I will say a few words about those that reporters have not mentioned in previous reports.

Last February, Graham Crawford, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Crawford, passed to his reward. For several months he was afflicted. His passing from this life took him to the land where suffering is unknown. He is survived by his wife and five children.

George Cates passed from this life on July 10, 1931. He was 84 years of age. He joined the Methodist Protestant church early in life and remained a consistent member until death took him away. Revs. H. L. Isley and J. C. Auman had charge of the funeral services in the absence of the pastor.

Mrs. Rebecca Jane Thompson passed away at her home in the Salem community on July 14, 1931. She was a member of Hawfields Presbyterian church, but she was interested in the work of all churches. Her life will always be remembered by those who knew her.

George W. Stockard, a faithful member of Concord church, was called home on July 24, 1931. He was a leading citizen of Southern Alamance for many years. His wish was for the finer things in life. We shall miss him in our church and community, but we know that he has gained eternal peace. Funeral services were held at the home of Mrs. John B. Cheek in Burlington. The pastor was assisted by Rev. M. W. Buck and Rev. F. W. Paschall. His body was laid to rest in the Stockard cemetery in Southern Alamance county.

W. Graham Crutchfield was called to his reward on August 16, 1931. He was a man of middle life, being only 55 years old. His death came as a shock to the community and church. He was a faithful member of Salem church. He was interested in the building of God's Kingdom in the hearts of men. His wife, five daughters, two sons, and a host of other relatives and friends remain to mourn his passing. Funeral services were held at Orange Chapel church. The pastor was assisted by Rev. H. L. Isley and Rev. W. M. Loy. T. J. WHITEHEAD, Pastor.

First Church, High Point.—The usual Sunday services were held in First church, beginning at 9:45 o'clock with the different departments of the Sabbath School meeting under the leadership of Prof. C. R. Hinshaw, superintendent. The Junior church services for the small folks were conducted by Mrs. S. S. Coe and Mrs. L. R. Johnston. The minister, Rev. R. I. Farmer, who returned Thursday from a trip to Wellsville, Ohio, to bring home Mrs. Farmer, Mary Elizabeth, and Joseph, delivered a splendid message on "Superlatives in Travel and Life," which grew out of experiences of his trip to the Pacific coast and the Golden Jubilee of the C. E. Society held at San Francisco in July. He said in part: Travel is broadening in many ways; if one goes to a better country than this own, on his return he wants to make his own better; and if he travel in a worse one, he appreciates his own the more. Nature is God's own highway, and Emerson says that when one loves nature, he is made better. I am not a pantheist, and do not believe that every stone is God, but I do believe that He is everywhere and in everything. A superlative is that which has the highest possible excellence. In our journey across the continent we crossed the mighty Mississippi, the Father of Waters. We passed through Santa Fe, N. M., the oldest city. In Sequoia National Park we gazed with awe upon the largest and oldest tree in the world. Crater Lake, in Oregon, the highest in the world. At Twin Falls, Idaho, we drove across Jerome bridge, which is 476 feet high and the highest in the world, though only 1,400 feet long. In San Bernardino Valley in California, where Mr. J. F. Tussey's brother lives, whom we stopped to greet, we saw the largest arrowhead in the world. Our nation contains many superlatives of different kinds. Emerson says, "Nature is too thin a screen—the glory of the omnipotent God bursts everywhere." Mt. Shasta, with its snow-crowned summit, Yellowstone Park with its wonderful geysers, the prified forest, the mountains, rocks, gorges, leaping waterfalls, crystal lakes, the canyons of Colorado, the mighty rivers and trees all seemed to speak to us of God and His great power. Somehow God took care of us, and we are back at home to serve. Mazzini said "There is no atheism possible in the Alps." The devil never hunts along the timber-line. As Jesus went about His teaching while on earth, he often went to the sea, the mountains, and looked upon the trees, flowers, crops, birds, and drew a lesson. When he taught parables he turned to nature. God's great power is the highest superlative. In God's great outdoors we lose our foolish cares "out in the fields with God." God has a plan for every one of us. No doubt our greatest happiness is found in our own homes and firesides; it is not plucked in a stranger's garden. I want to say to you, my beloved friends, that it is foolish to make the journey of life without taking God for your guide. Let us all make ready for the inevitable journey to that "bourse from which no traveler returns."

The Sunday evening service was conducted by the Christian Endeavor Society, Miss Frances Taylor presiding. Mrs. Ralph Vance read the Scripture lesson. Miss Annabelle Thompson, of Jamestown, who accompanied Rev. and Mrs. Farmer to the convention at San Francisco, talked of that notable meeting in a very interesting manner. The ushers who served on this occasion were Messrs. Robt Rankin, William Vance, Alston Gray, and John Taylor.

On Monday evening, August 31st, Mrs. Geo. T. Penny entertained the Senior C. E. Society in a charming manner at her handsome home, "Pennyburn," near Jamestown, on the Greensboro road. There was a large crowd of young people in attendance, and the charming hostess served delicious ice cream, cake, and mints to her guests.

Mr. E. L. Douglas was elected by the recent congregation vote as delegate to Annual Conference, which will convene November 4th in this church. The recent quarterly conference elected J. H. Everhart to serve on the advisory committee to succeed the late lamented Mr. H. A. Moffitt, and W. C. Koontz to be a member of the house committee.

The executive committee of the Woman's Auxiliary met Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock in the church parlor.

Mr. Ralph Vance was leader of the Senior C. E. meeting Monday evening on the topic, "Prayer: Jesus' Teaching and Example," from Luke 11:1-13.

On Wednesday evening the mid-week prayer service will be led by the minister on the theme, "Fanny Crosby's Hymns." Many of these old favorites will be sung.

Mrs. J. W. Guire, of Lenoir, N. C., who is our oldest member, underwent an operation on Sunday morning at 11 o'clock at the Lenoir Hospital. Many relatives and old friends are anxiously awaiting news from her bedside, and prayers are being offered for her relief and rapid recovery.

We are pleased to announce that Mrs. A. R. Peace, who underwent an operation in High Point Hospital last week, is improving satisfactorily.

Mrs. R. T. Pickens enjoyed a unique and interesting experience last Wednesday, when she joined a group of old friends and a sister, Mrs. Frank Armfield, of Concord, and brother, W. J. Armfield, Jr., of Asheboro, who repeated a camping trip made in August, 1896. This original journey was taken in wagons drawn by mules, and the route lay through Winston-Salem, Rural Hall, Pinnacle, Pilot Mountain, Mount Airy, Fancy Gap, Hillsville, Va., and Jackson's Ferry on New River. Thirty-five years ago it took four days to reach the last-mentioned place, but on Wednesday the distance was traversed in four hours in cars. Wonderful changes were noted in the towns and farms along the way, as well as in the roads, so great has been the development of this section since that far-away time. The return trip was made via Galax, Independence, Va., Sparta, N. C., Roaring Gap, the lovely summer resort, Elkin, Yadkinville and Winston-Salem. Only one of the original party has died, Mrs. David White, of Greensboro, the former Miss Henryanna Hackney, of Guilford College. The personnel of Wednesday's party was as follows: Miss Mary W. Petty, of N. C. C. W. faculty, Miss Virginia Ragsdale, of Jamestown, former head of the department of mathematics in the same college, Mrs. Frank Armfield, of Concord, Mrs. R. T. Pickens, W. J. Armfield, Jr., Asheboro, Mr. and Mrs. J. O'Neill Ragsdale, of Madison, and Mr. and Mrs. Herbert C. Petty, of Bloomfield, New Jersey.

Miss Claire Douglas left Saturday for Lenoir, N. C., where she will teach French and Spanish in Davenport College this coming season.

Miss Helen Johnston left Tuesday for Henderson to resume her work as teacher in the graded school.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard H. Shaw and little daughter have returned from a vacation spent at Myrtle Beach, S. C.

Miss Helen Hayes, of Henderson, has been the guest of Mrs. Robert Garland on Woodrow Avenue for a few days and will leave today for Asheboro to take up her work as teacher of the fifth grade in the graded school after summer vacation.

Miss Mary Young, of Henderson, has returned to High Point to resume her duties as dean of women in the college.

Miss Louise Jennings, who was graduated from High Point College in the class of 1931, will leave next week for Chapel Hill, where she will study Library Science in the University.

On Thursday morning, September 10th, registration for freshmen will begin at High Point College, and the following week will be known as Orientation Week. On Wednesday, September 16th, classes in all departments will begin work. Dr. Humphreys is confident that the enrollment of pupils will be more than 300, a larger number than that of last year. All former members of the faculty will return with one or two new additions.

Beulah, Mecklenburg Circuit.—Our revival meeting, which began the fourth Sunday in August, closed on Wednesday night, September 2. Rev. Earl Cook, of Monroe, our pulpit help, delivered some splendid and helpful sermons. We feel that Mr. Cook has done much good in reviving our church and has helped to save many souls. We were glad to have the large attendance of other churches to worship with us, especially at the night services. We also were proud to see New Hope, our sister church, represented with a large attendance on Tuesday night.

We were glad indeed to have with us on the fifth Sunday morning in August at 11 o'clock, Dr. S. W. Taylor, president of our Annual Conference. He preached for us a grand sermon, which, I think, will be long remembered by all present. We don't wait this to be his last time to visit our church. We want him at any time he can to visit our church again.

Our pastor, Rev. Q. L. Joyner, will fill his appointment Sunday night, September 13, and Rev. Jay Davis, a young minister of the Siler community, will also preach for us Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock. We hope for a large attendance.

Our Ladies' Aid is still moving along. We have 14 members on roll. We will be glad to have this number of members doubled. We each try to take our part in the program when we are on.

The Ladies' Aid will have an ice cream supper at the church Saturday night, September 12. We invite all that will to attend.

MISS LULA DEESE, Reporter.

Pine Bluff, Midland Charge.—Our pastor, Rev. F. R. Love, was at his best at the morning service, and delivered a most forceful sermon based on St. John 14:6: "Jesus saith unto him, I am the way, the truth, and the life; no man cometh unto the father, but by me." Every one present seemed to greatly enjoy his message. The Sunday school was well attended, with much interest shown.

Prof. Paul B. Collins will teach a singing school in the Midland community, beginning at an early date. Many of our people are expected to take advantage of this opportunity to get this good training in singing the gospel songs. There is great danger of this phase of the church work being greatly neglected. We are glad this man has come our way and hope that singing will be greatly stimulated.

Our revival closed last Sunday night after a very forceful week's preaching. We had a good meeting in many ways, and hope that other results may be visible as time passes on.

Our people all live on the farm and have a most wonderful crop of corn and cotton, with plenty of fruit on the tree and vine. We see no reason why there should be any shortage in the financial report from a people so wonderfully blessed.

REPORTER.

Dulins, Mocksville Charge.—The attendance of Sunday school during the summer months shows a decrease from the spring months. We hope as cooler weather approaches the attendance will increase.

Our revival meeting began the fourth Sunday. The weather was unfavorable Sunday morning and the congregation was small. The afternoon was better each way.

We were glad indeed to have one of our own boys, Rev. William Howard, of Bethel, to deliver the afternoon message.

Rev. H. L. Isley came Monday and delivered the messages throughout the week. Brother Isley preached splendid and forceful sermons. Our hearts were grieved because the unsaved did not heed.

There were 13 conversions and reclamations. Three gave their names to join the church. We were pleased to have Brother Isley with us and enjoyed his stay.

Rev. J. W. Braxton, one of our former pastors, was visiting this charge and worshipped with us a number of times. We were all glad to see him and glad to have him worship with us.

We are behind with salary and other dues. The outlook now is dim, but I sincerely hope things will clear up before Conference.

LEONA HENDRIX, Reporter.

First Church, Albemarle.—The fifth Sunday night our regular union service was held in West Albemarle Baptist church. Rev. Mr. Stough, from the Tabernacle M. E. church, delivered the sermon with our choir furnishing the music. A large number attended this service. We have been having these services just about a year, and we realize that they are very successful. Each time we have the service the program seems to be just a little more interesting than the time before. Our next service will be held in the Tabernacle M. E. church.

Since vacation time is most over the majority of our people have returned to their homes; and this has caused a continual increase in the attendance of our Sunday school. We hope in a few more Sundays we will have attained a goal which we have never reached before.

Last Sunday being the first Sunday in the month we observed our regular communion service. Rev. Mr. Curry has a very beautiful and impressive service for this day, and we have all come to the place that we look forward with special interest to this sacred occasion.

Tuesday afternoon the Lucy Hatley circle met in the home of Mrs. C. B. Eiford. A large number attended this meeting. The Cam Snotherly circle met Tuesday night in the home of Mrs. Claud Burleson. A very interesting meeting was reported.

REPORTER.

Bethel, Alamance Charge.—Our work is moving along quite well. Our Sunday school has been unusually good this summer.

Prayer meeting was conducted last Sunday by Mr. Tyree Lindley in a most interesting manner. He made a splendid talk on "Loyalty."

Children's Day service was held the third Sunday in August and the program was beautifully rendered. Much credit is due Misses Bessie Holmes and Eunice McPherson for training the children.

Our revival meeting was held the third week in August. Dr. F. W. Paschall, as pulpit help, gave us some very forceful sermons and we feel that much good was accomplished.

The third Sunday in September will be the annual memorial day at our church and we are planning a Home-Coming day in connection with it. There will be all-day service and a picnic dinner. We extend a cordial invitation to all former members and friends of this church to come and be with us.

The Woman's Auxiliary will meet with Mrs. Lonnie McPherson the second Sunday afternoon with the Burlington Auxiliary as our guests. We hope as many of our members as can will attend.

CENTRAL MINISTERS' ASSOCIATION MEETING

The Central Ministers' Association meeting will be held in Grace Church, Greensboro, next Tuesday, September 15, at 10 o'clock. As the meeting closes after the morning session, the ministers attending will be at liberty to secure their lunch at any place they desire.

Some of our own Conference men have been asked to discuss some of the financial problems facing the local churches and the Conference. It is hoped that a goodly number of the ministers will be on hand as it is the last meeting of this association in this Conference year. It will also be the time for the election of officers for the next year.

No further notice of this meeting will be sent out, so please keep the time and place in mind.

MEETING OF BOUNDARY COMMITTEE OCT. 8, 1931, AT 2 P. M.

The president of our Annual Conference advises that it will be well to hold a meeting of the Boundary Committee soon. A meeting of that committee is therefore called for Thursday, October 8th, 1931. The meeting will be held in one of the Sunday school rooms at the First church, High Point, N. C., at 2 o'clock, p. m.

No member of the committee has any desire to make boundary changes. Conditions arise and requests come which make changes necessary, and your committee wishes to act wisely and righteously in such cases. If there are requests in writing and mail your letters either to the undersigned, or to Rev. S. W. Taylor, D. D., President of the Conference, both of High Point, N. C. For the help of the committee we need to have these requests in writing. About one hour may also be given to hearing any ones who may care to appear before the committee on Thursday, October 8th, at 2 p. m. Members of the committee and others will please be on time because the afternoons are short.

The following are members of the Boundary Committee and are expected to be present if possible: S. W. Taylor, A. G. Dixon, Edward Suits, G. F. Millaway, R. N. Hauser, H. A. Garrett and N. G. Bethea. (See page 19, Conference Journal). If any one of these cannot be present we will appreciate a note so stating.

Yours in the Master's service,

A. G. DIXON,

Chairman of the Committee.

We are in a different era and we have got to face it and recognize there is only one thing in the world that makes prosperity, and that is work.—Henry Ford.

MARRIED

Kistler-Van Werry

A beautiful wedding was solemnized Wednesday morning, September 2, at 10 o'clock at Fountain Place M. P. parsonage, when Dr. C. D. Kistler led to the altar Miss Inez Van Werry, Rev. N. G. Bethea, uncle of the bridegroom, officiating.

Dr. A. R. Kistler, of Monroe, brother of the bridegroom, acted as best man, and Mrs. Lester E. Rich, of Asheboro, sister of the bride, was dame of honor. Miss Mary Ruth Huffman, of Gibsonville, presided at the piano. As she played the Bridal Chorus from "Lohengrin," the couple entered and stood before Rev. Mr. Bethea, who used the ring ceremony as "Indian Love Call" was softly played. Mendelssohn's "Wedding March" was used as a recessional.

Dr. and Mrs. Kistler left immediately afterward for Norfolk, Virginia Beach, Washington City and other points of interest.

Dr. Kistler is a popular young dentist of Randleman, while his bride has been a successful teacher in the Randleman schools. They will be at home there after September 15th.

Chisholm-Way

At 8 o'clock in the evening of August 17th in the Methodist Protestant church of Asheboro Miss Callie Way, the attractive daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Way, of Asheboro, became the bride of Mr. Clyde Chisholm of Asheboro. The only attendants were Miss Alvia Parks and Mr. Howard Craver.

Mrs. R. C. Stubbins played "To a Wild Rose" and "Mendelssohn's Wedding March." The writer united them in marriage using the ring ceremony.

Miss Way is one of our finest young girls and Mr. Chisholm is a young man of fine promise.

We wish for them many happy years together.

R. C. STUBBINS.

WOMAN'S MISSIONARY DEPARTMENT

MISSIONARY EDUCATION

The following article was written for this column in response to request of the secretary. Watch for more good things along this line for the remainder of the month.

MRS. H. C. NICHOLSON, Sec'y.

NECESSITY AND RESULT OF MISSIONARY EDUCATION

The evangelization of the world is the great task of the church. During the nineteen hundred years of its effort it has made remarkable progress toward this end. This is a task, however, that shall never be finished. It is a process that must go on continuously. While the "fire" is made to burn brightly in some places of the world the intensity of its brightness is being diminished in others. It is the eternal struggle of light against darkness. However, if the entire constituency of the church, through the year, had supported its missionary program, the world would have been in a hundred fold better condition than it is today.

There are, as regards their attitude toward missions, four classes of people in the church: 1. Those who are opposed to missions. 2. The indifferent. 3. Those of moderate interest but who do very little. 4. Those who are interested and are engaged actively and constructively in mission work.

The first and second classes are so because of their lack of regard for races other than their own. Before they can ever become loyal supporters or efficient workers in the mission cause they must embody within their hearts the attitude of the Master toward the children of God of other races. The deep-seated prejudice of these classes can be moved only by an educational method. These same people need to know, too, the conditions under which people live in heathen lands and also in home mission fields. It is necessary for them to know the underlying causes of these conditions, and the fact that the only remedy lies in Christ and His glorious Gospel.

There are two causes that create the third class. They are an improper attitude toward material possessions and ignorance of methods of a constructive nature. Courses of an executive nature are being offered in our schools of religion. They can also be obtained through institutes and other local church means. This type of missionary education is quite necessary and at present in great demand. Few things have hindered the church in its effort more than the lack of sufficient funds with which to carry on. This shortage of funds is caused by our improper attitude toward life—accumulation of wealth as the chief end. The church shall continue to be handicapped in its program of expansion as long as our love of money is stronger than our love for God and a lost world. Stewardship is a phase of missionary education.

The fourth class is interested, active and successful because those who constitute it have a brotherly feeling toward other races and the deprived of its own. They are alarmed because of the knowledge of the conditions under which their fellowman lives. They regard money only as a means to proper ends. They have equipped themselves with a working knowledge of their task. In short—they have been educated for effective evangelization.

This fourth class represents the results of missionary education. The first three represent its necessity.

W. M. LOY.

THANK-OFFERING SERVICES

Let every Woman's Auxiliary and every church hold a Thank-Offering service during the months of September and February. In our Auxiliary we open our Thank-Offering boxes in September, when we have a simple but instructive program and invite every woman in the church to be present or any one who will. In the churches where there is no Auxiliary, if the members will use the Thank-Off-ring boxes, I will be glad to send them as many as needed if the pastor or Sunday school superintendent will write me. Then they set aside one Sunday to observe a special Thank-Off-ring service in their church, using the suggested program (if they care to), using the talent they have available.

For the February Thank-Offering service I shall suggest a bigger and better program. So please get ready for that by using a simpler program in this month. Suggested program follows:

Thank-Offering Program for September

1. Quiet music. (To call to order. Try it.)
2. Devotionals, by leader.
3. Prayer.
4. Business. Auxiliary president presiding where there is an organization, otherwise dispensed with.
5. Open Thank-Offering boxes. (When they have them).
6. Special music.
7. The Why of Missionary Education. (Given as an address).
8. Offering, with an appeal for members, or organizing an Auxiliary.
9. Prayer for our missionaries at home and abroad.
10. Hymn, "Take My Life and Let It Be."
11. Benediction.

MRS. J. W. BOYLES, Sec'y

Thank-Offering, N. C. Branch.

THE WHY OF MISSIONARY EDUCATION

(Written and read at Mississippi Branch Session held at Clara, Miss., by Miss Bettie Ridgway.)

As we shall study and think together this afternoon on the theme of Missionary Education it is essential that we should first look at the WHY. There are numerous Whys, but in the time allotted me, I shall attempt to discuss those that to me seem most important.

First: I say that we need to have Missionary Education because of the wealth of knowledge it brings relative to the world's needs and how we may assist in remedying these. Knowledge, we all know, is the very foundation of progress, of civilization itself. Knowledge is a light that guides us, a compass that directs us. Without knowledge, we are ignorant, and ignorance is a gross form of mental darkness. It blurs the Vision, and prevents one from seeing clearly, from seeing things in the right perspective. In fact, it often hinders one from seeing at all.

The Bible from time to time calls attention to the importance of Knowledge in relation to the work of the Kingdom. Hosea in 4:6 exclaims "My people are destroyed for lack of Knowledge." That is just another way of saying, Because of ignorance my people are destroyed. In Prov. 29:18, the writer says "Where there is no vision the people perish." And without Knowledge there can be no vision. Isn't it true that many people see no need beyond the boundary line of their community? The secret of it is, they know not of the needs beyond their section and consequently have no vision. Peter in II Pet. 1:1-9 gives us instruction how to build a strong useful Christian character, and the third injunction is to add Knowledge. First, there must be the saving faith in Christ, then to faith add Virtue, and to Virtue Knowledge. That is how important the Apostle Peter considered Knowledge.

Now, our Missionary work needs building up. We are pioneers, and must not forget that. Our work is chiefly with rural people who in the past have not been educated along missionary lines. This being true education is very essential to the success of our work. It is one of the foundation stones, and to try to build without it is to build upon the sand. Is it not a natural law of humanity that one can be interested in that which he knows nothing about; that it is impossible to be enthusiastic about giving one's means to something he knows nothing about. One may be often moved of the Spirit to be generous with his means, in his heart he may desire to give, and at the same time fail to support the missionary interest of his church because he does not know about it. Therefore we see Knowledge is the first Why—really the corner-stone in Missionary Education.

Second, we should have Missionary Instruction because a knowledge of Missions builds up a Missionary environment. By the term environment is meant what we know as atmosphere, soil, and eliminate in the plant world. It is difficult to grow roses, or cotton, or anything in the plant Kingdom without the proper atmosphere. This is just as true of Missions: Missionary-minded people grow in a Missionary atmosphere—environment. Missionary sermons, talks, programs, songs, organized Missionary Societies, Missionary giving—all these create a Missionary environment. How can we expect our people to enthusiastically and willingly give to the support of Missions, be it home or foreign, when they seldom, if ever, hear a Missionary sermon, are given no instruction through the Sunday school, never read Missionary books or magazines? We need not expect it. I repeat, Missionary-minded people are grown in a Missionary environment.

We have some little plants at home that have taught me a great lesson. Some years ago, they grew luxuriantly and bore beautiful fragrant flowers. But as the years passed, they were not cultivated; the soil washed away from them. For some years they pushed their green leaves out of the ground, but no blooms appeared. One day I said, "I believe these bulbs would still bear pretty flowers if they had the proper care, soil, environment." So I replanted them in a good place and this year they rewarded me by producing beautiful flowers. All the years the little bulbs had had the potential capacity to make flowers, but the environment was lacking. Now, according to my way of thinking, there are potential Missionary forces lying dormant, asleep, in the souls of our church people, and when the proper environment has been created in which these sleeping forces can be aroused and developed there will be interest and loyal service in the Missionary Work of our churches. One writer has said: "Many things of grave import are sooner caught than taught. It is in the air, and air conditions life and growth." Missionary Education makes possible a life-giving air, an atmosphere conducive to the growth and development of Missionary interest.

The environment which results from Missionary Education cannot be too strongly stressed. This can be illustrated by stories—stories that are true in the lives of many about us if we only know. A few weeks ago I had a letter from a young woman telling me that some years ago she had been called to be a foreign missionary but she received every discouragement from loved ones, from friends both in and out of the church. There was no environment in which this call could grow and develop.

A young man went away to a Christian school, and in this school was a remarkable Missionary Spirit—through study and instruction the boy caught the vision of the needs of the world, felt the call to go. He wrote a glowing letter home to his church about his call, and all with curiosity awaited his coming. The Sunday school superintendent wondered how long he would hold to his call. The fact is, in the course of a few months the boy was not so enthusiastic, because he had been frozen to death in his own church—no missionary environment there.

But there are other stories, and likewise true. A young lady felt the call to be a Missionary. Her church, a wide-awake Missionary one, said "How splendid that we are now to have a Missionary from our own ranks! We will arrange with the Board to pay all her expenses on the foreign field, for she will represent us there. But the father, a devoted Christian and a man of some means, said, "No, I feel that God has honored my home by calling my child and I will pay her expenses. You, the Church, pay another's expenses and let me care for my child while she is there."

Another man—hard working, but a prosperous dairyman, volunteered to pay the salary of a Missionary in China. Some years later, this Missionary was in school at Scarritt College, Nashville, Tenn. The first night she was there, at the dining table, she was introduced. The girl sitting to her right said, "Miss Ridgway? Are you Miss Bettie Ridgway? Then you are our Missionary." This was the daughter of the man who had paid my salary while I was in China, and she and another sister were there in school, both volunteers for foreign work. That night as I thought upon this, I said to myself, "No, this is not strange that these two girls are here. It is, is, but natural that they should be. This has been a missionary environment."

The third and last Why of Missionary Education that I will discuss with you is that Missionary Education gives the Missionary interest of the church its proper place. Somehow the people of the church have come to think of Missionary work as an extra—something to be taken part in, or not taken part in, just as one chooses, and that it doesn't make much difference which is done. Now this is a mistaken idea, and is not at all in line with the life and teaching of Christ. Our churches need to know that the Missionary Spirit is essential to Christian living. Someone has well said, "Whether one goes to a foreign field as a Missionary depends upon his call, his preparation, and his acceptance by a Mission Board. But whether a believer in Christ is a Missionary or not is never open to choice. To be a Christian in reality is to be a Missionary." Another has said that the only Apostle who did not become a Missionary became a traitor. I wonder if there would not be less backsliding, less indifference, less ignorance, if the membership of our churches, both men and women would ally themselves with the Missionary Auxiliary of their churches.

The Missionary Spirit as taught and lived by Jesus, will broaden one's vision, enlarge his sympathies, and cause him to be interested in winning men to God at home and everywhere, regardless of race or color. Jesus did not draw color lines; neither did he make distinctions as to home and foreign work. He said, "Go ye into all the world." Again, he said, "Ye shall be witnesses in Jerusalem, Judea, Samaria, and unto the uttermost parts of the world." Now Missionary Education emphasizes the Missionary Spirit which is essential to true Christian living; breaks down these barriers of color line and boundary line, and puts one's thinking and doing in harmony with the teaching and work of Jesus.

Now, in conclusion, may I add that if Missionary instruction is to be given, someone or some group must be responsible for the giving of it. And it seems to me if the Missionary Auxiliary has one opportunity greater than another it is the opportunity of seeing that its church is well informed along Missionary lines. It may work with and through other organizations, but work, it must. It should be the influence, the force, that sees to it that the entire membership of the church be instructed to the great Missionary interests of our denomination. And in the words of William A. Brown, "The controlling aim (or Why) of Missionary Education should be the development of a full-ordered Christian character, and the expression of that character in unselfish service." The Missionary Record.

KENDALL'S GERM GROWTH

By the simple process of feeding germs on what he calls medium K—a germ food consisting principally of the small intestine of man, dog, rabbit, etc.—Dr. Arthur Isaac Kendall, of Northwestern university, has discovered that he can make said germs grow from the invisible to the visible stage in from two to three weeks and disintegrate back into invisibility within 10 days or so. This discovery is hailed by scientists as "the greatest medical discovery" since Louis Pasteur. They claim it will place within reach of laboratory workers many heretofore elusive bacilli and make possible the discovery of the causes of many common diseases, such as influenza, the common cold, cancer, sleeping sickness, etc. Exchange.

SAVE YOUR EYES

By DR. JOHN T. CAMPBELL, Secretary N. C. State Board of Examiners in Optometry
"Color Blindness"

Color-blindness properly so-called is a matter of formation of the eye structures and cannot be modified by training or practice. It would be no more possible for a color-blind person to recognize colors than for a deaf person to recognize sounds. Fortunately, however, few people are totally color-blind, but many have weakened perception for one or more colors, most frequently red.

Besides true color-blindness we have temporary incapacity to distinguish color produced by disease and occasionally by the use of certain drugs. In some diseases of the brain and spine the loss of color vision is an early and important symptom and probably occurs more frequently than is supposed in temporary disturbances of these important parts.

Many who are color-blind for certain colors have been so for long periods without being conscious of the defects. It is very important that a defect which handicaps a person for certain positions in life be discovered early and it is therefore desirable that parents should test the color vision of their children from time to time. Not necessarily in any systematic way but by observing whether they can match colors correctly.

HOW DOES THE GILA MONSTER BITE?

The Gila monster, which inhabits the southwestern part of the United States, is the only lizard known to be venomous. The poison apparatus differs from that in snakes, which have the poison glands and fangs in the upper jaw. In the Gila monster a row of venom glands lie along the inside of the lower lip and the openings are near the bases of the grooved teeth. When the lizards bite they deliberately chew the object and cause a considerable amount of the poison to work into the wound through the channels of the teeth. Although the bite of the Gila monster has been known to cause death to man, as a rule the poison is not fatal to human beings, partly because the creature seldom has an opportunity to bite so large a victim and work the venom thoroughly into the wound. These lizards feed chiefly on other lizards of smaller species and on these the venom takes effect rapidly.—Pathfinder.

PRAYER

I love to steal away at the close of day and spend a while in secret prayer. Prayer is the sincere desire of the heart. We are so glad for the privilege of prayer. Jesus teaches us to pray, mother taught us in childhood to pray. The little child in its crib can be taught to lip the name of Jesus, the youth needs to pray, and even down in old age when sight and hearing may be gone we can still pray. There is no temptation so strong that prayer can't overcome. No heart so deep in sorrow prayer can't heal, no sin so vile that prayer can't reach. Many times has the hand of affliction been stayed by earnest prayers. Prayer can bring us close to God and closer to each other. How thankful we ought to be for the opportunity of prayer, at all times; in the morning we can lift our hearts in prayer, at the busy noon day, and in the shadowy evening. We are glad Jesus answers prayer. Let us thank God for the wonderful power in prayer.

IN HONOR OF THE DEAD

Nelson

Samuel L. Nelson, a Confed int. soldier, of Orange County, was born September 18, 1842, and died August 26, 1931. At the time of his death he was living with his daughter-in-law, Mrs. Fannie Nelson, of Mebane, Route 2.

Mr. Nelson joined the Hebron M. P. church in young manhood and remained a faithful and devoted member until his death. Truly we can say a good man has gone from us to wear an eternal crown in glory.

Mr. Nelson was married to Matilda Squires November 9, 1866. To this union four children were born. His wife and two children, Flet her and Lucy Nelson, preceded him to his grave.

Mr. Nelson leaves to mourn his passing the following children: Mrs. Sid Mebane and Mr. Paisley Nelson, of Mebane. One sister, Mrs. J. M. Thompson, survives; also many grandchildren and a large number of friends and relatives.

Funeral services were conducted from the Hebron church August 27th, at 11 o'clock by his pastor, R. A. B. M. Williams. Interment was made in the church cemetery beside his companion under many beautiful flowers. A large crowd of friends and relatives assembled to pay the last tribute of respect to this good man. We do not weep as those who have no hope, for we expect to meet Mr. Nelson again in that beautiful land of the blessed.

NANNIE McADAMS.

Seeking and Finding God

I sought for Him in sacred place
To see if He would show His face
Where men devout each week do meet
To pay their homage at His feet:
No form I saw, no voice I heard
Save just the echo of His word.

I traveled far to Holy Land
Where once His feet did press the sand
And day by day He spoke aloud
To all that formed the eager crowd:
All trace was gone, His voice was hushed,
And all my hopes again were crushed.

In inmost chamber of my soul
I heard a voice—"Wouldst thou be whole?"
The voice of God it proved to be,
Revealing God Himself to me;
Another word brought ecstasy—
"The pure in heart their God shall see."

St. Paul As Orator

The Book of Acts contains ample evidence that Paul was an orator of no mean ability. His speeches quoted are probably mere excerpts from those delivered, but they are sufficient to reveal his oratorical power. Most of them—perhaps all of them—are extemporaneous addresses, but they fit the occasion admirably. Whether he addresses rulers or mobs, he rises equal to the occasion. When he passes from a congregation of Jews to one of Gentiles he always adapts himself to the new audience. He at once detects the difference of background. The gospel of Christ is the same for all, but the mode of presenting it varies with the audience. He makes a distinction between the "most noble Festus" and the ignoble Felix. His mind was deep and discriminating. His preaching was not parrot-like repetition of words and phrases. He was a profound student of the truth to be presented. Those years in the solitudes of Arabia were not spent in vain. He studied profoundly the relation between Judaism and Christianity. He prepared himself both for Jewish opposition and for the diverse attitudes of the Gentile nations. He came to see in Christianity a religion for all mankind and was ready to preach it to men anywhere. He was able to speak in the tongue of the Jews or that of the Greeks. He knew what men were already thinking and knew how to lead them out in the ways of new truth. He was not abrupt but gradual in his transitions. He appealed not to passion or to prejudice but to reason. To the philosopher's discernment he added the philanthropist's devotion. He was an orator because he was a true-minded and true-hearted man. He could but speak the things he saw and knew. Such was his feeling of obligation to men that he said, Woe is me if I preach not the gospel! When he could not preach with his voice he preached with his pen. He did not allow prison confinement to rob the world of his testimony. He transformed prison dungeons into light houses of gospel truth. He saw in Jesus' gospel the light of the world. It must be spread to the ends of the earth. With such a faith and such an equipment he could not do otherwise than consecrate himself to the work of a Christian orator. He was an orator of highest aim and noblest achievement. History presents no parallel.

Value of the Bottom Dollar

The top dollar is easily spent. Immediately the next dollar becomes the top dollar and there is little sense of loss. But when the bottom dollar is reached the case is very different. There is nothing above or below to take its place. The bottom dollar is therefore peculiarly valuable. Its expenditure is accompanied by a distinct sense of loss. While it remains it seems to be a solid wall against destitution and distress. After it is gone, what is there to protect us?

Yet some are not afraid to spend the bottom dollar. The widow with only two mites attracted the eye of Jesus by spending at one time the top mite and the bottom mite. And she gave both to the Lord. Her merchant would have given her credit for only two mites: Jesus declared that she had contributed more than they all, including the rich men.

The best place to put your bottom dollar is the treasury of the Lord. No other institution pays so high a rate of interest, compounded so often.

—Rev. Robert S. Troxler is in Calvary church this week, preaching nightly and conducting morning devotional services. His preaching is plain and impressive, such as the common people hear gladly. He evidently feels the truth of what he is saying, and this goes a long way toward securing the acceptance of his message. We expect good results from his efforts, backed up by the prayers and personal work of church members.

—The Piedmont Ministers' Association had an interesting session in Grace Church, Greensboro, on Tuesday. One of the subjects discussed was Church Finances. They did not settle all questions arising in connection with it. Rev. H. W. Maier, pastor of Community Church, Thomasville, was re-elected president.

A VALUED POSSESSION; OLD HYMNAL OF THE METHODIST PROTESTANT CHURCH

By C. B. WAY

The writer has in his possession an old hymn book of the Methodist Protestant church, the gift of Mrs. Susan Gray, member of Harmony Grove church. The hymn book was published in 1882 under the title, "The Tribute of Praise and Methodist Protestant Hymn Book." Mrs. Gray is the widow of Armenius Gray, who was a son of Rev. Alson Gray, of sainted memory in the annals of history of the Methodist Protestant church in North Carolina.

The valued possession was edited by Dr. Eben Tourjee, and published by the Board of Publication of the Methodist Protestant Church in 1882, being copyrighted by the Pittsburgh Directory of the Board of Publication of the Methodist Protestant Church. From the Preface of the quaint hymnal, which was one among the earliest hymnals of our denomination, we gather this information: "When the founders of our Church organized under the Conventional Rules of 1828, they were, of course, without a denominational Hymn Book. J. J. Harrod, of Baltimore, Md., foreseeing the needs of the new Church, soon compiled a Hymn Book, which, by general consent, was used by the Church till 1834, when it was adopted by the General Conference as the Hymn Book of the Methodist Protestant Church. The General Conference of 1838 adopted another Book, compiled by T. H. Stockton. The General Conference of 1858 ordered the compilation of a new Book, by J. Varden, J. J. Murray, E. Y. Reese, L. Martin and E. G. Waters. When the Western Conferences, in 1858, suspended official relations with the General Conference, they ordered a new Hymn Book to be compiled by George Brown, A. H. Bassett, Joel Dalbey, S. W. Widney, and J. M. Mayall; and when they adopted the name of "The Methodist Church," in 1867, the first General Conference of that organization ordered the compilation of another book, by Alexander Clark, I. W. McKeever, Wm. Rinehart, and J. A. Dohrman. As soon as the Methodist Protestant and Methodist Churches were united by a joint convention in 1877, the universal sentiment seemed to obtain, that the United Church should sing from the same Book; and that that Book should be furnished with music adapted to the hymns; and the General Conference of 1880 appointed a committee to compile such a Book, with authority, however, "to adopt a Book already published" if they should find one that in their judgment would meet the wants of the Church. In pursuance of said duty, and by said authority, they present this volume, under the title of 'The Tribute of Praise and Methodist Protestant Hymn Book'."

The hymnal contains some of the hymns which are in our hymnal in use today, such as "Sun of My Soul, Thou Saviour Dear," "From Every Stormy Wind That Blows," "When I Survey the Wondrous Cross," "How Sweet the Name of Jesus Sounds," "O For a Thousand Tongues to Sing," "Come Holy Spirit, Heavenly Dove," "All Hail the Power of Jesus' name," "Alas, and did my Saviour bleed," etc.

There are 728 hymns in the book containing the music, and a supplement containing hymns without the music, bringing the total number of hymns in the book to 807. Following this there are twenty selections for chanting, and this selection is followed by Te Deum, and a Short Responsive Exercise, closing with Gloria in Excelsis.

On the fly leaf of the old hymnal is contained the following inscription: "Mrs. E. E. Gray, Fairfield Church, The Tribute of Praise, March 7, 1886, Jamestown, N. C."

THE DESIRE FOR MONEY AN OBSESSION

By R. M. ANDREWS

There is a very ancient saying, "The love of money is the root of all evil," which many of us church folks seem to have forgot. If a visitor from Mars were to come to us, and could understand our speech, not knowing anything else about our world, he would doubtless think that the one indispensable thing, the one thing without which man could not exist upon this globe was money.

On the streets we speak of it or of its cognate words with a frequency and fervor that belie our words when we urge men to "Seek first the kingdom of God and his righteousness" with the assurance when the kingdom comes, all the temporal things of life so necessary to our bodily existence will be added unto us.

If we were all heathen, had never heard of God as the giver of every good and perfect gift, as the God of all mercy, the God of love, whose everlasting arms are beneath us, then our disquiet, our lack of faith in Him and our faith in the god of mammon might be justified.

There is no difference between the church member and the non-church member in this unrest over the depression. Let us hear the words of the old prophet Hab. 3:17. 18 "Although the fig tree shall not blossom, neither shall fruit be in the vines; the labor of the olive shall fail, and the fields shall yield no meat; the flock shall be cutoff from the fold, and there shall be no herd in the stalls: Yet I will rejoice in the Lord, I will joy in the God of my salvation."

These words ought to be a tonic to an enervated people. If the situation should come to us which the prophet described, could we classify with him?

But it has not come. People have not yet felt the pinch enough to sacrifice their luxuries of life. A merchant told me of a man who bought a carton of cigarettes and a twelve pound sack of flour. It took all his money to pay for both. He was asked why he did not leave off the cigarettes and buy more groceries, replied he would rather do without bread than his cigarettes.

There were 115,379,197,870,000 cigarettes sold last year; just a few billion less than the banner year, 1929. The moving picture theatres took in over a billion dollars last year; the American people bought 1,570,387,563 pounds of candy, besides the pop, the chewing gum, the chewing tobacco, the millions spent for joy riding over the country. All of which they could have done without.

These very spendthrifts, these people who squander their money on such things and withhold from the grocer, the rent man and the church, are among those who cry hard times loudest. It is time that we push this phantom from before our minds and adjust ourselves to the conditions of our times and return to the Lord and go to employing our time at something more fruitful than wailing hard times. It never helps us to cry hardtimes, it is a waste of time to talk about the depression—you and I can't cure it except as we change our ways. I know it displeases God and it hurts us; so let's promise to quit. I pledge you my best endeavor; will you pledge to quit?

SOME QUESTIONS ABOUT CHURCH UNION

As it is nearing the time of the sitting of our Annual Conference when representatives to the General Conference will be elected at which session the question of union will be discussed, and I hope settled—it seems to me that it is time that we of the Methodist Protestant membership should be informed of the status of this important question.

What action was taken when the commissioners of the M. E. and M. P. churches met in Chicago recently? And what did that action mean?

Equal rights has been at the masthead of the Methodist Protestant church for more than a hundred years. Was anything said in that about guaranteeing those rights? If so what?

What about the presiding eldership? Is it to continue in its present form? Will we be allowed a voice in their selection? or will we be obliged to take whoever is sent to us by an authority that we have nothing to do with creating?

What will be the standing of our ministers? Having been elected and ordained elders will they still be elders of equal standing with all others? or will they be probationers to be taken in to full fellowship at some later time? How about property rights? Will the local members own and control their property? or will some other power, "Buy, build, repair, sell, lease, or otherwise procure and dispose of the property?"

How about High Point College into which some of our people have put almost their life blood? Will it still carry on fitting our young people for the work that a beneficent heavenly Father has for them to do? How about the Children's home? Will homeless little ones still find home life and care? Will its doors be opened to all races, creeds and colors?

Will Bethel Home still be a refuge for ailing Christian young men?

It is time for positive knowledge, not guess or surmise, but answers after which Q. E. D. may be written.

C. H. WHITAKER, SR.

YOUR MENTAL ATTITUDE

By GRENVILLE KLEISER

Your mental attitude is a great determining influence in your daily life. Begin the day with an expectant and energetic mental attitude towards your work, plans, and purposes, and it will elevate and enhance all your activities. The spirit in which you regard your fellowmen and the world about you will be reflected back to you. When you are in the right mental attitude, many things will seem to conspire and cooperate to advance your work and interests. Primarily it is your mental attitude which makes the day happy and productive, or the contrary. You can demonstrate the truth of this today by resolving to look only for the best, to be intelligently optimistic, and to have confidence in the eternal supremacy of good.

In your consciousness you conduct the great commerce of daily thought. Every thought you think and cultivate contributes something to the sum today of your life. Your mind has a certain capacity for thought. To clear your mind of erroneous, useless, destructive thoughts, substitute and diligently cultivate right thoughts. Take one wrong thought at a time and patiently substitute for it the opposite right thought. The divine counsel is to overcome evil with good. This is the supreme command. If the offense comes in the form of injustice, envy, suspicion, selfishness, dishonesty, or revenge, instantly apply the remedy of thinking only good and the seeming miracle will take place. You can demonstrate this truth for yourself.

The significance of your good thoughts may not now be wholly apparent to you, but as such thoughts are multiplied day by day there will come to you a realization of their value in producing greatness of character. Every good thought you think is contributing its share to the ultimate result of your life. Constantly guard your mind, therefore, against destructive ideas, and store it with helpful, progressive, constructive thoughts. The good thought you think is its own reward, since every such thought has an uplifting influence upon your life. Obviously the only remedy for wrong thoughts is the substitution of right thoughts. As your thought becomes spiritualized, you will wish to give more love, loyalty, and service to God.

To cultivate a beautiful garden you must uproot all weeds and other unlovely things. This is best done not by sitting down and studying the origin of such weeds and ascertaining their names and number, but by patient and diligent work in pulling them up by the roots and ridding your garden of them forever. Likewise to cultivate a beautiful mind you must uproot and cast from you all mental weeds and other unlovely thoughts, such as pride, envy, impatience, fear, resentment, and selfishness. Then you must plant and carefully cultivate in your mental garden seeds of kindness, goodness, love, purity, humility, reverence, and righteousness. As you persevere in this work, your mind will gradually unfold into beauty and fragrance, and your life will be blessed.

WHY I TITHE

By REV. NEILL G. STEVENS

I tithe because I believe that the Bible teaches this method of giving. To be sure, it was the plan used in the Old Testament times. There it is emphatically declared that "the tithe is holy unto the Lord." Abraham is well as his grandson, Jacob, adopted this method. When Israel failed to honor God with the tithe complaint was made against them that they were robbing God. Thus when I tithe I practice a method used by some grand old patriarchs and am not guilty of robbing God.

It may be said that the New Testament is more or less silent on this subject. However, Jesus approved that plan of stewardship when He said: "You ought not to leave these undone, but should have also done the more important matters of the law, judgment, mercy and faith." One cannot easily conceive of Jesus asking less of His followers than was required under the old dispensation. Indeed, the requirement made to one was to give all and follow Him. I want at least to reach the minimum standard of giving.

Another reason why I tithe is because of the blessings promised to tithers. I believe that as God contracted with His people in olden times that if they would bring their tithes He would pour upon them heavily blessings. He offers the same bargains to us today. The unanimous testimony of tithers seems to be that God always keeps His part of the contract.

I also tithe because I am selfish and that selfishness is partly outdone when I adopt a program of unselfish giving. The calls of the Church will arouse the better part of my nature and find an apter response if I am a tither.

Then I want to have a share in making the world better and my small tithe with thousands of others will do much to that end.

I tithe because I can give more cheerfully when I know what amount I have to give.

I tithe because it is a fair method. Those who have only a little give accordingly, while those who have much give in the same ratio. It means, "much from some, but something from all."

I tithe because it puts a business element in my religious program. I know exactly how much I can give. It also seems to make the other nine-tenths do more.

I tithe because of my gratitude to the Church. It was through the Church's influence that I found myself, for which I am grateful enough to support the Kingdom of God with my tithe. "And of all that Thou shalt give I will surely give the tenth unto Thee."

HOFFMAN'S BOY CHRIST

There was a man in New York who had been so fortunate as to get a copy of Hoffmann's "Jesus in the Temple" soon after it was painted, and he kept it on his desk in his office. A judge of one of the superior courts of Massachusetts went to his lawyer's office on a matter of business. As the two men talked the judge's eye rested on the picture until it seemed hard for him to attend to business; but at last the business was settled and the judge left the office. Several hours later he returned to the office and asked "to look at that Boy again." For an hour he sat and looked at that picture. The next day he came again in the man's office and said, "I want to see that Boy again." He was given the picture, and retired into a private room adjoining the office. Having occasion later to go into the room, the man found the judge sitting with the picture on his knees, his eyes filled with tears. When the judge came back into the office his eyes still were full of tears, and handing back the picture, he said, "That Boy has mastered me."—The Epworth Herald.

PRAYER

As I sit in my study the "Angelus" of the local Catholic church is ringing out its call to prayer. This custom of the church has been a source of inspiration to me.

In the morning at 6 the notes of this bell peal through the open window, day after day, arousing me from my slumbers. At noon it reminds me that the hours of study are over and lunch awaits. At evening when I come home from the afternoon calling, I retire for a few moments to the study. Soon I hear again the evening bell announcing that it is 6 p. m., and the dinner hour is at hand.

Above all these material and physical things of life my mind always pauses in its activities for prayer when this bell rings. I hope that on the glorious resurrection, when the dead in Christ shall rise, it may be my privilege to hear the bells of Heaven calling the believers out of their earthly slumbers.

Why do we not ring the bells of the Protestant churches more frequently, and proclaim to our constituency that the Church is calling its members to prayer in the Name of the Lord Jesus Christ?—Irvin C. Wise, Minister of the First Presbyterian Church, Frankfort, Ky.

UNKNOWN RICHES

Gustaf Gillman, a Chicago lapidary, was at work in his shop. John Mihok of Omaha entered. His appearance proclaimed the laborer. Reaching into his pocket, he drew out a rough, red stone and handed it to Gillman.

"I want you to cut and polish this," he said.

Gillman's eyes almost popped out of his head.

"Where did you get this?" he gasped.

"My father picked it up in Hungary fifty years ago," replied Mihok. "He thought it was a pretty pebble. When I landed in this country in 1903, I found it in my valise. I guess my mother had chucked it in. It has been lying around my house ever since. The children played with it. My last baby cut his teeth on it. Once a rat dragged it into a hole and I found it by accident. It was lost several times but it always bobbed up again. I came to look on it as my luck stone. One night I dreamed it was a diamond and worth a lot of money. But it's not a diamond,—it's red."

"No," said Gillman, "it's a pigeon's blood ruby."

"What might it be worth?" asked Mihok.

"I'd say anywhere from $100,000 to $250,000," answered Gillman and Mihok leaned against the door.

The big rough stone was cut to a flawless ruby of 23 9-10 carats. It is believed to be the largest ruby in this country and possibly the largest in the world.

John Mihok has been a laborer all his life. Michael Mihok, his father, was a laborer before him. For fifty years, father and son toiled to keep the wolf from the door and all the while they have had in their careless possession a gem that an emperor might have coveted.

You have in your possession the priceless Word of God, with its wealth of promises and riches. Are you drawing upon it? They are YOURS to draw upon!—The Prairie Pastor.

Mrs. D. M. Loy Passes

We have just learned, through Brother P. E. Bingham, of the passing of Sister Loy. Her death occurred at Littleton, August 5, at the home of her son, Mr. Arthur Barnes. Brother Bingham conducted the funeral service, and interment followed in the Littleton cemetery. Sister Loy had been a sufferer for a number of months. She was a good woman and has no doubt entered upon her eternal reward. An obituary committee will be promptly appointed.

Boundary Committee

Dr. Dixon, the chairman of this committee, has called a meeting to be held in First Church, High Point, October 8, at 2 p. m. He urges all charges that have business with this committee to have their matter in writing before the committee, or be present in person to present it. Owing to this money stringency, we were under the necessity last year of merging a few charges in order to provide livings for pastors, and also to relieve the strain of local financial burdens. We may have to resort to that in some cases this year. The Boundary Committee is charged with the responsibility of making these adjustments. The committee wants to act in harmony with the wishes of the people, and to the best interest of all matters concerned. Charges that are interested in boundary changes will please not overlook this meeting October 8th.

Rally Day

We trust that many of our churches are preparing to observe this day. The program furnished by the Board of Education is unusually interesting this year. Especially is this true of us in North Carolina, as it features High Point College. The Board is being very generous in its support of the College, and we should reciprocate by observing this day, and making the offering for Christian Education just as generous as possible. Of course, it is understood that we take credit for the offering on the New Century Service budget of the local church. The observing of this day is evidently worthwhile, and we urge again that it be done in all of our churches.

Finances

"Raising money is not the business of the church, but it is a business of the church."—Dr. T. H. Lewis. No one will take issue, of course, with Dr. Lewis on this matter. We all know that the church can not live without material support. God never designed that it should live and do its work apart from this. We must adjust ourselves to that fact, or place ourselves out of harmony with God's plan. There is no other alternative. We are now in that period of our conference year when we raise the major part of our finances. Up to this time very little has been done, except on salaries.

It is gratifying to know that in many instances salaries are up with last year for this corresponding period. We regret to say, however, that this is not true in all charges. But much can be done during these remaining seven weeks toward meeting these obligations. These large year-end deficits are not new to us. Our custom is to put off this matter until this period. But we can't put it off longer. We are now in our "pay-up" period, and we must get busy and in earnest about these financial obligations. And we must not be deterred unduly by the fact that money is tight. Other things go on; so must the church. It is the one thing that is most indispensable to us always, and particularly in a time like this, when society is in a state of unrest and uncertainty. And it may be true that there is more money for the church than we think. At any rate, it is our business to wisely, tactfully, and prayerfully press the matter, and look to God and to His people for results. We can do no more than that; but we must not do less.

Pastors' Federation

We were in the meeting of the Eastern Federation Monday, September 14, at Littleton. Dr. T. M. Johnson, the chairman, was in charge of the meeting. Other pastors and ministers present were Thompson, Bingham, Fogleman, Hunter, Spencer, Braxton, Lowdermilk. Only two pastors of the district were absent. Brother J. E. Carroll was present as a visitor. The discussions centered around the spiritual condition of the churches in this part of the conference, and the financial prospects for the year. These pastors have been earnest in prosecuting the work of their respective charges, and the spiritual results are gratifying. Financially the results are not so good. The economic depression has been more acute in this section than in some other parts of the conference, and the present low prices of farm products do not help the prospects of the church. However, there is an abundant food harvest in this section, and that fact should in a measure relieve the financial strain of the people, and release more money for the church. The meeting was helpful in every way, and each pastor went back to his field with renewed purpose, we are sure, to press the work for the best closing possible. We regret not to be with its pastors of the Central Federation in their meeting at Grace church today (Tuesday).

The Western Federation meets at Albemarle September 28. It is highly important that every pastor of that district attend that meeting—the last one of this conference year.

With Our Eastern Churches

We are now on a ten-day visitation tour among our Eastern churches. Two charges were visited Sunday, and at this writing we are on the Littleton charge. But we must defer report on these churches until next week as this letter is already sufficiently long to fill up our HERALD space.

Finally

We bespeak for our pastors, our church officials, and our congregations, confidence and courage for the work yet to be done. We have access to the source of all help, and in Him and with Him, we shall be sufficient for every duty, every responsibility, and every task that is ours. In that confidence we conquer.

THE MISSIONARY POTATO

It wasn't a very large church, and it wasn't nicely furnished. No carpet on the floor, no frescoing on the walls; just a plain, square, bare, frame building, away out on the prairie. To this church came James and Stephen Holt every Sunday.

On this particular Sunday they stood together over by the square box-stove, waiting for Sunday School to commence, and talking about the missionary collection that was to be taken up. It was something new for the poor church; they were used to having collections taken up for them. However, they were coming up in the world, and wanted to begin to give. Not a cent had the Holt boys to give.

"Pennies are as scarce at our house as hens' teeth," said Stephen, showing a row of white, even teeth as he spoke. James looked doleful. It was hard on them, he thought, to be the only ones in the class who had nothing to give. He looked around the old church. What should he spy, lying in one corner of a seat, but a potato.

"How in the world did that potato get to church?" he said, nodding his head towards it. "Somebody must have dropped it that day we brought things here for the poor folks. I say, Steve, we might give that potato. I suppose it belongs to us as much as to anybody."

Stephen turned and gave a long, thoughtful look at the potato.

"That's an idea," he said eagerly. "Let's do it!"

James expected to see a roguish look on his face, but his eyes and mouth said, "I'm in earnest!"

"Honor bright?" asked James.

"Yes, honor bright."

"How? Split it in two, and each put half on the plate."

"No," said Stephen, laughing; "we can't get it ready to give today, I guess; but suppose we carry it home and plant it in the nicest spot we can find, and take extra care of it, and give every potato it raises to the missionary cause."

Full of this new plan, they went into the class looking less sober than before; and, though their faces were rather red, when the box was passed to them, and they had to shake their heads, they thought of the potato, and looked at each other and laughed.

Somebody must have whispered to the earth and the dew and the sunshine about that potato. You never saw anything grow like it. "Beats all," said Farmer Holt, who was let into the secret. "If I had a twenty-acre lot that would grow potatoes like that, I should make my fortune."

When harvesting came, would you believe that there were forty-one good, sound, splendid potatoes in that hill? Another thing: while the boys were picking them up, they talked over the grand mass meeting for missions that was to be held in the church next Thursday, an all-day meeting. The little church had had a taste of the joy of giving, and was prospering, as she had not before. Now for a big meeting, to which speakers from Toronto were coming. James and Stephen had their plans made. They washed the forty-one potatoes carefully; they wrote out in their best hand this sentence forty-one times:

"This is a missionary potato; its price is ten cents; it is from the best stock known. It will be sold only to one who is willing to take a pledge that he will plant it in the spring and give every one of its children to the missions. Signed, James and Stephen Holt."

Each shining potato had one of these slips smoothly pasted to its plump side. Didn't those potatoes go off, though! By 3 o'clock on Thursday afternoon not one was left, though a gentleman from Toronto offered to give a gold dollar for one.

That afternoon James and Stephen Holt each put two dollars and five cents into the collection, and from that day to this they both have had a thriving missionary garden.—Daybreak.

HEARD THE MUSIC OF DELIVERANCE

There is an oft-told story of the relief of Lucknow. With-in the besieged city the English, with their women and children, were starving and dying. Surrounding them were the savage hosts of the fiendish Nana Sahib, more cruel than the tigers that lurked in the surrounding jungles. It was the hour of utter desperation, when suddenly Jessie Brown, the corporal's wife, put her hand to her ear and cried, "Dina ye hear it! The pipes of Havelock! The Campbells are coming!" For a long time none else could hear, and all thought her deluded, when at last, sure enough, there burst on their ears the shrill cry of the bagpipes, and soon the kilted Highland soldiery, under Havelock and Outram, entered and rescued the fated city from worse than death. So was the world beleaguered and dying. Old prophets, bending their ears to the earth, heard the coming music of deliverance, until at last angel choristers sang it out in the midnight of the world's woe, and early in the morning of the earth's fairest day the Great Deliverer burst the gates of our bondage, and led the way to life.—Dr. George Elliott.

OUR STORY PAGE

A PAYING INVESTMENT

"Father, Jack Adams told me his father had sold that bit of land on the north side of town."

"Did he?"

"Yes, and he's made such a good thing of it. Doubled on his price."

"Indeed!"

"And after holding it only two years! Jack says his father is a great man for investments. I suppose he'll be a rich man some day, just by putting money in the right place. It goes on and makes itself. I wish, father, that you had some money to put into things that way."

"I am making what I think about the best investment I can of what I have."

"Investment? Why, father, I didn't know you had any of your money invested."

"I have though."

"Why, I've often heard mother say that it takes about all you can make for us to live."

"Your mother is right, there," said the father, with a smile.

"Well," said Ned, who had become warmly interested in business topics, "do you mean it is money you put into something some time ago?"

"Yes; I began a number of years ago, and I'm keeping it up yet."

"Oh, that's good," said Ned. "And has it been a good investment, father? Does it keep on doubling, and are you going to make a real good thing of it some time? Do you get any returns from it yet?"

"A good many questions to answer," said his father, a little gravely. "Yes, your mother and I think we are getting something in the way of returns already. We hope that it is going to keep doubling, as you express it. As to being a good thing some time in the future, the future must tell its own tale; but if the hopes we cherish are fulfilled, we shall have a thousand-fold on our investment."

"You certainly must have a good thing. Now I am old enough to understand about such things. I wish, if you don't object, you'd tell me what your investment is."

"I don't object at all. We are investing in you and your brothers."

"Oh!" Ned drew a little breath of surprise.

"Yes," his father went on quietly. "Three boys are a good deal of an investment, you can readily understand—an investment on which continual payments are necessary, and are to be made regularly."

"I see," said Ned, slowly and thoughtfully. "There are clothes and shoes and school books; house for us to live in; everything we eat. It keeps you going all the time does it not, father?"

"It seems to," said father, with a smile.

"And mother, she's always busy. She sees to everything.

There would not be a bit of comfort if she were not at the head of things. Hundreds of dollars every year we cost. Father, if you did not have us boys, you'd have a lot of money for other things."

"Yes, I am putting it into you."

"And we're your investment," Ned appeared to be grappling with the thought. "Well, I don't see, father, that you're getting much out of it, yet."

"When you are dutiful and obedient, showing a loving appreciation of what is being done for you, we feel that we are not making a poor investment."

"Well, I tell you"—Ned put on a calculating expression—"looking at it from a business point of view, it's a good while to wait, twelve to fourteen years, to get a little return for money put into a thing—and where you have to put in more and more all the time."

"Mother would tell you," said the father, laying a hand on the boy's head, "that you are loving and attentive to her, looking out for every opportunity of being helpful and comforting, and that is 100 percent to her. Possibly she would make it an even thousand."

"Dear mother!" Ned said, with a face full of earnest resolve.

"And if you go on as we hope you will, if your brothers grow up to be good men, being regular in your attendance at both school and church, and doing your best to make the world better, wiser and happier because of your being in it, what sort of percentage to be derived will that be to us?"

"Well,"—Ned spoke in a pause—"I never looked on myself as an investment before, but I guess it's very much like it. You and mother are putting about all the money you have into us boys. All your money, and the money does not begin to be all."

"I'm glad," added the boy, earnestly, "that we ourselves can help in seeing to it that your investment is a good one, and I will give you my word that I shall do the best I know how."—Publisher Unknown.

A TOWN WITHOUT JESUS

Would you like to live in a town where Jesus, our wonderful Saviour, is not known? Children in our great and large country cannot even think what kind of a town such a town would be.

A man who likes to write things for children to read relates a very pretty story which tells us some of the things that would be missing in such a town.

Little Hettie, this story tells us, had a model village, and she never tired of setting it up.

"What kind of a town is that, Hettie?" asked her father.

"Oh, a Christian town," answered Hettie quickly. Hettie did not want any other town and would not want to live in any other town. But her father said:

"Suppose we make it a theathen town. What must we take out of it?"

"The church," said Hettie, taking it to one side.

"Is that all?"

"I suppose so."

"No, indeed," her father said. "The public school must go. Take the public library out also."

"Anything else?" Hettie asked, sadly.

"Isn't that a hospital over there?"

"But, father, don't they have hospitals?"

"Not in heathen countries. It was Christ who taught us to care for the sick and the old."

"Then I must take out the Old Ladies' Home," said Hettie very soberly.

"Yes, and that Orphans' Home at the other end of town."

"Why, father," Hettie exclaimed, "then there's not one good thing left! I would not live in such a town for anything."

Nor would any of us. For beside all this, a town that didn't have Jesus Christ in it would miss many other beautiful things. No one could tell how many lovely things would be lacking if Jesus Christ did not abide in the town by His people.

There wouldn't be any Sunday School, for example. We would never hear little children singing, and it is very doubtful whether anybody else would sing. They wouldn't have the kind of happiness that makes people sing. A great many of the prettiest hymns ever written were written about Christ, and because people loved Christ. Oh, there are thousands and thousands of such hymns, and children sing them all around the earth.

And there would not be any Christmas trees. There was no Christmas before Christ was born into the world. He was a little baby and He was born in a stable, where cattle stayed at night to give them shelter and to make them safe. And the angels sang a beautiful song. If Christ had not come, there would be no singing, even at Christmas.

So we see what a difference Christ makes in the world. People are kind to one another, and love one another, because of it, and that is the very greatest thing of all.—Hill Craig, in the Christian Evangelist.

TOO BUSY TO PRAY

This we hear often in our days of hurry. All is rush in the modern world. The great driving power is the god of this age, for it is still true "the world lieth in the wicked one." God's children must ever be on their guard against hurry. "He that believeth shall not make haste" (Is. 28:16). When we are very busy in temporal things we should be more busy in prayer. That rugged old German, Dr. Martin Luther, remarked one day, "I have so much to do today that I shall never get through it with less than three hours' prayer." He had not used so much time to pray in an ordinary day, but on his busiest day he realized the need of more prayer.

It is said of Henry Havelock that every morning when the march began at six, he rose at four, that he might have time for reading the Scriptures and for prayer. If we have no time we must make time, for if God has given us time for earthly duties, He also has given us time for spiritual duties. There is no real need to sacrifice any duty, we have time enough for all, if we are not idle; the one will help the other.

When Edward Payson was a student at college, he found he had so much to do to attend his classes and prepare examinations, that he could not spend as much time as he should in private prayer; but, at last, waking up to the feeling that he was going back in Divine things through his habits, he took due time for devotion, and he asserts in his diary that he did more in his studies in a single week after he had spent time with God in prayer, than he had accomplished in twelve months before. God can multiply our ability to make use of time. If we give the Lord His due, we shall have enough for all necessary purposes. All our other engagements and duties will run smoothly if we do not forget our engagement with the Lord.—Our Hope.

THE MASTER'S "GO," AND "COME"

"Go ye into all the world, and preach the Gospel to every creature" (Mark 16:15).

"Rise up, my love, my fair one, and come away" (S. of Sol. 2:10).

Go forth, go forth ye workers—

Ye heralds of the Lord,

And spread through all creation

God's mighty saving Word;

With lavish hand cast forth the seed,

The time is short, and great the need.

Go forth ye glad proclaimers

Of God's eternal Son,

And labor in His vineyard

Until the day is done.

Beside all waters sow the seed,

And He will bless your work indeed.

Go forth, go forth ambassadors,

Your worthy Lord make known;

You represent a lofty cause—

God's grace at Calvary shown.

Bright angels fain would sweep through time

And do your work—'tis so sublime.

Soon will your toiling season

Come to a happy close—

The Lord shall call His workers

To share His sweet repose—

His glad "well done" will then repay

What's done for Him on life's rough way.

—C. C. Crowston.

I CAN KEEP FROM SWEARING

A lad in Boston, rather small for his age, works in an office as an errand-boy for four gentlemen who do business there. One day the gentlemen were chaffing him a little about being so small, and said to him: "You never will amount to much; you never can do much business; you are too small."

"Well," said he, "small as I am, I can do something which none of you four men can do."

"Ah, what is that?" they asked.

"I don't know that I ought to tell you," he replied.

But they were anxious to know, and urged him to tell what he could do that none of them was able to do.

"I can keep from swearing!" said the little fellow.

The four gentlemen did not question him any further.—The Sign.

WOMAN'S MISSIONARY DEPARTMENT

MISSIONARY EDUCATION

Everybody should be interested in this splendid article by one of our young ministers. It is indeed encouraging to know that our young men are taking a lead in this great work. Women of N. C. Branch, let's fall in line in greater numbers and do this part of the Lord's work with all our might.

MRS. H. C. NICHOLSON, Sec'y.

MISSIONARY EDUCATION IN THE LOCAL CHURCH

Missionary education is an important element in a well-balanced program of Christian education. Missionary activity in the local church depends upon the knowledge that the people have of the work on the mission field and the understanding they have of the missionary spirit of Christianity. These facts must be brought to the minds of the people by an educational process.

As missions are a very important part of the total program of the church, missionary education should be included in all the educational agencies of the church. The pastor should take a lead in this work. He should preach at least two sermons every year on missions. From time to time he should refer to missions when his subject is on the general work of the church. Too, he can lead in missionary education by teaching a mission-study class.

The Sunday school teacher needs to be prepared to lead an intelligent discussion on the subject of missions as the opportunity often comes to discuss this subject in the study of the Sunday school lesson.

The curriculum of the Vacation Church School should contain material on the missionary spirit, because children will soon become interested in this work if they are taught in the right way.

More stress is being put on missionary education in the Young People's Societies. First, they strive to get information before the group by encouraging reading of missionary books and magazines and holding study-classes. Plays and pageants are also used to give information to the group. Second, they strive to turn this information into expression. Service activities and stewardship are stressed in the program of the society. "Missionary Methods for Young People," by Viola Ogden, will give some very helpful suggestions to the missionary committee of the local society. This little booklet may be purchased from the International Society of Christian Endeavor for 25 cents.

The Missionary Society should promote missionary education. The first duty of the society is to gather helpful material and study it carefully. Every member should read at least one good missionary book and the denominational missionary magazine. It would be a splendid thing if every society would get at least one copy of the "Missionary Review of the World," published at 156 Fifth avenue, New York City. Then the society should put on interesting programs. Never let the meetings lack interest or information.

One of the great duties of the church today is to put on a program of missionary education for all the group and not for the few. May we strive to promote this program in our churches from this time forth.

T. J. WHITEHEAD,

Pastor Saxapahaw Charge.

YARBOROUGH CHAPEL CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR

The interest and attendance of our Christian Endeavor has been unusually good during the summer months, though with the return of the fall considerable more interest is being shown in the society.

We had a very interesting meeting on Sunday evening, August 30, led by Miss Eunice Gossette. There were about 60 present. A very helpful talk was made by Rev. W. Q. Grigg, of Colridge, N. C., a visitor at our service.

On Sunday evening, September 6, the meeting was led by Miss Lois Watson. A splendid talk was made on the topic, "The Meaning and Place of Worship," by Hugh Watson, a member of our society who will leave this week to resume his studies at Wofford college.

VERA P. WILSON,

Corresponding Secretary.

WESTERN DISTRICT PASTORS' FEDERATION

The Western District Pastors' Federation will be at Albemarle M. P. church on Monday, September 28, beginning at 10:30. Dr. R. M. Andrews, the chairman, is preparing a good program for the meeting. Dr. S. W. Taylor will be with us at that time. All pastors in this Federation are urged to be present. The following, and possibly others, are in this Federation:

Andrews, Cranford, Curry, Helms, Henderson, Hendry, Hill, Isley, Millaway, Morgan, Morris, Ridge, Short, Surratt, Troxler, Williams, Broom, Ferree, Bingham, Joyner, and Love.

FROM PASTORS and PEOPLE

Level Cross.—We closed our meeting Friday night. We began the first Sunday with Rev. Robert Short as pulpit help, and good help he is. He did real Gospel preaching. I am sure all enjoyed his preaching. I have never heard any better—yet some refused to heed. There were four conversions.

Our special meeting will begin at New Salem next Sunday with Rev. H. L. Isley as pulpit help.

T. A. WILLIAMS.

Friendship Station.—Although it has been some time since we reported, we are still very much alive at Friendship and are still hearing soul-inspiring sermons by our pastor, Rev. O. B. Williams.

Our young people have organized a Christian Endeavor society which is proving a splendid success with Bill Snotherly as president.

The Ladies' Aid is doing wonderful work. Had a splendid meeting at the parsonage Wednesday evening.

We are still trying to get our finances in readiness for the Annual Conference. The members of the board of stewards are wide awake and we feel sure that our church will be able to present a creditable report.

Mrs. D. W. Sides is our delegate to the Conference. A number of other members are planning to attend the Annual Conference.

REPORTER.

Friendship, Shiloh Charge.—Our Sunday school is still growing in number. We are having large attendance. We are very sorry indeed to note that our most efficient Sunday school superintendent, Mr. W. M. Byerly, has been unable to be with us for the past two weeks. We pray for him to have a speedy recovery.

Our devoted pastor, Rev. R. S. Troxler, filled his appointment Sunday morning at 11 o'clock, preaching a most forceful sermon. His text was taken from the 9th chapter of Luke, 24th verse: "For whosoever will save his life shall lose it; but whosoever will lose his life for my sake the same shall save it." Every one present enjoyed the great message. After the service Brother Troxler opened the doors of the church and three united with the church. We are very glad to welcome in our church Miss Bertha Delapp, of Goodhope M. E. church, Miss Ollie May Call, of Reeds Baptist church, and Rilda Wood, one of our Sunday school girls.

The C. E. Society had a fine lesson Sunday night—"What Should Our Meetings Accomplish?"—with Miss Addie Short as leader.

ADELE PHILLIPS, Reporter.

West Forsyth.—We had fairly good attendance at Tabernacle and Union Hill churches last Sunday. Also there was a large crowd present to witness the baptizing in the Yal-kin River near the concrete bridge on Highway 60. Four persons from Harmony Grove church and one girl from Elm Grove M. E. church were baptized by the writer. It was a very impressive service.

Mrs. T. L. Speas and Mrs. L. W. Geringer, of Maple Springs Methodist Protestant church, were present at Tabernacle church last Sunday morning and assisted in the organization of a Woman's Auxiliary for that church. Officers elected for the new organization are as follows: Mrs. R. P. Petree, president; Mrs. J. W. Masencup, vice-president; Miss Opal Whitman, secretary; Miss Ethel George, treasurer. The meetings are to be held just after Sunday school for a while.

The Woman's Auxiliary at Baltimore church was re-organized the first Sunday in this month with Mrs. Azzia Doub as president. We did not learn the names of the other officers elected. There are now three auxiliaries on the charge.

The service at Pleasant Hill next Sunday morning will be in the form of a thank offering service under the auspices of the Woman's Auxiliary. A program is being prepared for the service.

The annual revival meeting will begin at Harmony Grove church the fourth Sunday in this month. Rev. D. I. Garner, pastor of St. Paul church, Greensboro, has been engaged to do the preaching during the meeting.

C. B. WAY, Pastor.

Winston, First.—In our fourth quarterly conference some weeks ago it was found that Brother S. E. Hauser had been elected delegate to our next Annual Conference. Brother Hauser was the delegate last year and we do not know whether the people thought he did such a good job last year that they ought to send him again, or whether he did such a poor one they are sending him back to let him redeem himself.

On the first Sunday in this month Rev. H. F. Surratt, a former pastor, preached for us both morning and evening. Mrs. Surratt accompanied her husband and they remained with us at the parsonage through Tuesday afternoon. It was a great pleasure to have them.

The program is now finished for the service the first Sunday in October in honor of the editor of the Herald. President Taylor will be here to bring the greetings of the Annual Conference. Mrs. W. C. Hammer will speak for the women of the N. C. Conference. Mr. Sanford Martin, editor of the Winston-Salem Journal and Sentinel, will bring greetings from the secular press of the state, and Rev. A. W. Plyler, of Greensboro, editor of the Christian Advocate, will speak for the religious press of the state. The service will start at 11 o'clock and we are inviting our friends elsewhere to come to the service.

We are deeply conscious of the fact that the end of the Conference year is not far away and that there is much to be done yet.

J. E. PRITCHARD.

Concord, Saxapahaw Charge.—The first week in August Mr. and Mrs. T. H. Moore made a trip to Baltimore to visit her son and family.

Last Sunday evening at this place "The Blind Artists" from Burlington gave a splendid musical program. We give them a hearty welcome to come back to this church any time they can.

Misses Gladys and Edith Guthrie have gone back to High Point College to resume their class work for the coming year. We miss them in the church services, for they both took active work along this line.

Our pastor met with the young people of this church last week, beginning Tuesday evening and lasting through Friday evening, and gave classes on the leadership of Christian Endeavor; also helped us reorganize and get ready for work again. Mr. Grey Hargrove was elected president, as Mr. Johnson is working away from the community and has to go to his work and could not meet with us. This society is making plans for as many as can to attend the district rally at Asheboro the first Sunday in October.

Committees have been appointed to work up a rally and promotion day program which will be given some time soon.

The Ladies' Auxiliary met Sunday morning after Sunday school and discussed some of the things they were going to do. Each Sunday everybody puts their pennies in the box to help pay Mr. Minnis' fund; this is a fine plan, for even the little children will drop their pennies in; this creates an interest in mission work.

First Church, High Point.—Much sympathy is expressed for Mrs. Mabel Williams Russell, who was one of the founders of the Children's Home at Denton before it was moved to High Point, and who is now one of our most esteemed members for the loss of her husband. Mr. Robert S. Russell, who died September 4th as the result of an operation at Guilford General hospital. Mr. Russell's illness was brief; he was working in Thomasville, came home on Saturday, was taken ill Monday, when he was removed to the hospital, and passed away the following Friday. He was 41 years of age, and had made his home in High Point for about 18 years, and is survived by his wife and five children as follows: Mrs. C. F. Elkins, Miss Anna Rowe Russell, and three sons, Robert B., James and Albert Russell all of this city. Funeral services were conducted at the home, 592 Denny Street on Saturday, September 5th by Rev. R. I. Farmer. A quartet from First Church choir sang appropriate hymns, and burial made in Oakwood cemetery.

Sunday was a full day at First Church, and the minister conducted both morning and evening services. At 11 o'clock the theme of his message was "Lacking and Tested," which was inspired by the story of the rich young ruler who came to Jesus asking a question, "What Lack I Yet?" The minister said in part, "A common impression is abroad that Jesus was interested only in the poor, but I am convinced that He came to serve the rich as well as the outcast and those who had few worldly goods. Many of those who heard Jesus in His day were convinced that He rebuked men for worldliness and not coming into the Kingdom. The young ruler, though he had kept all the commandments from his youth up admitted that there was a lack in his life. He had been obedient, had satisfied the law, but business had turned his heart from the Kingdom of God. He was successful in business and rich, was moral and blameless in his private life, but he had failed to bring help to others, was unwilling to accept responsibility to work in God's Kingdom. Jesus was favorably impressed with this young man, so He said to him, "Go and sell all your goods to feed the poor, and come and follow me." The test was too hard, and he went away sorrowful. A door of opportunity had opened, but closed again. I want us to face this question this morning; do you realize that you lack the desire to put first things first? God estimates His children, not so much by what they give, but what they keep for themselves. You have no right to let the church get in disrepute, and you owe it to God to enable the minister to keep his bills paid up to date. I say it kindly, but this church lacks leadership and willingness to work anywhere on the part of the membership. Christ sees some good in all of us, He never asks anything too hard. We are face to face with great crises; we may have failed yesterday, but today we have a great opportunity for service. Pray God that we may not fail to grasp it!"

On Sunday evening at 6:30 the Young People's C. E. society held its weekly meeting with Miss Aline Vance leader.

At the Sunday evening service Rev. Mr. Farmer spoke on "Life That Is Life." A quartet composed of Mrs. J. H. Allred, Miss Elizabeth Welch, Messrs. Gray and Mourane, sang very beautifully "Have You Forgotten God?"

On Monday afternoon the members of the Woman's auxiliary motored to the attractive home of Mrs. W. L. Kivett east of the city, and held the monthly general meeting. There was a good attendance, and Circle No. 5, Mrs. Ross H. Davis, chairman, acted as hostess, and served refreshments.

On Monday evening at 7:30 o'clock Miss Nellie J. Martin was leader for the Senior C. E. society.

The topic for the mid-week service on Wednesday evening, which will be led by the minister, will be the "Christian Standard of Success."

On Sunday, September 27th the church school will observe Rally and Promotion Day. The is to begin in the auditorium at 10:30 o'clock. An attractive and appropriate program is in process of preparation.

We were happy to greet a large number of boys and girls from High Point college at Sunday morning services. They were brought in cars to and from the church by different members. Approximately 90 freshmen had registered on Monday, and today the upperclassmen are returning to register. It is expected that the enrollment will total 300 or more by the close of the week. A reception for all students will be tendered by Dr. Humphreys and the faculty on Friday evening. The following girls and boys from our church will be enrolled as pupils in the college: Misses Grace Koonts, Ina McAdams, Frances Taylor, Olive Thomas, Ernestine Voneannon, and Mary Reid Idol; Kent Douglas, Vernon Cannon, C. L. Gray, Jr., Ivan Hill, Frank Robbins, Curtis Humphreys and Robert H. Whitlow.

A large number of young people from the homes of our church or Sunday school will enter different schools and colleges in N.C. and other states: Robert Davis and Vernon W. Idol, Jr., will return to the University; Alfred Moffitt and Wilbur Pritchard to State College, Raleigh. John York will return to Oak Ridge; William Bodenheimer goes to Mars Hill as a freshman; Miss Margaret Opal Neese will enter Greensboro College for Women; Dorothy Bowen will be a student at N. C. College for Women, Greensboro; Misses Sarah Everhart and Annette Pickens are already at work in Edward's Business college, this city; Misses Dorothy Rankin and Elizabeth Humphreys will return the last of this month to Western Maryland college; Mangum Harrell will be a senior at State College, and Miss Louise Jennings will enter the State university to take a course in Library Science.

Miss Anne Robbins left last week for Cincinnati, Ohio, to resume voice lessons in the Conservatory of Music.

Miss Vista Dixon will leave in a few days for Baltimore, where she plans to take post graduate work in Peabody college.

Miss Vera Idol has been granted a leave of absence from High Point college for a year to study in Columbia university, New York, for a doctor's degree. Her place in the English department will be filled by Mrs. H. A. White temporarily.

Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Whitaker of Gastonia were week-end guests of his mother at the college.

We are much pleased to know that Mrs. C. C. Robbins, who underwent an operation at Guilford General hospital a week ago, is recovering nicely at her home on Archdale Road.

Rev. J. S. Williams of Asheville, who served most acceptably as pastor here at one time, came to High Point to attend the funeral services for his brother-in-law, Mr. R. S. Russell.

Congratulations are extended to Mr. and Mrs. John York upon the arrival of a little daughter in their home. She will bear the name, Mary Anne York.

We are much gratified to learn that Mrs. A. R. Peace is recovering in a satisfactory manner from a recent operation in Guilford General hospital, and has been removed to her home on Vine street.

Wyatt A. Pickens, who has been a guest of his mother and other relatives for a month, left by motor last Saturday to resume his work as associate professor of Spanish in Louisiana State university at Baton Rouge.

We are very sorry to learn that First Church will lose some popular and valuable members: Messrs. Lester and Earl Teague and their sister, Miss Gertrude are planning to move to Sumter, S. C. to make their home. The Williams Vencer company, of which Lester Teague is secretary-treasurer, will be moved to that place and he will go with them. The family of Mr. Walter M. Cronch will also move there. We regret to lose these highly esteemed members and loyal workers from our congregation.

Welch Memorial.—We were glad to have our pastor and family with us again Sunday after a vacation trip to Georgia. Mr. Anderson was in Georgia holding a camp meeting at a place where he has been holding camp meetings for twenty-seven years. Mrs. Anderson and the children were away about six weeks while Mr. Anderson was away assisting some of our N. C. preachers in their revival meetings.

Although the Herald seldom carries any news from this corner of High Point we are still here and plugging away, too busy to talk much perhaps. Our church has a reason to be proud of its C. E. society, they are a splendid bunch of energetic young people. Some months ago when discussing our great need of a hut and wondering how we might build one, some one suggested giving the C. E. society the task. They accepted it with characteristic faith in themselves and went cheerfully about mapping out a program. They soon put on a play at the high school auditorium which proved very successful and is to be given again next week sponsored by another church. Last week they gave an ice cream party on a lawn near the church. They have been rewarded for their efforts to the extent they have now almost a third of the cost of the hut.

There is a great need of such a building here, we are handicapped at every turn, our Sunday school rooms are pitifully inadequate as we have no kitchen or dining room, and no social room. Should we get the hut every organization of the church will be better fitted for service, and we believe it will soon pay for itself once it is on the grounds.

Our auxiliary which is composed of three active circles is worth much to the church. Quite a portion of the financial burden of the church falls on its shoulders; it is appreciated just at this time as our finances are sadly in need of recuperation from some source.

Our fall revival will begin the first Sunday in October, we do not know who the pulpit help will be.

Due to vacations and some sickness in our midst our Sunday school has not been all it should be, but we are expecting better reports now that the fall months are here.

Brother E. F. Seagraves is our delegate to the annual conference; we are going to try very hard to send him and our pastor to the conference with all claims paid.

Best wishes for the Herald.
REPORTER.

Lebanon.—Since our meeting, which we believe to have been successful and which was held by Rev. Mr. Farmer to whom we are grateful for the sincere work he did, is over, we people at Lebanon believe it is time to give a little attention to our church obligations.

The church is always preaching honesty. If our conference budgets are justly apportioned and voluntarily assumed by the different churches, do they not become obligations which tax our honor as truly as the grocery bill taxes the honor of the buyer? Yes, so it seems to me. Of all institutions, the church ought to be the last to be hypocritical. The people at Lebanon are promising to try to be honest, and really beginning to believe that they are going to send their delegate and pastor to conference with a clean sheet and all assessments paid. It is true that things are more easily said than done, but if we fail it isn't because we haven't tried.

J. C. MADISON, Pastor.

First Church, Kannapolis.—A very interesting revival has closed at our church; about 27 reclaimed and several converts, and a number to be taken into the church. We feel that God was with us and we are so thankful for the blessings that we received. Rev. Marion Henderson did the preaching and he gave out some wonderful messages to a large congregation each night. We all love Brother Henderson and family and hope he may be in our midst again.

We were glad to have Brother Taylor, our president, with us the first night of our meeting and we are always glad to have him with us; he always brings us a message that is good for the soul.

We are very sorry to say our pastor, Brother J. L. Love, is sick and has been confined to his bed for about ten days with flu. We wish him a speedy recovery. As Brother Love was unable to preach for us Sunday Brother A. H. Sides brought us a wonderful message which was enjoyed by all who heard him. Plans are being made for our Rally Day program.

The Ladies' Aid society met with Mrs. N. F. Harris at the September meeting; 20 members being present.

The contest between the young ladies' class and the young men's class came to a close with the boys ahead. The young ladies will give them an ice cream supper Saturday night, September 19th at the home of Miss Era Allen. Our annual Sunday school picnic was on the last Saturday in August; all declared they had a good time swimming and fishing and eating water melon, then came supper and what a feast was spread on a long table in a shady grove and how we did eat. Then we came home tired but happy. Our picnic was held at Cress' Lake, eight miles from Concord.

We will soon be at the close of another conference year and as we look back over the year, are we satisfied with our year's work? I am sure that we all could have done more. We are proud of the work our Ladies' Aid has done for this year.

REPORTER.

Chestnut Ridge, Orange Circuit.—Our pastor, Rev. B. M. Williams, filled his appointment Sunday morning to a good sized congregation. He brought a splendid and helpful message; after this service Mr. Williams received three bright children into the church.

We are planning to have our Rally Day program soon.

Communion service will be held here the fourth Sunday in September.

We are glad to say we have our new carpet down, it adds a lot to the looks of our church.

Lightning struck our church and damaged it right much this summer. Best wishes to the Herald.

ANNIE SQUIRES, Reporter.

Hebron, Orange Charge.—Rev. B. M. Williams was with us Sunday afternoon. As usual, he brought us another thoughtful message. These messages get better every time. We feel that we have one of the best pastors of the conference. We feel that we do very little for him in comparison with what he does for this church.

Sunday school is still moving along, not as rapidly as it should, but we are hoping for better attendance and more interest during the fall months.

The conference year is soon coming to an end, and we have very much work to do in order to be ready when the end comes.

REPORTER.

Baltimore, West Forsyth Charge.—On last Sunday morning, September 6, Dr. S. W. Taylor, president of our annual conference, was with us and preached at 11 a. m. We were very glad indeed to have him with us. He preached for us a grand sermon, which, I think, will be long remembered by all present. We don't want this to be his last time to visit our church. We want him at any time he can visit our church again.

We were very much pleased to have had Mrs. T. L. Spease, district chairman, and Mrs. Nell Whitman, of the Pleasant Hill church, meet with us at the close of the preaching service and help us to reorganize the auxiliary. The following officers were elected: Mrs. A. A. Doub, president; Mrs. S. S. Doub, vice-president; Inez Doub, secretary, and Miss Lilli Spease, treasurer. The first meeting will be held with Mrs. A. A. Doub the fourth Saturday in September at 3 o'clock.

Miss Elsie Carter one of our best workers in Sunday school and church work has accepted a position in Winston-Salem. We regret very much to hear of her leaving us.

REPORTER.

Kistler's Church, Cleveland Charge.—Our work is moving along quite well. Our Sunday school was very good this summer.

Our revival meeting was held the first week in August. Our pastor, Rev. C. E. Ridge, and one of our own boys, Rev. Seth Ivester, brought us two very interesting and helpful sermons each day. There were some reclamations, and we feel that the church was greatly revived.

On the fifth Sunday in August, the pastor preached for us again. The first Sunday in September was his regular appointment, but he was going to High Point to visit his mother on this date, so he filled his appointment on the fifth Sunday.

On the first Sunday Rev. Seth Ivester preached to us. He brought us a great message which was enjoyed by all.

Money is not plentiful this fall but we hope to meet our dues as best we can.

Best wishes to the Herald and its readers.

REPORTER.

Thomasville.—We, as the members of the church, have begun a new life. We have been helped by the revival meetings held last week. The services were started Sunday morning, September 6, by our pastor, Rev. T. Glenn Madison. Rev. Clyde Auman, returned missionary to Japan, came to us from Graham, N. C., to be the pulpit help during the meeting. He preached his first sermon to us Sunday evening, September 6. He delivered some very inspiring and helpful messages which brought us all closer to our church. We feel that we were greatly blessed as we had about twelve converts. A meeting is a great success if only the Christian people can be revived.

The doors of the church will be open for new members next Sunday, and we hope many of these converts and others will join.

Our Christian Endeavor society is still progressing. The members are becoming more interested and we think that we are doing a great work. The society is planning to have another picnic in a few days or before cold weather. Visitors are welcomed to any of our services and all are invited to join.

REPORTER.

Calvary, Greensboro.—Just now we are in the midst of our special meeting. Good interest, and about the best attendance at any revival since I have been here. Brother Troxler came Monday, and will be with us through the third Sunday. The pastor did the preaching three nights last week, and twice last Sunday. The largest attendance, they tell me, at the Sunday services since the church was organized. Perhaps the folks expected Brother Troxler would be present to do the preaching. Sorry they were disappointed.

We are hoping to have a good ingathering as a result of the meeting. I do not know a church that has a larger list of prospects. If we can only line them up!

I don't like to turn from revivals to fairs. But Calvary is having a booth at the Central Carolina Fair again this year. This is an invitation to the folks who may read this to patronize us. We are hoping to have as good success this year as last.

The stewards reported last week something like a thousand dollars to be raised if all claims are met by Conference. But we are hopeful of getting it. It is about covered with pledges.

C. W. BATES, Pastor.

Chase City.—We sure did appreciate having our pastor, Brother Saunders, and his wife with us Saturday night and Sunday. He brought us a splendid and helpful sermon Sunday morning and night. Our pastor has filled all of his appointments and has worked faithfully through his year's work. Our fourth quarterly conference will be held on Saturday night before the first Sunday in October.

The Sunday school is holding up very well. Mr. Johnson is going to make a talk on our Sunday school lesson every Sunday morning, and every Sunday night at prayer meeting.

REPORTER.

Concord.—Sunday was a fine day at our church. We had 454 present at Sunday school.

Our pastor is improving nicely, it seems, for which we thank the Lord.

The 11 o'clock service was a very helpful one. The Scripture lesson was taken from Jeremiah, and the words that impressed us most were these: "This is the way; walk ye in it." Our pastor told us that the most important walk in life was the straight and narrow one, for nowhere in all the world is there such joy, peace and happiness found. He also told us that one of the most soul-thrilling scenes was to see the youth of our land walk in the path where at all times we could know that Jesus' smile is upon them. We can truly report that the service was greatly enjoyed by each one present.

The Sunday evening service was also wonderful and proved a blessing to all.

We are praying that God will give us many more Sundays like we had last Sunday and continue to bless our pastor.

REPORTER.

South Lexington Charge.—It has been some time since I reported, however, the work has been making progress.

At South Lexington the work of the Sunday school has been doing well. The school has grown to an attendance of from 300 to 400, the highest on record being 419.

Since the last report I have received 152 new members into the church, all of whom are useful members. The active part they are taking in the prayer meeting and the large number who attend regularly at this too often neglected service is a means of uplift to the church.

Our over-crowded condition has made it necessary to lay plans for building a new church of sufficient size to care for the people who attend. We are hoping to begin work soon.

The first Sunday in August was Home-Coming Day at Mt. Carmel; at 11 a. m. Rev. S. W. Taylor, D. D., spoke in the new church building. Dinner was spread on the grounds and enjoyed by the large crowd that had gathered for the occasion. In the afternoon Rev. C. B. Way and Rev. H. L. Powell, former pastors, spoke, as did also Rev. O. P. Routh, a superannuated minister of the M. E. church; and the following laymen: H. H. Koontz, John B.

Leonard, A. A. Young, Dave Fritts, J. W. Berrier and C. L. Hedrick. Mr. C. A. Berrier gave a very interesting and informing history of the Mt. Carmel church.

At 8 p. m. Rev. D. I. Garner preached the opening sermon of the revival meeting. Brother Garner, who did the preaching for the entire meeting, was at his best. There was good interest and the attendance was said to be the largest in the history of the church. There were five conversions and five accessions to the church.

On the closing night of the meeting, as I started to get in my car I discovered that it was loaded with various kinds of provisions for the kitchen and pantry, for which I am thankful to every one who took part.

Mr. Henry Yates has been elected as the delegate to represent the South Lexington charge at the Annual Conference.

C. G. ISLEY, Pastor.

Lineberry, Davidson Charge.—Our revival began the first Sunday in September and closed on Friday night. Rev. E. A. Bingham preached some noble sermons, but it seemed that the people could not be reached. Mr. E. D. Hill, a local preacher of Denton, preached one good sermon on Sunday; his sermon was on scattering flowers while we live. We just want to say "Amen." Mr. Hoyt Wood, just a boy we might say, preached on Tuesday evening. Hoyt made a fine talk. We wish him the greatest of success in his calling.

On Wednesday of our meeting Misses Annie and Myrtle Chisholm, of Thomasville, came and sang the rest of the meeting. Everyone enjoyed their singing. We would say, Come our way again.

We had three additions to the church.

Mr. B. K. Taylor has been elected delegate to go to Annual Conference.

September 9, Mrs. Will Reid passed to her reward. She joined the M. P. Church early in life. Revs. Jones, Trogon and E. A. Bingham had charge of the funeral services. She leaves her husband, Mr. Will Reid, a son, Booth, also two daughters, Gladys and Mrs. Russell, and a host of other relatives and friends to mourn her passing. There were many beautiful flowers.

We haven't had any report about our Ladies Aid for some time, however, we have been moving along nicely, helping the church in different ways. The Siloam and Lineberry Ladies' Aids met with Mrs. Lonnie Morris. Mrs. Pearl Lax read the Scripture; Mrs. Bingham led in prayer; all business finished, they were served with watermelon. The next meeting will be with Mrs. Thomas Hall.

Guy, a son of Mr. and Mrs. Van Wood, has undergone an operation at High Point Hospital. We are glad to hear he is getting along nicely. Hope he will soon be at home.

Mr. Ben Morris, of Missouri, and Mr. Mose Morris and son, of Kansas, have been spending a few days with their aunts and uncles. Mrs. C. N. Riley, Mr. and Mrs. Roby Carroll, and Mr. and Mrs. John Carroll. Mr. Ben Morris says there has been quite a change in North Carolina in 39 years.

REPORTER.

—Brother John Deviney, of Julian, is reported better this morning. He was brought to Long's Hospital Tuesday night suffering from an injury received in falling on a wagon standard in haying.

MISSIONARY EXONERATED

What threatened to become an international incident with grave consequences was amicably settled when Dr. Francis Tucker, American missionary in China for nearly 30 years, was exonerated in connection with the killing of a Chinese employee at the mission hospital in Tenechow. Dr. Tucker had missed certain articles from the hospital and sat up one night in an attempt to discover the thief. When a man entered the building in the night the missionary shot and killed him. The man killed was the janitor of the hospital. The Chinese authorities demanded Tucker's execution, the payment of indemnity and an apology from the United States. The American State Department, however, intervened and insisted upon its rights under the extraterritoriality treaty. Dr. Tucker was turned over to the United States consul at Tsinanfu and tried and acquitted by a consular court.—Exchange.

CHURCHES TO UNITE

Representatives of the Anglican and the Old Catholic churches met in Bonn and agreed upon conditions of reunion. The Old Catholic communion consists of eight autonomous churches, seven in Europe and one in Chicago. Their center is the ancient See of Utrecht. The proposed agreement, which will be submitted for ratification to the synods of both communions, provides that the two groups should unite upon the following conditions: "Each communion agrees to admit members of the other communion to participate in sacraments; intercommunion does not require from either communion acceptance of all doctrinal opinion, sacramental devotion or liturgical practice characteristic of the other, but implies that each believes the other to hold all the essentials of the Christian faith."—Pathfinder.

EDUCATIONAL CENTER

When the capital's 600 public and private educational institutions open this fall there will be an enrollment of some 135,000 students. The 280 public schools take care of 75,000 pupils and the 30 parochial schools 5,500. Of the 50,000 students signed up by 300 universities, colleges and private schools, about 8,000 will attend private schools, 3,000 to professional schools, 2,500 to music schools, 1,500 to religious schools, 1,000 to art schools, 500 to children's schools and 400 to schools of speech and languages.—Exchange.

—A new hybrid raspberry plant of great promise has been developed at State college through the experimental work of C. F. Williams, associate horticulturist of the North Carolina Experiment station after five years of careful breeding. The new plant is a cross of the Latham red raspberry on some Asiatic stock which is very vigorous and withstands the diseases and climatic conditions of the South. Mr. Williams began his breeding work in 1923 and in 1928 made the cross which now gives so much promise. He took into account that the present varieties of red raspberry have high quality and flavor but do not stand conditions in North Carolina and the South generally, except in high altitudes and in protected places. The Asiatic stock was found to be suitable for conditions here and to be very vigorous and fruitful. Therefore, the cross was made.

PROHIBITION AND UNEMPLOYMENT

One of the favorite arguments current in wet propaganda is that repeal of prohibition would improve the employment situation by opening jobs for two million workers. Unfortunately for this argument, the figures covering jobs in the liquor industry in pre-prohibition days are in the records, put there by the wets themselves in a debate in the House of Representatives in 1914. It was then argued that national prohibition, if enacted, would take away the jobs, not of two million workers, but of 498,901. And of these, 409,465 were bartenders.

The wets of today indignantly protest that they never want to see the return of the saloon. Hence there are automatically removed from the picture the jobs of the 409,465 bartenders. This leaves on the list only 89,436 jobs, distributed among brewery workers, distillery workers, winery workers, malting workers, and employes in allied trades, such as bottlers, cappers, and the like.

But the present near-beer industry surely gives employment to considerable minorities of the 62,363 brewery workers and of the 15,620 men formerly employed in allied trades. And the figures for 1914 may fairly be fitted to the present, despite growth of population, for there are a number of states, wet in those days, that could be counted on today to retain state prohibition, even with the 18th amendment repealed.

The long and short of it, then, is that repeal of national prohibition, without the return of the saloon, would open jobs for probably not more than 75,000 workers—quite a drop from the two million claimed by the wets—while the return of the saloon would open jobs for some 400,000 additional workers, but would undoubtedly ruin millions of others. For the cure of unemployment, prohibition repeal is obviously a faulty prescription.—Minneapolis Journal, Minneapolis, Minn.

MME. SOONG DIES

Mme. K. T. Soong, nicknamed the mother-in-law of the Chinese revolution and one of the most remarkable women produced by modern China, died at her home in Shanghai. Her part in Chinese history may be gathered from the importance of her six children, all of whom are Christians educated in the United States and trained for the high stations they now fill. All six were: Mme. Sun Yat-sen, cr's funeral. They were: Mme. Sun Yat-sen, widow of the founder and first president of the Chinese republic; Mme. Chiang Kai-shek, wife of the present nationalist leader; T. V. Soong, present finance minister and vice-president at Nanking; T. L. Soong, secretary of foreign affairs; Mme. H. H. Kung, wife of the minister of industry, and T. N. Soong, who holds a minor position in the government but exercises a large influence in its councils. Mme. Soong's husband, who was one of the leading supporters of Dr. Sun Yat-sen in the 1911 revolution, died in 1918.

C., William Alston's goat in seven days ate the following: an automobile seat, a hollyhock row, a pair of pajamas, two days' mail, 17 hens' nests, a prayer book, three rows of assorted flowers. On the eighth day William Alston slew his goat, gave it to a Negro family. The family ate the goat.—Time.

IN HONOR OF THE DEAD

Riggsbee

Mrs. Mary Eliza Riggsbee passed away September 1, 1931, at the home of her daughter, Mrs. George W. Clapp, of Swepsonville, N. C. Funeral services were conducted at Chestnut Ridge church September 2 by Rev. A. J. Parker, pastor of Hillsboro M. E. church, South, the writer being away at the time.

Mrs. Riggsbee was one of our oldest members. She had been a member of Chestnut Ridge church for several years.

May God comfort all the bereaved ones.

B. M. WILLIAMS.

McKinney

Death has visited our home and claimed our dear father. He had been in ill health for over a year and had been helpless for the last six months. All was done for him that the doctor and loving hands could do, but God knew best and he relieved him from all his suffering. He bore his suffering without a murmur.

We sat by his bedside day and night for over two months, but could only relieve him for a short while.

Stephen Simpson McKinney was born July 9, 1856, and departed this life September 7, 1931. On November 27, 1880, he was married to Miss Hattie Elizabeth Rome. To this union seven children were born. Two preceded their father to the grave over 20 years ago. The five living are: Mr. Joe McKinney, of Cliffside, Mrs. John Holland, of Caroleen, Mrs. Ollie Miller, Misses Adell and Fannie McKinney, all at home. Eighteen grandchildren survive.

The funeral was held at Oak Grove M. E. church on September 8 at 3 p. m. He joined this church over 45 years ago and was a member at the time of his death.

The service was in charge of Rev. J. N. Snow, pastor of Oak Grove church; Rev. J. D. Morris, pastor of Caroleen M. P. church, and Dr. W. A. Ayers, pastor of the First Baptist church of Forest City.

A precious one from us has gone,

A voice we loved is stilled,

A place is vacant in our home

Which never can be filled.

But since he could no longer stay

To cheer us with his love,

We hope to meet with him again

In you bright world above.

His daughter,

FANNIE McKINNEY.

Terry

On September 1, 1931, death entered the home of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Kinley, of Mebane, Route 4, and called the soul of Mrs. Emma Catherine Terry, the mother of Mrs. Kinley, from labor to her eternal reward.

Mrs. Terry was 67 years, 8 months and 8 days of age. She was married to Robert F. Terry in 1889. To this union were born 8 children, two preceding their mother to her grave.

Mrs. Terry joined the Crossroads Presbyterian church early in life and remained a member until death.

She leaves a husband and six children, Mrs. C. M. Adams, Mrs. P. E. Smith, Mrs. Henry Kinley, Mrs. June Davis, Buck Terry and Jack Terry; also many grandchildren and relatives.

Funeral services were conducted from the Helron M. P. church September 2, by Rev. W. M. Loy, pastor of the Mebane M. P. church. Her body was laid to rest in the church cemetery and covered with beautiful flowers, tokens of friendship and sympathy for the bereaved family, who labored so lovingly to keep her with them.

We believe that she is now with Him whom she loved and that all her suffering is over and her soul at rest. May God comfort all the bereaved.

NANNIE McADAMS.

THE DOLE

The dole?

It's not for men

Who want to work,

But just a prop

For those who shirk.

The dole?

It's not the way

To larger life,

But leads to sloth

And endless strife.

The dole?

It's not for you

And not for me.

It cannot bring

Prosperity.

The dole?

For honest men

A hollow sham,

It will not do

For Uncle Sam!

—Grenville Kleiser.

EARLY AMERICANS CANNIBALS!

The fact that some early Americans were cannibals has just been established by Dr. Ales Hrdlicka, noted anthropologist of the Smithsonian Institution. But don't become alarmed—they weren't the Pilgrims or their descendants. They were the very early Americans, a cannibalistic people who first found this continent by way of the Aleutian islands and the desolate Alaskan peninsula. This is supported by findings or discoveries made by Dr. Hrdlicka who has spent many summers exploring in that Far North region. This summer his years of strenuous labors were rewarded with the discovery of numerous buried ruins of villages of these "first" Americans. Most of his discoveries were made on an island off the coast of Alaska which hitherto has been practically unknown to scientists. "According to all indications," says Dr. Hrdlicka, "this site is one of the oldest yet discovered in the Far North." Not only is his find regarded as one of the most notable archaeological discoveries yet made on this continent, but he claims it proves his contention that man first entered North America from the Aleutians and the peninsula.—Exchange.

—We are obviously coming out of the depression now.—Dr. Julius Klein, assistant secretary of commerce.

CUT OR TURN UNDER STANDING STALKS

Flea beetles, horn worms and other destructive tobacco insects by the thousands are feeding and breeding on the suckers growing from tobacco stalks standing in the fields, while the boll weevil enjoys going to his winter bed fat and content from feeding on the cotton left in the fields after harvest.

"Insect damage to tobacco has been heavy this season and anything that may be done to decrease this damage for another year will pay that that much more profit. There is no good reason why the tobacco stalks should be left standing in the field and every sound reason why they should be cut or plowed under," says C. H. Brannon, extension entomologist at State College. "Plowing under the green stalks does not hurt the land but improves it by adding humus and organic matter. The same is true of the cotton stalks."

Mr. Brannon says cutting or plowing the cotton stalks as soon as possible after harvest will eliminate many boll weevils which otherwise would feed up and go into winter quarters in good condition for emerging next spring. If this work was done in a widespread way over the entire state, early damage from boll weevils would be much less.

Clothing and Other Gifts

The Sparger apple orchards, Mt. Airy, N. C., 1 load of apples.

Saxapahaw Harvest Home donation: 370 quarts of canned fruits and vegetables, 19 bushels of wheat, 7 bushels of oats, 11 bushels of potatoes, 5 bushels of corn, 1 bushel of barley, 1 bushel of ry., 2 bushels of wheat and oats mixed, 240 pounds flour, 7 chickens, a nice lot of clothing, some onions, honey, molasses, apples, beans and peas. Also $12.76 in money, which is duly reported above. We wish we might report each name and each article separately, but this was such a large circuit donation that it would take too much space. Then, too, in so large a donation it would be so easy to omit somebody. The people of Saxapahaw were so liberal in their donation that we had to send for two loads. We appreciate their help so much, and God will bless them.

On Wednesday, September 9th, we took a group of our children to Rockingham for a program. The people of Rockingham responded generously to us in the gift of about 125 quarts of peaches, and an offering of $20.65. A very liberal offering for this church. They also kept us over night and treated us royally. We thank them very kindly.

We very greatly appreciate all the gifts which make it possible for us to make so good a report this week.

There is one letter which came in connection with one offering that we are constrained to publish. It reads, "Dear Dr. Dixon: I am a boy ten years old and I start to school Monday. I know how many pencils and tablets it must take for the children there, and I am sending you two dollars that I earned myself. Hoping it will help to buy some. Very respectfully, Mae Bivins."

This Home will continue to be supported as long as boys like that are growing up in the Methodist Protestant Church.

We Wonder

Our boys and girls all start to school next Monday, September 21st, and the above letter has led us to wonder if there are not about 200 boys and girls throughout the Conference who are living in happy homes with their parents, who will do as well as Mae has done and thus help us to pay for the school books and other supplies for the children here. We thank all of you and may God bless you.

Faithfully,

A. G. DIXON, Supt.

FIGHTING FIREFIGHTERS

Idaho had the sad experience of fighting terrific forest fires to save the state only to have new fires suspiciously start as soon as old ones were brought under control. At first there was talk of "fire bugs." Later there was conviction that the new fires were being started by unemployed to make jobs for themselves. Governor C. Ben Ross declared martial law over four counties, put them under patrol of national guardsmen and had scores of "undesirables" escorted from the restricted areas. Idaho fires had cost the lives of half a dozen persons; had destroyed two towns and two mines and had driven more than 300 persons from their homes. In Idaho, Montana and Washington some 8,000 men battled fires over more than 400,000 acres, while in the national forests of California another 2,000 fighters battled flames extended over 15,000 acres.—Pathfinder.

"Dr. Parkes Cadman reached England last week on board the 'Majestic,'" says The British Weekly of August 20. "On Sunday he preached in St. John's Wesleyan church, Llandudno, where Rev. Wardle Stafford, D. D., is superintendent minister. At the morning service, says a correspondent, Dr. Cadman spoke with power and eloquence from the word, 'Ye are the light of the world.' The commodious church was crowded, and the hearty hymn-singing was praised by Dr. Cadman. He incidentally mentioned that it was at Llandudno he first saw the sea when a boy. On Monday he lectured on 'America's Attitude to Europe.'"

Pellagra seems to be on the decline in North Carolina. There were 607 deaths in the first seven months of 1930; 430 in the same months this year.

THE PITY OF IT

Twenty years after he was honored with election to the United States Senate by the legislature of Tennessee, Luke Lea has been convicted of a great bank fraud. Found guilty not merely by "a hostile press that sought to destroy" him, but by a jury of his peers in a neighboring state, Colonel Lea has been sentenced to serve from six to ten years in the North Carolina penitentiary.

Regardless of what the colonel's lawyers may be able to do for him now, regardless of any technicalities that higher courts may find to keep prison doors from closing on him, the label of criminality has been indelibly stamped upon the name of the once great Luke Lea.

Colonel Lea in his spectacular career of politics and finance has made many bitter enemies. But, rather than gloat over the vengeance of the courts, consider the great pity of it all. Here was a man with every advantage that family background, education, wealth, and influential friends can give. In Tennessee his was an almost unequalled opportunity for public service. Equipped with a master's degree from the University of the South and a law degree from Columbia, he began the practice of law in Nashville in 1903. Four years later, when he was only 26 years old, he became publisher of a widely circulated newspaper. At 32 he was a United States senator. A life of usefulness to the people of his state and to the nation was open to him in a way which comes to few men at any age and to almost none in the early thirties.

Personal charm was his in unusual degree. Even his bitterest enemies melted under the spell of his engaging personality. He seemed a welcome addition to any company. Long is the list of fraternal orders that offered him their fellowship—in college, Alpha Tau Omega and Phi Delta Phi; later, Masons, Elks, Knights of Pythias, Red Men, and others too numerous to mention. Society sought him. Politicians were at his beck and call. The United States government pinned the Distinguished Service Medal on the uniform that he wore in France in the World War. The banks of the South showed their confidence in him by electing him a district director of the Federal Reserve. Other honors were his for the asking.

But, instead of serving the people who had honored him, he elected to serve Mammon. His ambition for great riches led from the path of honor. And the day of reckoning is at hand.—Chattanooga Times, Chattanooga, Tenn.

SURPLUS WHEAT SOLD TO CHINA

Fifteen million bushels of the Farm Board's surplus wheat have been sold to the Chinese government for relief purposes in the Yangtze areas where floods have rendered thousands homeless and destroyed millions of dollars' worth of crops. Fifty per cent of the wheat is expected to be sent as flour, shipments to begin the latter part of this month. The Chinese government has agreed to pay equal installments on the wheat in 1934, 1935, and 1936. The price is to be market quotations at the time of shipment with interest at four per cent. Fifty thousand tons are to be shipped monthly. The Chinese government has undertaken the transportation, and has agreed to give equal opportunity to American ships.—Exchange.

ETHICS OF ADVERTISING

The world seems to have entered into a conspiracy to induce a poor man to buy things he does not want and, incidentally, ought not to buy. He cannot escape this constant pressure. If he ignores the newspaper, the radio—in the midst of a concert—urges him to buy this or that. If he seeks surcease of trouble in the moving picture house, he discovers that producers—at their wits' end because pornographic and gangster films have not held their audiences—are now selling advertising! Darwin L. Teilbet, a Western advertising agent, says in an article in The Outlook, the film is thus sold twice—once to the advertiser and once to the public. The magazines and the press do not go so far as that. With them, advertising is advertising, and not, as in the case of the radio and the movies, sugar-coated with a symphony concert or a racy story. Then there is the plausible young man who comes to your door with the brush or the book which you cannot get along without. Professor Lawrence H. Conrad, in an article in The Forum, aptly calls these agents "porch-climbers."

There are signs that the public is beginning to revolt. A contributory cause of the present depression may be a "buyers' strike," like that which took place a few years ago. Juggling with terms solves no economic problems. "Overproduction" and "underconsumption" amount to the same thing in the end.

Criminal extravagance and waste have been the direct result of "high-pressure salesmanship." We may now practice a little thrift. However, if we do, let us face facts. Many industries will continue to suffer. Some will fail and more unemployment result. The ethics of the situation seems evident. It will take fully a generation to clear the economic problems involved in the present world-wide economic depression.—The Christian Register, Boston, Mass.

BLACK SEA HIDES SUNKEN CITY

Russian scientists have just discovered the ruins of an ancient buried or sunken city on the floor of the Black Sea on the southwestern extremity of the Crimean peninsula. There about 40 feet under the dark waters divers found the remains of what they say was old Khersoness, a walled city in the shape of a gigantic horseshoe with houses, towers and underground tunnels honeycombing it. From an examination of the red clay earthenware and stone crockery found archaeologists estimate the date of its heyday to be as far back as from 200 to 400 B. C. They think the old city gradually sunk into the sea.—Exchange.

—After her husband was taken into custody by prohibition officers a quantity of confiscated wine was dumped in the basement of Mrs. Helen Vasilzevic, of Milwaukee. While cleaning up she stood in a pool of wine and reached for the electric cord—and was electrocuted.

The Holy Spirit

Thy presence floods the earth with glory!
Thou dost rehearse the sacred story
And show the world of sinful men
How they may be God's sons again.

Thou dost implant the living seed
That comes to fruit in noble deed:
Thou dost make strong our weak resolve
And help us all life's problems solve.

In all our journey Thou dost guide,
True Friend indeed close by our side:
Both joy and peace Thou dost impart
And all rare treasures of the heart.

From ways of wrong to paths of right
Wouldst Thou us lead both day and night;
Where'er we be, in age or youth,
Thou wouldst us bring to all the truth.

Forbid it, Lord, that we should grieve,
Or for a single moment leave,
Our faithful Guide and loving Friend
Whom Thou in mercy great didst send!

Young People's Page

We have received an inquiry regarding the discontinuance of the page for young people's work in the HERALD. This department was started, continued, and discontinued by the organization of Young People's Work, the HERALD giving the space free of charge. It was well edited for months by representatives of the young people attending High Point College. This took considerable time which must be given gratuitously. The time came when there was no one to do the work and the work naturally stopped.

The question of resuming must be decided by the young people's organization. The HERALD is in a position to awaken among our young people a sense of solidarity and a spirit of co-operation in the work of our church in North Carolina. The department should be conducted with these ends in view rather than as an imitator of any other young people's paper. All the space should not be given to the prayer-meeting topic, important as that is. Local activities should be reported in such a way as to inspire others to action. We trust the young people will reconsider the matter to determine the best course to pursue.

Sun-Dodgers

These are people whose nerves are so very sensitive that they cannot endure the direct rays of the sun. They seek the shade, the shadows, the darkness. The sunlight would help them greatly if they could only bear it. But their nerves are disordered, the sun brings them pain, and they try to escape its influence. They are types of those moral perverts who love darkness rather than light and who will not come to the light lest their deeds be reproved. They avoid thought of God because it is painful to them. They avoid the church because it reminds them of the painful thought of God. They are in the moral state the psalmist referred to when he said: "I remembered God and was troubled." How good to be able to look the sun in the face!

A Gay Scene

Beside my south porch there grows a Butterfly Bush. (The botanists have a different name for it.) Upon its long arms there grow cone-shaped clusters of bluish purple flowers, pleasing to behold. They catch and hold your eye. You wonder about this plant. Why was it made? What purpose does it accomplish in the world? Was it made only to please the eye of man? Does the Creator Himself enjoy seeing it? You can ask more questions than you can answer. While you speculate as to the uses of the plant in the economy of nature, it is suddenly enlivened by the coming of a swarm of merry visitors arrayed in garbs of beauty. What a scene you now behold! The visitors are eager and active butterflies. No two are alike. Not one of them lacks artistic adornment. Whence they came you do not know, but why they came you soon discover. They flit about from flower to flower, regaling themselves with nature's nectar. They see you not or disregard your presence, but they get your attention. You admire their beauty and their gayety. You also admire the goodness and the skill of the Divine Architect who has taken such pains to adorn creatures of a day. But we remember that with the Lord one day is as a thousand years. There are no little things with God and no ugly things except sin.

—We thank Dr. J. H. Straughn, Treasurer of the General Conference, for a copy of his financial report for the year ending April 30, 1931. It shows total receipts to be $166,994.08, of which $65,740.51 was secured by women's work.

—Sixteen new members were received into Calvary church last Sunday. Two of them, Mr. and Mrs. Morgan, came from a Baltimore church; Mr. and Mrs. Spencer from Asheville. Others are expected to join next Sunday.

HIGH POINT COLLEGE AT LARGE

(Speech delivered at the Alumni Banquet last June by Prof. H. E. Coble, Leaksville, N. C., a member of the first graduating class, and president of the Alumni Association.)

"The pleasure of talking to you for ten or fifteen minutes is greater than I anticipated, for I had pictured this group as a long faced bunch of men and women, whereas we are in fact the same group of boys and girls who left here at successive stages because the faculty despaired of making us serious and thoughtful and handed out a 'To whom it may concern' to show they had washed their hands of the whole business.

"But I suppose that in many ways we have changed—none have become more homely and some have actually improved on nature. Palm Olive stock must have gone up several points. In our hearts a change has come due to experience and age. Certainly no loyal alumnus has become a disloyal, backbiting, grumpy grouch, because everybody does not accept him as being capable of any and everything. We are loyal, or I hope we are, and the college ideal was planted in our hearts to stay—an ideal that cannot be shaken by prosperity or the lack of it.

"It would seem that since this occasion comes only once a year that everyone of us would have lots to say—in fact might say too much. But it is difficult to interest a whole group at one time. The old advice would be: make it light enough to amuse or deep enough to mystify. Since I am neither a comedian nor a deep thinker, I have selected a subject on which all can think at the same time. It is this: High Point College at Large, or High Point College in the field.

"Everything apprises us of the fact that High Point College is not the same as when we entered. She is fast becoming a tradition—she has enlarged her sphere of usefulness—she is better known and better loved because she turns out traveling secretaries, the Alumni, the College at large. And the longer she turns them out—the more she turns out the better off will each of us be both financially and socially.

"Each of us entered with sundry wrong ideas. We deemed ourselves capable of any and everything, whereas we were in fact merely progressive students looking for adjustment and guidance. We got that and if we didn't it's our own fault and not the fault of the college.

"All of us have been players on the stage here. When the curtain rose on a small group here in 1924 the drama began. Each played his part as he knew how, believing in himself and the institution, and feeling a class pride not easy to forget. Each succeeding rise of the curtain presented the same setting but different characters each with his or her own ideas. All have added some new bit of word or action, all absorbed new thoughts, all carrying away some part of the composite personality of the college, all have taken their final bow, but it does not mean separation, we must be ready for repeated curtain calls. We are now ready for united effort for the perpetuation of the college. We are not members of any class, we are one—Alumni first and of various classes second.

"Now is the time to sign our names to that old promissory note" for value received I promise to pay," not value received in dollars and cents—if we were looking for that we shouldn't have come here, but value in the form of a broader life, fuller life dedicated to service according to our several abilities. And we promise to pay, not necessarily to dollars and cents although when it comes to that we should be ready, and if we are not ready we or the college have failed and it would be just like a backbiter to blame the college; but promise to pay in service, in moral support. Those on the stage must remember those who have gone off, for if we are not loyal, what inspiration is there for them to continue.

"We are debtors to High Point College for the work of enlarging our horizon, for giving us a balanced training. We are fortunate in having attended a school that gives academic as well as Christian training. It is a young institution, founded only seven years ago, but it is without a doubt the greatest contribution of our denomination to the youth of this state.

"These Alumni meetings serve a good purpose in reminding us of our duty. Were it not for them most of us would become prodigals and actually believe that we satisfied our debt by paying tuition fees while here. No student ever does that in any college. Everyone of us, no matter how meek, is placed here for a definite purpose with a duty to perform that no one else can, and I am sure that we as loyal Alumni are not willing to take and not give back to our Alma Mater.

"We must believe in High Point College and the educational advantages she represents—must believe that for us we could have done better nowhere else. We do not hope for things we do not believe in. Our very success depends upon the success of High Point College. If we fail the college partially fails, if we succeed the college succeeds. The college is reborn every day by the purposes we form, the hopes we cherish. We live not only in the things we see, but in the things imagined. The only way our powers can become great is by exerting them outside the pale of our own narrow, selfish, personal interests.

"We must be loyal whether always pleased or not. An old politician told his son not to bother about lies or slanders, they will take care of themselves, but if you ever hear me denying anything, you may make up your mind that it is so. We have a right to say what we think and do what we think best, for criticism does not hurt—in fact we grow by it. It is better to be criticised than to be ignored. College men are are not the gigantic fools we are sometimes hailed as—we couldn't be—if we were the world is in a bad way because no group ever gets far behind or ahead of the whole.

"Now we have an organization formed for the purpose of cementing friendship, to consolidate the principles upon which the college was built, to insure the blessings we received to others,—in short to support the college in any way we can. Of course we may and do make mistakes, but we can do the best we can like the boy who had just joined the church. At his uncle's house he was called on to say grace—he didn't know what kind of a blessing to ask but he knew he was hungry, so bowing his head he said, 'Lord have mercy on these vituals.'

"An organization without the spirit of co-operation is dead and may be dangerous—dangerous to the members and the very thing it is trying to promote. Friendship is based on common service and we do have a common ground. We know what we are going to do and we are under the eye of the college in doing it. Many organizations fail because they have no purpose. We must be militant—we must be an organization that will do things. Thoreau says if you give money spend yourself with it, and if you give thought to a purpose, give your best to it. If we sit as many risks as we run, we don't want to be found sitting on someone else's chance of getting a college education. If we are genuine products of the college, others cannot avoid infection—if we are not, no amount of explaining, boosting, or lying will help.

"If we live for ourselves we have not begun to live—have yet to learn our real use and pleasure. Aside from the many things we do, we must find time for our college. Out of joy or sorrow comes an organization. A group of soldiers who had narrowly escaped death together agreed to meet once a year at an appointed place. Through the years they met and banqueted together until all were dead save one. On the appointed day he made the pilgrimage alone and dined alone. But this organization is an increasing number, continually renewed by fresh and possibly better blood. We are not an isolated group but an integral part of the college. A tree will look all right for a day, but shorn of its roots it will wither and die—separate Alumni spirit from a college and it will look well for a time, but soon become only a memory. Without some such organization as this, this college would be like a brick wall without mortar. We can learn a lesson from the Chinese people. They are not patriotic, have no national ties, no interest except in their own family, and furnish us a good illustration of what will happen when there is little or no organization. All of us receive some benefit from this organization. 'Many a live wire would be a dead one if it weren't for his connections.' I am not saying we must be active about nothing but about a real task, a real duty to perform.

"It is an indictment against American women that their mouths are drooped, not all of them of course, but those who have gotten too much for nothing, who have no vital interest—no need for any sacrifice of self. They want to be asked for something that demands their efforts, their courage, their sympathy, and since they haven't been asked they are discontented. College women are not thus handicapped, for they are continually asked for contribution in every line of activity. Of course they may not always respond when asked.

"We know something of the past and its pleasures, and we have high hopes for the future.

"I hope we will all remember that we have a duty and a sacred obligation to perform, corresponding in a measure but greater than the blessings we received. We have a personal responsibility, we also have a composite responsibility, and may we discharge it so that the future will look bright, not only for the college but for ourselves as well. May we continue to carve our sentiments on the walls of our Alma Mater, not for any monument to our own efforts, but in order that each succeeding generation may build on the last. For this is progress without circling, reward greater than our efforts. We have enjoyed—and endured several commencements and will likely witness a good many more, and may we remember this one thing—there never comes a time for an Alumnus to give up, never comes a time when he can no longer be of service, never comes a time when his support both morally and financially will not be appreciated."

VERDICT OF THE AGES

EARLY EGYPTIAN TOMB: His earthly tenement was shattered by beer and wine, And his spirit departed before it was called for.

SOLOMON 1000 B. C.: Look not thou upon the wine when it is red, when it giveth its color in the cup, when it moveth itself aright, At the last it biteth like a serpent and stingeth like an adder.

BUDDHA 550 B. C.: Drink not liquors that intoxicate and disturb the reason.

XENOPHON 300 B. C.: Temperance means, first, moderation in healthful indulgence and, secondly, abstinence from things dangerous, as the use of intoxicating wines.

PLINY THE ELDER 79 A. D.: There is nothing about which we put ourselves to more trouble than wine, as if nature hath not given to us the most salubrious drink with which all other animals are satisfied.

CHAUCER 1340: Character and shame depart when wine comes in.

SHAKESPEARE 1600: O thou invisible spirit of wine, if thou hast no name to be known by, let us call thee devil!

ABRAHAM LINCOLN 1842: Liquor might have defenders, but no defense. Whether or not the world would be vastly benefited by a total and final banishment from it of all intoxicating drinks, seems to me not an open question.

GLADSTONE 1898: The ravages of drink are greater than those of war, pestilence, and famine combined.

CARDINAL GIBBONS 1915: The great curse of the laboring man is intemperance. It has brought more desolation to the wage earner than strikes or war or sickness or death. It has caused little children to be hungry and cold and to grow up among evil associations. It has broken up more homes and wrecked more lives than any other cause.

M. GEORGES CLEMENCEAU 1920: It is definitely settled that alcohol is a poison; a poison destructive of human energy and, for this reason, of society as a whole.

SIR WINIFRED GRENFELL 1928: Alcohol has wrecked more lives, starved more children, and murdered more women than any other single factor.

THOMAS A. EDISON 1930: I still feel that prohibition is the greatest experiment yet made to benefit man.

CHESTER ROWELL 1930: One drink is too many for the man at the automobile wheel, and the danger point is far short of the drunken point in nearly all of the occupations of life.

JOSEPHUS DANIELS: The man who opposes prohibition and says in the next breath that he could never tolerate the return of the saloon, either is practising deception or he does not know that as surely as night follows day, the fall of prohibition means the re-enthronement of the saloon.—Signal Press.

OUR LUCKY THIRTEEN

By REV. GEO. L. CURRY

It is an interesting coincidence that since the beginning of the Methodist Protestant church the North Carolina Conference has had its share of thirteens. The first conference held at Whitakers Chapel, which was the first Methodist Protestant conference ever held in the world, had thirteen ministers and preachers. The Asheboro church was organized with thirteen charter members; the First Church, High Point, was organized with thirteen charter members, the Welch Memorial church, High Point, was organized with thirteen charter members, Mt. Carmel on South Lexington charge, was organized with thirteen charter members. The first class at High Point College graduated thirteen members. The Albemarle church did not have thirteen charter members but it was organized on October 13. While no one ever planned this coincidence it is interesting to know that such is the fact.

While it is a happen-so that the number thirteen should mingle through our history in this way it is a poor wind that blows no favor to any sail. And now I am suggesting that the good people of the North Carolina conference come to the rescue of the Albemarle church just now with a thirteen contribution to the birthday gift which is to be laid on the altar of the church October 11, the Sunday nearest October 13. Make contributions $1.13 or any amount with a thirteen to it up to $13.00 or more. Let me have your help of thirteens just now please. Thanks. As sure as we know what the number thirteen is, we know that it is a hard time to raise money just now. But, brother, some money must be raised. There is no other way out of it. Albemarle church must find some money in some way. Help us just a little just now and it will be helping a cause that is so needy and so worthy. Who will be first to give us a thirteen contribution.

Thanking you in advance, I am, yours trusting, hoping, and praying,

GERMAN DOCTORS ON BEER

An interesting letter from Frau Gertrud Frankl, of Prague, Czechoslovakia, contains the resolution regarding beer which the German Association of Neurologists and Psychiatrists recently adopted. This resolution as translated from the German by Dr. Ernst Springer, of Prague, follows:

"The German Association of Neurologists and Psychiatrists is bound to consider any claim that beer is healthful by virtue of the calories contained therein as an attempt to mislead the people. Because of the high percentage of alcohol, beer can by no means be regarded as a true article of food, or even harmless. It is hereby affirmed that alcohol has a deleterious effect upon several tissues of the human body. These effects are especially harmful to the nervous system, even if only a part of the daily food supply is taken in the form of beer.

"The association feels duty bound to declare that the custom of drinking and the advertising of the many different kinds of beer are a great menace to the health of the population. The drinking of liquor, and also of beer even in such quantities not ordinarily considered intoxicating, lessens personal resistance to all kinds of disease, shortens life, and produces crime and accidents."—Twentieth Century Progress.

GANDHI IS "BONE DRY"

According to an Associated Press dispatch from Bombay, June 25, Mahatma Gandhi declared:

"If I were appointed dictator for one hour over all India, the first thing I would do would be to close without compensation all liquor shops, destroy all toddy palms from which liquor is locally extracted, compel factory owners to produce humane conditions for workmen and open refreshment and recreation rooms where workmen could get innocent drinks and equally innocent amusement.

"Exceptions would be made in the cases of Europeans and diseased persons, for whom a supply of liquor was medically necessary."

—Professor Coble's address to the alumni of High Point College reveals a fine spirit of loyalty to the institution. Let other graduates of the college bear their testimony.

Granville Charge

Sunday, September 13.—Two churches on this charge were visited on this date. In the morning we were at Mt. Carmel; the afternoon service was at Union Chapel. Attendance at each place was gratifying, and pleasing interest was in evidence. These are well established and active churches, and each is rendering good service to the local community, and likewise to the conference. We were sorry not to be able to get to the other church on the charge—Rehoboth. The work appears to be in good condition, and earnest and persistent effort will be made for the best possible closing. We are grateful to Brother Spencer and his family and to Brother C. F. Finch and his family for entertainment while on this charge.

Henderson

Our appointment here was at night, on the above date. For many years this has been one of our leading churches. The membership participates, through its representatives, in the work of important conference and denominational boards and committees. The work is well organized and well housed. Brother R. A. Hunter has had a long and successful pastorate here, this being his sixth year. We missed in the service some that we knew years ago, and esteemed and loved. We should like to refer to them by name, but space forbids. Some were absent because of affliction; they have our sympathy and prayers. Others have passed to the great beyond. Many changes come as the cycles of time move steadily on. But this comforting fact remains: "All things work together for good to them that love God, to them who are the called according to his purpose." It was a great pleasure to us to see again many friends that we had here in former days, and to find them still active in the work. The pastor and his people will press the work during these last weeks, and we bespeak for them a successful closing of the year. We thank Brother and Sister T. H. Hite for entertainment in their hospitable home.

Littleton Charge

By night appointments given to this work, we were enabled to be in three of the churches—Weavers, Corinth, and Hawkins. The attendance was good, considering the fact that these were mid-week appointments. We found signs of hopefulness among these churches. The people are interested and loyal, and the pastor and his wife are laboring earnestly, patiently, and wisely. The Sunday School of Corinth had been suspended for some months, but was re-organized the night we were there, the pastor taking the lead in this. This church has a student at High Point College, Miss Carter, daughter of Mrs. Bernard Carter.

While on this charge we had a brief visit with Rev. D. A. Fishel and his daughter, Miss Pearl. We found them both in their usual health, though Brother Fishel has not been well for a number of years. It is always a pleasure to visit this home. Brother Fishel has an alert mind and a vivid recollection of many of the ministers of the conference during his earlier days. He relates many interesting experiences of those years. We regretted not to be able to see more of our friends on this field. Here also earnest efforts will be made to close the year well. We thank Brother and Sister Bingham for the hospitality of their home.

Halifax

Thursday, September 17, Pastor Fogleman arranged for us to visit three churches on this charge as follows: Hollister, 11 A. M.; Bethesda, 3 P. M.; Eden, 7:30 P. M. Congregations were not large at either place, but interested and responsive. This is a large, but a compact charge, and favored with good roads. At our denominational beginning this section was a seed-bed of Methodist Protestantism. It is not surprising, therefore, that some of our most loyal people are found on this charge. Brother Fogleman is spiritual, studious, and earnest, and is ably assisted in his work by his excellent wife. They are earnest in their desires to promote the work of the charge, and to close the year with good results. We are greatly indebted to Rev. and Mrs. Fogleman and to Mr. J. D. Holsey and his family for entertainment while on this field.

Because of the very full schedule that we are carrying on this itinerary, the hot weather, and the strain of the work, our report on these charges is considerably shortened. Next week we will take account of other charges visited while on this trip.

Finances

Let us say it again: We are now in "Pay-up" time. And only six weeks remains in which to complete this important part of our year's work. This is not the chief part, but it certainly is an important part. Much is yet to be paid on salaries, and budget payments are greatly in arrears. This is one of the noticeable facts on most of the charges that we are visiting on this trip. Both salaries and budgets are much in arrears. But this can be changed greatly within the next few weeks, and we are confident that it will be, not only here, but in all sections of the conference. We earnestly appeal to church officials to see that this is done. You, brethren, will determine very largely how much or how little is done in this particular. Active and optimistic stewards are just about the salvation of the church's financial problem. We don't get much beyond where they are willing to go. Let me urge again, then, that our stewards press this matter during these remaining six weeks. Let your goal be "Something from every member." That is certainly a reasonable expectation. What is paid by many will be small, of course; but every member can, and should, pay something; and when that is done, deficits will be reduced to very small amounts.

We want to give credit here for amounts paid to us on A. C. B., and to express to these charges our great appreciation for this: Mt. Carmel, Granville Charge, $6.00; Union Chapel, same charge, $9.00; Henderson, $20.00; Corinth, Littleton charge, $2.00; Eden, Halifax charge, $6.00; Lebanon Spring Church charge, $13.63; Spring church, same charge, $6.85; Pleasant Hill, same charge, $2.06. Total, $65.54.

Now These Things

1. The meeting of the Boundary Committee, First Church, High Point, October 8, at 2 p. m. If you have business with this committee, please attend to it at this time.

2. Close the year with Church Register properly revised.

3. Push church paper subscriptions. HERALD and Methodist Protestant Recorder. This is the time of year when many subscribers renew. It is likewise a good time to get new subscribers.

4. Plan to attend the Annual Conference. We hope to see many of our people there from all sections of the church.

5. Pray much for God's blessings upon these closing efforts.

THE TONGUE

"The tongue is none of men able to tame: an unsettled evil, full of deadly poison." (James 3:8).

Where is the man that has truly tamed either his own tongue or another's? Here one can appeal to universal observation, though not less forcibly and painfully to personal experience. It may and ought to be a heart-breaking confession; but is it not most true? Who does not know how rapid and ready is the tongue to break bounds; how slow to seek or keep the peace? How vehement its invective, how irritating its insinuations, how bitter and unmeasured its revilings! Is any one too obscure or feeble to escape its assault? Is any so venerable or exalted as to overawe its audacity? What piety or Godliness can suffice to shame its insolence, or silence its malice?

It is indeed, as it is called, "an unsettled" or unstable "evil, full of deadly poison." Nor is the poison ever more attractive and dangerous than when administered in a gilded pill. Good words and fair speeches to make the worse appear the better reason is a favorite device of the enemy, and peculiarly fitted to deceive the hearts of the guileless.

Is it written that absolutely none is able to tame the tongue? By no means. None "of men" can tame it. Ah! we can thank God He is our desire, our expectation, and our strength. It were a wholly unchristian thought to subjugate our own tongue. It is our confidence to look up to God for that which is altogether beyond our capacity.

And He works His wonders in everything through Christ our Lord. If all the rude men of Nazareth bore Him witness and wondered at the words of grace which proceeded out of His lips, does not our God and Father use these to humble, and to transform, and to invigorate, so that the tongue, that once was our shame, should be by His grace truly our "glory?"—W. K. (Extracted), in The Bible Monthly.

CALLED TO BE A MISSIONARY

Do you imagine you are called to be a foreign missionary? Have you obeyed the command of Jesus by beginning first at home ("Jerusalem"); then the foreigners around your home ("All Judea" and "Samaria"); and eventually, after having been faithful to all near at hand, then "the uttermost part of the earth."

Sophie, the saintly washer-woman, had been praying for twelve long years to become a foreign missionary. One day, while again praying about the same thing, the Heavenly Father seemed to say to her:

"Sophie, stop! Where were you born?"

"In Germany, Father."

"Where are you now?"

"In America, Father."

"Well, are you not a foreign missionary already?"

Then the Father said, "Who lives on the floor above you?"

"A family of Swedes."

"And who above them?"

"Why, some Switzers."

"Who in the rear?"

"Italians."

"And a block away?"

"Some Chinese."

"And you have never said a word to these people about My Beloved Son, Jesus. Do you think I will send you thousands of miles to the foreigner and heathen when you haven't care enough about them at your own door to speak with them about their souls?"

Those who are faithful in that which is least will soon be led out into larger spheres.—R.

DRAW NIGH TO GOD

"Draw nigh to God, and He will draw nigh to you." In this is shown the active dependence of the heart. Thanks be to God, we can draw near to Him! His throne is for ever to us a throne of grace; we may come into His presence without fear, because of His love, and enter into the holiest by the precious Blood of Christ. When near Him we learn holiness, we discern His will, the eye sees clearly in this pure atmosphere, the heart is subject; the secret of the Lord is with them that fear Him. They walk with God, but as taught of God, and the whole body is full of light. Then He is with us, He draws near to us, He inspires us with confidence.—The Elim Evangel and Foursquare Revivalist.

OUR STORY PAGE

"NO ROOM FOR HER"

Several richly dressed young girls smiled jeeringly or twitted openly as a little bent old woman, very plainly dressed in black bombazine, which had seen years of much careful service, and a black bonnet that was very old-fashioned, made her way up the aisle of the grand and richly decorated church; evidently bent on getting a good seat.

A great man was to preach on that day, and the church was filled with splendidly dressed people who had heard of the fame of the speaker and had come to hear him.

Especially were several young ladies bent on looking their best, for it was rumored that the Rev. Austin was a single man.

Among these were the Misses Ruth and Mary Von Avalon, daughters of a wealthy banker in the city, who were to grace the meeting by a "duet" calculated to show to the speaker and the throng in general, the well-trained superiority of their voices.

People stared at the little old woman and decided that she must be in her dotage as she picked out the Von Avalon pew, which held the Misses Ruth and Mary, with their mother, who lifted their chins in haughty scorn as the woman seated herself.

The ladies beckoned to an usher, who bent over the intruder and whispered something, but she was slightly deaf, and smiled gently as she said, "Oh, I'm quite comfortable here, thank you."

"But you are not wanted here," said the usher pompously. "There is not room. Come with me, I will find you a seat."

"No room!" said the little old woman. "Why, I'm not crowded a bit. I rode many miles to hear the sermon today, because—"

But the usher took her by the arm, and shook her roughly in a polite way, and she took the hint. Her faded old eyes filled with tears, her chin quivered, as she rose meekly to leave the pew.

Turning quietly to the ladies, who were spreading and fluffing out their beautiful dresses over the seat which she left vacant she said gently, "I hope, my dear ladies, there will be room in Heaven for us all."

Then she followed the pompous usher to the rear of the church, where in the last seat, she was allowed to sit between a thread-bare girl and her shabby old father.

"She must be insane," whispered Ruth Von Avalon. How can an ignorant old woman like her wish to hear Rev. Austin preach? She would not be able to understand a word he said."

"Those people are so persistent. The idea of her having the nerve to force herself into our pew! There's Rev. Austin now. Isn't he grand?" said her mother.

"What a splendid looking man," said Mary, "Remember mother, do your best to get him to have dinner with us."

Music played softly as Rev. Austin entered. He looked over the crowd of worshipers and seemed to scan each face, then suddenly leaned over the reading desk and beckoned to the usher, who came forward to his bidding.

The speaker spoke to him softly, and the Misses Ruth and Mary, also their mother stared in amazement as the usher took his way the whole length of the church and returned with the queerly dressed woman, whom he placed in the front pew, its occupants willingly making room for her. The great speaker looked at her with a smile of recognition, and then the service went on, and he preached a sermon which struck fire from every heart.

The Misses Ruth and Mary tried to impress the speaker with their singing, but he seemed almost unaware of their presence.

Even the old, well-known words, "The Lord is my Shepherd, I shall not want," seemed to have a deeper meaning coming from the lips of Rev. Austin; and as the meeting closed he made his way toward the pew where a little old lady, in faded, old-fashioned dress and bonnet breathed a silent prayer of thanksgiving that she had been able to arrive in time from the far-off ranch, where she had toiled early and late, with very little help; to lift the debt left on the home by a long terrible illness and the death of her husband, and gladness entered her heart that she had been able to give to the young man coming toward her the education she had never been able to secure for herself.

Peace entered her mind and soul at the thought that her hard days were over, that Rev. Austin was not ashamed of her bent form and old-fashioned clothes—he would take care of her from now on.

The Misses Von Avalon and their mother waited eagerly near the door for a chance to invite the speaker to dinner, and unable to conceal their impatience and curiosity any longer they asked of the usher, "Who is the old woman?"

The usher, remembering how they had led him to act, replied shortly and in an injured tone, "His mother."

Alas! how few of us remember that while man looketh on the outward appearance, judging all persons by that appearance, God looketh on the heart and judges accordingly.—Selected.

SAMMY'S SPELL OF THE BLUES

It was pouring down rain and the day was dark and dreary. "I just feel like going upstairs and having a spell of the blues," said Sammy, who stood at the kitchen window. "I wanted to go out of doors and play with Carol, my new dog."

"Oh, Sammy, come here!" called a voice from another room.

Sammy stuck his hands into his pockets, and walked slowly into the room where sat his grandmother in a large arm-chair. She put her arm about him and pulled him close to her side. "Would you bring grandma four large, smooth potatoes and four small, round ones?" she asked.

"Yes, ma'am," he replied; "but what are you going to do with them, grandma?"

"Wait and see," answered grandmother.

In a moment Sammy had fished the potatoes from a sack in the kitchen and placed them in his grandmother's lap.

"Now, get me some short sticks from the kindling box, Sammy," she continued, "and we'll see what we can make."

Sammy quickly brought some short round sticks from the box by the kitchen stove. His eyes began to dance as his grandmother commenced pushing sticks into the potatoes.

"A horse!" Sammy exclaimed when he beheld four sticks in a big potato for feet and the little potato stuck on for a head.

In a few minutes his grandmother had finished all four of the horses and turned them over to Sammy. He spent the whole evening playing with them, and after supper he did not go to bed for a long time. He just had to build a fence of cobs about his horses to keep them from running away at night.

When Sammy finally kissed his grandmother good-night, he gave her a great big hug, and said: "Grandma, you're fine to keep a fellow from having the blues."—Unknown.

AN INCIDENT OF THE LATE WORLD WAR

There lay on the battlefield a mortally wounded British soldier, and in his dying agonies, cried for water to quench his thirst.

Another soldier, but a German one,—his enemy from the standpoint of battle—heard him. The German soldier was a Christian, a soldier of Jesus Christ as well, and he immediately went over, and taking his canteen from his belt, said to the dying man, "Here is water. Drink."

The poor fellow drank most gratefully and it temporarily alleviated his suffering.

Then the German soldier pulled out a little Testament from his uniform and again leaning over the other man read him some Scriptures and said, "Take of the Water of Life freely and live forever."

It is to be hoped that he did so even in the hour of death, for the grace of God is sufficient to save anyone who will turn by faith and believe.

We would not recommend, reader, that you wait until your dying hour, before having the matter settled, for that hour or moment might burst upon you most unexpectedly, and you wouldn't have even the time that the suffering soldier had to hear again the Gospel and to believe.

"Now is the accepted time." Let it be yours.—Life Line.

PROFESSION WITHOUT POSSESSION

At the Sunday School convention in Los Angeles a worker noticed a young man who had stepped up to a fountain. The year before this worker had asked permission to have inscribed above the fountain, in letters of gold, our Lord's words:—"Whosoever drinketh of this water shall thirst again: but whosoever drinketh of the Water that I shall give him shall never thirst; but the Water that I shall give him shall be in him a well of water springing up into everlasting life" (John 4:13, 14). The Institute worker made bold to join him and ask the question, "Do you believe those words?"

The other man glanced up and read them. He hesitated a moment, then he said: "Well, I believe in making people happy; just keep smiling."

An opportunity was surely at hand now, and the Institute man answered: "Yes, friend, but don't you know that without Christ in the life there is a heart-ache back of every smile?"

The Sunday School superintendent pondered this a moment, and finally said to his new acquaintance: "I want to talk with you. I am a Sunday School superintendent and a delegate to the convention, but no one ever said anything like this to me before."

For an hour and a half they talked—the drink of water forgotten, for the young delegate, like the woman at the well of Samaria, was drinking of that other water. He said he had come all the way from New England to Los Angeles for this convention, but he confessed himself a lost sinner, and then and there, with great joy, he received Christ as his Saviour. Two nights later he attended a meeting in the Fisherman's club room at the Bible Institute and made a public confession of his Lord.—The Sunday School Times.

A MAN WHO WAS DESPISED

True holiness will manifest itself in its spirit of sacrifice. A few years ago there lived a Godly Quaker named Arthington who was much moved by the impassioned utterance of a missionary: "Were I in the homeland again, I would gladly live in one room, make my floor my bed, a box my chair, and another my table, rather than that the heathen should perish for lack of the knowledge of Christ." This Quaker, although his income was large, lived for years according to that ideal. He had just one room, did his own cooking, reduced his meat allowance to one sausage a day, gathered his firewood from under trees after a storm, wore shabby clothes, and endured the common taunt of being a miser. He paid out the sum of $5,000 to make it possible for the first two evangelists to go to the Congo and paid for the first mission steamer which did service on the upper Congo River. The first two missionaries to Lushai Hills, Assam, India, were sent out and maintained by this despised "miser." He gave largely to other missions as well. The Master still sits over against the treasury and I sometimes think that He gauges our Godliness by our giving. It costs most people more to draw a ten-dollar bill out of their purses for a missionary collection than to eject a shout.—Publisher Unknown.

THE "PRAYING MEN"

When Billy Bray was converted there was not another praying man in the mine, and yet Billy, when he went down with six or ten others, would say, "Now, if you will hearken to me, I will pray for you before we go to work, for if I did not pray with you, and any of us should be killed, I should think it was my fault."

When praying he used to say, "Lord, if any of us must be killed or die today let it be me; let not one of these men die, for they are not happy, but I am; and if I should die I should go to Heaven." Soon his influence spread, and many of the other miners became "praying men."—Tabernacle Tidings.

WOMAN'S MISSIONARY DEPARTMENT

MISSIONARY EDUCATION

This week we have for our column something from our young people. Our young people are wanting information about mission. Auxiliaries, wake up to this fact and stress it as we have been stressing finance. We agree that information means interest and interest means money will be gotten.

MRS. H. C. NICHOLSON, Sec'y.

MISSIONARY EDUCATION, WHY AND HOW

The great commission given to us by Jesus when He left the earth, "Go ye and teach all nations . . ." placed upon us a much greater obligation than many of us realize. How many of the church members in our churches today could tell you what missionary education is? Only a minority, and why? Simply because they include so little of it in their church program. The church that fails to impart knowledge concerning missions, both home and foreign, is failing in one of the greatest of its missions.

One might ask why and how this is to be done. If people only understood the existing conditions, the great need of the Gospel to others and the untold sacrifices made by our missionaries, they could not help being interested in missions. One of our returned missionaries when visiting our local auxiliary said that he was not trying to raise money so much as he was trying to get the people to know of the conditions existing in his field and to enlist their prayers. If this is done, funds will follow.

Missionary education has its place in the rural church as well as any other. I believe that every rural church could and should have a missionary society and that the secretary of missionary education in that church should work out a program for the church. That church that is supporting only local interests is falling far short of its duty. The program might contain sermons, at least two a year, by the pastor or visiting minister on the theme of missions. If returned missionaries are available, they should be given an opportunity to talk to the church, for they give us an insight into missions that we fail to get from literature. A visit of the church might be made to orphanage or the orphans might visit the local church and in that way the church might learn of that institution.

If it seems impossible to have a mission study course in Christian Endeavor, then the Sunday school superintendent should insist that his teachers make a special effort to teach missions through the missionary lessons. One of the classes could give a short missionary program in the church auditorium every two months at the closing exercise. The nature of the program should be that of short pageants, stories, talks and songs.

The secretary of missionary education, or someone else, could carry on a reading contest through the church. If the church does not have a library, books may be obtained from other sources. Magazines and periodicals may be exchanged by the various members. Interesting ways may be worked out whereby the young people's societies may receive missionary education.

The missionary society of the church should give at least three programs a year to the church and these largely educational.

Missionary education is a privilege and a responsibility of people both young and old. If we are not doing what we can to educate along this line, may we resolve now to begin a program that will help to banish ignorance and to hasten the coming of God's kingdom on earth.

BESSIE HOLMES.

TO TEACH MISSIONS

Here's a bit of good news for you. Perhaps you have difficulty in getting someone to teach the mission study books. Now there is some splendid help available.

Revs. L. W. Gerringer and J. E. Pritchard are each prepared to review one of these books, (Mr. Gerringer the Home Book, and Mr. Pritchard the Foreign), and they have volunteered to do this for any auxiliary or group of auxiliaries who wish their services. Please get your group together and arrange the date with them.

INSPIRATIONAL MEETING

On Thursday during the Annual Conference at High Point an inspirational meeting of all the women in North Carolina who attend will be held. The details of the program will be announced later. Be sure to make your plans to attend this all-day meeting.

One feature will be a meeting of the executive officers, and we hope as many as possible of these will be in attendance.

MRS. Wm. C. HAMMER,
President N. C. Branch.

GUARD YOUR SPEECH

A bitter tongue
Engenders strife;
A wholesome tongue
Is a tree of life.

The mouths of fools
Speak foolishness;
Wisdom's tongue
Gives happiness.

Wicked lips
Speak but lies;
Righteous words
Make one wise.

False pride goes
Before destruction;
A wise man always Heeds instruction.

—Grenville Kleiser.

SONG FOR SEAMEN

God is at the helm.
Naught is there to fear;
Blithely we sail on,
Knowing He is near.

O'er spacious seas,
Ours the sailors' realm,
We sail on secure,
God is at the helm.

Storms of sea and sky,
Cannot overwhelm;
We know all is well,
God is at the helm.

—Grenville Kleiser.

A REVIVAL FOR THE CHILDREN'S HOME

On last Monday Rev. N. G. Bethea came to us and remained with us up to and including Friday evening, preaching twice each day to the Children's Home family. He presented the truth in the power and demonstration of the Spirit, and yet he presented it in that simplicity which enabled the smallest children to understand.

It was a real old time revival which touched and blessed all of us, both workers and children. Nearly all our children are already members of the church, but they needed a revival. There were seven or eight decisions for Christ and all these will join First Church, High Point, at an early date.

We wish that many of you might have been in our testimony meeting Friday evening, the closing service of the series. It was a great meeting, and it was good to be there. Our children all love Bro. Bethea and will always be glad to see him.

Yours in His service,

A. G. DIXON.

FROM PASTORS and PEOPLE

Tabernacle Charge.—Encouraging congregations were present last Sunday at both Julian and Tabernacle for the preaching services. We were pleased to have Bro. C. L. Jones, of Burlington, worship with us at Tabernacle. Both Sunday schools are doing splendid work with gratifying attendance. We are glad to announce that our new Sunday school building at Tabernacle is now free from all indebtedness. It has meant hard work on the part of pastor and people, but there has been, on the whole, a fine spirit of co-operation. It is our plan now to dedicate the building on the first Sunday in October, just one year after the Centennial celebration when the church voted to build, and the congregation voted for the pastor to preach the dedicatory sermon.

Some of the good ladies on this charge have been doing some canning for the Children's Home. We hope to carry a Harvest Home donation to the Home soon.

Brother Robert A. Smith united with Tabernacle church last Sunday on profession of faith, making ten additions to his church during the year.

Brother John Deviney, who was seriously hurt a few days ago while hauling hay, is improving in Long's Hospital, Greensboro. The other sick folks seem to be better.

One of the friends of Tabernacle church, Brother Vernon Coble, has recently deeded to the trustees one acre of land for a burial ground. Pastor and people are grateful to him for this donation.

Rev. T. F. McCulloch has our thanks for preaching at Tabernacle on the fifth Sunday in August.

In spite of the financial depression and the fact that Tabernacle church has spent approximately $1,400 on the Sunday school building, it appears that our report to Conference will be as good as last year's.

The following have our thanks for gifts: Mr. R. L. Jones, Mr. Eli Royal and Mrs. Lee Alfred. H. L. ISLEY.

Friendship, Mount Hermon Charge.—We have been very busy at Friendship during these warm summer months. The new Sunday school building has been completed and furnished. The structure is of brick veneer and has five classrooms, and an auditorium which seats about 200. There is an adequate stage in the auditorium. The building is electrically lighted and furnace heated. We are very proud of this addition to our church.

Our special meeting was held during the first week in August. Rev. J. Braxton, of Vance charge, was the pulpit help. He brought us some splendid sermons and four members were added to the church.

Our Children's Day program was given the fourth Sunday night in September. In spite of the inclement weather a good congregation was present.

The Christian Endeavor society has been doing good work this summer. Some very helpful and inspiring meetings have been held. The Christian Endeavorers and their friends met for a social at Mrs. D. I. Offman's last Wednesday night. Every one reports a splendid time.

The Sunday school is doing very creditable work. The attendance is never quite so good during the summer months as at other seasons of the year, but we hope everyone will make an effort to be present every Sunday. Five dollars is sent to the Children's Home each month. This amount feeds or clothes one child during the month.

The Woman's Auxiliary met with Mrs. Moody Isley last Saturday afternoon. The ladies will serve ice cream at the church next Friday evening to help raise the apportionment for the year.

We are sorry to lose from our church Mrs. Ernest Smith, nee Miss Callie Isley, to Springwood Presbyterian church, of which Mr. Smith is a member. We feel sure that she will serve that church as loyally as she has Friendship.

We extend to Mr. and Mrs. Robert Overman, who were recently married, our best wishes. Mrs. Overman before her marriage was Miss Fannie Coble.

Mr. Eugene Isley, of our church, was married recently to Miss Mary Ruth Shoffner, of Burlington. They also have our best wishes.

Mrs. Callie Isley is ill at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Byron Keek, on Highway 100. Her condition is much improved and we hope she will soon be well again.

Our pastor, Rev. J. Elwood Carroll, who has served us so faithfully for nearly five years, will be leaving us the latter part of September to take further work in preparation for the ministry at Yale University. We regret very much to lose Mr. Carroll, but we are glad that this opportunity can be his and our best wishes will follow him. Mr. Carroll will arrange for the pulpits of the charge to be filled in his absence until Conference convenes.

The supply for Friendship for October will be as follows: Rev. G. W. Holmes, on the first Sunday at 11 o'clock; Dr. Paul S. Kennett, of High Point College, on the third Sunday at 11 o'clock. Please note these appointments and the hours of service.

Miss Edith Isley has been elected as church reporter for next year. We are sure Miss Isley will make a splendid reporter and that the Herald family will enjoy her reports.

MAE PATTERSON, Reporter.

Friendship Church, Fallston Charge.—On Sunday our pastor, Rev. J. M. Morgan, delivered a splendid and helpful sermon. The subject discussed was taken from Luke 17:32: "Remember Lot's wife." We hope to put into practice the things which he told us in his message.

We are very glad to have our Sunday school superintendent, N. J. Wright, who has been sick for several months, to be back and fill his place.

The program committee of the Sunday school Workers' Council met Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the home of Mrs. W. A. Gantt to make out its program for the coming month.

On Saturday before the third Sunday in October we will hold our last quarterly conference at Fallston, at which time Dr. Taylor will be with us. He will preach for us on Saturday and Sunday morning.

The Christian Endeavor society is improved wonderfully; we think it is the best we have ever had. We have a real good attendance. Our society organized a Christian Endeavor society at Hebron church last Sunday night.

Our pastor reports a wonderful meeting at Hebron, which ran for two weeks. Over 100 professions were made during the two weeks.

MRS. F. B. TONEY, Reporter.

Mizpah, Haw River Circuit.—Rev. J. L. Trollinger last Sunday morning preached an interesting sermon from the subject, "The One Thing Needful." Throughout his discourse he emphasized the thought that Jesus was the outstanding need of the home, community and nation.

Our congregations at Sunday school and each preaching service have been encouraging during the year. Our Sunday school is to serve Brunswick stew to the community next Saturday afternoon.

Ernest Jones has returned from a government hospital in Tennessee where he was sent for treatment.

Roy P. Stallings, a member of our church, is in a government hospital in Kentucky taking treatment. Such cases are outstanding results of the World War.

Mrs. Margaret Harrison, who has been blind for several years, has been attending church services regularly this summer. Although afflicted, she is cheerful and seems to enjoy life.

Our Christian Endeavor Society is still alive. Mr. and Mrs. George Harrison entertained the society recently with a mateloon slicing; also entertained in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Percy Jones.

Dewey Hurlines, one of our members, has been sick.

Much success to the Herald.

REPORTER.

Kannapolis.—Sunday, September 20, was a big day for us; just another glorious experience. Our Sunday school attendance was good; 150 present and it continues to grow. The doors of the church were opened, and we received eight for membership in the morning service. This gives us 90 church members, a gain of 40 for this year, and 65 for the two years. Over tripled the membership by 15 for the two years. We do not know how to be grateful for the wonderful blessing God has given us since coming to Kannapolis. We have become very much endeared to the people. They showed their devotion in so many ways during our recent illness. Apparently all were anxiously concerned and showered us with flowers, literally a flower garden in my room, and some one coming in constantly to inquire about my condition. We shall never forget them for their expressions of love.

Our meeting just closed with 27 converted or reclaimed. A number of these were members from other churches, and converts of family connections of other denominations. Therefore, we have not received any members directly from the meeting. Yet we feel the church has been greatly benefited by Rev. M. C. Henderson's wonderful preaching. He seemed to put all he had in his efforts. We are thankful to him for his efforts and to God for the results.

We organized a Junior and Intermediate Christian Endeavor Sunday evening. We have some fine young people and, realizing they will be called upon later to take up the work of the elders, we desire to help them train themselves so they will be better fitted to carry on the work.

Our finances are considerably in arrears, and there are only five more Sundays until Conference. We realize that some have made a sacrifice in this regard and have had a struggle. They have just raised the last payment on the original cost of the new church, paying for it in a period of 18 months. This is very commendable and we rejoice with them. We feel sure that some do not realize the importance of our financial needs and when fully realized will line up with us for a final effort to close this year with a full budget paid. We feel they are all sincere and have a sense of loyalty for the church we have learned to love. May the Lord continue to bless them in their efforts.

J. L. LOVE, Pastor.

Roberta.—Sunday was a good day for us. We have a live Sunday school. At different times this summer we have reached the 300 mark. There was good attendance for church services Sunday, both morning and evening. The first Sunday in October is to be Rally Day at our church, also Promotion Day.

We held our revival beginning the first Sunday in August. Rev. Joel Trogdon came to us in time for the evening service. He delivered wonderful messages from time to time throughout the week. While we did not have the visible results we had hoped for, we had several reclamations, some professions, and the church was much revived. We all will be delighted to have Brother Trogdon come this way again.

Brother J. W. Sutton is our delegate to the Annual Conference. We are looking forward to next Sunday evening at 7 o'clock when Dr. Taylor will be with us. It is hoped a full attendance of members will be present, and we also welcome the visitors.

C. H. HILL.

Corinth, Littleton Circuit.—Sunday, September 6th, was observed as Home-Coming Day for this church. Our pastor, P. E. Bingham, delivered a very helpful and inspiring sermon at 11 o'clock a. m., using for his subject "Love." The afternoon sermon was delivered by a former pastor, Rev. H. B. Thompson. We were sorry that more of our ex-pastors could not be with us on this day. This marked the beginning of our revival. Rev. B. M. Williams came on Monday and did all the preaching and did it well. Bro. Williams is a good preacher. We all enjoyed having him in our homes. Our meeting had to come to a close on Friday night, as Bro. Williams had to go home. Our greatest love and prayers go out for him for his wonderful service rendered us while in our midst. There were no confessions, but two reclaimed of the church.

Those attending our meeting from a distance were Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Doxey, Norfolk, Va.; Miss Dasie Lee Carter, Portsmouth, Va.; Mr. and Mrs. N. E. Pepper, of Newport News, Va.; Mr. B. M. Morris, Richmond; Mrs. A. P. Pittman and daughter, Whitaker's; Mrs. Betty Insoe (our oldest member, who is 91 years old), Rosemary.

Last Tuesday night Dr. S. W. Taylor delivered a very interesting sermon at this church

We hope Dr. Taylor will come back again in the near future. He was our pastor a few years ago and we are always glad to have him with us.

Bro. Bingham filled his appointment here Sunday night. He brought us a good message. We feel that we are fortunate in having this fine young man and his companion with us. He looks after the old people and sick on his work, and is always ready to lend a helping hand to any in distress.

We reorganized our Sunday school and we hope to get our people interested in this work and have a good Sunday school. Mr. B. E. Morris is the superintendent.

Miss Tempie Carter, one of our young ladies, left last week for High Point College where she will attend school. We wish her much success.

Miss Virginia Insoe left last week for N. C. W., Greensboro, where she will resume her duties.

The fourth quarterly conference will be held Saturday, October 10th, at 2 p. m., at Littleton church. All officials of the church are requested to be there.

MRS. B. F. MORRIS, Reporter.

Spring Church, Spring Church Charge.—We were very glad to have President Taylor with us Sunday. He gave us such a helpful and suitable sermon for these "hard times." His text was, "Seek ye first the kingdom of God and His righteousness and all these things shall be added unto you."

Due to the fact that the writer's husband was in Roanoke Rapids Hospital for two weeks during August. I haven't had a chance to report about our revival. Prof. Pender was with us eight days. Everyone enjoyed his singing. Hope he can be with us again. Sorry I couldn't attend more of the services, but certainly enjoyed the sermons I did hear Bro. Lowdermilk preach. While we didn't have any one to join the church we hope much good was accomplished.

Our attendance was small Sunday as some of our boys and girls are away at school, and right many people are sick.

Our Sunday school superintendent, J. W. Crew, Jr., had his tonsils removed Friday; he is getting along nicely.

Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Demick are sick and were not able to be with us Sunday.

Miss Virginia Massey is at High Point College, while Miss Katherine Crew is at N. C. W., Greensboro. We miss them lots, as they took active parts in Sunday school and Christian Endeavor.

REPORTER.

Burlington, First Church.—Today was a very good day for us. Fine attendance at Sunday school, totaling 316, and the offering amounted to $27.31.

Dr. Paschal preached at the morning preaching hour and Dr. Brown, of Reidsville, brought the evening message, as Bro. Paschal is assisting in the revival at the Reidsville church and he and Dr. Brown exchanged pulpits for the evening service.

Miss Swannie Coble recently joined our church, coming from the Fountain Place church. We welcome Miss Coble back with us, as she was a member of First church a few years ago.

Our fall revival is to begin next Sunday and we hope and pray that each one may do his or her part in the making of these services a success.

The Burlington Junior Quartette, composed of Misses Pauline and Christine Thomas, Gaynell Bennett, and Margaret Hinshaw of First church, is scheduled to render special selections at the Union church of Ware Shoals, S. C., on Sunday, September 27th. These young singers have become quite noted for their splendid musical selections and have broadcasted a number of times over radio. The quartette is under the direction of Miss Lula Riddle and has been organized three years.

An offering was taken for the aged ministers of our denomination last Sunday and the congregation responded splendidly.

The Business Girls' Circle of First church met at the Delicatessen Monday, September 7, at 7 o'clock with 12 members present. A delicious salad course with frozen fruit and parfait for dessert was served. During the meal the regular meeting was held.

The president called the meeting to order and asked that the secretary give her report for last month; following that the roll call and dues. The report from the treasury was very pleasing to all. Ways and means of making money were discussed and the circle felt that they could do some real work before the close of the year.

Eighteen visits to the sick; flowers sent to three and cards to five were reported for the month of August. There being no further business the meeting adjourned.

Misses Grace and Sarah Thompson, Peggy and Frankie Hinshaw, Nettie Mae Smith, and Tula Paul were guests of Rev. L. W. Gerringer and family at Winston-Salem Sunday, September 6th.

L. A. BRAXTON, Reporter.

Lebanon, High Point.—On Wednesday, September 9, the Woman's Auxiliary met with Mrs. Vester Smith at her attractive home north of the City. Associate hostesses were Mesdames J. W. Reavis, L. B. Moore, and Garland Blair. There were 24 members and two visitors present. The program was on "Our Children's Home." Mrs. S. E. Montgomery, who is secretary of the Children's Home, was program leader. After a brief but inspiring devotional, Mrs. G. C. Brinson read an article which told of the organization of the Methodist Protestant Children's Home. Mrs. Montgomery then gave an interesting outline of the management of the boys and girls in regard to the work in the Home as told to her by Mrs. Dixon. Mrs. Vester Smith read "Our Summer Outing," a letter written by Dr. Dixon to the Methodist Protestant Herald. Mrs. J. R. Cook conducted the question box. Our pastor, Rev. J. C. Madison, favored us with a beautiful vocal solo at this time. This proved to be a very interesting program, as the women at Lebanon are especially interested in anything pertaining to the Children's Home.

The secretary gave the following report, covering the work done by the Auxiliary in the past six months: Total enrollment, 42; average attendance at general meetings, 23; new members, 7; three new subscriptions and ten renewals to the Missionary Record; 414 visits made; 269 baskets and bunches of flowers, and 17 trays sent to sick; 41 garments, 2 bushels of peaches, 4 baskets of fruit, 42 pounds of butter, 4 gallons of milk, 1 chicken and vegetables to five people given away; amount of money raised, $141.27. Approximately 65 shirts were made from material furnished by Mrs. Dixon for the boys in the Home.

Our September Thank-Offering service was held Sunday evening at 7:30. The offering will go to the Minnis Fund. Rev. Mr. Madison preached a very inspiring Missionary sermon. We always enjoy his messages. He is proving himself a real leader in every activity of the church. We are sorry to lose our president, Mrs. W. M. Crouch, who goes to Sumter, S. C., to make her home. Mrs. Crouch has done a wonderful work in our Auxiliary and we regret very much to give her up, but our best wishes follow her to her new home.

On the third Sunday in August Home-Coming Day was held at Leanon. This was sponsored by the ladies of the church. Many former members and friends of the church came to enjoy a day of worship and fellowship together. Our special meeting, conducted by Rev. R. I. Farmer, of First church, began at this time. We feel that much good was accomplished in the services and Rev. Mr. Farmer greatly endeared himself to our people.

On the second Sunday evening in October Rally Day service will be observed.

The C. E. Society will have charge of this service.

MRS. PERCY PAYNE.

Corresponding Sec'y of Woman's Auxiliary.

First Church, High Point.—The theme of the splendid message brought by the minister at the 11 o'clock service Sunday morning was "The Challenge of Today." The choir sang a beautiful anthem, "The Great Day of the Lord," by Chaffin. The organ, after extensive repairs and reconditioning, was used again by Prof. Ernest B. Stinson. This repair work was made necessary by a stroke of lightning, which injured the organ when it hit the steeple of the church last June. Since these repairs have been made, the organ is in excellent condition and as sweet toned as when it was new. At the evening service the anthem, "Saviour, When Night," by Shelley, was rendered by the choir, and Rev. R. I. Farmer, delivered another fine sermon on "Beseeching Christ to Leave Town."

The Circles of the Woman's Auxiliary held meetings Monday afternoon at the different homes: No. 4, Mrs. W. W. Cecil, chairman, with Mrs. W. C. Koontz, 309 Fourth street; No. 5, Mrs. R. H. Davis, chairman, with Mrs. J. S. Hilton, 1010 Sherrod avenue; No. 6, Mrs. J. A. Gray, chairman, with Mrs. Fred Younts, 511 Monticue avenue; No. 7, Mrs. L. R. Peacock, chairman, with Mrs. L. J. Diffie, 1103 Johnson street, and No. 8, Mrs. R. H. Shaw, chairman, with Mrs. A. J. Koonce, South Main street; No. 3, Miss Mary Wall, chairman, will meet this (Tuesday) evening with Miss Ruth Welch, 612 North Main street. The date for the annual bazaar and turkey supper has been set for October 29th. The study book, "Trailing the Conquistadores," by Inman, has been finished, and the new ones, "Christ Comes to the Village," will be taken up in October.

An informal reception, sponsored by the Woman's Auxiliary and the two C. E. Societies, will be tendered the faculty and student body of High Point College and the Methodist Protestant teachers of the city schools on Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock in the church parlors. This get-together meeting will be an expression of our cordial welcome, a hope to know each other better and to be of mutual benefit during the coming year. Refreshments will be served, and a large attendance is expected.

Monday evening's meeting of the Senior C. E. Society will have Miss Ezora Suits as leader.

Next Sunday, September 27th, will be Rally and Promotion Day in our church and Sabbath school, and an intensive campaign is being made to insure a large attendance, the slogan being "1,500 Present in the Services; Every Member and a Friend in at Least One Service of the Day." It will be a Home-Coming Day and the morning service is to begin at 10:30 o'clock and close at 12. The minister will deliver a special message to the church, and the evening service at 7:30 will be in charge of the young people of the congregation, who will present a special program, which is being prepared. Rev. Mr. Farmer will speak at this service also. It is earnestly hoped that we may have cooler weather then and that our congregation will come out in large numbers and fill the church to its capacity. This will be a fine opportunity to renew our loyalty and pledge anew our best service for the winter's work.

The members of Circle No. 4 and No. 6 of the Woman's Auxiliary have decided to give jointly a Silver Tea at the lovely home of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. T. Penny on Greensboro road on the afternoon and evening of Friday, October 2nd. There will be special music by local talent and refreshments will be served. Approximately 500 invitations will be issued to friends in High Point, Asheboro, Thomasville, Greensboro, and Winston-Salem. A silver offering will be taken at the door.

The woodwork of the church is being freshly painted on the exterior, which will add greatly to its appearance. The lawn, evergreens, and shrubbery are being carefully cared for by Mr. D. E. White, who is very faithful and painstaking in his work in the church and about the grounds.

We are much gratified to note that Miss Elizabeth Force, who has been ill in Guilford General Hospital, is improved and was removed today to her home on Steele street. Her numerous friends will be pleased to learn this welcome news. The many friends of Mrs. J. R. Montgomery will be glad to hear that she is improving also, and is able to be up and around her home.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph H. Vance left Saturday for Yanceyville, N. C., where both will teach this year.

Mr. and Mrs. June Gray, C. L. Gray, Sr., and Mrs. J. B. Spencer went to Graham Monday to attend the funeral services in the Presbyterian church for their cousin, Mr. Curry Walker.

Mrs. Rupert Pickens, Jr., who underwent an operation for appendicitis in High Point Hospital last Friday, is making a satisfactory recovery, to the gratification of many relatives and friends. In her absence her grade in Ray street school is being taught by Mrs. A. M. Richardson.

We regret very much to learn that Mrs. A. L. Ellison was painfully hurt a few days ago by a large block of ice falling on her foot, which lamed her, and she is now walking on crutches. Her daughter, Miss Myrtle, is ill also. Many friends will wish for them an early recovery.

The handsome new Junior High School building on Jones street, opposite and facing the High School, will be completed by Christmas, and is expected to be ready for occupancy January 1st. High Point will be admirably equipped in the way of schools for several years in the future.

Mrs. J. C. Welch, Sr., won a premium for best embroidered pillow-cases at the High Point Community Fair last week.

Miss Vera Idol, of the English Department of High Point College, who was granted a leave of absence for a year, left last evening for New York, where she will pursue work in Columbia University, leading to a Ph.D. degree. Mrs. Henry A. White will have charge of her classes during her absence.

Anderson Charge, Liberty Hill.—The work as a whole is in good condition. Sunday, September 13th, was the day we had set to raise our Conference claims, and we presented them in this manner: We asked all that would to give 100 pounds of seed cotton or the money equivalent to same, and they responded to the extent of around $40, and we hope to get the other before we go to Conference.

As our contest has closed between the two churches we are planning for a picnic dinner on October 16 in conjunction with our fourth quarterly conference. Fairview being the winners, they will be entertained by the Liberty Hill Sunday school.

Fairview church, September 20. This was our regular appointment, and for Sunday school and preaching there was a large congregation present and we presented the claims in the same manner as we did at the other church and it met with a hearty response to the amount of $57 besides the seed, and I feel sure they are going to raise the entire allotment on A. C. B. this year, and they are standing by the pastor in this work. The ladies are going to buy 50 new song books for the church. They are doing fine work under the leadership of Miss Montez Henderson.

Pray that we may do greater work for the Master. M. C. HENDERSON, Pastor.

Bethesda, Halifax Circuit.—President Taylor has just been with us and made a very earnest appeal for the financial support of the church. Even in this time of distress and scarcity of money, he feels that it is possible and obligatory to give to this cause and save this greatest and most vital institution.

Mr. Taylor spent some time in this community during his early ministry, and his many friends here are always glad to see him.

Our special meeting was held in August with Mr. Elwood Carroll as help. His sermons were very original and striking and made a very favorable impression. As someone said, "He has a different slant on things." Owing to bad weather throughout the week, the attendance was not as large as usual, but the congregations were very attentive and interested. We shall be glad to have Mr. Carroll with us again.

Mr. Fogleman gave us another good sermon last second Sunday. We are hoping to have him back for next year.

Last Sunday he and Mrs. Fogleman had a narrow escape from having their car turned over by someone running against them on the road. This seemed to have been done maliciously, on account of the dust the other fellow had been taking from their car in front. We are very thankful the consequences were no worse.

MRS. L. B. STREET, Reporter.

Hollister.—Our Sunday school is still growing in interest and attendance. We had 100 per cent present at Sunday school Sunday. We are adding new members to our roll nearly every Sunday.

The C. E. Society is meeting regularly every Sunday evening with good attendance. Pastor Fogleman led the C. E. service Sunday night. Miss Leslie Mae Taylor will conduct the service next Sunday evening.

We were very glad indeed to have our president, Dr. S. W. Taylor, with us on last Thursday morning, September 17. Dr. Taylor gave us a splendid "talk" or "sermon," rather, for that is what it was. I am very sorry that more of our people were not present to hear this message. Those of us who heard the message enjoyed it and we hope Dr. Taylor will visit us again soon.

The Woman's Auxiliary met in the home of Mrs. Ed Wood on last Tuesday afternoon. A very interesting meeting was held. Mrs. W. E. Knight conducted the devotional service. Our next meeting will be held in the home of Mrs. W. D. Wood on the second Tuesday afternoon in October.

Since writing my last report death has visited my home and taken my dear grandmother, Mrs. Rosa Knight, away from us. An obituary will appear later in the Herald.

KATHLEEN SHEARIN, Reporter.

Hawkins Chapel, Littleton Charge.—The second Sunday Rev. P. E. Bingham brought to us a very helpful sermon. This was one of our greatest services. The Lord's Supper was observed, and at this hour we were glad to see as many to remember Jesus; because Jesus said at His last supper, "Do this in remembrance of me." At this service Mrs. Cutchin and son, of Whitakers, N. C., were with us. She organized a Woman's Auxiliary. Miss Beatrice Hawkins was elected president; Mrs. Paul Hawkins, vice-president; Miss Erma Hawkins, secretary; Mrs. Claude Hawkins, treasurer. We will hold our first meeting if no further announcement the first Sunday at 2:30 o'clock, and don't forget our preaching service the first Sunday night.

Our Sunday school is holding up pretty well.

Bro. C. F. Hawkins held prayer service Sunday after Sunday school. He read from Hebrews 11th chapter. The first Sunday morning Mr. Leo Pittard will hold it. On the second Sunday the C. E. Society held a business meeting. They held their meetings the second and fourth Sunday evenings.

We were glad to have with us Wednesday night, September 16, Rev. S. W. Taylor. He preached a sermon that would be an uplift to anyone; sorry no more could hear it. We didn't get the message in time; we understood Sunday that he would not be able to reach our church. So, Bro. Taylor, come again; you have a welcome.

Mr. and Mrs. P. E. Bingham and Miss Vera Morris were the dinner guests of Mrs. V. I. Hawkins the second Sunday; also her son and wife, Mr. and Mrs. Philip Hawkins.

The Conference year is soon coming to an end, and we have very much work to be done. But let's go about our Father's business so He can say, "Thou hast been faithful over a few things; I will make thee ruler over many things."

MRS. CLAUDE H. HAWKINS,
Reporter.

Why Not Charge.—On last Sunday night we closed the last and eighth special meeting for this charge. Rev. J. W. Hulin was our special helper in four meetings; Rev. D. I. Garner and Rev. Ed Shaw in one each. Rev. A. D. Shelton assisted in two. The first seven held were well attended and each helper did his best. Our last meeting began at Love Joy the second Sunday in September. Bro. Shelton was on hand from the first and remained until Friday afternoon. His preaching was biblical, forceful and convincing. Record crowds attended the services throughout; especially at night. Bro. Shelton delivered 15 sermons. Bro. Hulin three, and the writer three. In this meeting there was more personal work in the congregation than in all put together in the seven previously held on the charge. The results were likewise greater.

On Thursday night and Friday night the old-time camp meeting spirit charged the atmosphere round about. Sinners were converted, and both young and old shouted and sang the praises of God. There were 34 conversions in all. A few of these were reclamations, and a few other preferred to join elsewhere. We received 20 new members, about all being young people.

According to this writer's opinion, this was the greatest revival in many respects ever held on any charge served by him.

I should have stated above that two professed faith in Christ Sunday night after the meeting closed. They are to be received next Sunday by Bro. Hulin.

Bro. Shelton has my personal thanks, and my personal endorsement. Bro. Hulin also is entitled to my personal thanks for his cooperation and counsel throughout the entire year.

WM. H. NEESE.

Seagrove, N. C., Sept. 22, 1931.

Forsyth Charge.—The reporters on this charge do not take up a great deal of space in the Herald, so I will write a few lines to let our friends know how we are getting along.

The fine co-operation on the part of the church people has made it possible for the work to move along without a hitch this year. I have not asked anyone to compare this year's congregations with those of former years, for comparisons are sometimes disagreeable things, however, the attendance has been what I consider good. Sometimes the congregations well nigh equal the membership of some of the churches. Sunday school attendance has held up well also. The financial situation does not look like an impossible one. We are behind some, as most all other churches are, but we expect to make a creditable showing in the final roundup.

The spiritual condition seems fair. The people seem to appreciate the services and to enjoy the Gospel. Like other places, however, some of them do not trouble themselves about attending all the services. All over our land there needs to be started a "Back to the Church" movement. Most of the people who stay away from church are away from God.

In our third quarterly conference when the vote for delegate was counted it was found that Brother C. A. Long, of the Maple Springs church, is to be delegate to our Annual Conference.

Our people are trying to give some thought to people besides themselves and away from the local church. Several weeks ago the pastor went to the Children's Home and secured 100 fruit jars and the good women of Mount Carmel church have filled them for the Home. Now the same church is getting busy on a "harvest home" offering for the Home. Some of the other churches are thinking about the same thing.

During this time of bountiful crops, the people have been thoughtful of the pastor and his family. I will not attempt to give names, but we have been remembered with donations of vegetables, melons, butter, honey and plenty of fruits, which we appreciate and for which the people have our thanks.

Brother C. W. Bates preached for us in our Hickory Ridge meeting the second week in August, and did it well. There were a number of professions and three united with the church. The people greatly enjoyed the Gospel messages brought by Brother Bates.

The first Sunday in September we were delighted to have as our guests for the day six of the fine young people whom it was our privilege to encourage in the Master's work when we lived in Burlington. They were Misses Tula Paul, Peggie and "Frankie" Hinshaw, Grace and Sarah Thompson, and Nettie Mae Smith. These young people made a fine impression on our Maple Springs church folks.

I am praying God's blessing to be upon all our churches and their pastors in these closing weeks of the Conference year. There is so much yet to be done and pastors and people are anxious that the Master may be able to say "Well done." As President Taylor said in his "Message to the Churches," may we so "press the work of these closing weeks that whatever is lacking when the year ends . . .

. . . it shall not be that we have failed in faithfulness."

L. W. GERRINGER, Pastor.

Midway, Haw River Circuit.—Our Sunday school and church activities are moving along nicely. Bro. Trollinger is filling his appointments with good and interesting sermons, and the congregations are very good. The second Sunday in this month Professor Fentress held his 22nd annual singers' convention at this place. A large crowd was present to hear the many songs of praises sung by the choir and also by the different quartets. At 2 o'clock in the afternoon there was a beautiful memorial service held in memory of Mr. Arthur Bailiff, who was a member of one of the quartets. I think all who were present enjoyed the day and we were glad to have so many visitors. At night we expected the Billy Sunday club from Winston-Salem to be with us, but they did not come, so Bro. Trollinger preached and all enjoyed the sermon.

Last Sunday Dr. and Mrs. Dixon were with us with about 15 of the children, who gave an interesting program. The congregation was small, due to other services in the community, but all who were there enjoyed having them. Among the group of children were the three children from our own church: Nancy, Maggie Francis and little A. G. Dixon.

Sunday night an interesting C. E. program was conducted by Pattie Bartee. Next Sunday we will have Sunday school at 10 o'clock, preaching at 11 and C. E. at 7:30.

MRS. G. W. APPLE, Reporter.

Asheboro.—Our Sunday school and church services have been held regularly with very good attendance through the summer months. Beginning with September we have been having the evening services in our church again, after joining in the union outdoor services during July and August.

The evening services are being made evangelistic, both in sermon and song. On Sunday evening, September 13th, we observed Better Music Night. The choir and the congregation did splendid singing, joining in heartily. The pastor, Rev. R. C. Stubbins, gave an interesting talk on music and hymns and this was interspersed with hymns of various kinds.

Next Sunday will be Promotion Day in the Sunday school; the following Sunday, October 4, at 11 a. m. will be Rally Day for our church. A program will be given and also the church is extending an invitation for reception of members. In the afternoon and evening of this same day the District Christian Endeavor Convention will be held in our church. We are expecting a large delegation of young people at this time.

Our annual revival meeting has been announced to begin Sunday, October 11th. Dr. F. W. Paschal, pastor of First church, Burlington, has been engaged to do the preaching during the meeting.

We are indeed glad to have Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Luttrell, who have resided in High Point for a while, to return to our city to make it their permanent home and are happy to have them and little son, June Morris, to move their membership back to our church.

The Philathea class held their monthly meeting with Mrs. N. M. Harrison at the home of her mother, Mrs. J. S. Lewis, Monday evening, September 7. Miss Lola Lowdermilk presided over the meeting. After the business meeting a musical program was enjoyed. At the conclusion of the program Nat Mason Harrison and Ann Harrison Ridge presented a surprise miscellaneous shower to Mrs. Clyde Chisholm, nee Miss Callie Way, and Mrs. John Farlow, nee Miss Mary Wade Bulfinch, recent brides, and members of the class. A salad course was served to the large number present.

Wedding bells have again been ringing. In a double wedding ceremony at Bennettsville, S. C., Sunday night, August 30, Miss Kathleen Amick, daughter of Mrs. Sarah Amick, members of our church, was married to Burton Parks, son of Mr. and Mrs. Simon Parks, of Asheboro; and Miss Vera McCombs, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. V. McCombs, of Franklinville, was married to John Ward, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. Ward, of our church and town.

Miss Nell Bulfinch, of Asheboro, Route 2, was married to Mr. A. O. Ferree, who is a member of our church, on Friday evening, September 4th, in Danville, Va. Mr. and Mrs. Ferree are at home to their friends on Park street.

Miss Lucille Lowdermilk, who is in training in the Pennsylvania Hospital, Philadelphia, is at home for a two weeks' visit to her mother, Mrs. Frank Lowdermilk.

Among the young people from our church who have entered the various colleges are Lucy Clyde Ross and Edna Holder, N. C. C. W., Greensboro; Lucille Brown, Davenport, Lenoir; Elizabeth Ross, High Point College, High Point; Edith McDowell, Edwards' Business College, High Point; Thomas Redding, University, Chapel Hill; Arthur Ross, Jr., Davidson.

We are glad to have Miss Enolia Presnell, of Charlotte, and Miss Helen Hayes, of Henderson, and Miss Katy Bogle, of Steeds, back on the teaching staff of our city school and to have them worship with us.

We are also glad to have Miss Louise Swain remain at home as one of the music teachers in the school.

On Sunday morning, September 13th, Mrs. M. C. Spoon died at her home from injuries received in an automobile wreck near Albemarle about two weeks before, at which time her daughter, Mrs. Robert Cochran, of Charlotte, was killed. Mrs. Spoon was a loyal member of our church; three daughters survive, to whom the church extends sympathy. Funeral services were conducted at her home Monday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock by Rev. R. C. Stubbins, Rev. A. P. Brantley, pastor of the M. E. church, and Rev. J. E. Pritchard, of Winston-Salem, a former pastor. Interment was made in the local cemetery.

LOLLIE JONES, Reporter.

Mitchell's Grove.—Our pastor, Rev. E. O. Peeler, filled his appointment second Sunday night with a splendid message. We will begin our special meeting next Sunday, September 27, with Rev. J. D. Morris to assist in the preaching, and we hope to have a program Sunday afternoon from the Children's Home. Not any of us have heard the fine program they gave at the Washington convention, so we are hoping we may have that from them Sunday. We extend a cordial invitation to one and all to come and enjoy the day with us.

Mrs. Bertha Campbell, one of our faithful members, has been unable to be with us for some time, but we are hoping she will soon be with us, well and strong again.

MARTHA PARSONS.

Bethesda.—We were so glad to see a very satisfactory number present Sunday, September 13th in our Rally Day services when God brought us many good messages through the little ones of our Sunday School. We are so proud of our children and we hope and pray for them to make useful workers in the service of the Lord.

Pastor Saunders filled his September appointment and brought a wonderful message. We are always glad to see him because we know he has some good food for the soul to give us everytime. Our next preaching service will be the fourth Sunday in October. We are so sorry it is impossible for him to be with us oftener, because we have learned to love him. May God's richest blessings ever abide with him is our prayer.

MARRIED

Barnes-Sapp

On Wednesday evening, September 16, at 8 o'clock, in the First Methodist Protestant church in Winston-Salem, Miss Ruby Sapp was united in marriage to Mr. James Howard Barnes, the writer officiating. Mrs. Barnes is the oldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. O. Sapp, and is a graduate of Salem college and has been a very successful school teacher, her last work being in the city schools of Greensboro. Mr. Barnes is a splendid young business man of Winston-Salem.

We wish for these young people much happiness in life.

J. E. PRITCHARD.

BUSINESS MEN, AWAKE!

(A Call to Duty)

Business men, awake!
You've earnest work to do.
Constructive plans and faith
Will see the country through.

Business men, awake!
While many grope for light,
The power is in your hands
To set the people right.

Business men, awake!
Forever kill the dole,
Give men an honest job,
And time to feed the soul.

Business men, awake!
Put selfish aims aside.
Work for the public weal,
Let Christ alone be guide.

Business men, awake!
You've earnest work to do.
Constructive plans and faith
Will see the country through.

A LINCOLN STORY

During the Civil war a committee of men from New York called upon Lincoln to ask him for a gunboat in New York harbor, for the protection of that city. One of the members of the committee after another emphasized the great amount of wealth represented by the delegation. When they were all through presenting their plea Lincoln assured them of his desire to do everything that he could, but reminded them that gunboats were few and the funds in the national treasury were low. He then concluded his remarks with:

"If I had as much money as you gentlemen claim to have and were as badly frightened as you seem to be, I would buy a gunboat and give it to the city of New York."

Patient—Oh, Doctor, I'm so sick—if I could only die.

Doctor: I'll do the very best I can for you.
—Pathfinder.

Old Gent—Here, what do you mean by selling me a paper and yelling, "United States vessel gone down with all on board?" There's been no mishap!

Newsboy—Of course not—it was a submarine.—Pathfinder.

IN HONOR OF THE DEAD

Holder

Thomas Robert Holder, aged 50 years, a member of the First Methodist Protestant church at Winston-Salem, departed this life in a hospital at Mooresville, N. C., on August 25, 1931. The funeral was held in our church here on the 27th, the writer being assisted by Rev. J. D. Williams, D.D., who was pastor of the church when the deceased joined the church. Brother Holder was severely injured in a train wreck in the railroad yards in Mooresville and died a week and a half later.

He is survived by his wife and two children, Clyde and Katherine, and by his mother. The family has the deepest sympathy of the community.

J. E. PRITCHARD.

Hynes

George Washington Hynes, one of the oldest members of Tabernacle church, passed from this life August 5, 1931, being 76 years of age. Fifteen years ago he united with Tabernacle church and remained a faithful member until death. Those who knew him best said that he always gave liberally of his means for the support of the Gospel ministry.

Surviving him are two nieces, Mrs. C. M. Andrew and Mrs. M. E. Monnett. We believe Brother Hynes has gone to that place where there are no troubles and sorrows.

The writer conducted the funeral at Tabernacle church and the burial took place in the church cemetery.

H. L. ISLEY.

Hunter

Mrs. Lavitha Apperson Hunter was born July 3, 1837. On October 15, 1858, she was married to J. M. Hunter, who prece her to the spirit-land 16 years ago. She passed to her heavenly home in the afternoon of September 14th. She had lived to the good age of 94 years, two months, and eleven days.

She is survived by four daughters, Mrs. E. E. Kiger, Mrs. S. A. James, Mrs. J. T. Prindexter, and Mrs. J. Emily Cox; one brother, T. A. Apperson of East Bend; 31 grandchildren, 41 great-grandchildren, and one great-great-grandchild. One son died in infancy, another son, J. O. Hunter, died some years ago, and a daughter, Mrs. T. D. Speas, died a year ago.

Mrs. Hunter, or "Grandma Hunter" as many called her, was a good and remarkable woman. She was a remarkable woman from the standpoint of the time she had lived. To her it was given to live twice the average life time and to see generation after generation born and grow into manhood and womanhood. And up until recent months she had remarkably good use of both body and mind, and took a lively interest in all about her. Truly, she lived a long and useful life.

For more than 70 years she had been a member of the Methodist Protestant Church, having first united with the Pleasant Hill church and then some years later transferring to the Maple Springs church where she was a most interested and consecrated member until the time of her translation. She loved her Bible and was devoted to her church. For hours at a time she would sit and read her Bible for her own pleasure and profit, and for the benefit of her husband, while he lived, who for some years before his death could not see well enough to read. She continued to read her Bible and church paper until about four years ago when her eyes failed her. Her devotion to her church remained to the end. After she was unable to attend the services she remembered to send her contribution. Nothing, perhaps, delighted her more than to have her pastor call to see her. Even in the last months of her life, when her mind was failing along with the body, her face would always brighten when told that the preacher had come to see her. When I called to see her on Thursday before she passed away on Monday I told her that I was her preacher and she opened her eyes and said: "I would love to hear you, preacher." She had not spoken distinctly for several hours before that. And those were the last words she uttered on earth. Thus to the very last she was interested in her preacher and that because he represented to her spiritual things.

The hearts of the daughters and other relatives and friends are comforted in the belief that she has gone to enjoy a well-earned reward.

The funeral services were conducted at the home and at Maple Springs church on Wednesday forenoon by the pastor, assisted by Rev. R. C. Stubbins and Rev. Mr. Parker of the Baptist Church. Then her body was laid to rest beneath a profusion of beautiful flowers beside her husband in the Bethabara Moravian graveyard at Old Town, there to await the call of God to come forth to the resurrection of life.

Kimel

Jesse Theo Kimel died suddenly at his home in the Mount Carmel church community early in the morning of September 10th. He had been unwell for only a few days and his sudden passing was a great shock to his family and friends. He was born in 1873, thus making him only 58 years of age. He leaves, besides his widow, four sons and one daughter, one brother, and two sisters.

Brother Kimel was one of the best citizens of the community. He was held in the highest esteem by all who knew him. He was an honest, honorable, upright man in every way. He was devoted to his family. While he had never united with the church yet he was a regular attendant at Mount Carmel, where his five children are all active members. On Sunday before he died Thursday morning, after returning from seeing the doctor, he went to Sunday school, thus showing his interest in the things that pertain to the spiritual side of life.

The sympathy of a large number of neighbors and friends goes out to Sister Kimel and the children in this time of great sorrow and loss. May the comfort of the Holy Spirit be theirs during these lonesome days.

Funeral services were conducted at the home and at Mount Carmel church Friday afternoon by the pastor, assisted by Rev. Jesse Robertson of the Church of the Brethren, after which interment was made in the Mount Carmel cemetery. A great congregation filling the main auditorium and almost the annex of the church was a fitting testimony to the high place Brother Kimel held in the esteem of his friends.

Clothing and Other Gifts

Bessemer City M. P. church: 2 quilts, 2 quilt tops, 5 yards sheeting, 5 yards pique, 2 sheets, 1 bedspread, 1 towel, 2 pair pants, 1 dress, 5 yards prints, 1 scarf, 7 pair pillow cases, 42 yards sheeting, and a package of Octagon coupons.

Mrs. C. O. Byrd, Worthville, N. C.: 2 coats, 2 little boys' suits, 3 waists, 1 dress and 2 pair shoes.

Miss Laura Thompson, Jamestown, N. C.: 6 dresses and 2 slips.

We fully appreciate the gifts of money and substance which make this report possible. It is good to know that our friends keep helping us in the work here.

We had a good day on Haw River Circuit yesterday, Sunday. At 11 a. m. we were at Midway and at night at Brown Summit. A special service at Sharon Baptist church took many away from the Midway service, but we enjoyed our visit back into the old home community.

At Brown Summit there were representatives of three or four churches present. The house was nearly filled with interested listeners. We met many friends at both places, and the children thoroughly enjoyed the day.

The pastor is already planning for a committee in each church to secure for this Home the right kind of a Thanksgiving offering in money and produce from Haw River Circuit. Each fall this old home circuit remembers us with a large offering.

"Go and Sin No More"

Strange words to hear in sin-cursed earth!
'An words so strange have aught of worth?
'An soul all dyed with guilty stains
Be free to go and leave his chains?
Can he whose heart is bad to core
Go forward now and sin no more?

Who speaks such words of wondrous grace?
Has he the power to make take place?
Does he here bring great hope to men,
That they may be God's sons again?
Can all past sins be washed away
And men be kept from day to day?

Almost too great to hope or think,
It may be done this side death's brink.
No weakling speaks these words of hope,
But One who can with Satan cope.
With power on earth to pardon sin,
He arms and helps the battle win.

Dialogue Overheard in the Market Place

Two distinguished merchants met and fell into conversation—business conversation, of course. One of them was Mr. Seller of Labor and the other was Mr. Seller of Products. One standing by thus reports their dialogue:

Seller of Products—Good morning, Neighbor! How is business with you?

Seller of Labor—Fine, but not so good that it might not be better. I have in mind a little scheme through which my business and yours may both be greatly improved.

S. of P.—Indeed! I will be much interested in hearing about it.

S. of L.—I propose simply to double the price of all labor. This will enable all laboring people to become twice as great consumers as they can be now and will double the demand for your products, thus greatly helping your business as well as my own.

S. of P.—That may be plausible to you, but you seem to be overlooking a very important consideration. Labor enters into the production of all products, so that when you double the price of labor the cost of all products will be greatly increased. Besides, if you can arbitrarily raise the price of labor, I can arbitrarily raise the price of all products, reducing the purchasing power of laboring people to what it was before you began your manipulations. The result will be that it will take twice as much money to conduct the business of the world and nobody will be benefited except the money lenders.

Great harm is likely to come to the world through arbitrary changes in the price of either labor or the products of labor. There is a moral law that should control price-fixing. The price of labor is to be determined by the value of what it produces. A man may think he has a right to charge what he pleases for his labor or at any rate to charge all he can get. That is not much better than the ethics of the highway robber. Property belongs to those who produce it in the proportion of their contributions. Equity should rule in the distribution of wealth to all classes of workers, mental or physical, skilled or unskilled. If all men were satisfied with just wages, there would be few strikes or lockouts or periods of business depression.

S. of L.—I must go now to meet an engagement. I hope to see you again and talk further of this matter. I see there is need of great thought and care.

—The Liberal Arts College Bulletin enters its second volume with the September issue, a splendid number. Dr. A. Norman Ward, of the Methodist Protestant church, initiated a great movement for the better endowment of liberal arts colleges and is chairman of the committee of twenty having the movement in hand. The Bulletin is the organ of the movement. More than 200 colleges have enlisted for parts in the movement. Our three colleges, Adrian, High Point, and Western Maryland, are all enrolled. The following interesting statistics appear in the last Bulletin: The northern Baptists have one college for each 66,890 church members; Congregationalists, one for 24,720; M. E., North, one for 101,801; M. E., South, one for 89,724; Methodist Protestant, one for 61,333; Presbyterian, U. S. A., one for 45,566; Presbyterian, U. S., 25,436; Protestant Episcopal, one for 206,282.

—It is not best to be worried by agitation for church union, though much of it has been unfortunate in its results. Some of the proposals our denomination has received have not been complimentary to our intelligence or sense of honor. But if you are a Methodist Protestant, nobody but yourself can vote you into any other church. It might become possible, however, in the providence of God for some other church to become willing to unite with us in the spirit and form of our organization. In that case it might become our duty to unite. But it would be a crime for us to enter into a union that would involve the denial of the truth God has given us to defend and proclaim.

—Rev. C. W. Bates is preaching at Gray's Chapel this week and reports a good meeting.

—Rev. H. L. Isley helped last week in a meeting at New Salem with splendid results.

BATTLING THE CRIME WAVE

(Review of "Battling the Crime Wave," by Harry Elmer Barnes, published by the Stratford Company, Boston, $2.00)

By ERNEST H. CHERRINGTON, LL.D., LITT.D.,

General Sec. of the World League Against Alcoholism

"Then there is the matter of American moral hypocrisy, so effectively exposed by Henry Mencken, Raymond Pearl, Walter Lippmann and others. Americans are human beings, and hence addicted to games of chance, love and alcoholic stimulation. But they also have a tradition of moral purity, solemnity and earnestness, born of Puritanism and the exacting struggles of a pioneer society. Therefore, we are in the moral dilemma of wanting to be both happy and pure. This leads us to pass laws to give us moral respectability but we have no wish or serious intention to obey them. As Lippmann sums the matter up in the Forum: 'The high level of lawlessness is maintained by the fact that Americans desire to do so many things which they also desire to prohibit.'"—so writes Harry Elmer Barnes, Ph.D., in "Battling the Crime Wave." While this is not a complete explanation of existing lawbreaking and while many refuse to accept the hypocrisy theory, the experience of many interested in the solution of the alcohol problem has shown that the American people will vote for and enthusiastically approve ideals toward which they are striving but which they have not yet attained.

Dr. Barnes notes that our national crime bill is between seven and fifteen billions of dollars each year, that we arrest on the average one man for each ten crimes committed and that we convict one man for each three arrested in Cleveland and one for each five arrested in New York. As a primary factor in the solution of the criminal problem, Dr. Barnes feels that "The first step will be to find policemen more honest and intelligent than the criminals and, hence, able to apprehend them."

Here are the principal points in his scientific plan to prevent crime: "The first step would be to provide a thorough and accurate collection of crime statistics. There can be no intelligent and effective attack upon the crime problem until we have relatively full knowledge concerning the number, types and frequency of the crimes committed. We must also be informed in regard to the number of convictions and recommitments. Until we have such information we are compelled to flounder in the dark. Crime statistics are the indispensable data of the sciences of criminology and penology. Next we must insist upon such eugenic provisions as will insure that future generations shall be, as far as possible, well-born. Defectives must be sterilized. * * * Then it is necessary to create a rational and effective system of education. Any educational system which will render any real assistance in repressing crime must provide: (1) intelligent instruction in the ideals of American citizenship; (2) inculcation of the necessity for obedience to wise laws in any orderly society; (3) sufficient manual or vocational education to provide every able-bodied citizen with the means of making a livelihood; and (4) efficient methods of aiding backward children who might otherwise become easy victims of idleness and criminal suggestion. After all, the prevention of crime is chiefly an educational problem. The schools get a chance to shape the raw material. The courts and prisons get only the wreckage."

Dr. Barnes feels that there ought to be some adequate method of classifying prisoners, giving individual criminals appropriate treatment with the idea of curing instead of merely punishing them. The present publicity being given proposed legislation forbidding private citizens to carry weapons is very heavily scored by Dr. Barnes who writes: "In short, there is absolutely no conceivable manner in which the underworld can be prevented from securing an ample supply of pistols. Therefore, every law against gun-toting is only a law disarming the law-abiding and an invitation to the crook to take a pot-shot at the decent citizen. The sensible thing would be to enact a very liberal permit law, enabling any person of good character to buy and carry a pistol without threats or insults. There should be public encouragement of the application for such permits. Pistol practice on the part of citizens should be stimulated and rewarded. Special public honors should be showered on the private citizen who drills a crook." Dr. Barnes quotes the figures of Frederick L. Hoffman to the effect that "Prohibition has played no decisive part in creating our present homicide problem. Most convincing of all is the fact that, while the homicide rate doubled in the pre-prohibition days from 1900 to 1919, it has increased but slightly in the decade of prohibition. The homicide rate in 1900 was 5.1. By 1919 it has risen to 9.1. It had only advanced to 10.5 in 1929."

In view of the very widespread propaganda of the enemies of prohibition suggesting and encouraging violation of the law, Dr. Barnes' quotation of Professor Joseph L. Holmes' findings in regard to the part played by newspaper stories about crime is extremely interesting: "'An analysis of the replies quoted in the previous chapter shows that in the opinion of those officials the newspapers are guilty of inciting to crime; of showing criminals how profitable crime is; of aiding them in their escape from apprehension; of thwarting justice by 'newspaper trials' and otherwise making a travesty of the administration of the law, of the actual court proceedings themselves; of preventing the securing of impartial juries; of making of the offender a popular hero, one to be emulated; and by omission at least of thwarting what ever deterrent effect there may be in present penal methods. . . .'"

"The Family Tree of the Racketeer," the final chapter in this very interesting book develops the idea that the racketeer "is the composite product of a complex set of forces in American economic, social and psychological evolution." He traces the earlier strains back to the first explorer who came here to get great riches with small effort, through the frontier of its early gunmen, thence by the way of the great buccaneers of American business when great industrial enterprises "museled out" competitors. He finds labor had a part in this development of the racketeer while stock market gambling stimulated the aspiration of getting much for little.

The whole book is interesting. It discusses practically every phase of the crime problem, the holes in the law, the abuses by the police, capital punishment, the demand for civilized prison administration and the part played by the church and the press and the movies in either solving or complicating the criminal problem. Written in a very popular style and originally prepared for newspaper syndication, the book is a very valuable contribution to our literature on this subject.

◆◆◆ "BLESSED ARE THE MERCIFUL"

In her pleasant home, in the suburbs of Boston, sat a sorrowful mother, weeping and sighing. Her only son had left home after a squarrel with a stern father, and she did not know where he was. Day after day she had watched and waited for a letter, but in vain.

Suddenly, there were two quick rings at the door, the signal he always gave, and she rushed to answer it, but in place of the son she expected, she found a small boy, with a blue badge with white star on his coat.

"Missis," the small boy said, "us Band of Mercy boys are helping the folks around here to put out water, and something for the poor old stray kitties to eat."

"I can't be bothered with old cats," she replied.

"But my Daddy says that if we are merciful, we will get a blessing for ourselves," said the small boy.

Being impatient and disappointed, she closed the door before he had a chance to say anything further. As she walked to the window some hours after, she saw a poor, starved looking cat, and remembering the words of the small boy, she immediately put out a saucer of milk, and some small pieces of meat, which the poor animal devoured in a few minutes. Each day she continued to place food in her yard, and quite a few animals came who were hungry and thirsty. One morning as she was doing this, she heard two quick rings of the bell. "There is that Band of Mercy boy again," she said to herself, and she hurried to the door, but what joy and happiness, when she opened the door, to find her own boy instead!

"I am so sorry, Mother," he said, "to make you suffer, but I will not go away again, no matter what Father says."

Surely this was the blessing she had obtained for deeds of mercy, and when she told Harold, her son, about it, he said, "Now, what can we do for those youngsters?"

After thinking it over, he decided to try to give them an outing, and the neighbors were surprised to see a large sign in the front window,—

Autos Wanted

One of the neighbor's sons came in just as soon as he saw it and asked "What's the idea?" When told of the plans, he said, "Good sport! I will be the first, and I have a chum in the flag business, and we will have every car decorated."

A small boy was passing, and they called him and asked him to bring to the house any boy wearing a badge with a white star on it, and it did not take the youngster long to find one, and the plan was told to him, and he was to spread the news that the next Saturday, at 10 o'clock, there was to be a Band of Mercy Outing to the Blue Hills of Milton, and all the members were invited.

One after another the neighbors owning automobiles called, and the next Saturday the street was crowded with happy boys and people who came to see them start. Our story, which opened with sorrow, closes with joy, on account of the work of a small Band of Mercy boy.—Mrs. Alice B. Hutchins in Our Dumb Animals.

NOTICE OF THE MEETING OF THE ANNUAL CONFERENCE

The 104th session of the North Carolina Annual Conference of the Methodist Protestant Church, will be held in First Church, High Point, N. C., beginning Wednesday, November 4th at 10:00 A. M. All members of the Conference, both ministerial and lay, are urged to be present at the opening session and remain until the close. Most of the important work of the Conference comes toward the close. It isn't fair to ask the few who remain throughout the sessions to decide issues that ought to be determined by the whole body.

We urge upon our people in the local churches that they give themselves to prayer for the sessions of our Conference, that what is done may be done to the glory of God and to the furtherance of his Kingdom.

S. W. TAYLOR, President.

C. W. BATES, Secretary.

◆◆◆ COMFORT

When my heart is feeling sick and sore,
When my head aches much, my back aches more,
When cares have pressed and burdens crushed,
When friends have gone and loved ones failed—

Then I love to slip away alone
To some favorite spot by all unknown—
Where I can think, and pray, and cry,
And none can enter to question—Why?

To this, my bower of comfort fair
Jesus comes, and meets me there;
He knows my trials, every one,
And says I need not walk alone.

There we softly talk it o'er—
All the troubles and heartaches sore;
And there He gives me solace sweet,
As I wait calmly at His feet.

Then when I leave this place of rest
I know He knows just what is best;
I have new strength to meet my day,
For naught can crush me if I pray.

So when my way seems drear and long,
I call to Him—He gives a song;
Thus, others hear me sing. I smile
And praise my Saviour all the while.

◆◆◆ WHO WILL ANSWER THE QUESTIONS?

One of the members of our North Carolina Conference asked some very pertinent questions about union with the M. E. Church in the HERALD of September 17. It is time, I think, for some one who is familiar with the situation to answer these questions, informing our ministers and people in detail as to what was really done at the recent meeting of the commissioners in Chicago. Our next annual conference will elect representatives to the General Conference and it seems to me that we ought to have positive knowledge about the union question. Who will answer the questions?

A LOYAL METHODIST PROTESTANT.

Enfield and Whitakers

We were on these fields Friday, September 18. Our contact with the Whitaker's church was through personal interviews, as we had no service there. The revival was in progress at the Enfield church. Dr. Johnson was assisted in this meeting by Rev. J. Elwood Carroll. We had the pleasure of hearing him in two services, Friday afternoon and at night. Immediately after the night service, the third quarterly conference of the Enfield charge was held. This charge is made up of Enfield church. Each church was officially represented in the conference, and other interested persons were present. The pastor's report indicated a high standard of spirituality and faithfulness on the part of some individuals of the charge; others have not grown in grace to this measure. The Enfield church appears to be well organized. The three C. E. societies have large memberships, and are pleasingly active. The Woman's Auxiliary organized this year has forty members, and is showing much interest and activity. The pastor spoke in much praise of this organization. The Sunday School at this church is also good.

Whitaker's Chapel has no Sunday School at this time. Easter was observed at both churches, and Enfield is preparing the Rally Day program. The Enfield school has paid the allotment for Young People's Work, and probably the C. E. society, though our records do not enable us to be sure about this. Whitaker's Chapel is an old historic church, and has furnished two honored ministers of our conference, Rev. C. H. Whitaker, and Dr. C. L. Whitaker, and probably others in the earlier days of our conference. At this time the church does not seem to be prospering. Changes in local conditions sometimes reduce a church's field for service. This is probably true at this church. We hope, however, that the problem there may be wisely and timely solved. Finances are much in arrears on the charge, though a faithful effort will be made to bring them up, and we believe that good results will follow. We found conditions normal at Whitakers, and persistent effort will be made there, as at Enfield, to close the year well. It is needless to say that Dr. Johnson is giving wise and earnest attention to the work. He does not know how to do otherwise.

For entertainment on this field, we are indebted to Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Cutchin, Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Powers, and Mr. and Mrs. P. S. Bellamy. And the pastor, of course, for his thoughtful attention.

Spring Church

Sunday, September 20, was given to this charge, and all three of the churches were visited. The first service was at Lebanon. We arrived there in time for the Sunday School and studied the lesson with Pastor Lowdermilk's class. Brother W. W. Grant is superintendent. The school is doing good work. At 11 o'clock it was our privilege to preach. The attendance was gratifying and the interest pleasing.

In the afternoon the appointment was at Spring church. This is one of our Centennial churches. From its very beginning, and on up to the present, it has been an influential church, and has always numbered in its membership the substantial citizens of the community. It gets its name from the large spring of never-failing fresh water just at the foot of the small hill on which the church is located. Our appointment at this place was at an unfavorable hour, and the congregation was not large, though responsive.

Our final service for the day was at Pleasant Hill. This church is not so old as the other two churches of the charge, and is the only church in the village. It is located on a hard surfaced highway leading to Petersburg and Richmond, and all points north and south. The building is neat in appearance, and its location affords a splendid opportunity for a beauty spot. We suggested this to the people, and also that a suitable marker be placed on the church. Everybody who passes that much-traveled highway should know that that is a Methodist Protestant church. The attendance here was good, and an attentive and worshipful attitude characterized the service. Brother Lowdermilk, the pastor, is going about his work with his characteristic earnestness. At Lebanon he gave out envelopes for the benefit of the budgets. He and his people will labor together for a good closing.

At each of these churches on this charge an offering was taken for the A. C. B., with results as follows: Lebanon $13.63; Spring Church, $6.85; Pleasant Hill, $2.06. Total, $22.51.

We are indebted for entertainment while on this charge to Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Dunham, Mr. and Mrs. John Hart, and Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Grant. Brother Lowdermilk was thoughtful and helpful, for which we are grateful.

On Monday night, September 21, it was my privilege, in company with Brother Lowdermilk, to be the guest of Mrs. O'Briant in her home near Rosemary. We were glad to find her well, and adjusting herself to life made so different for her by the passing of her loved companion. This is a pleasant home, and it is always a pleasure to visit it. We missed Brother O'Briant, but his good wife and good works were in evidence. Sister O'Briant is fortunate in having her niece, and her brother and his family, make their home with her.

Rally Day

It is not too late yet to observe this day. If the denominational program can not be prepared, observe the day in some other manner. - Set a time and let the pastor preach a sermon appropriate to the Rally Day idea, or have a visiting speaker for the day. Any thing that puts emphasis on a new beginning for our fall and winter work, after the lull of the long summer months, will conform to the Rally Day idea, and prove helpful. This year, the Board has dedicated the program to Dr. J. F. McCulloch, "North Carolina's Apostle of Christian Education," and our own High Point College is featured throughout the program. If nothing more can be done in the way of a Rally Day than distribute this booklet to our people, and take an offering for Christian Education, that will be eminently worthwhile. I urge that we do this. Send your order at once to Dr. F. W. Stephenson, Pittsburgh, Pa., 613 West Diamond St., N. S. He will send you, free of charge, as many copies of this pleasing and informing booklet as you need for distribution among your people. And you will take credit, of course, on your New Century Service Budget for the amount of offering.

Produce Day

We have been of the opinion for some time that "Produce Day" can be made effective on many of our rural charges. Brother M. C. Henderson gives proof of this in last week's HERALD. By getting his members to give cotton, he has paid the A. C. B. in full at Fairview church, and a large part of this budget has been paid in the same way at Liberty Hill. The idea may be expanded so as to include other kinds of produce. Our rural people are not on pay rolls and do not have the ready cash that those do who are on pay roll. But they have the equivalent of cash,—just the sort of things that people have to spend cash for. Why not, then, pool these things—this produce of various kinds—and take it to market and convert it into cash? Of course an itemized record should be kept of all that is contributed in this way, so that each contributor can be given full credit on church dues. We wish that some other charge would try this right promptly, and report results. We thank Brother Henderson for telling us about his success.

"It's All Wrong"

That is the way one minister thinks about the active part that pastors have to take in raising the finances of the church. He thinks that this part of the work belongs to the laity. And he seems to have good authority for it. The instruction of the Apostles was that the church should appoint "seven men (Laymen) of honest report, full of the Holy Ghost and wisdom" to look after the material business of the church, while the apostles gave themselves "continually to prayer, and to the ministry of the word." It is most likely that laymen would get better preaching if pastors had more time for prayer and study. We urge our laymen to accept this responsibility with a new purpose during these closing weeks, and see to it that the church does not suffer any unnecessary lack in finances. If our stewards will take hold of this problem with faith and courage, we shall have a gratifying surprise when the work is done. Now, brethren of the laity, to the task. And may God richly bless your efforts.

Election—Installation

We are now approaching the time when church officers should be elected for the ensuing year. This is important business, and it should be attended to well and timely before the close of this conference year. It is an exceedingly important matter to hold office in the church of God, and just any time and any manner of choosing these officers isn't sufficient. The discipline of the church provides that they shall be chosen at the Annual Church Meeting, "unless their election shall be otherwise provided for." The important thing is that they be timely and orderly elected, and that the persons who constitute the official family of the church shall be thoughtfully and wisely chosen. The best way to do this, we think, is through a nominating committee, appointed long enough before the election to go carefully over the entire membership of the church and select such persons as are best fitted for the various offices of the church. However, a nominating committee does not interfere with the full freedom of the congregation in nominating other persons if any one desires to do so. The merit of this committee is in the fact that it offers to the church a carefully chosen group.

After the officers are elected, they should be properly installed. This should be done before the close of this year's work. The installation service adopted by the conference is on page 83 of the Journal of 1928.

Change of Pastorates

There will be some changes this year, as is always the case. This is a matter that is vital to both pastors and churches, and sometimes results adversely to both. Where changes are to be made there should be a frank understanding between the pastor and the church, and every hurt should be carefully avoided. And let us suggest that unless there is a good reason for a change, no change be made. Moving is expensive, and this is not a good time to incur unnecessary expense. As we approach this period when this matter is much on our minds, I am reminded again of the words of Dr. Lewis, of sainted memory. I quote from "The Epic of Preaching": "They (Ministers) are supposed to pray about this. But prayer is presumed to be a submission to God for his decision. And if God decides it he will use the instrumentalities instituted in his providence to make known that decision. To be consistent, therefore, the preacher should pray for that man or those men who have been set over this business and then let them alone. My conviction is that a preacher will get the appointment that God wants him to have unless he interferes with it himself." Brethren, let us all be much in prayer that the guiding hand of God may be upon this, and every other problem that we must deal with in our approaching conference.
